STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, BUSINESS AGENTS, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1901.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under the superintendence of a native ordained pastor in connexion with the Society. The post-town of each Station, when it is known, is given in parenthesis after the name of the Station in the following list, except in cases where the Station is itself a post-town. Where not otherwise stated, it may be assumed that the Stations and out-Stations which are indented have the same post-town as the main Stations under which they are placed. In Palestine, where there is no delivery of letters, it is desirable to address letters intended for the out-Stations to the "care of" one of the missionaries at the main Station.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "Dub."; Durham, "Dur."; Edinburgh, "Edin."; London, "Lond."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lond. Coll. Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L." In the case of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, Clapham; or of ladies trained at "The Willows," Stoke Newington, at "The Olives," South Hampstead, or at the Society's Highbury Training Home, the words "Clapham," or "The Willows," or "The Olives," or "Highbury," occur after their names. The letter D. after the name of an ordained man, whether European or Native, indicates that he was a Deacon at the above date. The word "Nurse" after the name of a missionary denotes that she is a trained nurse.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, mean that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations, or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to the Society is responsible for house rent, &c., as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose names it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society. The Native Ministers in New Zealand are supported partly by Subscriptions from Native Christians, and partly from the rents of lands belonging to the Society in the Colony.

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as Deacon.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = the late Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that, the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed, in almost every instance immediately after their husbands.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, April 30th, 1901, being the Society's One-hundred and Second Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., M.P.,
President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

The General Review of the Year was read, followed by the CHAIRMAN'S address, after which, on a motion by the PRESIDENT, seconded by the RIGHT REV. THE LORD BISHOP OF RIPON, D.D., it was Resolved—

That the General Review which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Newcastle for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., V.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill up vacancies; and further that this Meeting, at the first Anniversary of the Society in a new Century and a new Reign, records its devout gratitude to Almighty God for the innumerable blessings which have been vouchsafed during the long and prosperous reign of their late beloved Queen, and which have made the Victorian Age pre-eminently an age of Missions: and while earnestly beseeching a continuance of these blessings upon the King and his Realm, this Meeting specially expresses its earnest desire that the Church of Christ in this land may be foremost in preparing the way of Him whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and Who shall reign for ever and ever in righteousness and peace.

On a motion by the RIGHT REV. THE BISHOP OF NORTH CHINA, D.D., seconded by CLEMENT F. R. ALLEN, Esq., it was Resolved—

That this Meeting, deeply thankful that it has pleased God to spare the Society during the late troubles in China a renewal of the sorrows which fell upon its work six years ago, desires to express its profound sympathy with other Societies which have recently suffered, and especially with the friends and fellow-workers of those who have lately fallen for the Faith in that land, both European, American, and Chinese, and earnestly prays that out of the very distress and confusion there may come in the Providence of God that peace and prosperity which shall open the way for the effective evangelization of China; and for this end, as well as for like blessings upon all lands, this Meeting earnestly pleads with all who look for and love the appearing of the Lord to labour more abundantly, as well in self-denial as in supplication, and to recognize in its full measure the solemn constraint with which the love of Christ has bound His Church to be His witness unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

The following Meetings were also held in London on the same day in connexion with the Anniversary:—

(c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is, to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorize such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is, to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the COMMITTEE, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licenses in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licenses will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connection with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O Most merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, Who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

ALMIGHTY GOD, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday, April 29th, 1901,

BY

LORD BISHOP OF NEWCASTLE,

A Vice-President of the Society.

"YE ARE WITNESSES OF THESE THINGS."—St. Luke xxiv. 48.

To the critical question when and where these words were spoken I shall give but little time. Were they, as would certainly appear on the first reading of the passage, and as eminent commentators maintain, a part of our Lord's teaching on that first Easter Day when He appeared to "the eleven" and "them that were with them"? Or were they spoken later, during the great Forty Days, possibly a summary of much teaching of a similar character? It is impossible for us to determine. Perhaps it is safest to say with the Bishop of Durham, "The passage in St. Luke which follows the account of the appearance to the eleven and those that were with them seems to include words which belong to the Easter evening, as well as to later occasions." And, if it is legitimate to draw the line and say which words belong to the Easter evening, a great deal may be said for assigning to the Easter evening all the passage to the end of my text, and the next verse, the forty-ninth, to a distinctly later occasion. At any rate, if our Lord referred to the Old Testament on a later occasion, it is the only occasion after Easter Day in which He is reported to have done so, for He seems to have put aside the past and to be solely concerned with the future in all His later post-Resurrection utterances, and I cannot understand how the forty-seventh verse can be separated from the forty-sixth, while the forty-eighth, which forms my text, is the practical application of the whole to the infant Church. But we can determine nothing with certainty, nor is the point one of vital importance. In the one case our Lord seems to be hurrying, on the very first occasion on which He meets, not individual disciples, but the society which was to grow into the Church of Christ, to speak to them of their world-wide responsibilities as all along designed in the Divine Counsel and underlying all the Old Testament Scriptures. In the other case, out of the many utterances of our Lord during the great Forty Days, when He spoke to them "the things concerning the kingdom of God" (Acts i. 3, R.V.), St. Luke chooses this as one of transcendent importance. The importance of the application to the living Church is equally plain, whatever hypothesis be taken as to the place and time of utterance.

But let me pass now to the meaning of the passage itself. Whenever the words were spoken, there is nothing to limit their application to the Apostles or to an ordained ministry. If they belong to the first Easter evening, then the point is clear that the Apostles were not gathered together alone, from the fact that St. Luke adds the words, "them that were with them," and the party was joined by Cleopas and the other disciple to whom the risen Lord had appeared on their way to Emmaus. And, if the words were spoken later, the fact that St. Luke records them immediately after the record of the first Easter evening, and with no limitation to the eleven, is conclusive as to their application to the entire Church. And what is the teaching that has to be thus applied? It is simply a Divine summary of the Old Testament. "These are My words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, how that all things must needs be fulfilled, which are written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms, concerning Me. Then opened He their mind, that they might understand the Scriptures; and He said unto them, Thus it is written, that the Christ should suffer, and rise again from the dead the third day" (St. Luke xxiv. 44–46, R.V.). So far the passage is parallel with that which records our Lord's teaching to the two disciples on the way to Emmaus, when He said, "O foolish men, and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! Behoved it not the Christ to suffer these things, and to enter into His glory? And beginning from Moses and all the prophets, He interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself" (ver. 25–28, R.V.). But now St. Luke adds these momentous words, "and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His Name unto all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem. Ye are witnesses of these things" (ver. 47, 48, R.V.). We hear much, brethren, of the interpretation of the Old Testament, but any view of the Old Testament which falls short of this summary of its meaning as given by our Lord will fail to bring conviction to the minds of men who believe in Jesus Christ as the central figure of the entire Bible. These three things must be placed together, the Cross, the Resurrection, and the preaching of repentance and remission of sins in Christ's Name. We are not at liberty to interpret the Old Testament Scriptures as though they were intended just simply to predict by type and prophecy the Cross of Christ and the Resurrection of Christ, and as though the evangelization of the world were a subsequent thought of the Divine mind. When our minds are opened that we understand the Old Testament Scriptures, then we perceive that all along they point, in type and prophecy, in history and poetry, by the progressive revelation to the few, and by the training of the whole world, to a crucified and risen Messiah, and further to a Gospel of repentance and remission of sins preached in the Name of this crucified and risen Lord to all the nations, with priority only, and not with preference, to the Jewish nation. Passages in the Old Testament which must have been obscure before are now lit up with a heavenly meaning. "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed," said God (Gen. xii. 3, R.V.) to faithful Abraham. "All the ends of the earth," cried the Psalmist (xxii. 27, R.V.), "shall remember and turn unto the Lord: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before Thee." "It is too light a thing," was the revelation to Isaiah (xlix. 6, 22, R.V.), "that thou shouldest be My servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be My salvation unto the end of the earth." "Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will lift up Mine hand to the nations, and set up My ensign to the peoples: and they shall bring thy sons in their bosom, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders." In other words, a world-wide Church, with its foundation in the Cross of Calvary and the Resurrection from the grave, was all along the real key to the meaning of the Old Testament. And then, turning to His Apostles and those who were with them as the representatives of His Church, our Lord throws all the responsibility of the proclamation of His Gospel upon them—"Ye are witnesses of these things."

I venture to think that the full bearing of these words is best seen if we compare them with a parallel passage in the last chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew. St. Matthew records but two appearances of our Lord after His Resurrection, one to the holy women on the first Easter Day, and the other to the disciples on the mountain of Galilee. But the latter is the appearance which is the climax of his Gospel and on which he chiefly dwells. The first is introduced simply as preparing for the second. Indeed, the appearance to the disciples on the mountain of Galilee is heralded by two miraculous appearances on the day of the Resurrection—one of the angel at the tomb, and the other of our Lord Himself. "Go quickly," said the angel to Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, "and tell His disciples, He is risen from the dead; and lo, He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him: lo, I have told you." The order was obeyed. "They departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to bring His disciples word. And behold Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and took hold of His feet, and worshipped Him. Then said Jesus unto them, Fear not: go tell My brethren that they depart into Galilee, and there shall they see Me" (R.V.) Beyond the words "All hail" and "Fear not" we are told nothing of our Lord's words to them except that He repeated the message already given by the angel at the tomb. An appearance thus heralded, first by an angel and then by the risen Lord Himself, must be of transcendent importance. We are not told that it took place immediately, or that there were not earlier appearances at Jerusalem to the disciples as a body. But the one appearance to them which St. Matthew is directed to record is that on the mountain of Galilee, and he heralds it by the vision of the angel and of the risen Christ to Mary Magdalene and the other Mary.

Now examine the record of the appearance thus wonderfully introduced: "But the eleven disciples went into Galilee, unto the mountain which Jesus had appointed them. And when they saw Him, they worshipped Him: but some doubted. And Jesus came to them and spake unto them, saying, All authority hath been given unto Me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Is it not remarkable that this apostle and evangelist, who seems specially to have written for the Jews to convince them that Christ was the predicted Messiah, should close his Gospel with the record of this world-wide commission, in which no preference, not even any priority, is specifically given to a single nation, and in which the first clear revelation of the doctrine of the Trinity is bound up with, and cannot be detached from, a command to make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the sacred Name? If the words of our Lord which I have quoted from St. Luke, and to which He adds the application and command that I have taken as my text to-day, are a divine summary of the Old Testament, may we not say that the last two verses of St. Matthew's Gospel are a Divine summary of the New? What is the baptismal formula, "the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," but the summary of the progressive revelation made in the Gospels? What are the words, "Go ye, make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them," but a summary of the first volume, and the one inspired volume, of Church History, the Acts of the Apostles? What are the words, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you," but a summary of the apostolic teaching as given in the Epistles? What are the words, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world," but a summary of that book with which the Canonical Scriptures close, which spans the ages until the risen Christ appears again in glory, and which appeals to and inspires the imagination of the believer, the Revelation of St. John the Divine? And if so, then Old and New Testament alike, interpreted by the Master Who is the central figure of each, speak to us of an incarnate, crucified, and risen Lord, of a Trinity in Unity, Three Persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and yet but one God, of a delegated authority given by the Father to the Son, in virtue of which the Son commissions His Church to proclaim to the entire world in His Name a Gospel of repentance and forgiveness of sins. This commission, examined in detail, proves to be a command to the Church to make disciples out of every nation by baptizing into the sacred Name, to teach the meaning of the revelation contained in that first creed of Christendom, to unfold the graduated teaching that the Master had given on earth Himself, and to remember that, whatever the hindrances, the disbelief of men, or the failures of the Church herself through the treasure being in earthen vessels, the Divine promise was yet for ever true—"Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

"Ye are witnesses of these things." I want to take these words as the practical application of these two passages of Scripture from St. Matthew and St. Luke put together.

Has the living Church realized the force of the words in their application to successive generations? If we cannot confine their application to an ordained ministry, still less can we confine them to those to whom they were first uttered. Generation after generation has passed, and men have taken these words as though they applied simply to the Apostles as eye-witnesses in some measure, and were confined to them. I see no reason whatever to believe that these words were addressed simply to the Apostles, or, indeed, simply to the Church in those early days. To me they are the strongest and directest missionary command in all the Gospels. They are the personal application to living men representing the Church in each age of the Divine summary of the entire Revelation of God to man, as given in Old and New Testament alike, and the devolving, by a Divine delegation, of the responsibility of proclaiming this world-wide Gospel upon the personal representatives in each age of the living Church of Christ. Taken in conjunction with the parallel passage in the end of St. Matthew's Gospel, they are Christ's personal appeal to His Church to carry a Gospel throughout the world, never contented with any limited evangelization, a Gospel complete in the revelation taught, in the moral and spiritual results flowing from it, and in the society in which the revelation should be enshrined. The cumulative force of these two passages from St. Matthew and St. Luke, the former the more striking from the obvious desire of the evangelist to convince the Jewish nation, to whom, nevertheless, not even is any passing allusion made in the great words spoken from the mountain of Galilee, seems to me quite overwhelming, and I ask myself how it is that only a small minority of the Church of Christ as yet appreciates the binding obligation to proclaim the Gospel throughout the entire world. Is there something at fault in our presentation of the truth as we teach our children? Are we not too much in the habit of just taking the New Testament as the record of our Lord's life upon earth, and of His death and Resurrection and the teaching thereon, without showing that our risen Lord hastened to instruct His infant Church that the evangelization of the world was the absolutely necessary sequel of His death and Resurrection, and that the living Church in each age until His coming again was responsible for carrying out this command? Do we take our Lord's teaching in the Gospels as though we were at liberty to apply part of it only to ourselves, and to forget the proportion in which He presents it? Do we infer, from the fact that in His earlier teaching to the Apostles the world-wide commission is not fully unfolded, a conclusion that will warrant us in acquiescing in a standard of Christianity that knows no aspiration after the evangelization of the world? How could our Lord have unfolded this commission before the Cross and the Resurrection—on which the Gospel is based—had been grasped as realities affecting life? How slow were the Apostles to realize the necessity of the death of their Master at all! Not even the Transfiguration really opened the eyes of the chosen three, although after this great event our Lord began to speak openly of His death that He might train them not to be offended by it. After He had given them what teaching they could bear, He said to them the night before He suffered, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." But see what is His presentation of truth when the Cross is in the past and He appears among them in His risen and glorified body. Now Old and New Testament alike testify to the death, the Resurrection and (on the same level as the death and Resurrection and flowing from them) the proclamation of a Gospel of repentance and remission of sins throughout the entire world. Now the command to men who had been slowly and painfully trained is to proclaim a revelation, to form a society, to baptize into the sacred Name all the world over, to hand on to this society the teaching which He had given to them, to believe in His perpetual Presence. How can I take the revelation with all its unspeakable comfort to myself and detach it from its setting in a command to evangelize the world? How can I cherish the privilege of baptizing those near and dear to me into the Name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, and forget that this privilege was meant for every child of man? How can I take the comfort of God's Word to myself and forget that, as my Master has interpreted it, the spreading and proclaiming of a Gospel of repentance and remission of sins through all the nations is just as much a part of its real meaning as the death and resurrection of Christ? Let us look at the teaching in the proportion in which the risen Lord gives it to His Church, and we shall then have learnt an abiding lesson as to the presentation of the truth to our children and the building up of the Church.

"Ye are witnesses of these things."

Take these words then, my brethren, in their application to ourselves as being representatives of the living Church of God. How are we bearing this witness?

(i.) There is the witness of prayer. Is it ours? It is surely by our Lord's own teaching our first great testimony in obeying His command: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He send forth labourers into His harvest" (St. Matt. ix. 37, 38, R.V.). Prayer, private, family, public, is our first witness. Have we not realized, since a special Day of Intercession for the Foreign Mission work of the Church was set apart by the heads of the Church at home and abroad, how much greater blessing has been given to our labours, and how many more have been led to offer themselves for missionary work with a true sense of a Divine commission? And if there is any slackness, any disappointment that the labourers are still few, may it not be that the Church as a whole has still to perfect this testimony—the witness of intercession?

(ii.) There is the witness of life. Have we noticed the power of the Christian life to attract, both in the individual Christian and in the Divine society—the Church of Christ? Brethren, bear with me if I say what is known to so many, and what has been the experience of every man who has travelled and seen the Mission-field for himself, that the unworthy lives of professing Christians are the worst hindrance of all to the advance of the Kingdom of God. St. Paul was conscious of this when he said to the people of Corinth, "Ye are our epistle." He was well aware that the Epistles which he had written with pen and ink would be of little comparative value unless they were confirmed by the epistles in flesh and blood; and he was well aware that in reading the living epistles men would read first of all the life before they would be induced to go back upon the doctrine which was the support of the life. Realize, I pray you, from this point of view the unspeakable importance of a high standard of spiritual life in our own parishes at home in its bearing on missionary work. May I appeal to my brethren in the ministry specially to remember how the whole Foreign Mission work of the Church may be helped or hindered by the lives of young men or others who may leave their parishes for the army or navy or mercantile marine, or to emigrate to the Colonies or to America? I speak as one who has had this responsibility as incumbent of a large parish sending many of its sons into the Royal Navy. We cannot be too careful in inspiring and training the lives of our own countrymen that they may be living epistles wherever they go, enshrining, illustrating, and teaching the Epistles written in the Word of God, and thus proving, by a double testimony—the witness of the Word written and the witness of the Word lived—the truth of the Gospel which the risen Lord commanded His disciples to proclaim throughout the world.

(iii.) I pass from the life of the individual to the witness of the nation. "Ye are witnesses of these things." Was the appeal ever made to a nation so forcibly as it is made to us? What nation has ever had so world-wide a dominion? Consider that great dependency of India with its 300,000,000 of souls so lately devastated by plague and famine! God has blessed our labours in India, and yet so far more has America realized the need of winning India to Christ that, as I have frequently said before, a hundred years hence, if England and America send out missionaries to India in the same proportion as during the past thirty years, India, for which Great Britain is primarily responsible, will owe its Christianity more to America with its various Christian bodies than to all the societies of Great Britain and Ireland combined, and I am not willing that this reproach should remain. Consider the vast territory in South Africa where a great war has not yet ceased, but which is yet added to the dominions of the British Crown! If ever Imperialism had a Christian side it is here, and our responsibility for rebuilding the wrecked Church throughout South Africa, and for bringing the Gospel of repentance and remission of sins home to the far larger native population, is one which we can only ignore at our peril. Consider the terrible crisis through which the civilized world is passing in its relation to China. Are the Christian Powers brought into contact with that vast and ancient Oriental system simply for the gratification of their own civil or commercial aims, or is a vast responsibility laid upon them to win to Christ a people whom they cannot ignore, and out of whom they are all seeking to make some purely secular profit? Has not the steadfastness of Chinese Christians in an unparalleled crisis been a rebuke to our want of faith, and taught us what China may add even to the knowledge which the principalities and the powers in the heavenly places are gaining through the Church on earth of the manifold wisdom of God (Eph. iii. 10)? No serious Englishman can think of these responsibilities without lamenting national sins that dim the clearness of the testimony that our nation is called upon to bear, and praying that the nation may bear witness with increasing righteousness and singleness of heart and purpose to the Gospel which the risen Christ would have us proclaim throughout the world.

(iv.) And yet primarily and mainly this witness must be the witness of the Church. It was to the Church, not to the ordained ministry alone, that these words were uttered: "Ye are witnesses of these things." If the Church is to bear her witness the individual Christian must witness first, by prayer and life, and the individual Christian is a member of a nation, and he is bound to do his utmost that the nation shall bear her witness with clear and sound ring. But the witness of the Church is something more than the aggregate witness of individual Christians. For the Church is Christ's "Body, the fulness of Him that filleth all in all" (Eph. i. 23), and every clergyman and every layman must do his part that the witness of the Church as a whole be clear and true. Brethren, you would not have me utter smooth words from this pulpit if I do not believe them to be true. I thank God for the testimony which this Society has borne to the truth on which we are meditating to-day. I thank God that this Society has borne its witness to, and on behalf of, the entire Church, and that many who would not be considered as members of the Society have yet caught its missionary spirit and are trying to act upon its principles. And yet I am bound to say that, even amongst average members of the Church of England, it is quite the minority who are really grasping the great truth that the Church must be a missionary Church or else cease to do her Master's will. We have only, as it were, been touching the surface, and we need to be roused, not only as a nation but as a Church, to a sense of our great responsibility for the proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. I cannot but believe that the time will come when to-day will be considered but as the day of small things in comparison with a harvest yet to come. We have slowly emerged during the past century from an apathy and a deadness which made all Foreign Mission work seem a hopeless and needless enthusiasm, and therefore threw into bolder relief the strong faith of the small remnant that held fast to the command and the promises of the risen Lord. Already God has abundantly blessed our efforts throughout the world, inadequate as these efforts have been. The number of missionaries on the list of the Church Missionary Society has nearly trebled in the last thirteen and a half years, and even during the year 1900 I observe that there have been some 8,000 baptisms of adults and 10,000 of children in the Society's Missions, and when I know what this means I thank God and take courage. God in His mercy has given us many seals of the ministry of His servants who have been labouring to proclaim a Gospel of repentance and remission of sins based upon the Cross and Resurrection of Christ. But we come here to-day that we may stir each other up to greater prayer and greater effort. Let us take these words of our Master in their application to us to-day: "Ye are witnesses of these things"—witnesses by prayer and life, witnesses by the testimony of the nation and the testimony of the Church. On us as witnesses the risen and ascended Lord, the ever-present Head and Captain of His Church, devolves the responsibility of proclaiming in His Name throughout all the nations a Gospel of repentance and remission of sins. He Who thus delegates to us the great work is He Who suffered and rose again and ever liveth to intercede, and they who accept the call are they whose hearts His love has touched, and who work under the blessing of His uplifted hands. I appeal to my brethren of the clergy to make Foreign Missions an integral part of their parochial work and not merely the subject of passing interest. I appeal to clergy and laity alike to give this testimony which the risen Lord demands at their hands. Be ye witnesses brethren, of these things, witnesses in your lives, witnesses as belonging to this great nation, witnesses as members of the Church of Christ. It is only as we separately and singly strive to work together and to give our testimony that we can expect to carry out this command of the Master, and to be the human agents in winning all nations to Him.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN EXETER HALL, APRIL 30th, 1901.)

"Of His Kingdom there shall be no end."—ST. LUKE i. 33.

AT the commencement of a new Reign, following on the longest and happiest Reign in the history of the British Empire, the whole Christian Church may well look up to Him Who is King of kings, and of Whose Kingdom there shall be no end, praising Him for the wonderful mercies of the past sixty-four years, and imploring His blessing upon the Reign now so auspiciously begun. In the dutiful and loyal address with which the Committee of the Church Missionary Society approached King Edward the Seventh, they expressed their desire that under His Majesty's rule "our country" might "ever be forward in bearing to other peoples that Gospel of our Blessed Lord" which they "believe to be the surest hope of national prosperity and honour." They rejoice that the Victorian Era has been emphatically the Era of Missions. In the world-wide mourning for the venerated Queen, the Christians gathered out of many races by God's blessing on missionary labours have taken their full share. Indian Christians wept for their Empress, for the "World's Mother." as one old Punjabi woman called her. Chinese Christians, guiltless of geography, asked if Osborne were more than two days' journey off, and how they could get there. Throughout Uganda memorial services were held in the native churches. In Persia the Mohammedans joined the Christians to hear Bishop Stuart's funeral sermon. Even on the Yukon, in the furthest corner of North-West Canada, the news was known within five days, and the Red Indians gathered to praise God for Queen Victoria, and to pray for King Edward.

Mourning for Queen Victoria.

The very year in which the King was born, 1841, was a memorable year in the history of Missions. It saw a young Scotsman, David Livingstone, sailing for Africa, whose life and whose death were destined to be an inspiration to Protestant Christendom, resulting in the Nyassa, Tanganyika, Uganda, Zanzibar, Zambesi, and Congo Missions of to-day, as well as in an immense extension of British influence. It saw the first Niger Expedition, the fruits of which, though long delayed, are now shown in the Protectorates of Lower and Upper Nigeria and the Negro Church of the Delta. It saw the establishment of the Colonial Bishoprics Fund, and the going forth of Bishop Selwyn to an infant Colony—a Colony made possible by the labours of C.M.S. missionaries in bringing a whole race of cannibals under Christian instruction—a Colony which now has its independent Church and its seven Bishops, and which has sent its sons to share in the perils and privations of the South African War. It saw Oxford and Cambridge sending forth Fox and Noble to found the C.M.S. Telugu Mission, which has brought thousands to Christ. It saw the war with China, which opened the long-closed Empire to missionary effort; and even the most inveterate scepticism as to results has now at last had to stand abashed at the sight of Chinese converts by the hundred going fearlessly to a martyr's death for Christ's sake.

China. These martyrdoms and the massacres of the missionaries do not loom large in the current history of the world; but in centuries yet to come they will stand out as the great event of the year 1900, just as the persecutions under Nero and Diocletian, little thought of by the average Roman of the period, are now, in any chronological table, the events of A.D. 64 and 303. When we are far enough off to get the right perspective, the affairs of the Church of Christ are seen in their true pre-eminence. While unfeignedly thanking God that the lives of the Church Missionary Society's missionaries have been spared, and deeply sympathizing with other Societies which suffered so grievously—especially the China Inland Mission, with its loss of fifty-eight missionaries and twenty children—the Committee fully believe that the progress of the Gospel in China is but checked for the moment, and that a time of blessing as yet unrealized is assuredly at hand. The earnest of this is to be seen in the faithfulness of the Chinese Christians—not only of the martyrs, but of the survivors. The Central and Southern Provinces, in which are the C.M.S. Missions, suffered little; but most of the missionaries were withdrawn from the interior stations under the peremptory orders of the British Consuls, and in those very stations the work of the Missions has been carried on regularly by the Chinese clergy and teachers. Even the great hospital at Hang-chow was never entirely closed, Dr. Liu, a Chinaman trained by Dr. Main, and the other native assistants, ministering to the patients as usual during the absences—very brief—of the medical missionaries. From some stations, however—Ningpo, Hing-hwa, Pakhoi—the missionaries did not withdraw; and, although in many ways the work of evangelization all over China has been sorely hindered, the number of adult converts openly confessing Christ in baptism has been considerable—in the C.M.S. Fuh-Kien Mission no less than 627. The rapid progress of the last few years in China is largely due to the labours of devoted Christian women. In the C.M.S. Missions alone more than 120 unmarried ladies were at work in the earlier part of the year (including 45 C.E.Z.M.S.); and to this goodly band four of our Colonies have sent contingents, viz., New South Wales, Victoria, Tasmania, and Canada. The Committee entirely accept the united testimony of the most experienced of them, that woman's work in China can be carried on without risks or privations other than may rightly be faced for Christ's sake, and, generally speaking, even in comfort and perfect safety. The Chinese nation, as a whole, no more deserves the hard words often spoken of it than do the missionaries. Not only are the people as a rule friendly, but even the officials have repeatedly shown kindness and courtesy to the foreigners, whose high motives they perfectly understand, particularly to the ladies. Few missionaries in the disturbed districts would have escaped the cruel fate decreed by the Empress-Dowager if several of the Viceroys and Mandarins had not risked their own heads to protect them. Women's Work in China.

In Japan the period of ebb-tide, which has lasted for some years, seems to be happily at an end. The Nippon Sei-kokwai, indeed, has been comparatively free from the "down-grade" influences that have troubled some other Churches; but progress in conversions from Heathenism has been slow. Now, however, all the prospects are brighter. There is a revived spirit of inquiry; the moral power of the Gospel is more recognized; and the General Conference of Protestant Missionaries, held at Tokio in October, showed every sign of encouragement. Some private meetings for the deepening of spiritual life which followed it seem to have been attended with very marked tokens of the Divine blessing. In Japan especially, argumentative preaching is of little use. A full Gospel, proclaimed in the power of the Holy Ghost, and illustrated in daily life, can alone win the hearts of the Japanese. This Mission has lost a zealous missionary by the death of the Rev. J. B. Brandram. Japan.

India, as ever, presents the most conspicuous example of the "diversities of operations," with, the Committee trust, "the same God working all in all." Among the Babus of Bengal, the Parsis of Bombay, the Syrians of Travancore, the Mohammedans of the North-West, the aboriginal Santals and Gonds and Bhîls, the Afghans of Peshawar and Quetta, the Tamil and Telugu and Bengali and Punjabi villagers, and ambitious Young India everywhere, the Society's missionaries are at work, itinerating in the rural districts, preaching in the city bazaars, debating with the pundits of Benares and the mullahs of Agra, ministering to the sick in hospital and dispensary, revising imperfect versions of the Bible, gathering boys and youths into India.

schools and colleges in which Christian teaching and influence hold the first place; by the increasing work of Christian ladies, spreading among the wives and mothers and daughters the knowledge of Christ; and, in addition to all these evangelistic agencies, carrying on the pastoral work of instructing and guiding the Native Christians, ministering the Word and Sacraments, educating the children, training the pastors, encouraging the Church Councils, leading the nascent Churches on towards self-support, self-government, and self-extension.

University Men.

This work in India is done by 270 missionaries (not including wives)—a number double that of fourteen years ago. Of these, just one hundred are University graduates. The Church Missionary Society may thus claim to be the leading Universities' Mission to India; but its men are scattered all over the country, and are not recognized as a band. Eight native clergymen in South India are graduates of the University of Madras. The native clergy are not increasing largely in number, several deaths having to be set off against the ordinations. The most interesting addition is a Pathan, the first of that race to receive holy orders. Among those removed by death are the Rev. W. Seetal, of Agra, one of the Indian deputation to the Centenary, and the Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din, the distinguished Moulvie, a convert from Mohammedanism thirty-three years ago, and a faithful witness for Christ ever since. One of his last utterances was an In Memoriam of the honoured friend who had baptized him, and who entered the presence of the Lord only three months before him—Robert Clark. That "dearly-loved Prince in Israel," as Imad-ud-din called him, was the founder of the Punjab Mission, and of almost every development of it; the pioneer at Amritsar, Peshawar, Kashmir, and the moving spirit in all the work through half a century. For such a life as his the Committee do indeed praise the Lord.

The Famine.

In the past year one form of philanthropic labour drew away by its urgency many missionaries in India from their regular posts. The terrible Famine absorbed their energies, and throughout a large part of India every Mission station was a relief camp. Among the precious lives laid down in this work of mercy, worn out by the overwhelming strain, was that of Charles Stewart Thompson, the first missionary to the Bhīls, in which Mission he had laboured with unshrinking self-sacrifice for twenty years. "All honour," said the chief organ of the Hindu appreciation of Christianity.

Brahmo Samaj, "to these ambassadors of Christ! The humanity of His followers will surely establish the throne of their Master on the love and reverence of civilized mankind." But it is not only for its philanthropy that the religion of Christ is being more and more appreciated by thoughtful Hindus. In the leading daily paper of Madras a non-Christian writer laments that "dogged despair" attends the efforts of Hindu Social Reformers, and affirms that, "if ever the Hindus are to rise in the scale of nations, it must be by Christianity." He goes on to give a string of social reforms which Christianity alone can effect, and adds, "It is Christianity that gives you salvation without laborious and multifarious ceremonies." "Blessed shall be the day," he exclaims, "when all caste Hindus of enlightenment throw up Hinduism and embrace Christianity." The change which is coming over India is strikingly illustrated by an incident related by the Principal of one of the C.M.S. colleges. He saw "a Pariah Christian student of the College, a First-class Matriculate of the University, walking down the chief Brahman street of the town, with a Brahman student on each side, one with his arm locked in the Pariah Christian's, the other holding an umbrella over the party, both Brahmans deeply intent on the Christian's notes of a lesson just received." Could there be a more suggestive picture?

Nevertheless, there is a marked revival of zeal in the devotees of the old religions. In imitation of Christian methods, Hindu Theological Colleges, Hindu Girls' Schools, Hindu Zenana teaching, Hindu Tract Societies, are established; while at the same time idol temples are being rebuilt and repaired and images of the gods painted and decorated. Buddhism in Ceylon exhibits a similar revival. Under God, the one thing needful for the advance of the Gospel is a like accession of energy and devotion in the Native Christian communities. Their weaknesses and inconsistencies are at times the sorrow of the missionary in Tinnevelly, Bengal, the Punjab, and wherever there are many Christians of the peasant class, as those of the Corinthian and Galatian Churches were the sorrow of St. Paul. And yet, with all their faults, the Christians are not as the Heathen. "In the trial time of cholera," writes a Tinnevelly missionary, "whilst the Heathen leave their villages in panic, when wives desert their own husbands, and no one is left to bury the dead, at such times the Christian faith of our people is bright in contrast, and even the Heathen can see that the Christians have a boldness begotten of a hope to which they are strangers." But the same brother longs for "the Baptism of Fire, the Fire that will burn out the sin and burn off the cords and burn in the love which constrains."

Character of Native Christians.

In the Mohammedan lands of the East, Palestine, Egypt, Persia, Turkish Arabia—in which last-named country Mosul, on the site of Nineveh, is now occupied in addition to Baghdad—the two most striking developments of modern Missions, Medical Work and Women's Work, are especially conspicuous. The quiet, patient dealing with individuals in private intercourse also, face to face and heart to heart, is not without plain tokens of

Mohammedan lands

God's blessing; but the Committee cannot report upon what must remain private. Missionaries in these Moslem countries do win converts, but they must not talk about them. Their work is peculiarly a work of faith, and the prayerful sympathy of friends at home should be specially extended to them, both to honoured veterans like Bishop Stuart in Persia, who completed his fiftieth year of missionary service in September last, and to the young Oxford and Cambridge men at Cairo, who are seeking to influence the students of the great Mohammedan University there. One of the veterans of Bishop Gobat's Mission in Palestine, Christian Fallscheer, has gone to his rest, and may perhaps now realize, as we cannot, what God's purposes are for the Mohammedan world. The Church's duty meanwhile is to preach Christ, whether men will hear or whether they will forbear; and the Committee anxiously await the removal of the official prohibition of even Khartoum. the most cautious missionary work at Khartoum—a prohibition which they regard as unworthy of a nation that boasts of religious liberty, and which can never claim the blessing with which it pleased God to crown the very different policy of the great Christian statesmen of the Punjab half a century ago, who actually invited missionaries to newly-conquered cities full of fanatical Moslems. The Committee do not forget Lord Salisbury's appeal, in his famous S.P.G. speech, for caution in Moslem lands; but caution in Missions implies Missions in which to be cautious. Where there is no missionary work at all, there is no room for the exercise of caution. Meanwhile, the waiting missionaries at Khartoum are not sitting idle. Not only are they familiarizing themselves with the language and the people, but they are ministering acceptably to the British troops.

Hausaland. While the Eastern Soudan is thus a field of peculiar difficulty, the Central Soudan has once more presented grave obstacles to advance. Bishop Tugwell's party, after a gallant attempt to hold their ground in the interior of Hausaland, have been compelled to retire to the borders on the Binue. This, however, is not due to any lack of welcome from the people, who have been very friendly, and have shown appreciation not only of Dr. Miller's medical skill, but of the Gospel teaching quietly given to them. But the Mohammedan rulers insisted on the Mission and West Africa. leaving the chief towns visited. Progress is still reported in the Yoruba and Niger Missions, despite the inadequacy of the force in the latter. The opening of the railway as far as Ibadan, formerly the isolated station of Mr. and Mrs. Hinderer, is only one notable sign of the material and commercial development of the country under British rule; while the remarkable ingathering of converts in the Jebu country is a token of the parallel development of the Yoruba Church. The Missions in Sierra Leone and its Hinterland sorely need a few new leaders. Of the four Oxford and Cambridge men who, four years ago, made up a C.M.S. Universities' Mission in the Colony only two survive, and one is now going forward to the Niger as secretary and leader, leaving only one of that band, the Principal of Fourah Bay College, who, however, is able to report that never were the prospects of that institution so hopeful as to-day.

East Africa.

On the other side of Africa there is much to encourage. The missionaries at Mombasa and Rabai, at Taveta and Taita, and in the remoter Usagara country, write of the new era of blessing which they believe the visits of Bishop Peel have ushered in. He has earnestly sought by judicious measures to promote the spiritual life of the Native Christians. He has been privileged to baptize two converts at Taita, the first admitted to the fellowship of the Church out of the hundreds of ignorant people who for years have been under Mr. Wray's patient instruction. He has advised the missionaries in dealing with a great accession of hearers in the neighbouring districts. He has developed the organization of the various Missions, and encouraged their extension among tribes eagerly asking for teachers. The most important advance is to Kikuyu, on the new railway, about halfway between the coast and Uganda.

Uganda.

Uganda has lost one of its most promising younger missionaries by the drowning in the Nyanza of Martin Hall, a man who had won the affection of both children and adults, to whom he had been a blessing in many parts of England, and in India, before he joined the Mission. The Committee have welcomed home on their first furlough some of the earliest lady missionaries, after five years' service. Fifteen have been sent out altogether, and not one of these has yet failed in health. Three have been married, and six other wives have gone out from England. The work of these ladies has proved of the highest value, and even in far-off Toro two are now resident. The general progress of the Mission continues to illustrate the power of Divine grace. The adult converts baptized in the year numbered 3,180, and the Church now comprises 26,000 baptized members. On April 25th, 1900, Bishop Tucker completed the tenth year of his episcopate, and up to that date he had confirmed 7,580 African Christians, the great majority of them in Uganda. He has ordained altogether twenty-eight Baganda, of whom one is dead. One of those ordained in the past year, Apolo Kivebulaya, has been a leading missionary in the foreign country of Toro. In earlier days he was "beaten, imprisoned, put in the chain-gang, and had his house burnt down and all his property destroyed," yet, says the Bishop, "he has borne it all with a smile upon his face and a song upon his lips." But he is only one of several missionaries to other tribes and languages who have been sent forth and are supported by the Church of Uganda. At one "valedictory dismissal" in August last, twenty-nine received their commission, and the collection amounted to 25,383 shells (eighty shells being a good day's wage), besides thirty-six rupees and a cow! The Medical Mission has now a new hospital with sixty beds, "the finest building in Uganda," opened by the Commissioner, Sir H. H. Johnston, in May [1900] last. It was erected by the industrial missionary from Canada, Mr. Borup, the people giving the labour, worth at least £300, gratuitously. The Industrial Mission is a notable success also in the printing department, the Baganda boys showing great intelligence. "The difference between the Uganda of to-day," says Sir H. H. Johnston in his Report to Government, "and the barbarous blood-stained days of Mtesa and Mwanga, is really extraordinary. The rapid spread of Christianity is one of the greatest triumphs to which the advocates of the Christian propaganda can point."

Other fields.

The other Mission-fields must not be forgotten. In Ceylon the educational and evangelistic agencies alike continue to expand; and the work in Mauritius, little noticed by the Church at home, is carried on in the confidence that the Lord's eyes are upon it. Ceylon and New Zealand mourn the loss of veterans, R. T. Dowbiggin and Archdeacon E. B. Clarke. One of the missionaries of the Williams family, to whom New Zealand owes so much, is welcomed to this Anniversary, and brings encouraging tidings of the revival of religion among the Maoris. In North-West Canada, where the Society ought to have been able by this time to effect substantial reductions, it spent last year the largest amount on record, over £20,000, distributed among eight dioceses. In the wildest part of those vast territories, Archdeacon Lofthouse has made a remarkable journey of 5,000 miles in search of Eskimo, half the distance being walked on snow-shoes. Bishop Ridley, of Caledonia, on his way back to his diocese, thrilled the Ecumenical Conference at New York with the story of his Mission, which continues to furnish wonderful examples of the transforming power of the Gospel.

This rapid review of the Mission-fields must be supplemented by three general statements.

The Mission Staff.

First, as regards the staff. The number of missionaries, clergymen, laymen, and single women, and not counting the wives, nor (as some statistics do under this head) the native clergy, has all but trebled in thirteen years and a half—that is, since that memorable date, October, 1887. The 309 of that date have become, after deducting all deaths and retirements, 915. In August, 1890, some of the Society's leading clerical members who happened to meet at Keswick, called for one thousand additional missionaries. On the tenth anniversary, last August, of the receipt of their appeal, the Society had sent forth one thousand and two.

Converts.

Secondly, as regards the manifested fruits of the year. So far as the figures already to hand show—and they are imperfect—the baptisms of adult converts on their own confession of faith have numbered about 8,000, and those of the children of Christian parents about 10,000.

Native Churches.

Thirdly, as regards the great question of the Future of Native Churches. The draft Memorandum on this subject mentioned in last year's Report was duly sent out to friends at home and to Bishops, missionaries, and native clerymen and laymen abroad. The great majority of those who replied did so in terms of hearty approval. In January of this year the Sub-Committee renewed their labours, revised and much enlarged the Memorandum in the light of the correspondence and criticisms, and presented it to the Ecclesiastical Sub-Committee. That body accepted it without alteration, and sent it up to the General Committee, who have now adopted it as their official utterance; and they trust that it will do much to form and enlighten public opinion on the subject. They will thus be strengthened in promoting, so far as it is the function of a voluntary lay Society to promote, the development of the Visible Church in its full organization among the varied races to which their missionaries have carried the Gospel of Christ, while earnestly seeking, as ever, to establish the Native Christians in soundness of faith and in godliness of life.

Personal.

Turning to the home affairs of the Society, a passing tribute of grateful respect must first be paid to those departed friends who were especially associated with them. Bishop Creighton, during his short tenure of the See of London, had manifested great personal interest in the Church Missionary College and in the men there trained who were presented to him for ordination, and who repeatedly stood first in his examinations. Bishop J. C. Ryle had been a life-long and much-revered advocate and counsellor, as well as the faithful upholder of the evangelical and spiritual principles which are the life of the Society. Canon D. D. Stewart, Henry Sharpe, F. P. Ward, and H. E. Perkins were valued members of the Committee; the last-named, an accomplished Indian linguist, having, on his retirement from high Government service, become an honorary missionary until his return to England. Among the new Vice-Presidents the Committee especially welcome the Bishop of London, who is known to be an ardent advocate of Missions, and has already visited the College and sympathetically interviewed this year's candidates for orders; and also Bishop Herbert Ryle, of Exeter, for his own sake as well as for the sake of his honoured father. The only other personal reference needed is to the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, whose most earnest and acceptable labours during the past six years as Central Secretary the Committee warmly acknowledge, and whose retirement in order to resume pastoral work has left a blank hard to fill up. The Committee thank their old and much esteemed friend and fellow-labourer, the Rev. John Barton, for his acceptance of the post temporarily.

Home organization.

In regard to home organization, the only development to report is the union of the local Younger Clergy Unions, hitherto only "federated," in one "C.M.S. Clergy Union," with branches, so that the clergy of smaller towns and rural districts, where no branch can conveniently be formed, will be able to join as members by correspondence. It is hoped thus gradually to unite together all the clergy willing to join their brethren in prayer and work for the cause. The administration, however, will still be in the hands of "younger" men. The other various Unions and Bands continue their useful service; and the Women's Department, besides doing much that is good in various localities, has held some profitable central Conferences for Women Missionaries, for Mothers, for Girls, and for "Friends in Council." Mr. Snell's efforts to influence boys, particularly in public schools, have been highly successful, and no seed lately sown gives more promise of good fruit under the blessing of the Lord. The large and valuable Missionary Lending Library hitherto worked by Mr. and Mrs. Flint, of Hampstead, in connexion with the Gleaners' Union, has been adopted by the Committee as the C.M.S. Lending Library, and can now be used by all the Society's circle.

Candidates.

In view of the ever-expanding work abroad, it is not encouraging to find a falling-off, however slight, in the number of new missionaries accepted. The average for the ten years ending May, 1900, was 83; in the tenth year it was 99 (exclusive of 23 Female Education Society's ladies transferred to the C.M.S. en masse), which was the highest number on record; in the past year it was 77, viz., 39 men and 38 single women. (The wives of missionaries are not included in any of these figures.) Women candidates have diminished considerably in number of late; possibly family objections have been strengthened by recent events in China. Of the forty men, sixteen are University graduates; twenty-two are, or will shortly be, ordained; five are medical men. The Committee would ask for earnest prayer that men may be led to come forward more freely in the ensuing year. It is indeed true that they are wanted at home; yet it is a literal fact that, in comparison with the majority of the Mission stations, the most undermanned town or parish in England has a plethora of workers. The position of a young clergyman alone amid 5,000 people calls for much sympathy; but what of the position of his college friend amid 100,000, most of whom have never even heard of Christ?

Finances.

The Financial Statement calls for both thankfulness and vigilance. On the one hand—(1) The total receipts from all sources have been £350,000. (2) The Ordinary and Appropriated Contributions of the year have produced together the largest amount on record, excluding Centenary Funds, being £313,000, or £9,000 more than last year. (3) The Appropriated Contributions are increasing so rapidly that, after using £82,000 against the expenditure of the past year, £52,000 remains in hand, which is applicable to the current and future years. (4) The Centenary Funds, which have amounted altogether to £212,000, have enabled the Committee to increase the Working Capital, which is indispensable to the Society's operations, to £100,000; to wipe off the remaining mortgage on the Church Missionary House; and to add a much-needed new building to the Children's Home; as well as to cover a large part of the additional outlay in the Missions caused by the increased number of missionaries in the past four years. On the other hand, it is of great importance that the expenditure of any year should be met by the available income of the year; and the available income of the year just closed, even when supplemented from the Centenary Funds, has failed to accomplish this by £33,000. The Committee have been deeply touched by the remittances, large and small, spontaneously sent "to avert a deficit," both by rich and poor at home and by missionaries and Native Christians abroad, and they unfeignedly thank God for the sympathy manifested and the self-denial exercised, which has helped to reduce the deficit to only half of what was at one time feared. It can now be partly met by a fund of £21,000, which, though given some years ago, has only in the past year become available for immediate use. The Committee are sure that this fact will cause general thankfulness, and encourage their friends to go forward in increasing the income in the assurance of the favour of the Lord.

That increase must be very large if it is to meet the inevitable cost of expanding Missions, however economically worked. The Centenary Funds have been used, and not hoarded, in accordance with the known wishes of very many of the contributors; but they are now at an end, and the large additions to the staff and to the work which they have rendered possible have now to be maintained by the ordinary funds. Thus only can the necessity be obviated either for actual retrenchment or for swerving from the general lines on which the Society has been working with so much blessing—any departure from which would, they know, cause widespread distress at home and abroad. Meanwhile, the Committee cannot cease to pray earnestly for the new missionaries so sorely needed, not doubting that, if it pleases God to raise them up, it will please Him also to incline His people to provide for them; and though the provision may come, as it has come so often, in unlooked-for ways, the members of the Society must not depend upon this, but honestly face the position, and resolutely labour to increase the general income in every parish year by year.

Prospects. Just twelve years ago the Committee, in their short Report, said, referring specially to Africa, "The prospects are dark." "No," said a speaker at the Annual Meeting in this Hall, Mr. Salter Price, then lately returned from Africa, "the aspect is dark, but the prospects are as bright as the promises of God can make them." As the Twentieth Century opens upon us the "aspect" in both Church and State is dark. In the State, prolonged war and heavy taxation; in the Church, storm-clouds in more quarters than one—some offering us a mutilated Bible, others seeking to revive a discarded Prayer Book. Yet what is the darkness of the "aspect" to-day compared with that amid which the Nineteenth Century opened? The perils and perplexities of the nation in 1801, political, financial, social, were such as we can hardly at all realize now; while the Bishops and Clergy of the Church, for the most part, held all that was evangelical and spiritual in contempt and hated earnestness of any kind—the very word "enthusiasm" standing for all that was contrary to propriety and reason. Yet, with such an "aspect" as that, our Evangelical Fathers, few in number and with little influence, but men full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, took the great dark world into their sympathies, and planned to obey their Lord's Last Command and send the Gospel to every creature. They never forgot that the "prospects" were "as bright as the promises of God could make them," but they knew that those promises are annexed to the fulfilment of duty. Let the Church rise up and do her Master's bidding, and then she can claim those promises. Let those to whom the inspired Word of God is precious prove its power by passing it on into the "vulgar tongue" of every nation under heaven. Let those who love the simple Gospel of Jesus Christ show their love by their self-sacrifice in giving their best, their sons and their daughters, their time and their money, to tell the glad tidings of a free and full salvation to the Pagan, the Mohammedan, and the Jew. Then the "prospects" will stand out in ever brighter light through the reign of King Edward, through all the Twentieth Century, or until, whether sooner or later, shall come the Kingdom of the King Eternal, Immortal, and Invisible.

For—

God is working His purpose out, as year succeeds to year;
God is working His purpose out, and the time is drawing near;
Nearer and nearer draws the time, the time that shall surely be,
When the earth shall be filled with the glory of God, as the waters cover the sea.

Home Operations.

The C.M.S. in the Nineteenth Century.

The dawn of a new century is a fit occasion to look back and ponder the way by which God has graciously led the Church Missionary Society. On the first occasion of the Committee's meeting in the year 1801, on January 5th, the principal business was to read letters from country friends, with whom the Secretary, the Rev. Thomas Scott, had been corresponding, and to arrange for the first Anniversary of the Society, at the close of its second year. There had been no Anniversary observed in 1800, because the Committee were waiting for a reply from the Archbishop of Canterbury to a letter which had been addressed to him, wherein it was stated that the Committee "humbly trusted that his grace would be pleased favourably to regard their attempt to extend the benefits of Christianity, an attempt peculiarly necessary at a period in which the most zealous and systematic efforts had been made to eradicate the Christian faith." The reply to that letter had been received the previous July, and the intervening months had been occupied in sending out copies of the original prospectus, and in the correspondence consequent thereon. The answers sent to the Committee were not encouraging. Letter after letter expressed sympathy, but the writer knew of no one likely to be a missionary. One true friend, as he afterwards proved, wrote that he "had not attempted to collect subscriptions, not knowing whether any were wanted." Most of the letters, however, pleaded the hardness of the times. It was under these circumstances that arrangements were made for holding the first Anniversary.

The progress slow at first.

The progress at first was very slow. When the Society's tenth birthday arrived five missionaries had been sent out, all Germans. The Society was sixteen years old before it sent out an English clergyman; then it sent out three—two to India, and Jowett, twelfth wrangler and Fellow of St. John's, Cambridge, to the Mediterranean. By the middle of the century, at the close of 1850, 463 missionaries (421 men and 42 single women) had been enrolled, and the income had risen to £93,000. During the second half of the century the following figures show the number of missionaries on the active list at the end of each decade, or rather, for convenience of reference to the Annual Report, on June 1st of the last year of each decade:—

Ordained . . .	134	179	208	215	300	412
Lay	32	35	19	49	52	146
Single Women . .	13	11	8	13	59	331
	179	225	235	277	411	889

The following were the numbers of the Native Christians, communicants, teachers, and clergy at the close of each decade:—

—	1850	1860	1870	1880	1890	1900
Christian Adherents .	—	—	97,000	157,000	194,000	270,000
Communicants . .	13,000	19,000	22,000	33,000	49,000	71,000
Adult baptisms in year	2,500	1,200	1,500	3,400	3,100	8,500
Clergy . . .	13	59	120	203	272	365
Lay Teachers . .	1,500	2,000	1,900	2,700	3,800	6,500

The last two decades.

The retrospect is one which supplies abundant matter for praise and thanksgiving to the God of all grace, Who, though the Society's beginning was small, has caused its latter end to greatly increase. The last two of the ten decades of the century, and the last of all most especially, as the above figures show, were periods of unprecedented extension and expansion. A few particulars added to the figures make this fact the more apparent. For example, in 1880 the Society had practically only one Medical Mission—that in Kashmir. It has now 32 hospitals and 22 dispensaries, with 1,484 beds; and the returns for the past year give 11,887 in-patients and 753,909 visits of out-patients. Again, the Society in 1880 had 54 university graduates on its staff; it has now 201. Once more, the Colonial Associations in Australia, New Zealand, and Canada were only started in 1892–95, and they have sent out since then more than sixty missionaries.

Committee's Minute on Queen Victoria's death.

The opening of the Twentieth Century will for all time be remembered as the period when the greatest of the long line of Sovereigns who have sat upon the throne of the British Isles passed away, and when it might almost be said that for several days the whole Empire stood still and thought of nothing else. At the monthly meeting of the General Committee on February 12th the following address to His Majesty the King was adopted:—

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

We, Your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the President, Committee, and Officers of the Church Missionary Society, humbly approach Your Throne, desiring to offer to Your Majesty and all the Royal Family, with respectful homage, our heartfelt condolence on the death of our Beloved and Revered Sovereign, Victoria, Queen, and Empress of India.

We thank Almighty God for the memory of all Her goodness, the example of Her piety, Her high ideals of duty, the devotion with which She carried them into effect, and the gracious sympathy which She ever had for Her people.

We earnestly pray that Your Majesty may long be spared to see the continuance of those blessings which have enriched the Realm and Empire over which our late Sovereign so long extended Her beneficent sway.

And we greatly desire that under Your Majesty's rule our country may ever be forward in bearing to other peoples that Gospel of Our Blessed Lord, which we believe to be the surest hope of national prosperity and honour.

The year 1841.

The year in which King Edward was born (1841), as the History of the C.M.S. has pointed out, was a very marked era, more especially in respect to events bearing upon the evangelization of the world. In that year England was engaged in the Afghan and the China wars, the former of which led indirectly, a few years later, to the conquest of that great Mission-field, the Punjab; while the latter, before the infant Prince was twelve months old, opened the Celestial Empire to European influence and missionary effort. In that year also Egypt became virtually independent of Turkey; steam communication with India was organized by the Peninsular and Oriental Company; the first Niger expedition ascended that great river; the Colonial Bishoprics Fund was established; the bishopric of New Zealand was founded; and the Anglican bishopric in Jerusalem was established. In the history of the Society it may also be noted that in 1841 the two Archbishops and several Bishops joined the Society; Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox went out to start the Telugu Mission; the Society that year was in debt—the first and only time in its past history; and in that year Henry Venn became Honorary Clerical Secretary.

Bicentenary of the S.P.G.

The past year, since the issue of the last Annual Report, has been the two-hundredth year of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and its Bicentenary Celebrations have kept the subject of the Church's responsibilities regarding its children in the Colonies of the Empire and the non-Christian races of the world prominent before the minds of Church people throughout the British Isles. On May 8th, 1900, just before the two-hundredth year commenced, the Committee of the C.M.S. adopted the following Resolution:—

> The Committee of the Church Missionary Society, remembering the terms of cordial sympathy in which the Committee of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts addressed them but a year ago on the occasion of their Centenary, and having in mind the many tokens of practical goodwill by which the members of that venerable Society marked the event, have peculiar pleasure in conveying to the Committee of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, on the happy occasion of its Bicentenary, the expression of a sympathy not less heartfelt, and of an interest not less prayerful. Considering the place occupied by the two Societies in seeking the fulfilment of their Master's great Command, and the discharge in some measure of the great responsibility resting upon the Church of England to take a large part in the Evangelization of the World, the Committee of the Church Missionary Society earnestly pray that this unique event may more widely direct men's minds to that responsibility, and engage them to seize and utilize the vast opportunities of the present. The Committee of the Church Missionary Society cannot fail to share with that of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel a feeling of deep gratitude to God for the blessing which has rested on the labours of that Society in the past, as well as to participate in the anxiety with which all missionary agencies must regard the vastness of the work which yet remains to be done. But being confident, as well from the assurances of the Word of God as from their own experience, that He is blessing and will bless all efforts to propagate the Gospel, until by His Church the world has been fully evangelized, they look to the members of their venerable sister Society, in all parts of the world, to go forth upon a new century of Missionary Service, with yet larger hope, with more urgent prayer for the outpouring of God's Holy Spirit, and with deeper personal self-sacrifice, knowing that labours so carried on cannot be in vain in the Lord.

An article on the Bicentenary by the Editorial Secretary, which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for May, 1900, was issued in pamphlet form at the request of the Secretary of the S.P.G., and supplied in large numbers to that Society for distribution among its friends.

Apart from the Bicentenary Celebrations, there were no very pronounced events or utterances of leading men on the subject of Foreign Missions which tended to mark the past year as one of very distinct growth of missionary interest either in the country or in the Church. The single utterance of the year on the subject which arrested public attention was one which Lord Salisbury delivered at the Exeter Hall Bicentenary Meeting on June 19th, and it was one which unfortunately, and doubtless quite unexpectedly on the speaker's part, caused a recrudescence of cavils and criticisms against missionaries and their work. The news of the murder of two S.P.G. missionaries in China, the Revs. H. V. Norman and C. Robinson, in the Province of Chih-Li, following on that of the Rev. S. Brooks in Shan-Tung a few months before, had just been received, and the public were in a state of great anxiety and alarm regarding the fate of the Legations in Peking. It was natural at such a time for the Prime Minister, on whom responsibilities of so grave a character rested, to refer to missionary work in China, and he did so in the following kindly and sympathetic terms:—

Speech by Lord Salisbury.

If an evangelist or an apostle, a Boniface or a Columba, preached in the Middle Ages he faced the difficulties, he underwent the martyrdom, and he braved the torments to which he was exposed, and the whole of the great moral and spiritual influence of his self-devotion acted without hindrance upon the people whom he addressed. But now if a Boniface or a Columba is exposed to these martyrdoms the result is an appeal to the Consul and the mission of a gun-boat, and, unfortunately, though that cannot be helped, though it is a blame to nobody, though it is far, indeed, from being a blame to our devoted missionaries, though I cannot admit that it is a blame to the secular Government by whom their end is avenged, still it does diminish the purely spiritual aspect and action of Christian teaching. It does give to men an opportunity and a temptation to attach a different meaning to that teaching and to suspect it of objects which are far indeed away from the thoughts of those who urge it. Just look at this Chinese matter. You observe that all the people that are slaughtered are Christian. Do you imagine that they are slaughtered simply because the Chinese dislike their religion? There is no nation in the world so indifferent on the subject of religion as the Chinese. It is because they and other nations have got the idea that missionary work is a mere instrument of the secular Government in order to achieve the objects it has in view. This is a most dangerous and terrible snare. I need not say that it is utterly unjust. May I attempt to point the moral?—and that is that caution and prudence within the due limitations of devotion and enthusiasm are the duties of missionaries in a foreign land, who not only are preaching the Gospel, but are also representing to the eyes of the inhabitants to whom they preach the character and the aims of the people from whom they come. It is a high duty with them to temper their enthusiasm with Christian prudence. I do not suppose that anything would induce them to abandon the earnest prosecution of the work to which they have given their lives—namely, the spreading of the worship of Christ and obedience to His cross; but if we can show to them that prudence is necessary in order that their devotion and their sacrifice may succeed, I hope that they will not think that we are unduly pressing upon them when we urge that that prudence should be exerted. Remember that in old times if an evangelist gave himself up to martyrdom he derived the crown for which he looked, and he did not injure the cause that he was preaching or those persons whose interest he represented. But now any man who so conducts himself that his zeal leads to martyrdom, at least incurs this danger—that he will expose the lives of those to whom he is preaching, and—what is probably in its material results even worse—that he will cause the shedding of the blood of his own countrymen, the soldiers and the sailors by whom his countrymen are defended, and who will be forced for the sake of their fellow-countrymen, and in order to avoid similar, or perhaps even worse, outrages in the future, to enter upon military and hostile proceedings in order to avenge their death and prevent the outrages being repeated. It is a terrible dilemma. They cannot renounce, they cannot abandon, they cannot even be lukewarm in the commission which they have received. On the other hand, there is a real danger that if they do not observe the utmost caution they may cause the loss of many, many lives, and they may attach to the religion which they desire to preach the discredit of being an instrument of territorial greed and a weapon of that warfare which one secular Power wages against another. I have urged what is not a pleasant topic, because I feel that it is one that ought to sink deep into the hearts of those who manage Missions. They run the risk, not in their own lives, of producing terrible events on a gigantic scale, because their position is closely mixed up with that of the secular Powers, and because the secular Powers, in justice to their own subjects, are unable to allow their death to go unavenged.

Criticism by the press.

Immediately, a portion of the secular press in London and the provinces quoted, or rather misquoted, Lord Salisbury as attributing to missionaries the responsibility for the troubles in China, and charging them with appealing for gunboats and the intervention of armies to sustain their Mission. It was some months before the hostile attacks ceased, and the calm and reasonable statements as to the actual facts had their due effect. Among these statements was one drawn up by the Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson, the Secretary of the London Missionary Society, and signed by him and the Secretary of the Presbyterian Mission and the Honorary Clerical Secretary of the C.M.S. on behalf of all the leading Protestant Missionary Societies of this country which are working in China, and which was published in the C.M. Intelligencer for October, 1900. The Bishop of Ripon also, at a Bicentenary meeting at Leeds, delivered a vigorous and telling reply to objectors who hold aloof from or oppose missionary work on the ground of alleged indiscretions of individual missionaries.

Meanwhile the onerous work of helping and encouraging missionaries in their fields of labour and of creating and sustaining and increasing missionary interest at home was quietly and unostentatiously carried on by Missionary Societies and by sympathetic auxiliary organizations. Of such organizations in the Church of England the Boards of Missions for the two Provinces of Canterbury and York deserve special mention.

Boards of Missions.

The Boards united to hold in May, 1900, their Second, and in May, 1901, their Third Annual Reception of Colonial and Missionary Church workers at the Church House. On each occasion the Archbishops of Canterbury and York received the guests, and several other Bishops were present. Bishop Ingham, late of Sierra Leone, is the Honorary Secretary of the Board of Missions for the Province of Canterbury. The labours of that Board during the past year have been directed to efforts to rouse the Church at home to a sense of its duties in relation to the unevangelized world and to the study of some of the great problems presented by missionary work. A "Council for Service Abroad" was formed, and the formation of Missionary Unions in several of the dioceses of the Southern Province was promoted; while as to work abroad the Board affirmed the desirableness of sending out Commissions to study the work on the spot, and to report upon it. The subject of Native Churches was examined by a large and influential Committee of the two Boards. The Boards have refrained from collecting funds; their small expenses are defrayed by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

Memorandum on Native Church organization.

The subject last named of those which occupied the attention of the Boards of Missions has also been very much under consideration by the Committee of the C.M.S. during the last few years, and they have been led during the past year to publish the conclusions they have arrived at, which will be found in an Appendix to this Report. The attention which for a protracted period was given by some leading members of the Committee and by the Secretaries to the subject will be seen from a brief statement of the facts. When in 1896 a Centenary Committee was appointed to prepare for the Celebration three years thereafter, that Committee resolved itself into four divisions, one to deal with review, the second for advance, the third for special literature in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise, and the fourth for promoting efforts to enlist the interest of the young. The Review Committee again, which was a very large one, appointed from its members no fewer than thirteen Sub-Committees which were named "Sections," and to one of these, "Section IV.," was delegated as their subject the Organization of Native Churches. That section presented its report to the Review Committee in May, 1899, and it was decided by that Committee to pass the report on to the General Committee without alteration or comment, but with a recommendation that it should be referred to a Sub-Committee specially selected for the purpose, with instructions to discuss and report upon a much wider range of questions than had been referred to the Review Committee —upon the subject, in fact, in all its bearings. The General Committee of June, 1899, acted upon this recommendation, and appointed a large Sub-Committee, which, after twenty meetings, adopted provisionally a Memorandum and a Report thereon. The General Committee, in March, 1900, with the concurrence of the Ecclesiastical Sub-Committee, then instructed the Secretaries to send the Report to leading friends of the Society at home and to missionaries and Native Christians abroad, in order to elicit from all helpful quarters the fullest and frankest expressions of opinion. By the end of 1900 a large number of replies had been received, and the Sub-Committee resumed its sittings in January, 1901, to consider them. The Memorandum was amended and enlarged in the light of the criticisms and suggestions expressed; it was then in its revised form submitted to the Ecclesiastical Sub-Committee and obtained their endorsement without alteration; and finally it was presented to and adopted by the General Committee on March 12th, just a year after the presentation of the original Memorandum.

The Committee Room.

The interest felt in the subject was evidenced by a crowded Committee Room and by the sustained attention to the speeches. That and the meeting of the previous month, when the address to the King was considered and adopted, and when the Committee had the pleasure of welcoming once more in their midst their old and much-revered friend Bishop Bickersteth, and one other meeting to be referred to presently, are undoubtedly the occasions which stand out in a review of the year from the standpoint of the Committee Room. There were frequently, as in other years, times when all present were deeply moved by despatches from the field, now mournful, now thrilling and inspiring; or when distinguished visitors were welcomed; or when missionaries returned from or were dismissed with prayer to their spheres of labour. During the China crisis the despatches from the Far East were listened to with mingled feelings of grateful praise for the loving Providence which kept in safety the Society's missionaries, and of grief and sympathy for the friends of the murdered missionaries of other Societies. Among the many visitors, it was a special pleasure to the Committee to greet the Bishop of Albany, U.S.A., the Right Rev. Dr. Doane, who was in England to attend the S.P.G. Bicentenary, and the interview was evidently not less a pleasure to himself, for in an account he wrote of his visit to this country, which appeared in the Spirit of Missions, the organ of the Missionary Society of the American Episcopal Church, he thus referred to it:—

> The monthly meeting of the full Committee of C.M.S. was held on June 12th in the large room of their Mission Building in Salisbury Square. I had been kindly asked to be present and receive a welcome from the Committee, as representing our Board of Managers. I went very gladly, and found a goodly gathering of clergy and laymen, with Sir John Kennaway in the chair. It was a pleasant reminder of the meetings of our own Board, and the subjects under discussion had a very familiar sound. The chairman welcomed me in a cordial and earnest speech, to which I was glad to make reply in words of sincere sympathy. I confess that I was deeply impressed by the tone of the men and of the meeting. Differing from the tastes and training of my own religious experience, it was perhaps all the more striking to me in the simple reality and directness of their manner of addressing God in their prayers for us, for the martyrs in China, for our country and Church, and their own; pouring into God's ear the thoughts and feelings of the moment and the whole circumstance and personality of the occasion.

Additional interest was added to the almost monthly occasions of welcoming home missionaries on furlough by inviting women missionaries as well as men to bear their witness before the Committee of the encouragements and difficulties of the work. November 13th was the day when this "new departure" was commenced, and the three ladies who then addressed the Committee were Miss G. E. Bird, of Uganda, and Miss M. Vaughan and Miss M. D. Boileau, of China.

The year's estimates.

The third meeting of special interest alluded to above was also in November, on the 6th, when at noon the business of the Correspondence Committee was suspended, and a special General Committee meeting was held to receive the report of the Estimates Committee. That Committee reported that the revised estimates of expenditure for the then current year amounted to £373,185, to meet which a sum exceeding the available receipts of the previous year by £69,083 would be required. Upon this report the Committee adopted the following Resolutions:—

> That, having regard to the serious financial position of the Society—with a large excess of expenditure for the current year over the ordinary income, and the certainty of further increase in the future—the quinquennial review of the Society's expenditure which is in the course of preparation in accordance with the General Committee's instructions be, when presented, referred for consideration to a special representative Committee, who should also be requested to examine carefully and in detail the operations of the various Missions, and to make recommendations as to the future action therein, with the object of ascertaining whether any, and if any what, economies are possible, consistently with the maintenance of due efficiency. That, recognizing with deep thankfulness the goodness of Almighty God in the provision for the financial needs of the Society in the past, and trusting Him for the future, the dawn of the Twentieth Century be recommended as a suitable period for special and prayerful effort on the part of the Society's members and friends throughout the country, not only to add to their own contributions, but also to enlarge the circle of those interested in its objects and work, and so increase the resources of the Society, in order to secure a financial equilibrium and prevent any curtailment of its operations from the lack of means.

At the same meeting of the Committee a Memorandum on the position and prospects of the Society, prepared by a Sub-Committee appointed for the purpose, was presented, the special object of which may be explained by a reference to last year's Annual Report. Allusion was made there on pages 16 and 17 to a call to united prayer during the closing year of the century, which the Bishops of the Church of England addressed "to the faithful of our Communion and to all brethren in Christ," in which "call" special prominence was given to missionary work. A Conference of about one hundred friends of the Society, many from distant parts of the country, was held at the C.M. House on June 15th, 1900, to consider proposals for responding to this appeal. Prebendary Barlow presided, and Professor Moule and the Revs. Hubert Brooke, Grose Hodge, and E. A. Stuart were selected speakers, their respective subjects being, "The Close of the Century a Time for Prayer and Humiliation," "The Season of Advent an Occasion for Prayer and Effort," "The Opening of the New Century a Call for Prayer and Consecration," and "How to take advantage of Advent, 1900." The Conference arrived at the conclusion that it was "highly desirable that a period of prayer for Foreign Missions should be observed in accordance with our Lord's command, and in connexion with the closing of the old century and the beginning of the new"; and that "the week November 25th to December 2nd (including the days of special Intercession for Foreign Missions) be utilized for meetings in London and the home counties, and the two first weeks of Advent, December 2nd–15th, be allotted to similar meetings in the Provinces."

Conference of June 15th.

It was in order to place the position and prospects of the Society on its passing into the new century before the friends who were disposed to respond to this invitation to prayer, so that they might have matter for definite thanksgiving and supplication, that the above-mentioned Memorandum was prepared. The Memorandum first stated briefly the financial position, then (2) made a comparison between it and the financial position in 1887, then (3 and 4) a like comparison of receipts and expenditure in the years 1886–87 and 1899-1900, then (5) a table was given showing how the total expenditures of the thirteen years from 1887 to 1900 had been met, then (6) the statistical returns of the two years 1887 and 1900 were compared, then (7 and 8) some particulars were given regarding the increase of missionaries and the growth of the Missions during the thirteen years, and lastly (9, 10 and 11) it was explained why 1887 was taken as the year of comparison. Some of the facts adduced under two or three of the above heads may be repeated here.

Memorandum on Position and Prospects of the Society.

The financial position was the same as quoted above from the Report of the Estimates Committee, the Memorandum merely adding the intimation that a balance from the Centenary Funds would be available, if needed, towards meeting the year's expenditure.

The Society's financial position in 1887 and 1900.

The financial position was shown to be better than it was in 1887. (a) On April 1st of that year there was £10,500 in the Contingency Fund, and £30,000 in Extension and other Funds, which would now be called Appropriated Funds. On April 1st of 1900 there was no balance in the Contingency Fund, but there was £42,180 in Appropriated Funds and £25,515 in the Centenary Fund. The advantage here was, therefore, £27,195 in favour of 1900. (b) In 1887 the Capital Fund was £60,000. In 1900 it was £100,000, a further advantage of £40,000. (c) In 1887 there was a debt on the new Children's Home of £27,000. That has been cleared off, improving the financial position to that amount. (d) In 1887 there was a debt of £10,000 on the C.M. House. Of this £5,000 was paid in 1890, and £5,000 of the £25,515 in the Centenary Fund was hypothecated to pay off the balance. (e) Since 1887 two benefactions, consisting of investments, available for the general purposes of the Society under certain conditions, had been received, namely, the L.R. and M. Fund of £29,000, and the Butterley Fund of £21,000. Adding the above items, an aggregate of £150,000 is made to the advantage of 1900 over 1887, representing either assets in hand or liabilities expunged, and this after meeting an expenditure which had grown during the thirteen years from £208,563 to £353,266.

Expenditure of thirteen years.

The total expenditure of the thirteen years amounted to £3,467,000, and it was met as follows :—

General Fund	£2,940,000
Appropriated Funds (including similar Funds existing before Appropriated Funds began)	315,000
Contingency Fund	24,000
Deficiency Funds	44,000
Spurrell Fund	10,000
Reserve Funds, used in 1897	3,000
T.Y.E. Funds	57,000
Centenary Fund	74,000
	£3,467,000

Increase of labourers.

The ordained missionaries increased in the thirteen years from 247 to 412, laymen from 40 to 146, single women from 22 to 331; total from 309 to 889. Excluding wives, who increased from 200 to 317, the number of missionaries nearly trebled. In 1887 there were 255 native clergymen and 3,500 native lay agents; in 1900 there were respectively 365 and 6,500. In 1887 the Native Christian adherents were 182,000, of whom 44,000 were communicants. In 1900 they were 270,000, of whom 71,000 were communicants. In 1887 the numbers recorded as baptized in the year were, adults about 2,800; children about 6,000. In 1900 adults, 8,478; children, 10,937. To follow the Memorandum further in these striking comparisons is not necessary. The reason for selecting 1887 for comparison was explained by the Memorandum to be that it was in November of that year that the Committee after fervent prayer determined to refuse no candidate, and to keep back no missionary ready to sail, merely on financial grounds, and that from that date, in response to and in union with the increased missionary zeal in the Church, a remarkable development in the Society's operations had been witnessed. That this was so is evident from the fact that while in the first fifty years of the Society's history the number of missionaries sent out averaged eight per annum, and in the next 37½ years it was nineteen per annum, in the 12½ years from 1887 to the Centenary the average was seventy per annum.

The presentation of the Memorandum for adoption on the day when the Estimates Committee made their report certainly served to strengthen the confidence of the Committee and enable them, notwithstanding the "serious financial position," to look forward trustfully to the future. It should be also mentioned that on the same day a Resolution passed a few days before by the Somerset County Church Missionary Union, in which the members expressed their hearty assent to a wise policy of expansion as being in accord with the Divine will, and pledged themselves to sustain the expansion of the missionary labours of the Church Missionary Society in foreign lands by doing their utmost in assisting to raise the necessary means for the support of duly qualified agents, was an encouragement to the Committee.

A Resolution of a C.M. County Union.

The Committee and their friends observed Thursday, November 29th, as a day of prayer. There was first a celebration of the Holy Communion at St. Bride's Church, when Prebendary Barlow preached from Jeremiah vi. 16. Then followed three meetings in the C.M. House, presided over respectively by Mr. Sydney Gedge, Captain Cundy, and Mr. Henry Morris. The day concluded with a meeting in Exeter Hall, over which Prebendary Webb-Peploe presided, and Bishop Peel and the Revs. E. A. Stuart and Hubert Brooke were the speakers. Notification was made to Salisbury Square of meetings or services in 864 parishes; but there were many besides. The Norwich Diocesan Gazette gave the names of eighteen leading centres and eighty-six other parishes in that diocese alone in which the Society's invitation was responded to.

Day of Intercession and Weeks Prayer.

Expenditure of the year.

The actual expenditure of the year proved to be £369,330, approximating very closely to the estimates formed in the previous July, viz., £375,139, and revised in November to £373,185. The following presentation of the year's financial statement, which is similar to what has been given in this place in previous Annual Reports, will probably serve better than any other to show the position at a glance :—

The expenditure to be met has been...		£369,330
The sums available for meeting this have been:—
(1) Ordinary receipts	£241,430
(2) Appropriated contributions applicable to the year's expenditure (including certain balances of previous years)	70,244
(3) Centenary contributions given for objects included in the year's expenditure ...	11,578
(4) Contingency Fund	3,195
Adverse balance		£42,883

Towards meeting this adverse balance the Committee decided to apply £10,000 out of Centenary funds, and, since the closing of the books, a further sum of £21,000, known as the Butterley Fund, thus reducing it to £11,883. The Butterley Fund was a generous benefaction, consisting of 350 £100 shares in Butterley Company, Limited, made to the Society in 1890. These shares being in a private company were not readily negotiable, and therefore, although unconditional and applicable at the Committee's discretion to meet current expenditure, they were held as an asset and were valued at £21,000. During the past year the family of the donor offered to purchase these shares from the Society at their actuarial valuation, and as the offer was considered favourable to the Society it was accepted and the sum invested in securities more readily negotiable. This sum was therefore available towards meeting the adverse balance. A few days before the Anniversary on April 30th the Secretaries were led to believe by a clerical friend that a donation of £10,000 would reach the Society during the Anniversary week, which sum would almost exactly wipe out the deficiency, and their announcement to that effect at the Exeter Hall meetings caused great joy and thanksgiving to the friends of the Society there assembled. It transpired, however, that the clergyman had been misled by the supposed donor, and that the promise, which he had made in good faith, could not be made good. Taking the deficiency into account, and the fact that about £52,000 of appropriated contributions are carried forward towards the new expenditure of the current year, it will be seen from what has been said above (page 22) that the Society's financial position is still more than £100,000 better than it was in 1887.

Centenary Funds.

The help rendered by the Centenary Funds in meeting the adverse balances of 1897, 1898, and 1899 has been mentioned in previous Annual Reports. They have also been applied, in accordance with the Committee's announcement in the manifesto inaugurating the Three Years' Enterprise, to increasing the Society's Working Capital, without which the current business could not be carried on, from £60,000 to £100,000. Further, it has cleared the Church Missionary House from an old mortgage of £10,000, and has paid for a greatly needed extension of the buildings of the Missionaries' Children's Home. The T.Y.E. contributions, which are a branch of the Centenary Funds, have also largely helped to support as "Own Missionaries" the increased number of workers abroad whom the Society has sent out during the past four years. The total amount contributed, including £65,615 in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise, was £212,253. Seventeen gifts were for £1,000 and more, and 314 for sums varying between £100 and £1,000. Of the appropriated gifts most were for the support of "Own Missionaries," about seventy having been taken up in connexion with the T.Y.E., and the majority of these are being still supported, making a substantial addition of £8,000 or £10,000 to the Society's income year by year.

"Own Missionaries."

The total number of "Own Missionaries" who were on the Society's staff in February, 1901, was 414, in addition to eighty-nine (twenty-three men and sixty-six women) honorary missionaries. These 414 were almost exactly one-half of the missionaries for whose support the Society was responsible, and the sums given as appropriated contributions towards their maintenance amount to at least £38,000 a year. They include forty-one supported by Colonial Associations and fifty-eight by the Gleaners' Union and its branches. In the Uganda Mission forty-five out of a total of fifty-one at that time were thus supported; twenty-two out of twenty-nine in the Niger Mission; forty-three out of sixty-one in the Fuh-Kien Mission; and twenty-nine out of thirty-one in the West China Mission.

Candidates.

The Candidates Department was in touch with about 345 men and 165 women, 510 in all, during the year ending April 30th, 1901. Many of these only made inquiries, but 216 cases (ninety-six men and 120 women) were dealt with by the various Candidates Committees. The Committee accepted sixty-nine candidates with a view to training and probation, viz., twenty-seven men and forty-two women (three of whom withdrew). The number of acceptances of new missionaries for the year was seventy-seven (thirty-nine men and thirty-eight women), including one transferred from the late Society for Promoting Female Education in the East and one from the C.E.Z.M.S. Of the seventy-seven new missionaries, twenty-seven (eighteen men and nine women) were already qualified, i.e. did not need training; forty-three (seventeen men and twenty-six women) were accepted after training; seven (four men and three women) were accepted by the Colonial Associations or by C.M.S. representatives abroad. Two were sent out for special work for a limited term of years. Of the thirty-nine men, twenty-one were clergy or were to be ordained before going out; and of the eighteen laymen five were medical men. Sixteen of the men were graduates: five from Cambridge; one from Oxford; five from Dublin; one from Edinburgh; one from London; one from Durham; one from Manitoba; and one from Western University, London, Ontario. Of the ladies one is a qualified doctor.

Missionaries accepted in the year.

The following lists give the names of the seventy-seven missionaries accepted for service during the year ending April 30th, 1901, together with their colleges and training institutions, the places from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and, in the case of those who had sailed before June, 1901, the Mission to which they had been assigned:—

* Died before going out. † Transferred from C.E.Z.M.S. ‡ Transferred from F.E.S.

The above lists are much shorter than those which appeared in the last Annual Report, when the number, even exclusive of the twenty-three Female Education Society's ladies taken over, was ninety-nine; indeed, the above number—seventy-seven—is below the average of the past ten years. That it should be so is a remarkable fact, seeing that the average number sent forth during the previous ten years was only forty. It recalls to memory a letter which the Committee received in the summer of 1890 from some of the Society's leading clerical friends who met at the Keswick Convention. That letter led to several important developments. It led to the adoption of the system of Appropriated Contributions, which, as has been noticed above, now produce so appreciable a proportion of the Society's income. It led to arrangements for the reception of "Short Course" men at Islington College and to the opening of the Highbury Training Home, to be referred to below. But it also suggested "that an appeal should be put forth by the C.M.S. for no less than a thousand additional workers who will be needed to go out into the various fields within the next few years." The last words were variously interpreted. Some said five, others "before the Centenary," and others again said ten years. The number added to the roll from August, 1890, to May 31st, 1900, was 1,054. Sixty-one names, however, represent workers who were already in the field when they joined the C.M.S.; on the other hand nine were added to the roll between May 31st and August 31st. Consequently the number of additional workers sent out in the ten years was exactly one thousand and two.

One thousand missionaries in ten years.

Conferences of missionaries at home.

The Keswick Convention is valued by missionaries at home on furlough, who attend it in increasing numbers year by year, and bear witness to the uplifting of their spirits. Conferences, mainly of a devotional character, were also arranged for C.M.S. missionaries in July, 1900, for women at Egham and for men at Cheltenham. The aims were to provide an opportunity (1) for intercourse between those who are, by the very nature of their world-wide service, generally widely separated one from another; and (2) for giving and receiving from one another of such practical help as their ages and gifts and experience in the fields of labour respectively would entitle them to impart or dispose them to receive. The former was held in Royal Holloway College, by the kindness of the Governors, from July 9th to 14th, and between forty and fifty women missionaries met together. July 10th was spent as a "Quiet Day," and the Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence conducted three devotional meetings, taking for his subjects, "Our Commission" (St. John xx. 19–23), "Our Equipment," and "Our Life" (a study of Romans vi., vii., and viii.). Each morning there was an intercessory prayer-meeting. On one day Dr. H. Lankester gave a lecture on "Health in the Mission-field;" on another the Rev. H. G. Grey, Principal of Wycliffe College, Oxford, spoke on "Some Missionary Problems"; and on yet another day a large party of accepted candidates from "The Olives," "The Willows," and Highbury Training Home visited Egham, and at the meeting held for them Mrs. Clifford, wife of the Bishop of Lucknow, and several missionaries spoke. The Conference closed with the Holy Communion Service in the College Chapel. The Men's Conference was held at the Cheltenham Training College, of which the Rev. H. A. Bren, a former missionary of the Society in Western India, is the Principal. A considerable part of the time was given to discussing the Memorandum and Report on Native Church Organization which the Committee had instructed to be sent forth in order to elicit opinions. One of the days was a "Quiet Day," conducted by the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, whose subject was "The Holy Ghost," with St. Mark vi. 31 as a text: (1) the doctrinal aspect; (2) the Holy Spirit's mode of operation; (3) a personal application; and (4) experiences of His reception.

Training Institutions.

An addition was made during the year to the number of the Training Institutions to which the Society's candidates are sent. Those already in existence were :—(1) Islington College, erected in 1824–26, in which some hundreds of the Society's missionaries have had their training, and whose Principals have been the Revs. J. W. Pearson, C. F. Childe, T. Green, A. H. Frost, W. H. Barlow, and T. W. Drury. The present Principal is the Rev. J. A. Lightfoot. The College has lost its able and valued Vice-Principal, the Rev. S. Dyson, D.D., who has retired to enjoy a well-earned leisure after giving first twenty-five years of service in India as Professor and Principal of the Cathedral Mission College, Calcutta, and then twenty years as Senior Tutor and Vice-Principal at Islington College. The College had sixty-one men under training during the whole or part of the year. (2) Arniston House, Clapham Common, which is a Preparatory Institution to prepare men for the Entrance Examination at Islington. This institution was begun at Reading by the Rev. R. Bren in 1869. The Rev. F. E. Middleton is the Tutor, and there were twenty students during the past year. (3) The Highbury Training Home, which was opened in 1891 for women candidates. Miss Cates is in charge, and ten were in residence at the close of the March term, 1901. The majority of the women candidates, however, are sent either (4) to "The Willows," at Stoke Newington—a Mildmay Institution devoted to the training of missionaries, in the management of which the Society has a voice—of which Miss Goodwyn is the Superintendent, and twenty-two C.M.S. candidates were under training there at the close of the March term; or (5) to "The Olives," at Hampstead, a private Training Home conducted by Mrs. Bannister, in which there were thirteen under training in March.

New Medical Training Home.

The new Institution referred to above, and which was mentioned in last year's Annual Report as under preparation, is for the purpose of affording practical training in the elements of medicine and surgery for women missionaries who have completed their theological course. The institution is entitled a Medical Training Home, and is situated in Bermondsey. It was opened as a Medical Mission on January 9th, 1901, and the formal inauguration took place a fortnight later, on the 21st, when the Countess of Chichester presided at the proceedings. Miss Walker, a lady from Clifton, has charge of the Home as Honorary Matron; Miss Purnell is Nursing Sister (also honorary); and Miss Fraser, M.B., B.S., is Resident Medical Officer.

Valedictory Meeting.

After the furlough period of missionaries, and after the training period of recruits, is the solemn Public Farewell. The Autumn Valedictory Meeting took place on October 2nd. The President, Sir John Kennaway, was in the chair, and the Rev. H. Woffindin, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Tulse Hill, gave the address.

On the 3rd the Holy Communion was administered at St. Bride's Church, and an address was given by the Rev. H. G. Grey. The missionaries returning were eighty-seven in number, those going out for the first time fifty-two; some of these had, however, sailed before the date of the meeting.

Anniversary.

The celebration of the one-hundred-and-second Anniversary of the Society began with a Prayer-meeting in Sion College on Monday, April 29th, at 4 p.m. The preacher of the Anniversary Sermon was the Bishop of Newcastle. The President, Sir John H. Kennaway, M.P., presided at the Annual Meeting on April 30th, at 11 a.m., and the speakers were the Bishop of Ripon, the Bishop of North China, Mr. Clement F. R. Allen (formerly H.B.M. Consul at Fuh-chow), Mr. T. E. Alvarez (Sierra Leone), the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper (North-West Provinces), the Rev. C. H. Stileman (Persia), and Canon Hodgins. At the Public Meeting in St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, held simultaneously with the Annual Meeting, the Treasurer, Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., presided, and the Bishop of Mombasa, Mr. H. Crawford Smith, M.P., the Rev. A. Oates, the Rev. L. H. F. Star (Fuh-Kien), and the Rev. A. E. Richardson (Hausaland) were the speakers. At the Evening Meeting in Exeter Hall Sir Douglas Fox presided. The speakers were Mr. R. Maconachie, Archdeacon J. Lofthouse (N.-W. Canada), Canon F. T. Cole (Bengal), the Rev. J. B. Ost (Mid China), and the Rev. W. E. Burroughs. In the afternoon of the same day was held the Annual Meeting of the Medical Mission Auxiliary at St. James's Hall. The Archbishop of Canterbury was in the chair, and the speakers were Dr. J. O. Summerhayes (Punjab), Dr. A. T. Kember (Mid China), and Dr. A. E. Clayton (formerly of the Niger). Also in the afternoon, at 3.30, a Conference of the Clergy Union was held, under the chairmanship of Canon H. Sutton. On May 2nd, the Rev. Hubert Brooke conducted a Day of Missionary Bible Study for Women Workers in St. Bride's Church, and on May 7th, a Public Meeting for Women was held at Queen's Hall, Langham Place, at 3 p.m. The President was in the chair, and the speakers were the Bishop of Mombasa and the Misses E. M. Furley, G. E. Bird, E. L. Pilgrim, and M. S. Thomsett, all of the Uganda Mission. A meeting at Queen's Hall on February 28th, which was presided over by Colonel Williams and addressed by five women workers in China, will be referred to in the chapter introductory to the China Missions. The whole day, commencing with a Communion Service at St. Bride's, was devoted to prayer for China.

Women's Department.

Several important and interesting gatherings of women were held at the C.M. House, arranged by the Women's Department. On May 3rd, 1900, about 40 women missionaries and 150 home friends observed a Day of Prayer for Women Workers. Mrs.

H. E. Fox, Mrs. Tugwell, and Mrs. Hannington presided at different parts of the proceedings. The subject on which their thoughts were centred was "Our Native Christian Brethren and Sisters." This subject was divided into seven topics, and to each topic half an hour was allotted, during which a brief address was given, followed by a missionary litany or open prayer. On July 6th, was held a "Conference of Mothers," invitations to which went forth in the names of Mrs. Henry Wright, Mrs. F. E. Wigram, and Mrs. H. E. Fox, all mothers of missionaries. With one exception all the speakers also were mothers of missionaries. The morning was devoted to the subject of "Intercession" for "Our Sons and Daughters in the Mission-field," "Candidates in Training and our Children still at Home," and for "All Parents who have Children to train and to give for the Service of God." In the afternoon the subject was "Foreign Missions from a Mother's Point of View." Mrs. Theodore Howard spoke on "The early Dedication of our Children to God for the Mission-field if He should call them," Mrs. John Snell on "The Preparation of Children while still in the Nursery and Schoolroom: how to interest them, and what Dangers to avoid," Mrs. Lloyd on "The Cost and Privilege of giving Children to the Mission-field," Mrs. Cox on "Reflex Blessings on the Homes as the Result of having given our Children," Mrs. Bickersteth Cook on "Our Ambitions for our Sons and Daughters: does the Mission-field offer them a worthy Sphere?" and Mrs. Savile on "Our Fears for our Sons and Daughters: ought these to influence us to keep them at Home?" The day concluded with a devotional meeting, which was addressed by the Rev. C. G. Baskerville, the father of a missionary. And, lastly, on November 2nd and 3rd, a gathering was held to talk over points in connexion with women's work and its extension in the new century. Several of the Secretaries of the Society addressed those who assembled—about 150 women from all parts of the country—on "C.M.S. Principles," "C.M.S. Work at Home in relation to other Societies," "Declined Candidates," "C.M.S. Expenditure," and "The Close of the Century a Call to Prayer and Effort." In the afternoon of the 2nd the Countess of Chichester presided, and Mrs. Isabella Bishop gave an address on "A Traveller's Observations on the present Attitude of the Church at Home towards Foreign Missions." Mrs. Bishop also spoke some earnest words on "Self-Denial, its Possibilities and Limitations." Some Conferences for women and for girls were also arranged by the Women's Department in various provincial towns.

Medical Mission Auxiliary.

The Medical Mission Auxiliary has an active Deputation Department, and numerous branches in all parts of the country have been formed to seek new friends and new support for this important arm of the missionary force.

New Educational and Industrial Auxiliaries.

The Committee have appointed Auxiliary Committees to represent two other branches of the work—namely, Educational and Industrial. These Committees have two functions: first, to encourage the development of the work they respectively represent; and, second, to extend the interest taken in such work by friends at home and increase the funds for its support.

Clergy Union.

The Younger Clergy Union Federation held a Conference at Sheffield in June, 1900; twenty delegates were present from twelve different Unions. Archdeacon Eyre presided at an open meeting of clergy at the Y.M.C.A. Rooms. It has since been decided to change the title of the Union. Instead of a number of Unions being federated, it has been decided to have one Union—to be called the "C.M.S. Clergy Union"—with local branches. This will admit of individual clergymen being members of the Union in districts where there are too few like-minded for the formation of a branch. The Union has 1,200 members. The London Branch has given one of its Secretaries, the Rev. S. H. Clark, to the Mission-field, one of his colleagues in the secretariat, the Rev. Rennie MacInnes, having preceded him. No fewer than fifty-two members of this branch have sailed for the foreign field since it was established in 1886.

Lay Workers' Unions.

The number of C.M.S. Lay Workers' Unions in London and the provinces is thirty, seven in the Metropolitan area and twenty-three in the country. The London L.W.U. is the oldest and in a sense the parent of them all. It has over 700 members. Fourteen meetings were held during the eighteenth Session, that of 1899–1900, one of which was a Convention held at St. Mary Aldermary in January, and another was a Conference on "Missionary Addresses in Sunday-schools" in July. The Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson, Foreign Secretary of the London Missionary Society, attended one of the meetings, and Chancellor P. V. Smith at another introduced the subject of "The Difference of Missionary Conditions in the First and Twentieth Centuries." This Union is doing excellent work by seeking to influence young business men of Christian character to aim at situations in English business houses abroad. The Rev. G. T. Manley, Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, and Senior Wrangler in 1893, one of the missionaries of whom leave was taken in the autumn, gave a sketch, in his speech at Exeter Hall, of the life history, as he called it, of a missionary band at Cambridge, formed in 1892 by two undergraduates, from which band three had already gone out to foreign mission work, and he himself made the fourth. The influence of this small band was such that from the College to which its members belonged eighteen had offered themselves for foreign service, and some of them were among the best scholars in the College.

Ladies' Unions.

The Ladies' C.M. Union Federation held its third Annual Conference in Liverpool in May, 1900. Eleven Unions sent delegates, including the Central Hibernian Union, which represents several Irish dioceses. The Ladies' C.M. Union for London entertained large gatherings —about 200 at a time—of Sunday-school teachers from different districts of the Metropolis. After tea curios were exhibited, and a missionary meeting, illustrated by limelight views, was usually the closing event. The fourteenth Anniversary of the Gleaners' Union was celebrated as usual by prayer-meetings, Conferences, a partaking of the Holy Communion, and by a large meeting in Exeter Hall on October 30th and November 1st, 1900. Canon McCormick preached at the Communion Service from the Second Epistle of St. John, verse 8. The President took the chair at the large Exeter Hall meeting, and the speakers were Bishop Peel, the Rev. Stuart H. Clark, the Rev. Chancellor Edmonds, and the Editorial Secretary. The number of members enrolled during the year was 6,295, making a total during the fourteen and a quarter years since the Union was formed in 1886 of 128,484. Forty-seven new branches were formed during the year—not including those in India and the Colonies—making 966. The large library of some 2,000 volumes belonging to the Union, which was worked for several years by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown and latterly by Mr. and Mrs. Flint, of Hampstead, has been offered by the G.U. Committee to the Committee of the C.M.S., and has been cordially accepted to be used as a C.M.S. Circulating Library. The Home Preparation Union, formed in 1897 for the purpose of rendering help in their home studies to possible future candidates, has 410 members, not including forty who are now accepted candidates (thirty-seven by the C.M.S., two by the C.E.Z.M.S., and one by the China Inland Mission). Correspondents to the number of 175 are in touch with these members and seek to give them counsel and assistance. A winter gathering of about one hundred of the members and eighteen correspondents took place at the C.M. House on February 22nd, 1901. The assembly included a soldier, an engineer, and some teachers, nurses, &c. The Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson, the President and founder of the Union, gave some practical suggestions founded upon his acquaintance with candidates; the Rev. F. Baylis spoke, from Ezra vii. 10, on the threefold preparation of heart, to "know," "do," and "teach"; Dr. H. Lankester gave an interesting address on "Life in the Tropics and how to prepare for it"; and the Honorary Secretary, the Rev. G. H. Ayerst, concluded the meeting with a few words of friendly counsel. A Conference of Secretaries of Sowers' Bands was held at the C.M. House in September, 1900, at which Mr. D. Marshall Lang presided. Papers were read on "How to work a Town and a Village Sowers' Band" respectively, and on "The Spiritual Aim of Sowers' Bands."

Public and Preparatory Schools.

The introduction of the missionary subject to the attention of boys in public schools is a work of supreme importance which is at last being to some extent performed. There are now few of the larger schools in which a deputation from one of the Missionary Societies is not permitted at regular intervals to speak to the boys. On Quinquagesima Sunday, 1901, missionary sermons were simultaneously preached to the Upper and Lower Schools, Eton, and in the Harrow Chapel, the latter by the Rev. H. E. Fox. In the autumn of 1900, missionary sermons were preached or lectures delivered in eighty-seven public, preparatory, and grammar schools, with an aggregate attendance of 7,500 boys.

Young people's meeting.

A meeting for young people was held in Queen's Hall, Langham Place, London, on May 26th, 1900. It was intended for boys and girls of the so-called upper classes, and attendance was by card of invitation. Archdeacon Eyre, Vicar of Sheffield, presided, and Bishop James Johnson, of West Africa, the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, of Uganda, and the Rev. R. C. Joynt, Vicar of Christ Church, Gipsy Hill, were the speakers. The parish of the last-named clergyman, the Rev. R. C. Joynt, is a striking example of rapid growth of missionary interest amongst the young, as manifested by pecuniary offerings. The contribution list of the parish is altogether a striking one; the total acknowledged in last year's Annual Report having exceeded £2,000.

Contributions of the young.

The children's gifts, however, deserve special attention. In 1895 the Junior C.M. Association acknowledged contributions amounting to £62; for the five following years, up to 1900, the sums were £122, £191, £213, £222, and £265.

Instances such as the above of earnest and successful efforts to excite a self-denying concern for the evangelization of the world among both old and young are happily not uncommon. Some have been adduced in previous Annual Reports, and one or two may be specified here, by way of encouraging others to do likewise. It is not only the thriving suburban district that furnishes such examples, nor is a new incumbent indispensable.

Instances of parochial efforts,

In the heart of a great city, where the houses of former days have given place to huge blocks of offices, is perhaps the last place in which to seek them, yet such a parish is St. Stephen's, Coleman Street, London. Josiah Pratt, an honoured name in the early history of the C.M.S., became its vicar in 1826, and his grandson is the present vicar. A missionary working party has had a continuous history of over seventy years, and throughout the vicissitudes of changes, which have tended so notoriously to decrease the wealth and the population until the latter has fallen to about 600, the missionary contributions have persistently risen, and last year amounted to £279, the largest sum since a special effort was made fifty years ago. Again, in populous Islington, a parish (St. Peter's), which remitted to the C.M.S. nine years ago £15, sent last year £126; moreover, three missionaries have gone forth from its midst, three others are in training, and others are waiting on God to make His way plain for them. Then a rural parish in the Southwell Diocese, Bramcote, with a population of between 700 and 800, has since 1887 increased from £31 to £162. The increase has been gradual, but has been more rapid since 1897, when a Missionary Mission was held, as a result of which the parish began to support its own missionary. Lastly, a parish in the Diocese of York with a population of 10,000, mostly railway men and their families, has increased its contributions from £73 in 1891 to £305 in 1899, and £366, including Centenary gifts, in 1900. As instances of loving ingenuity exercised by friends the following items gleaned from the Annual Report of last year may be mentioned:—Sale of honey, of marmalade, of plants, of kittens, of violets and tomatoes, of lavender bags and bulbs, of photographs, of pears, of canaries, of a Yorkshire terrier puppy, of apples, of a turkey, of Sunday eggs, of snowdrops, and of cakes. At one place carollers gained £22, and at another a picnic realized £2 10*s*. Such entries also as the following are found:—Concert by a class, £5; vestry (weddings, &c.), £2; copying of marriage certificates, 10*s*.; instead of a new dress, £1 5*s*.; self-denial week, £36 9*s*.; dress tax, £1 6*s*.; and sunshades, £1 4*s*. From the same Report it has been found that missionary boxes produced £42,574, less than the previous year by £571. Of this sum £32,165 was from the Province of Canterbury. Sales of Work produced £28,780, a falling short by £37 of the amount of the previous year. In the Province of Canterbury the number of sales was 819 and the amount £22,341. In York Province the number was 229 and the amount £6,440. There are still many parishes which give no financial help to missionary work through either the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel or the C.M.S. In one large diocese, out of 642 parishes, 192, nearly one-third, respond to this description; and in two others, with 362 and 172 parishes, seventy-three and thirty-four respectively, about one-fifth, appear to do nothing. The need is not realized, the duty is not recognized. A voice is needed, like that of the Bishop of Lucknow, to go through the land in its length and breadth and seek to bring home to men's minds a perception of the actual facts, as Bishop Clifford did at Swansea in November, 1900. He said:—

and of individual zeal.

Boxes and Sales.

Parishes that do nothing

In my diocese there are forty-six millions of Hindus and Mohammedans. To convert these forty-six millions, our Church provides about forty-six missionary clergy. Will you consider what this means? There are, I am told, about 100,000 persons living in Swansea. Now, imagine a heathen Swansea, full of ignorant and bigoted Pagans, ruled by a powerful and prejudiced Pagan priesthood, and abounding with Pagan temples. Moreover, imagine this heathen Swansea to be ten times the size which it is. Very well, suppose that to convert this vast heathen city our Church provided one solitary missionary clergyman. That represents to you, so far as proportion of Mission clergy to heathen people is concerned, what our Church is doing to convert to the Christian Faith the inhabitants of the Diocese of Lucknow. I am, of course, not ignoring what is being done by the missionaries of other Christian denominations; but that is what our Church of England is doing, so far as the supply of Mission clergy, Native and European, is concerned. Do you think it enough? Are you satisfied with it?

Ireland.

The Hibernian Church Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the C.M.S., reports an income of £22,385 for the year 1900, as compared with £19,242 for 1899. A sum of £3,373 remitted to the Centenary Fund is included, which rather more than accounts for the increase. The General Fund did, in fact, evidently suffer from the Centenary effort, and is less by £1,251; but, on the other hand, Appropriated Contributions went forward by a still greater amount—namely, £1,580. Legacies are less by £430, and subscriptions by £35. The number of Irish candidates who appeared before the Dublin Candidates Sub-Committee was 32, the highest number since that sub-committee was formed in 1897. During the four years—or rather, three years and nine months—81 candidates were interviewed. Five dioceses during the past year became responsible for the support of "Own Missionaries." In one of these dioceses there are only four parishes which do not support the Society, and in another only three. Eleven new Gleaners' Union branches were formed, making 131 branches altogether in Ireland. In one of the parishes in which a branch was established the contributions went up from £8 to £40. Six new Sowers' Bands were formed, making 67. A Ladies' Union for the whole of Ireland has been inaugurated on diocesan lines. A very successful Women's Conference, organized jointly by the Women's Departments of London and Dublin, was held in Dublin in October, 1900. It was opened on the 23rd by a reception given by the Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. Peacocke, when about 500 guests assembled in the Rotunda. Miss Gollock presided at the Conference sessions, and papers were read by Miss Maude, Miss Storr, and Dr. Herbert Lankester on "Women as Parochial Missionary Workers," "The Use of Missionary Literature," "Work Amongst Women and Children," and "Medical Missions and how they may be helped." Miss Furley, of Uganda, gave addresses upon work amongst women and girls; and Mr. R. Maconachie gave a lecture on "Christian Missions from an Indian Civilian's Point of View."

Missionaries' Children's Home.

The Missionaries' Children's Home had within its walls on an average during the year 106 children, fifty-two boys and fifty-four girls. Open scholarships were won by boys at Repton and the South-Eastern College, Ramsgate. Only the girls remain long enough in the Home to enter for the Senior Oxford Local Examinations. Seven sat and four passed, two with third-class honours. All the four girls obtained honours in Religious Knowledge, Mabel Williams being bracketed first out of a total number of 1,929 candidates. In the junior examination three obtained second-class honours, six passed, and two failed. Seven distinctions were gained, in Religious Knowledge, English, Latin, and Drawing. Out of 4,455 candidates Grace Neve was bracketed third in Religious Knowledge. Eleven children passed the preliminary examination, and one boy failed. Miriam Herbert was bracketed first, with two others, in Religious Knowledge out of 3,391 candidates. The prize-giving was on October 6th, and Mr. Brodie Hoare, M.P., distributed the prizes.

Publications.

The total issue of the Society's publications during the year ending March 31st, 1901, not reckoning the Annual Report or the Story of the Year, or the General Review of the Year, was 7,789,795. These included 1,500,000 Centenary publications. The principal new publications issued during the past year were With Note-Book and Camera, a Christmas book for young people, by Miss Edith Baring-Gould; and the Illustrated Cycle of Prayer, which superseded A Cycle of Prayer in pictorial form published privately by a friend of the Society. A fifth edition of the Gleaner's Atlas: Key to the Cycle of Prayer, has been called for, which brings its circulation up to the twenty-first thousand. There is also a steady demand for the History of the Society. The magazines have on the whole maintained their circulation. The average number printed monthly of the Intelligencer was 6,440; copies of Gleaner (including 48,872 localized copies), 84,334; Round World, 59,250; Awake, 44,083. The title of The Children's World was altered, with the beginning of the new century, to The Round World, with the added words, "and They that Dwell Therein." This and some changes of matter were introduced in order to make the magazine more suitable for boys as well as girls. The circulation of the Quarterly Paper has begun to rise rapidly, and averaged 49,000 copies, nearly double the previous year's issue. The Quarterly Token averaged 223,000 copies. The Sheet Almanack remains at about 50,000 copies.

Loan Department.

From the Loan Department at the Church Missionary House curiosities were lent during the year for 328 exhibitions and meetings, each loan varying from six to 400 objects; lantern slides were used at 2,906 meetings; diagrams at 1,376 meetings; maps at 1,194 meetings; costumes at 178 meetings, &c.; and 1,883 books were taken out of the Loan Library. All these were lent without charge, the borrowers paying carriage both ways.

Association Secretaries.

The past year has seen few changes in the ranks of the Association Secretaries. The Rev. P. G. Wood, formerly a C.M.S. missionary at Cairo, has been appointed Association Secretary for the Dioceses of Hereford and Lichfield, and the Rev. C. Dunlop Smith has accepted the post of Honorary Association Secretary for Bristol and neighbourhood in place of the Rev. Canon Brenan, who had held the office for eight years. The Home Organization Department at Salisbury Square suffered two heavy losses during the past year, through the acceptance of the incumbencies of home parishes by first the Assistant Clerical Secretary, and then the Secretary himself. The Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard gave up the sole charge of St. Elizabeth's, Altrincham, Cheshire, in 1895, to enter the Society's home deputation staff, more especially for the purpose of conducting Missionary Missions. In 1896 he was appointed Secretary of one of the Centenary Committees. Several of the most popular of the Centenary hymns were written by him for the occasion, and a large share, the main share, indeed, after Miss Geraldina Stock's death, of the labour of editing the C.M.S. Hymn Book fell to his lot. He was appointed in the summer of 1900 to the living of St. Peter's, Ipswich, and entered upon his work there a month or two later.

Resignation of the Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard,

The Rev. W. E. Burroughs relinquished the important incumbency of the Mariners' Church, Kingstown, in 1895, at the invitation of the Committee, for the express purpose of carrying the Society through the Centenary period, and, having done this with eminent success, he accepted an appointment to Christ Church, Chislehurst. The Committee's old and much esteemed friend, the Rev. John Barton, has accepted the post temporarily. The Rev. B. Baring-Gould, after returning from a visit for his health to India and Ceylon in the spring of 1900, had a serious attack of pleurisy which necessitated an operation. He was restored through God's goodness and enabled to return to his work by the end of the year. Mr. Eugene Stock, the Editorial Secretary, was one of the deputation sent by the Committee to represent the Society at the New York Conference.

and the Rev. W. E. Burroughs.

The obituary of the year is as usual a long one. It includes five Vice-Presidents, namely, the Bishop of London (Dr. Creighton), Bishop Ryle, formerly of Liverpool, Bishop Cramer Roberts, formerly of Nassau, and Vicar of Blackburn, the Bishop of Oxford (Dr. Stubbs), and Mr. Rowland Smith; eight Honorary Life Governors: the Rev. Peterson Ward. Many other home friends and members of the Committee have passed away, among whom may be mentioned the Rev. Cameron Churchill; Mr. John Deacon; Miss Evill, of Penmaenmawr; Mr. J. H. Fergusson; the Rev. C. A. Fox, Minister of Eaton Chapel; Col. Gabb; Miss Grady, of Ilfracombe; the Rev. W. Meredith

The Colonial Associations.

British Colonies in 1837 and now.

It requires a considerable effort of the imagination to picture the undeveloped state of the greater Colonies of the British Empire when the nineteenth century began, or even at the commencement of the reign of Queen Victoria. It was within twelve months of Her Majesty's accession, as Sir George Taubman Goldie reminded the Royal Geographical Society in February, 1901, that Lord Durham landed at Quebec as Governor-General of all the British provinces within and adjacent to the continent of North America, his famous mission resulting in the adoption in 1840 of a national principle of Colonial policy. The population of Canada in 1837 was 1,335,000; in 1900 it was estimated at 5,250,000. The volume of trade was then insignificant compared with the £33,000,000 of exports and £28,000,000 of imports which the Dominion now shows. With respect to Australia, the foundation of Melbourne was contemporaneous with the Queen's accession, the earliest settlements in Victoria having only been formed in 1835; the first settlers of the famous Wakefield Colony only sailed from England in 1836 for South Australia, where Governor Hindmarsh, under a tree near the beach, read his commission to a small audience of emigrants and officials; the recently-established Swan River Settlement, which afterwards became the Colony of West Australia, was in 1837 in the very initial stage of its development; Queensland was only known by its penal establishment in Moreton Bay; Tasmania, though somewhat better known and populated, was in its infancy; and finally, New South Wales, the premier Australian colony, was in 1837 practically confined to the narrow strip lying between the ocean and the watershed. The white population of the whole of Australia in 1837 was only about 131,000, and the entire export and import trade did not amount to £3,000,000. Now the white population is estimated at about four millions, and the entire export and import trade of the six colonies in 1900 was about £130,000,000, of which about £50,000,000 was with the United Kingdom. In New Zealand it was not till 1840, after the above-named Wakefield's action in sending out emigrants on his own responsibility had forced the hands of the home Government, that its annexation was accomplished. In 1896 the white population was 703,000, and in 1899 the total exports and imports were about £16,000,000, of which £13,500,000 was with the United Kingdom. Well might Lord Rosebery, in his rectorial address at Glasgow University in November, 1900, say of those colonies, and of the whole Empire of which they form a part :—

Lord Rosebery on the responsibilities of Empire.

> How marvellous it all is! Built not by saints and angels, but the work of men's hands; cemented with men's honest blood and with a world of tears; welded by the best brains of centuries past: not without the taint and reproach incidental to all human work, but constructed on the whole with pure and splendid purpose. Human, and yet not wholly human—for the most heedless and the most cynical must see the finger of the Divine. Growing as trees grow, while others slept; fed by the faults of others as well as by the character of our fathers; reaching with the ripple of a resistless tide over tracts and islands and continents, until our little Britain woke up to find herself the foster-mother of nations and the source of united empires. Do we not hail in this less the energy and fortune of a race than the supreme direction of the Almighty? Shall we not, while we adore the blessing, acknowledge the responsibility? And while we see, far away in the rich horizon, growing generations fulfilling the promise, do we not own with resolution mingled with awe the honourable duty incumbent on ourselves? Shall we then falter or fail? The answer is not doubtful. We will rather pray that strength may be given us, adequate and abundant, to shrink from no sacrifice in the fulfilment of our mission.

Recent events have indicated that possibly one of the greatest of the moral advantages which their connexion with the Empire affords to the Colonies may be the share it offers them with the Mother Country in the burdens, the costs, and the sacrifices which a world-wide Empire exacts. It is to partnership in extending the kingdom of the King of kings that the Church Missionary Society has most gladly welcomed the ardent recruits from the Dominion and Australasia and South Africa, and the Committee have the strongest conviction that the Churches of the Colonies will be not hampered or impeded for their home duties and responsibilities, but, on the contrary, will be braced and nerved to discharge them proportionately as they, according to their ability, respond to the cry of need from the unevangelized peoples of the world.

The Commonwealth of Australia.

The inauguration of the Commonwealth of Australia on January 1st, 1901, was an auspicious opening of the new century. May the sons of this Federated Continent accept the task which one of themselves nobly expressed in the poem dedicated to our late Queen :—

> To work as those who greatly have divined
> The lordship of a continent assigned
> As God's own gift for service of mankind!
> O people of the onward will,
> Unit of Union greater still
> Than that to-day hath made you great,
> Your true fulfilment waiteth there,
> Embraced within the larger fate
> Of Empire ye are born to share.
> No vassal progeny of subject brood,
> No satellite shed from Britain's plenitude,
> But orbed with her in one wide sphere of good!

Jubilee of the Australian Board of Missions.

The Board of Missions of the Australian Church celebrated its Jubilee in August, 1900. The Board was instituted in 1850, when the first Conference of Australasian Bishops was held at Sydney. It did not, however, do much until some few years ago, when it added to its work among the Aborigines and among the Chinese in the Colony a new Mission to New Guinea. It has also helped the Melanesian Mission, which, however, is a separate organization. The Jubilee Commemoration was a very impressive occasion. No less than twenty Bishops were present, the Bishops of Nova Scotia and South Tokio (Japan) having come from their distant dioceses to attend. The splendid Town Hall of Sydney, which holds 4,000 people, was for the first time engaged for missionary meetings, and was crowded five nights in succession. One night was given to the Church Missionary Association of New South Wales, when the Bishop of Waiapu and the Rev. J. A. Cullen, of Bengal, were among the speakers. A great Missionary Exhibition was held, at which a large proportion of the exhibits came from the C.M.A. and its friends. Miss S. Bland, of Agra, who was in Australia for her health—as also was Mr. E. Walker, of the Gond Mission—refers to the Exhibition in her Annual Letter. She says:—

> During the Jubilee week for the Australian Board of Missions, Mr. and Mrs. Newby Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Cullen, Mr. Walker and I had the pleasure of representing India in the Town Hall, where there was a missionary exhibition daily. We talked about India to crowded audiences, sang Indian bhajans (hymns), and we ladies showed off a zenana, dressing up some Australian girls as Indian ladies. People thought that I had really brought some of my zenana pupils with me. The C.M.A. is working amongst the Chinese in Australia, and one of the most interesting features of the exhibition was to see the Chinese pastor, Mr. Soo Loo Ten, and other Christian Chinese showing off the curios at the Chinese stall and telling people about the kitchen god, joss-sticks, ancestral tablets, and other things. It was most interesting, too, to see the South Sea Islanders, brought by the Bishop of Melanesia, and the aboriginals who came with Mr. Gribble, who has a settlement for them in North Queensland.

On the last day of the Jubilee Celebration a Bishop was consecrated in Sydney Cathedral for the new Diocese of Carpentaria, the northern region of the Australian Continent, where the work is largely among Malays, Chinese, and other Heathen. On this occasion the collections from the various dioceses were presented, amounting to no less than £8,400. The remarkable success of the whole Commemoration is largely due to the untiring energy of the Bishop of Tasmania.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

No report has been received from Sydney of the work of the New South Wales C.M. Association during the past year. At the Anniversary of the Victoria Association Mr. John Kent, the Treasurer of the New South Wales Association, who was one of the speakers at Melbourne, is reported to have mentioned that his own Association had an adverse balance of about £500, which there was a prospect of clearing off at an early date. The sum of £350 was contributed through the Association for the India Famine Fund. Four new branches of the Gleaners' Union were formed and one disbanded, while 270 enrolments of new members took place, making 2,460 on the roll.

II. VICTORIA.

Annual Meeting.

The Annual Meeting of the Victoria C.M. Association was held in the Chapter House, Melbourne, on March 12th, 1901, under the chairmanship of the Bishop of Melbourne. The speakers were Mr. John Kent, from Sydney, the Rev. C. H. Barnes, Archdeacon Langley, and the Rev. W. T. C. Storrs. The ninth Annual Report mentions a deficit of more than £2,000, resulting from an exceedingly rapid expansion of responsibilities. At the beginning of 1896 the Association had only four missionaries on its list, namely, the Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Blackett in Persia, Mr. H. C. Tugwell in India, and Mr. R. A. Maynard in East Africa. Since then the Association has incorporated with itself the local C.E.Z.M.S. Auxiliary, accepting its responsibilities, and the Diocesan Missions to the Chinese and Aborigines in the Colony. The consequence of these acquisitions and of the acceptance of a number of recruits for the foreign field was that at the close of 1900 the Association had twenty-nine workers on its roll, in addition to the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Barnett, who were studying Chinese in Canton. Meantime the income increased fourfold—a remarkable advance in four years, but still falling short of the needs. The Committee put forth an appeal for £5,000 as a Twentieth Century Fund. The Gleaners' Union branches increased by five during the year, and the membership by 369. Some former members of the Victoria branches of the G.U. are now at work in the Melanesia and New Guinea Missions. The Sowers' Band also increases in number. The Women's Missionary Union seeks to interest women and girls, and sends out boxes of Christmas presents, &c., to the missionaries.

Income quadrupled in four years.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

Ninth Anniversary.

The Primate of New Zealand presided at the ninth anniversary of the New Zealand Church Missionary Association, which was celebrated at Napier on February 9th, 1901. The other speakers were the Bishop of Nelson, the Bishop of Waiapu, Archdeacon S. Williams, the Rev. F. W. Chatterton, the Rev. G. MacMurray, and Mr. Thornton, of Te Aute College. The Association has two missionaries in Japan, Miss Hunter Brown and Miss Pasley; one on the Niger, Miss Wilson; one in Tinnevelly, Mr. A. J. Carr; one in Palestine, Miss McCallum; and two in New Zealand working among the Maoris, Miss Blakiston and the Rev. F. A. Bennett. In addition to these the Association supports a missionary in the Melanesian Mission, the Rev. W. G. Ivens; one in the Telugu country in connexion with the C.E.Z.M.S., Miss Florence Smith; and two Maori clergymen, one wholly, the Rev. T. Timutimu, and one partly, the Rev. A. Tamihere. The income of the past year was £1,704. Six new branches of the Gleaners' Union were formed and 132 new members enrolled, making 2,421 enrolled altogether. There are 21 branches and 446 members of the Sowers' Band. The sale of missionary books realized £184.

IV. CANADA.

Forward steps.

THE sixth Annual Report of the Canada C.M. Association refers to several distinct forward steps taken during the year 1900. A Deputation Secretary, the Rev. T. Beverley Smith, was appointed, who, in concert with local secretaries, makes arrangements for the supply of deputations. The Central Office and Depository at Toronto was removed to larger premises; at the latter missionary literature is on sale, for which there is an increasing demand, and there is also a prayer-meeting held every Thursday from 12.30 to 1 p.m. A Foreign Missionary Conference, the first to be arranged by the Association, was held in February, 1900, and the result was considered encouraging. The Association was the means of sending out two ladies to North-West Canada, Miss Mary A. Johnson, to help at Rainy River, in Rupert's Land Diocese, and Miss E. M. Wilgress to the Diocese of Mackenzie River. It also accepted Miss H. D. McKim, whom the Parent Committee appointed to the Persia Mission, and Dr. Walter Crawford, a member of the Committee of the Association since it was formed in 1894. Dr. Crawford has been assigned to Kikuyu, in East Africa. The suggestion to observe a particular Sunday of the year, the third Sunday in September, as "C.C.M.A. Sunday," which was adopted in 1899 by a few churches, was followed by many more in 1900. A list of life members has been opened, and eight were appointed during the past year, namely, the President, Mr. N. W. Hoyles, K.C., and Mrs. Hoyles; Mr. G. Hague; the Rev. Dyson Hague; Mr. F. Du Vernet; Mrs. T. R. O'Meara; Miss A. L. Hunt; and Miss Anna B. Marsh. The Gleaners' Union has sixty branches in Canada, eight of which were formed during the past year; its enrolments have numbered 3,870, of whom 325 are new. The Association was represented by eleven delegates, eight men and three women, at the New York Missionary Conference. In the deputational work the report acknowledges help rendered by some of its own missionaries at home on furlough, namely, the Revs. H. J. Hamilton and J. M. Baldwin and Miss E. M. Trent from Japan. It also gratefully acknowledges help in this sphere from the Rev. Ihsan Ullah, who visited the United States and Canada, after being present at the Society's Centenary celebrations; the Rev. J. A. Hickman, who lingered in Canada on his way home from the West China Mission; the Rev. P. B. de Lom, Association Secretary for East Yorkshire, who visited Canada for his health; and Miss S. M. Etches, who has for some years been an honorary worker in connexion with the Women's Department at home, and who, in response to an invitation from the Canada Association, went in the autumn of 1900 to spend some months in addressing missionary meetings, and to give help in the Deaconess' House, Toronto. An Auxiliary of the Association has been formed in the Province of Nova Scotia. The receipts of the year amounted to $13,398.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview with the Secretary of the Association, the Rev. T. R. O'Meara, and with the Rev. G. A. M. Kuhring, a member of the Committee, in June, 1900.

V. SOUTH AFRICA.

The President of the South Africa C.M. Association, the Rev. A. Daintree, Rector of St. Peter's, Mowbray, Cape Colony, was in England in the summer of 1900, and was introduced to the Committee in June. His account of the progress of missionary sympathy and energy in his own and two other associated parishes in Cape Colony deeply interested the Committee. Mr. Daintree was present, as also were the Revs. T. R. O'Meara and G. A. M. Kuhring, of the Canada Association, at an important Conference held at the C.M. House on June 15th (see supra, page 21). It was at the suggestion of these brethren that a modification was made in the resolutions passed at that Conference, the effect of which was to make the request for united prayer world wide, instead of confining it to the home country as had been proposed. They all assured the Conference that nowhere would the proposals of the resolution be more heartily welcomed and acted upon than in the Colonies. Mr. Daintree was able to instance his own experience in his parish of Mowbray, which was very much to the point. His congregation averages 250, and in seven years their contributions for Foreign Missions (viz. for the C.M.S.) have risen from £15 to £500; and the contributions of the three congregations (of which his is one) which are united in evangelical sentiments, and from whose members the Committee of the South Africa C.M. Association are appointed, because there are practically no others who are in sympathy with the Society's distinctive character, have risen in the same period from £58 to £1,225. And this growth has not resulted, Mr. Daintree told the Committee, from appealing to a larger constituency, nor from elaborate organization, nor from Sales of Work. Moreover, it has not been done—Mr. Daintree mentioned it only as a fact, and it is as such only that it is repeated here—through personal solicitation. When, as at the Easter Vestry Meeting, the common complaint was raised about the large sums sent out of the parish, the answer given was that not a single person had been asked to give. Mr. Daintree attributed the growth of missionary contributions to the growth of missionary interest, which had been fostered by means especially of meetings for prayer in behalf of the work. The Centenary contributions from the three Cape parishes above referred to—St. Peter's, Mowbray; St. John's, Wynberg; and Holy Trinity, Cape Town—amounted to £590. The following items extracted from the Mowbray list (which acknowledged £352) are worthy of being quoted:—

THE WORLD.

THE last of the second decade of centuries since the World's Saviour paid by His death the ransom price for the World's salvation, and bade His Church to communicate the knowledge of His Gospel to every creature, has been ushered in during the year which has to be reviewed by the present Annual Report of the Church Missionary Society's operations. The fact is not a little startling in view of the state of the world and the state of the Church—the former, as to one half of it, ignorant of the claims of its Lord, and the latter as to a much larger proportion than one half inert to discharge the primary duty committed to it as a last charge by its ascending Redeemer.

The World

Nevertheless, humbling as the position is, a retrospect of the century just closed affords much cause for encouragement. A picture of the World as it was in 1800 has been graphically drawn in the History of the Church Missionary Society (Vol. I., pages 31, 32). Europe, excepting its south-eastern corner, was Christian in name, but in the south its Christianity was corrupt, and in the north it was frozen. Asia was wholly Heathen or Mohammedan except for the downtrodden Churches of Asiatic Turkey. Africa was a coastline only, the interior was quite unknown, and the slave trade was the principal link between it and Christendom. Australia was not even so much as a coastline, though a British convict settlement was established at one point; and at Tahiti, one of the countless islands of the Pacific, the ship Duff had just landed a band of artisan missionaries. South America, while nominally Christian for the most part, was sunk in superstition; North America was Christian in a more real sense, but in neither South nor North were any serious efforts made to reach the Red men of the interior forests, still less those towards the Arctic Circle and Cape Horn, though there were Moravian missionaries in Greenland, and Methodists among the negro slaves of Jamaica. Such was the state of the World as regards the knowledge of the Gospel a hundred years ago.

and the Church in 1800.

And when the eyes turn to the Church and inquire what was being done to disperse the prevailing darkness, what is found? In 1800 there were two missionary organizations, both of the Church of England, which were already a century old—the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which was directing and financing the Tamil Mission of South India, though the missionaries were Germans and Lutherans; and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, which was wholly occupied at that time in supplying ministers and schoolmasters for British settlers in Canada. The Church Missionary Society had just been founded, but had not yet had a single offer of service. The Baptist Society was seven years old, and had sent Carey and five others to India. The London Missionary Society was five years old, and had sent the artisan band above mentioned to Tahiti, one man (Van der Kemp) to South Africa and one to India. The Wesleyan Society had not yet been organized, but Dr. Coke had planted evangelists among the West Indian Negroes. Two small Scotch societies had been formed, and had just failed in their first attempt in West Africa. Germany and Denmark had supplied a few men, but had no organizations. Continental Protestantism was represented in Heathendom by the Moravians, the one Christian community that had realized Christ's purpose in planting a Church in the world; they had already, though in small numbers, pioneers among the Eskimo, the Hottentots, and the negro slaves of Central America.

Missionary Agencies in 1900.

It is unnecessary here to point out in detail the vast improvement in the above state of things which marks the World and the Church at the beginning of the new century. The subsequent pages of the Report attempt to set forth what was being done in the year 1900 by one only out of 449 Missionary Societies connected with Protestant Christian bodies in Europe and America. The number of missionaries supported by these societies is 14,205; of these 5,063 are ordained men and 702 (including 218 women) have medical qualifications, and there are besides 1,470 lay workers, 3,567 wives of missionaries, and 3,403 unmarried women. The number of ordained Natives working in connexion with the same Societies is 4,053, and of unordained native helpers 72,999, while the Native Christian adherents are given as 4,414,236. To support this work a sum amounting to £3,903,290 is contributed annually by the Protestant Churches.

The figures just quoted, derived from a paper by the Rev. J. S. Dennis, D.D., of the American Presbyterian Mission, an able and painstaking student of Missions, bear witness to two remarkable developments of the missionary enterprise, both of comparatively recent adoption—the dedication to it of unmarried women, and of men and women possessing medical diplomas. From the time of the inception of Protestant missionary work noble service has been rendered by the wives of missionaries, but the going forth in any large numbers of unmarried women was unknown until the last quarter of the just concluded century.

Bible translations.

The work of Bible translation during the past century is not the least remarkable both as an evidence of progress made and as an encouragement to expect more striking progress in the years to come. At the beginning of the nineteenth century there were in existence about fifty translations of the Scriptures or parts of them, one-third of which were in dead languages. Now the number is over four hundred, and many of the versions have been repeatedly revised and brought to a high degree of excellence. If the definition of a "great language," that it is one spoken by ten millions of people, be accepted, then only two exceptions have to be made from the statement that all the great languages of the World have the entire Bible translated into them. The two exceptions are Tibetan and Hausa, and both these have the New Testament and parts of the Old Testament. As the Rev. Canon W. J. Edmonds, a former C.M.S. missionary, said at the New York Conference, "None of these four hundred Divine voices is without signification. Each of them bears witness to the love that God hath to us, each bears witness also that no race or language is now common or unclean."

New York Missionary Conference.

The New York Missionary Conference, to which reference has been already made, was of unprecedented proportions. It was held from April 21st to May 2nd, 1900. In scope and design it was similar to gatherings which were held in 1877 and 1888, the former at Mildmay, and the latter at Exeter Hall, London, inasmuch as it aimed at embracing all Protestant missionary organizations in the whole World; but it was on a scale which dwarfed its predecessors and which seemed to give it a reasonable claim to the title selected for it—"the Ecumenical Missionary Conference." For three years a strong American Committee had been engaged in planning out and preparing for the Conference, and a London Committee was also formed to obtain British delegates and speakers. The published list of delegates showed a total of 2,500 names, of whom about 150 were from Europe. Four delegates represented the C.M.S., namely, Bishop Ridley of Caledonia, who was able to visit New York on his return journey from England to Metlakahtla; the Rev. H. M. M. Hackett, formerly Principal of the Society's Divinity School at Allahabad in North India, and now principal of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College; the Rev. C. T. Wilson, one of the pioneers of the Uganda Mission, and now of the Society's Palestine Mission; and Mr. Eugene Stock, the Editorial Secretary.

The last day of the Conference was the day of the Church Missionary Society's Anniversary Meeting in London, and on the suggestion of the President, Sir John H. Kennaway, a message of brotherly greeting was sent by that gathering to the Conference, with the text Exodus xiv. 15 added: "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward." The reply received was: "Let us go up at once and possess it, for we are well able to overcome it."

AFRICA.

THE line of contact between civilization and barbarism is too generally marked in blood, and it has been so, alas! in Africa during the past year at not a few points along its vast length. In February, 1901, the Committee of the C.M.S. had an interview with a missionary veteran whose presence was a sad reminder of the truth of this remark. The veteran in question was the Rev. F. Ramseyer, missionary of the Basle Missionary Society in Ashanti, whom Sir Garnet Wolseley's expedition in 1873–74 delivered from captivity at Kumassi, and who had arrived in London after being a second time delivered by a British force. The relief of Kumassi on July 15th, 1900, by Colonel (now Sir James) Willcocks and a gallant little force, consisting of Natives of the Punjab, Somaliland, Hausaland, Yoruba Country, Sierra Leone Hinterland, West Indian Africans, and Senegalese, who forced their way up from the coast through roads rendered almost impassable by floods, was an exploit of great significance.

Upper Nigeria.

In Upper Nigeria opposition was encountered in the spring of 1900 from the Munchi people on the Binue River, who resisted a party engaged in extending the telegraph from Lokoja to Ibi some 250 miles distant up that river. After several engagements with the troops escorting the engineers the chiefs tendered their submission. Further north also a pagan tribe inhabiting a town called Limu, in the neighbourhood of Gierko, a place which gave refuge to Bishop Tugwell and his party (see below, page 98), was punished for raiding and for kidnapping from British carriers. The inhabitants fought with great bravery, and Lieutenant-Colonel Lowry Cole was wounded by a poisoned arrow, but the courage and promptitude of Dr. Thompson in sucking the poison from the wound saved his life. During the last quarter of 1900 the people of Bida and Kontagora gave much trouble, molesting the Natives in the neighbourhood by raiding parties, and even causing some anxiety for the safety of the British fort at Wushishi. In December, a small force entered Bida and burnt the King's Palace and the residences of the chief men to the ground, and relieved two hundred slave women and children who were shut up in the Palace. The capital of Kontagora was also taken.

French Soudan.

Further east the French experienced misfortunes and resistance in their endeavours to open up their sphere in the vast Soudan. In July, 1899, Captain Voulet, the head of an expedition which had travelled viâ the Senegal Valley and down the Niger and thence along an easterly line through the regions north of the British sphere, murdered Colonel Klobb, who had been sent to inquire into charges made against him of gross cruelty to Natives, and was himself subsequently killed by his followers. About the same time M. Brétonnet, who had been entrusted with the difficult mission of establishing French influence in Wadai, the country lying to the west of Darfur, was killed, together with his two European companions, and most of his Senegalese escort, by a powerful chief named Rabah, a half-brother of the famous Zobehr Pasha. In the spring of 1900 the stronghold of this chief was captured, and he fled to Dikoa, at the south of Lake Chad, thus abandoning the Bagirmi territory. Dikoa was occupied by the French on May 1st, and a few days later the remnants of Rabah's army were defeated and dispersed.

As a means to the effectual subjugation of the nomad tribes of the Sahara, French statesmen have long aimed at securing control of the series of oases which are commonly referred to under the name of Tuat or Twat—a Berberized form of an Arab word meaning "the oases." These oases owe their existence to considerable quantities of subterranean water which is believed to come by infiltration from the southern slopes of the Atlas mountains. By careful husbanding, and by an elaborate system of subterranean galleries, the precious fluid is made to nourish some millions of date palms, which form the staple food not only of the sedentary population of the oases, but also of the Ahaggar Tuaregs, who visit Tuat every autumn. Moreover Tuat lies in the direct line of communication between Southern Algeria and Timbuktu, and between Morocco and Tripoli, and is consequently one of the principal centres of Saharan trade. In former times it was here that the caravans from the Central and Western Soudan exchanged the gold, ivory, and ostrich plumes from the south for the merchandise of Europe and of the Mediterranean States. So long as the Ahaggar Tuaregs could purchase their food supply at Tuat they were in a position to defy the French. Accordingly a nominally "scientific mission," organized by M. Flamant, with a military escort, occupied Insalah on December 28th, 1899, and the following April, Igli, a place lying on the borders of Morocco and Algeria, was occupied.

Egyptian Soudan.

Passing from the French into the Anglo-Egyptian sphere of the Eastern Soudan, no attempt has yet been made to recover the fertile province of Darfur from the power of the fanatical Arabs who hold it, but El Obeid, the capital of the neighbouring province of Kordofan, was entered without opposition—to find it deserted, save for a single leopard which sat upon the ruins of the once flourishing home of 30,000 people—by Lieutenant-Colonel Mahan in December, 1899, and arrangements were made to facilitate the return of the tribes originally removed by the Khalifa from that place to Omdurman. On the eastern side of the Egyptian Soudan negotiations with King Menelik have for some time been in progress for the settlement of the boundary line between this territory and Abyssinia southwards from Kassala to the upper waters of the Sobat River. Along the course of the Nile important developments have been made in three directions, all happily without obstruction, except from the difficulties opposed by Nature, and all tending greatly to the peaceful progress in the future of a vast territory, long the scene of a terrible oppression. First to be mentioned is the military railway, the construction of which was begun at Wady Halfa on January 1st, 1897. This line reached Khartoum, or rather Halfayi, on the opposite bank of the Blue Nile, on December 31st, 1899, and a few days later a tourist train, complete with dining car and adequate, though rather primitive, sleeping arrangements, set down its heavy load of passengers within full view of the place where Gordon died. Next to the railway in importance, but far in front of it in the distance traversed, is the telegraph, which is being taken viâ the Blue Nile and Lake Rudolph to Uganda. This had reached Roseires, a place a few miles north of the 12° parallel of latitude, by the spring of 1900. The future railway from Egypt to Uganda, if it is ever undertaken, will probably follow this route. Meanwhile, water communication is being opened up by the cutting of the sudd which blocks the course of the White Nile for a considerable length between Wadelai and the Sobat River. This vegetable growth is not only an impediment to locomotion, but it also forms a great natural filter, so much so that the waters of the Bahr-el-Djebel, Bahr-el-Ghazal, and Bahr-el-Arab, which in the upper reaches of these rivers are thick with sediment, emerge from the sudd barrier and swamps as clear as crystal. Could they be induced to hurry along, much of this life-giving cargo might be conveyed to and landed on the responsive fields of Egypt and the Soudan. This sudd formation is thus described by Mr. Ewart Scott Grogan in an article contributed to the Times:—

Railway and telegraph line up the Nile.

> At the mouth of the Semliki river and on the Victoria Nile below the Murchison Falls are vast expanses of a small plant resembling the well-known London pride. Each head, like a small cabbage, is in itself sufficient and independent, drawing its sustenance from the water by means of a seaweed-like tangle of root which descends to a depth of 12 in. to 18 in., and serves as ballast to keep the crown floating in an upright position. These plants become detached, singly or in blocks, from the main mass by hippopotami, crocodiles, fish, or some other disturbing influence, and are driven by the wind or drift with the stream to the Bahr-el-Jebel, where they are arrested in their course by a snag, shallow, water-lilies, or some other obstruction. Others follow, and the mass rapidly becomes very extensive. Grass seeds are dropped by birds or wafted by the wind, and the mass is quickly matted with grass. Drift wood, plants, refuse of all sorts soon accumulate, and the rotting remains and mud that settles from the water, percolating through the roots, form a solid bottom. Then come the papyrus and dense reeds, and what was originally a stick or a water-lily has in a few months become a solid island on which the hippopotamus can walk.

A sudd-cutting expedition under Major Peake left Omdurman for the south in December, 1899; it comprised four British officers, four steamers, and 700 men, consisting largely of Dervish prisoners and convicts. In January, 1900, the first sudd barrier was reached at a point 8° 34′ north latitude on the Bahr-el-Jebel branch of the river, and by the beginning of May, Major Peake had completed the task and proceeded in a gunboat up the river as far as Lado, whence he went forward to Fort Berkeley in a launch sent down from Uganda. A regular monthly steamboat between Lado and Khartoum was shortly afterward started. By this successful undertaking a route has been opened which renders possible a saving of about two months in the sending of supplies to the northern part of the Uganda Protectorate. Mr. J. A. Bailey, the C.M.S. accountant and coast agent at Mombasa, left Mengo, the capital of Uganda, on January 19th, 1901, and arrived at Khartoum on March 14th. The telegram announcing his arrival was received in London only two hours and a half after its despatch. Opening a way up the White Nile.

The opening up of communication with Uganda from the east coast has also made good progress. The telegraph line from Mombasa reached Mengo on April 12th, 1900, and the railway reached the top of the Kikuyu Escarpment in October, thus completing 362 out of a total of 580 miles. By the end of 1900 the line was open to within ninety-five miles of the Victoria Lake. The original estimate of the cost of the line was £3,020,000, calculated at the rate of £5,500 per mile; but several unforeseen contingencies raised the cost to £8,500 per mile, and Parliament voted an additional sum of £1,930,000 on April 30th, 1900. Serious trouble was occasioned in the summer of 1900 by the Wanandi people, a branch of the once powerful Masai, who not only destroyed the telegraph line, but even attacked and cut up a caravan of an Italian trader, and subsequently a mail caravan and its escort of over twenty-five men proceeding to the coast. Indian troops and a force of trained Waganda were sent against them under Captain Hornby, and, unhappily, Dr. Sherlock, of the Uganda Medical Department, was killed and Lieutenant Kenneth Henderson severely wounded by the Wanandi on the night of October 13th. The Special Commissioner, Sir H. H. Johnston, visited the Nandi district at the close of 1900 and met the chiefs. Uganda Railway.

Nearer the coast, in the British East African Protectorate, the Sub-Commissioner of Jubaland, Mr. Arthur Jenner, was treacherously murdered by a band of 300 Ogaden Somalis. Jubaland is the northernmost province of the Protectorate, whose capital, Kismayu, is on the coast 300 miles north of Mombasa. Mr. Jenner was proceeding up country with a few camel men, porters, and local police without a thought of possible hostility, Expedition into Somaliland.

and was attacked in the night of November 16th, the whole party being massacred except eight who escaped and reached Gonte. A punitive expedition under Colonel Ternan experienced a check some fifty-seven miles from Aff Madu in February.

A relic of Livingstone.

An interesting relic of Livingstone, to whose labours, and to whose death perhaps still more (indirectly), the cause of African civilization and evangelization owes more than to any other human cause, was secured in the spring of 1900 by the Royal Geographical Society. The spot, Ilala, where Livingstone died on May 4th, 1873, was not visited by a white man for more than twenty years after his death, and a Mr. Glave, an American traveller and journalist, was the first to reach the spot, and see the tree beneath whose branches Livingstone had breathed his last, which he identified through the inscription of Jacob Wainwright (a former C.M.S. protégé at Nasik, Western India), partly illegible: "Dr. Livingstone, May 4th, 1873. . . . za mniaswe uchopere." In the spring of 1899, Mr. A. Codrington, the Acting Administrator of the British South Africa Company, cut out the section of the tree (which was very hollow and in a state of rapid decay), and had it transported to the Tanganyika plateau, whence it was sent to Zomba and forwarded to London. It stands at present in the map room of the Royal Geographical Society, and as Mr. Sharpe, C.B., His Majesty's Commissioner in the British Central Africa Protectorate, wrote, it is "not only an interesting reminder of Livingstone and the great work done by him in Africa; but is also some evidence of what African Natives can do. It is a record of the love and regard they must have had for Livingstone when they carried him so many miles and brought him to Kabenda, where he died."

Exploration.

Exploration of the Dark Continent proceeds apace. Mr. Ewart Scott Grogan, mentioned above, has the honour of being the first overland traveller from the Cape to Cairo. Mr. J. E. S. Moon led a scientific party to Lake Tanganyika for the purpose of making a biological investigation of that and the neighbouring lakes, and of examining the geological structure of the mountains in that district. He ascended what he believed to be the highest peak of Mount Ruwenzori to a height of 16,500 feet. Still more recently the chain of the great lakes and the Nile Valley was traversed by Major A. St. Hill Gibbons, after he had first made a survey of the Barotse country. He discovered the source of the Zambesi to be 100 miles north-west of the place attributed to it before. The region between Lake Rudolf and the Nile was traversed by Dr. A. Donaldson Smith, and by the late Captain M. S. Wellby, who has since laid down his life in South Africa.

The South African war is also indirectly responsible for the death of Miss Mary Kingsley. Her opinion of missionaries and their work was not in all respects very favourable, but she took a real interest in the social welfare of the Natives of West Africa, and she acquired in the course of her remarkable travels an intimate knowledge of their customs and superstitions. A society has been formed, called the "Mary Kingsley Society," with the object of investigating native laws and customs and studying native character. Miss Kingsley died in June, 1900, at Simonstown, where she was engaged in nursing Boer prisoners.

South African War.

The unhappy war which was forced upon England in the autumn of 1899 is pregnant with such important issues for the Continent, and indeed for the British Empire and the world at large, that at least the dates of the leading events should be recorded in this section of the Church Missionary Society's Annual Report. It has elicited proofs of loyalty and patriotism from the Colonies for the Mother Country which had never been displayed in the same degree and extent before. After the "Black Week," as it has been called, which ended with the battle of Colenso in December, 1899, Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener were sent to South Africa. The Archbishop of Canterbury requested the clergy to observe Sunday, February 11th, as a day for special supplication to God for help. On the 14th of that month Kimberley was relieved, on the 27th Cronje's army surrendered at Paardeberg, and the battle of Pieter's Hill was won, which opened the way for Lord Dundonald and his cavalry to enter Ladysmith on the 28th. On March 13th, Lord Roberts made his bloodless entry into Bloemfontein. Mafeking was relieved on May 17th. On May 26th, the annexation of the Free State by Great Britain was proclaimed. On May 31st, Johannesburg was entered, and on June 5th, the British flag was hoisted at Pretoria. On September 1st, the Transvaal was formally annexed. On September 24th, the Guards occupied Koomati Poort on the Portuguese frontier. Since then the war has been obstinately maintained by two or three able Boer commandoes; it has been, however, of a guerilla character, though not the less exhausting to the country and trying to the large army engaged in maintaining communications over an enormous area. Negotiations which Lord Kitchener entered into with General Botha in March, 1901, and in the course of which terms were offered which have been regarded almost universally as generous and lenient, unhappily proved fruitless.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the first field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which, since the abolition of the slave-trade in 1807, had become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the Mission Schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh, in the Temne country, was occupied from 1840–50 and reoccupied in 1875; Ro-Gbere was occupied in 1896; Sinkunia, in the Yalunka country, near the boundaries of the British Protectorate, in 1897; and Katimbo, in the Limba country, in 1900. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne country in 1898, during which several English and American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and each of the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen (the two latter C.M.S. missionaries)—died within three years of his consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the Diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–69), Cheetham (1870–81), Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897).

In 1862 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, and has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Quiah countries. More than one hundred African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them are Government chaplains.

Prosperity of the Colony of Sierra Leone.

THE report of the Colonial Secretary of Sierra Leone for the year 1899 gives the estimated population of the colony at 100,000, and that of the Protectorate at 1,000,000. In respect to the marks of external prosperity, the report was very satisfactory, the revenue for the year being the highest in the Colony's history, amounting to £168,382, which was 43 per cent. more than the previous year, 63 per cent. higher than the average of the preceding five years, and more than twice as great as the revenue of 1890. The imports, about three-fourths of which were from Great Britain, amounted to £689,806, showing a very great increase over the previous year; while the exports, though more than for 1898, were less than in the three preceding years, due in part, it is said, to impediments placed in the way of transit from French territory behind the Protectorate, and the efforts to divert to French ports the caravans bringing tropical produce from the interior. The first section of the railway from Freetown eastwards to the interior, thirty-two miles in length, was opened on May 1st, 1899; and a further section of twenty-five miles was to be opened, the report stated, during 1900. The hut tax, which some regarded as the cause of the outbreak of 1898, was collected peaceably, and many of the chiefs who had been disaffected were engaging in trade. The following words of the report regarding these native chiefs are especially worth noting:—

> The native chiefs are beginning to realize and appreciate their status under the Government, under which all their proprietary and civil rights are strictly reserved to them, as well as the exercise of their judicial functions—the latter, however, within certain limitations when persons other than Natives are concerned and in graver crimes. . . . They begin to realize that their authority is being supported by the Government and their position recognized and respected by the officials as long as they govern their people justly and well, and they begin to appreciate the material advantage in the shape of a more certain revenue which is accruing to them from the more settled state of affairs generally which exists.

Change of Governors.

The colony owes not a little to the wise and able administration of the late Governor, Sir F. Cardew, who left Sierra Leone in November, 1900, in order to enter upon his appointment as Governor of the Straits Settlements. He and Lady Cardew took the greatest possible interest in whatever tended to promote the welfare, whether temporal or spiritual, of the people; and his sympathy was an unspeakable help and encouragement to the Society's missionaries. Sir C. A. King-Harman, K.C.M.G., who was Administrator of St. Lucia, has succeeded Sir Frederick Cardew in the Governorship of Sierra Leone.

Reinforcements.

Among the reforms which the late Governor promoted was one affecting elementary education. In order to provide duly qualified teachers he proposed an arrangement whereby six students, pledged to devote five years to teaching after leaving college, should be financially assisted by the Government while studying at the Society's Fourah Bay College, stipulating, however, that the staff should be enlarged by the addition of a certificated European teacher. To comply with this reasonable condition the Society sent out in April, 1900, Mr. John Keble Cowburn, of Nottingham Training College. Mr. Cowburn's name appeared on the list in last year's Annual Report. A further addition to the staff of the College and of the Mission sailed in June, 1900, in the person of the Rev. Thomas Rowan, M.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Curate of Delgany, County Wicklow.

Death of Rev. C. G. Hensley.

But against these gains a heavy loss has to be set. The Rev. Charles Geoffrey Hensley, an Islington College man, who joined the Mission in 1897, died on February 11th, 1901. The Committee had originally designated him to the Niger Mission, but the exigencies of this Mission at the time when he reached Sierra Leone led to his being detained there, and eventually his location to the Sierra Leone Mission was confirmed by the Committee. Mr. Hensley was about to be married to Miss F. M. Dennis, of the Niger Mission, who had arrived at Freetown from England for that purpose on January 25th, Mr. Hensley reaching the same place from Falaba, his interior station, on the following day. Until February 7th, two days before his marriage was to have taken place, his health appeared to be quite good, but on that day symptoms of blackwater fever showed themselves, and notwithstanding the most careful nursing by the staff of the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital he passed away on the morning of the 11th, and was buried the same afternoon in the cemetery ground at Kissey Road.

On the same day as Mr. Hensley, February 11th, a former worker in West Africa also died. The Rev. Lancelot Nicholson first sailed to Sierra Leone as a layman in 1857. He had been trained for a schoolmaster at the Highbury Training College, the Principal of which at that time was the Rev. C. A. Alford, who subsequently became the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong, and the building of which afterwards became the nucleus of the London College of Divinity, St. John's Hall, Highbury. Mr. Nicholson, after further training at Islington College, continued his connexion with the Society until 1880. In the year of his retirement he was appointed to the Vicarage of Osmaston, in Derbyshire, and there he remained until his death.

Mr. J. Denton, who came home in June, 1900, and Miss H. Bisset sailed to return to the Mission in November. Miss W. W. Stratton came home in December, 1900, and sailed again in April, 1901. The Rev. E. H. Elwin and Mr. T. E. Alvarez came home in March, 1901; and Mr. T. Caldwell and Miss C. Elwin in April. The Rev. T. Rowan was appointed Acting Secretary of the Mission during Mr. Elwin's furlough.

Ordination.

The Bishop of Sierra Leone admitted to Priests' Orders the Revs. C. N. Lewis and P. A. Bickersteth on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900; and the Rev. D. A. Davies on June 23rd.

SIERRA LEONE.

Bishop James Johnson at Sierra Leone.

Bishop James Johnson, Assistant-Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa, received a hearty welcome when he called at Sierra Leone on his way to Lagos in August, 1900. A public reception of the Christian community was held in his honour, at which the leading native barrister in the colony, Sir S. Lewis, K.C.M.G., presided. At the invitation of the Bishop of Sierra Leone, a meeting of the African Clergy, twenty-two of whom were present, was held to discuss questions affecting the well-being of the Church on the West Coast. Bishop Johnson also preached to crowded congregations in the Cathedral and in other churches, and was much encouraged by the interest manifested. The late Rev. C. G. Hensley gave help in the churches of the Sierra Leone Pastorates rather frequently in the spring of 1900, when the native pastors were fewer in number than usual. On one or two occasions he went to villages in the mountain district, where the services are conducted by schoolmaster catechists, in order to administer the Holy Communion. He found the services well attended, and was pleased to notice the evident appreciation shown by the sick and infirm Christians, to whom he gave the Sacrament privately.

Fourah Bay College.

Fourah Bay College has, during the past year, adopted for its motto, "Non sibi, sed aliis"; may all its students be enabled to make it their life's rule; more especially may they seek both for themselves and for others conformity to the mind and pattern of Christ! There were forty students in residence at the close of the year. For the accommodation of the increased numbers it became necessary to rent two houses as hostels in the vicinity of the College. The Rev. E. H. Elwin, the Principal, writes with much thankfulness for the reinforcements referred to above, and especially for Mr. Rowan, the new Vice-Principal, who quickly won a high place in the good esteem of the students by accepting the post of captain of their cricket club. The importance of the disciplinary influence as well as the physical benefit of athletics is strongly felt by the Principal, who says:—

Disciplinary influence of athletics.

> We have formed an amalgamated games club. We believe strongly in our students playing cricket and football. In fact, if we only had this to help us in training, it would be worth doing. I suppose one of the greatest troubles out here is the difficulty of getting Natives to show respect to Natives who are above them, and to live happily and frankly with one another. When I see some twenty to thirty men playing football, knocking against one another, yet obeying the captain, I feel we are doing a work that will stand and that is preparing these men for future usefulness.

There is a prosperous debating society and a missionary parliament in connexion with the College; and a daily prayer-meeting, a prayer union, and a Scripture union are well maintained. The men did well in examinations, only one failure being recorded during the year. A normal class for students, supported mainly by a Government grant, was commenced by Mr. J. Denton at the beginning of the year, and continued by Mr. Cowburn on his arrival in May.

Cline Town.

Various pastoral and missionary agencies in the colony are worked by the staff, assisted by the students of the College. In Cline Town Parish, which is one of these charges devolving upon the staff, a new church in memory of the late Bishop Crowther was dedicated on June 22nd, 1900, by the Bishop of Sierra Leone, and on the following day the admission of a native Deacon to Priests' Orders, mentioned above, took place within its walls. The Rev. C. N. Lewis, one of the tutors, holds a Temne service in the church on Sundays, at which from 100 to 150 are usually present. On Easter Day, 1900, fifteen adults, three men and twelve women, were baptized. Mr. Lewis conducts also a class for catechumens and confirmation candidates, a Sunday-school with an average attendance of eighteen, and outdoor preaching. A Temne day school has fifty on the roll, and a night school has several diligent members. Work among the Mohammedans in Cline Town is persevered with, though little by way of encouragement is seen to result. A European Mohammedan is mentioned as adding to the difficulty of this work. A new missionary effort was taken up during the year among the Mendis in Ascension Town, the money for starting which was collected by the girls of the Annie Walsh Institution.

The Grammar School has afforded education to nearly 2,000 pupils during the fifty-six years (since 1845) of its existence, and many of these are found holding positions of usefulness, both religious and secular, along the whole coast of West Africa. For thirty-seven of these years its present native Principal, the Rev. Canon O. Moore, has been connected with the school either as pupil, tutor, or principal. Bishop James Johnson is an "old boy," and it is proposed to place a portrait of him in the schoolroom as an "example and inspiration." On the 56th anniversary in April, a number of "old boys," some of them grandfathers of present pupils, celebrated the occasion by taking the boys by special train to Waterloo, where the pastor, another "old boy," conducted a service and addressed them in the church, and his parishioners provided refreshments. The year 1900 closed with 154 pupils in attendance, of whom 76 were boarders. The increasing number of lads under twelve years of age sent to the school is regarded as a hopeful sign, inasmuch as they are not only more impressionable while young, but are likely to be for a longer time under the influence of the tone and discipline of the school; though, as to this latter consideration, Canon Moore does not claim that the moral tone of the school is all that could be wished. Six of the pupils proceeded to Fourah Bay College to read for Orders, and Canon Moore is very hopeful, judging from their conduct at school, that they will commend the Gospel by their lives. A few very promising lads from Liberia are being trained as masters, and hope to work in their own country. The school branch of the Juvenile Missionary Association contributed £29 15*s.* 9*d.* to the funds of the Sierra Leone Church Missions.

Grammar School.

The girls of the Annie Walsh Institution also manifest an active and self-denying interest in missionary work. A meeting is held once a week, on Saturday afternoons, when they contribute from their pocket-money; while, as a holiday effort, fifty-three of the girls took cards and collected £33 to promote the up-country work. The gifts of the day scholars, who are less freely supplied with pocket-money, often involve the sacrifice of their lunch. Of day scholars the average number on the roll was sixty-eight; of boarders the full complement, fifty-two, was maintained throughout the year. Four girls tried in an examination which was opened for the first time in 1900, known as the Fourah Bay College Junior Examination, the syllabus for which is drawn up on the lines of the Oxford and Cambridge Local Examinations. All the four not only obtained the coveted certificate, but were placed in the Honours Division, one being distinguished for religious knowledge and drawing, another for drawing only, and a third for geography. Bishop James Johnson presented these certificates in September. Two of these girls have since become pupil-teachers in the school. The girls take a keen interest in the competitive exhibition of school work which is held annually in the colony in December. In the 1899 exhibition they attempted for the first time landscape and other shaded drawings, and maps of the Protectorate; Miss C. H. Pidsley, who believes in "the educational value of a straight line," considers their progress in drawing and painting decidedly hopeful. In another and a higher sphere the "value of a straight line" has constantly to be inculcated. A strict regard for truth and for the rights of property in respect to small articles belonging to fellow pupils is too frequently wanting, and deep heart conviction and real contrition for faults brought home are also rarely met with. This is doubtless the case to some extent in Christian communities elsewhere, but the missionaries are right in praying for and looking for sincerity and true consecration amongst these girls, who represent the best of Sierra Leone young womanhood. Miss W. W. Stratton gave Kindergarten lessons to the younger girls, which were both greatly enjoyed by the children and proved most useful as a means of training their reasoning faculties. At the beginning of the year (1900) a meeting for women was held in the schoolroom, at which some 400 were present, the girls forming the choir. A very practical and helpful address was given by an African lady, a former pupil at the school, on the importance of carefully training the young. Towards the year's close the girls helped to swell a very successful children's meeting at the Bishop's residence, "Bishopscourt," when some 3,000 children, most of them wearing white dresses, made a sight which delighted the eye. Miss C. J. Elwin, who mentions it, says:—

"Educational value of a straight line."

Gathering of three thousand children.

> But the best of all was the deep thankfulness that filled our hearts as we remembered that all, though the descendants of Heathen, were now being taught the love of God. As Archdeacon Johnson, who addressed one group of the children, reminded us, if such a concourse of young people had been gathered here a hundred years ago, it might have been for the purpose of selling them as slaves. Truly God has done great things, but there remains yet much to do. Thousands of Heathen are still living in darkness at our very doors; and our most earnest prayer is that many of these African children themselves may be stirred up to do the work the Europeans can never accomplish without their help, that of making Sierra Leone a truly Christian colony, in name and in deed.

TEMNE COUNTRY.

Port Lokkoh.

PORT LOKKOH is sixty miles from Freetown, up the Sierra Leone River. The town is less prosperous than it was some years ago, owing to the diversion of the trade caravans caused by the heavy taxation imposed by the French as they enter the British Protectorate from the interior. There is, on the other hand, a trade in imported goods which appears to be increasing, and which, in proportion as it does so, can only add to the poverty and misery of the place. English-speaking traders, Sierra Leonians, are promoting the drink traffic, and it is increasingly common to see chiefs and people under the influence of highly deleterious imported spirits. Mr. T. Caldwell was in charge during the absence on furlough of the Rev. H. Castle, from September, 1899, till April, 1900. Soon after Mr. Castle's return Mr. Caldwell was transferred to the Limba country. For the English-speaking Sierra Leonians services, classes, Sunday-school, &c., are conducted, and their appreciation is shown by hearty monetary support for church repairs, but they are less responsive to appeals to render help in evangelistic efforts among the Heathen and Mohammedan population around. The church has received a new east-end wall, and this, with the addition of a few material accessories and a coat of paint, has made its condition and appearance better than before the insurrection of 1898, during which it was used by the Imperial troops as a barrack room. The Mohammedans, on the other hand, have not yet succeeded in restoring their mosque in Port Lokkoh, which was destroyed during the rebellion. They instituted, however, a preaching crusade, proclaiming the coming of the Mahdi and predicting that all non-Moslems would die when his trumpet was heard. One of the catechumens fell away for a time under this temptation, but all the baptized Temne Christians stood firm. There is an average attendance at the Sunday morning (seven o'clock) Temne services of thirty, and in the Sunday-school there are two Temne classes, the pupils representing almost all ages up to fifty. Lantern services are conducted in the town and neighbouring villages on moonless nights. On Christmas morning, 1900, two adults, a man and his sister, were baptized by immersion in the stream flowing through the town. The wife of a Mohammedan chief attended a class for inquirers. The work at the three outstations—Makomp, Makori, and Mapoli—is hopeful, and a good reception is met with everywhere during itinerations.

Drink Traffic.

A coming Mahdi predicted.

The Rev. J. A. Alley is unable to corroborate the testimony on which the statement in last year's Report was founded, to the effect that Ro-Gbere "calls itself a Christian village . . . nearly all the people observe the Sabbath." On the contrary, he says that not one person has as yet had the courage to confess Christ, and that he does not know a single person who observes the Sabbath, the few even that attend the services being found at their secular avocations when not at church. There is a night school with eight pupils. Evangelistic services are held at the station and at some eighteen villages within three miles distance, and fifteen itinerations were made, in the course of which some 138 towns and villages were visited, many of them three or four times. For the most part the people showed little interest in the message, and Mr. Alley says that both preachers and hearers need a baptism of the Holy Ghost. Two Sierra Leone agents are stationed at Funknin, whose labours are appreciated by the people. In one of his itinerations Mr. Alley crossed the border from the Temne into the Loko Country, and visited Makrembe, the King's town. He and his native companion preached to a gathering of 120 people, one of the townspeople interpreting from Temne into Loko.

LIMBA COUNTRY.

Katimbo. The late Rev. C. G. Hensley and Mr. T. Caldwell occupied KATIMBO, in the hitherto unevangelized Limba Country, in July, 1900. The place is about 100 miles distant from Port Lokkoh, and is on the caravan road to Falaba. It is twenty-seven miles from Bumba, marked on the map on page 60. The country is hilly, and it is hoped it will prove healthy. The huts of the people are of very rude construction, simply mud adhering to sticks stuck in the ground about one inch apart round a taller stick, with a grass roof, unprotected from the cold winds, and equally so from the eyes of the curious. Katimbo is a town of about 150 of these houses, and is situated on high ground some 1,800 feet above the sea. In three of these huts, one for each of the missionaries, and one for their Temne companions, the party took up their several abodes, the one room, fourteen feet diameter or less, serving as sitting-room, dining-room, bedroom, and school-room. Besides several Temne boys, they had with them one of the Limba nation who knew both the Temne and Limba languages. When Mr. Hensley went at the close of 1900 to succeed Mr. T. E. Alvarez in the charge of the work in the Yalunka country, and Mr. Caldwell left to take furlough, two Sierra Leone Christians volunteered to go to Katimbo and carry on the work for a few months until Mr. Caldwell's return. Mr. Caldwell wrote :—

Rude Mission buildings.

> I do not know much of the Limbas yet, excepting that Samory's Sofas could not conquer them, the Mohammedans could not convert them, the Christian Church has neglected them, and now God has given us an abundant entrance into their country. May He use us in bringing them to Himself, is our prayer and object."

YALUNKA COUNTRY.

The station where Mr. T. E. Alvarez was located during the past year is fifty miles further up-country than Katimbo, and is among the Yalunkas. That station was not Sinkunia, the place which Mr. Alvarez originally occupied in 1897, but MANONKHON, Sinkunia having become an out-station manned by two African agents. A second out-station was also opened in June, 1900, Mussaiya. Mr. Alvarez, while expressing regret that no European fellow worker joined him during the year, acknowledges with thankfulness the loyal help and zeal of the four native brethren, to whose patient and self-denying efforts he considers the great advance he was privileged to witness to be in a large measure due. The advance consisted not in converts gathered into the Church—the time for that has not yet apparently arrived—but in the improved attitude of the people. In 1899, the labourers found themselves confronted by mistrust and prejudice, and the death of the Chief of Manankhon, a strict Mohammedan, but a good friend notwithstanding, who had welcomed their advent to his town, rendered it apparently probable that the station would have to be changed. These fears proved groundless, the people's suspicions vanished, attentive audiences waited on the preaching, the schools were filled, and the most cordial relations were maintained between the Mission band and the Mohammedan population. Seeing that the little town of 500 people contained as many as eight Mohammedan teachers, or "priests" as Mr. Alvarez calls them, he considers the favourable change in the attitude of the people to be a special cause for thankfulness and praise. The people are engaged on their farms in the daytime, and consequently the evenings are the only available opportunities for teaching them. Night schools were held at all the three stations, each of which was attended regularly by some twenty young men and girls. On two evenings of the week evangelistic meetings were held in different compounds. The Sunday gatherings took place in the compound of the chief, and the attendance was usually large; the closest attention was given to the words spoken, and not seldom questions were subsequently asked which showed with what interest and intelligence the addresses had been followed. Such medical knowledge as Mr. Alvarez possessed was in constant demand, and now and then he had to do his best to set broken bones and to deal with even more serious cases. Some little time spent daily in the garden transformed the environment of the Mission-house, and provided, besides food and exercise for the Mission staff, a valuable object lesson also to the people. Mr. Alvarez wrote:—

An object lesson: a Mission plantation.

> Our industrial work has been on a small scale, but each morning we all of us spend an hour and a half in garden work, and have succeeded in laying out and fencing our grounds, and planting them with a variety of fruit trees—oranges, limes, mangoes, papaws, guavas, avicado pears, kolas, and plantains. We have even a few cocoa-nut trees growing, which are quite unknown in the country. We have also two banana plantations, three cassada patches, one fair-sized ground-nut farm, and koko plant, pineapples, and sweet potatoes in great abundance. So that we have not been idle, and during the rains we had some excellent results in English vegetables, chiefly tomatoes, cucumbers, beans, cabbages, and lettuce. All these we are hoping to be able one day to introduce into the country, as also rubber and coffee trees, of which we have a few young shoots thriving.

The help sent by the pupils of the Annie Walsh School at Freetown provided most of the farming tools and those used for carpentry, and also the drugs. They sent in addition two large boxes of toys, &c., for distribution among the school children at Christmas time, for all which Mr. Alvarez was most grateful. One feature of the Christmas festivities was a running contest open to all the children of the town, with toys as prizes. Crowds watched the races, and at one station the king turned out on his horse and raced with another equestrian to add to the general interest. Mr. Alvarez prepared about one half of the Gospel according to St. Matthew in Yalunka for the press.

A native king joins in school races.

As already mentioned, Mr. Alvarez came home on furlough in March, 1901, and it has been decided by the Committee that on his return (D.V.) to Africa he will be transferred to the Niger to take up the important work of the Secretaryship of the Mission in that district. The death of the Rev. C. G. Hensley, who was to have succeeded him, has been mentioned above (page 57).

WESTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the century had been carried away from the Yoruba country, which lies a thousand miles to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was the establishment of Missions at Badagry (1845) and Lagos (1852) on the coast, and at Abeokuta (1846), Ibadan (1852), and other towns and villages in the interior. More recently, Europeans have occupied Ode Ondo (1876), Oyo (1887), and Ogbomoso (1893).

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition, undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Gbebe, reoccupied, 1879; and the Basa country in 1897.

Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave, was consecrated Bishop of the Niger Territories in 1864. He laboured zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. In June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, receiving the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa." Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as his Assistant-Bishops at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March. In 1900, the Rev. James Johnson, a third Assistant-Bishop, was consecrated.

In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Hausa States. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home, but others followed after a short interval, and itinerations have been made in the direction of Sokoto. More recently, organized efforts, carefully planned and courageously carried out, have been made to occupy the country.

Title of the Mission.

THE above title is a new one in the Society's Annual Reports as the title of a Mission. It is derived from that given by Archbishop Benson to the diocese of Bishop Hill, at the time of the latter's appointment to succeed Bishop Crowther. The Diocese of Western Equatorial Africa includes the territory in which the work of both the Yoruba and the Niger Missions is carried on, and the common possession of one ecclesiastical head gives to them a certain degree of unity which, for the purposes of reporting on the work, is best recognized by treating them as one Mission.

Bishop Johnson accorded an interview with the late Queen Victoria.

Her late Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria accorded an interview at Windsor Castle, on July 2nd, 1900, to Mrs. Victoria Randle and her two children, under the escort of Bishop James Johnson. Mrs. Randle is the wife of a native doctor at Lagos, and the daughter of an African merchant, Mr. J. P. L. Davies. Her mother had a remarkable history. The child of one of the local kings in the Yoruba country, she was carried off as a captive of war by the Dahomians, and was given by the king of Dahomey to the late Captain Forbes, R.N., on his visit to Abomey in 1850, and she received the name of Sarah Forbes Bonetta. The Queen's interest in the child's story led Her Majesty to make provision for her education in England, and, after her marriage, to become sponsor to her daughter, who is now Mrs. Randle. The latter was also educated in this country as a protégée of the Queen, and her daughter in like manner, who is a godchild of Princess Henry of Battenberg, was being educated in Africa at the Queen's charges. Mrs. Randle was for some time before her marriage a teacher in the Society's Girls' Seminary at Lagos, as her mother, Mrs. Davies, had been once before for a few months to fill an urgent vacancy. Bishop Johnson had escorted Mrs. Randle a few weeks before the interview with the Queen, on May 14th, to Buckingham Palace, where they had an interview with H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg. He wrote of the interview with the Queen:—

The Queen's graciousness.

It is certainly most delightful to think that Her Majesty has done and is doing all this over and above all her official and Imperial acts, in the hope of thereby benefiting Africa and the Negro race, whose unfortunate condition she is anxious to see improved; and all as a people are most grateful to her for it. At Windsor Castle, before Her Majesty's arrival and her readiness to receive us were announced, we had to wait some time in the long corridor. During the interval of waiting, both the Honourable Miss Phipps and another lady-in-waiting engaged us in interesting conversation. It was most delightful to witness the kindly graciousness with which Her Majesty received the young children and their mother. She manifested much kindly interest in them, granted them the favour of kissing her hand, whilst she herself kissed them and their mother also, and gave some very nice presents to the little ones. Like Princess Henry of Battenberg, at Buckingham Palace, Her Majesty kindly asked after my welfare, and what effect the last winter had had upon me. She then made anxious inquiries about the present rising in Ashanti-land, which seemed to have affected her much, and about the character of the climate at this time (which is a very wet season in West Africa generally) in view of the effect which it might have upon her troops, and especially their European officers, who are engaged in suppressing the rising. I gave to Her Majesty's questions such replies as my connexion with Africa and acquaintance with the native mind enabled me to give. It will occur to you that it was in connexion with a war with Ashanti a few years ago that Her Majesty and the Princess Henry sustained the very great loss of Prince Henry by death from fever on the Gold Coast.

Abeokuta chiefs at Lagos.

An interesting mark of the beneficial changes which British rule is introducing among the native races was witnessed at Lagos in October, 1900. The Lieutenant-Governor, Sir G. C. Denton, invited the Alake, or chief king, of Abeokuta, and the three subordinate kings, and also the Mohammedan chief, with their several retinues, to visit Lagos. The traditions of the country entirely discountenance a king going beyond the boundaries of the town or district over which he rules, but the invitation was nevertheless accepted, and a special train conveyed the party to the coast and back again. They were received with much enthusiasm at Lagos, where over 5,000 people welcomed their arrival, and they were shown all that was calculated to interest and instruct them during their stay from October 24th to 29th. By the request of the Lieutenant-Governor a special Yoruba service was arranged for them in Christ Church, on Sunday, the 28th, at 4 p.m., and this service was accorded a place in the official programme. The Rev. D. Williams, the senior native pastor of Abeokuta, who was at Lagos for the benefit of his health, and the Rev. J. S. Fanimokun took part in the service, and Bishop Oluwole preached from Psalm lxxii. 11. The church was filled to overflowing, many being unable to gain admission.

A religious service part of the official programme.

The death of a veteran retired missionary, and of a young missionary in only his second year of service, both pioneers, and of one who was a missionary in will and desire only, but was called home before actually setting forth on the foreign campaign, have to be recorded. The Rev. Adolphus Christian Mann, who laboured in the Yoruba Mission for thirty-two years, from 1852 to 1884, died at Stuttgart on May 13th, 1900. Another veteran German missionary, the Rev. James Erhardt, who received a visit from Mr. Mann only a few days before his death, wrote: "He had been fairly well up to Saturday, the 12th of May, and was even working at a sermon, when he was seized with a kind of cold fit. He went to bed, fell into a slumber, and awoke in the eternal home."

Deaths of Rev. A. C. Mann,

The young pioneer was the Rev. John Claud Dudley Ryder, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, son of Mr. Henry Dudley Ryder, of Hemel Hempstead. Mr. Ryder offered to the Society in 1898, and proceeded in November of that year with the Rev. A. E. Richardson to Tripoli to study Hausa there in company with Mr. L. H. W. Nott and Dr. W. R. S. Miller. He returned to England the following July and sailed in December, 1899, one of a party of four under Bishop Tugwell's leadership, to plant the standard of the Cross in the Hausa States. He died of dysentery at Gierko on June 1st, 1900. Mr. Richardson wrote the following account of his illness and death:—

and Rev. J. C. D. Ryder.

It was not until Sunday, the 27th [May], that Mr. Ryder showed any signs of illness, although he had been a little unwell for two or three days. At the service for the officers that Sunday morning he read the prayers and the Bishop preached, but only those in the front row could hear the prayers. During the afternoon Claud Ryder and I had a long talk over some Hausa proverbs, but after a time he complained of weariness. I therefore said, "Well, how would you translate this?"—giving him one more proverb. "Oh, the meaning of that is clear," he quickly replied. "It is this: 'In the school of suffering we learn to die.'" The next day he kept his bed, and Dr. Mottram came across to consult with Dr. Miller. It was decided that Ryder should come down to the coast with me. However, by Wednesday morning it seemed as though recovery were impossible. Towards evening Ryder slept a good deal, but a very violent storm burst over us at 6.15. This awoke the patient and put him in a great state of excitement. He said it was far more exhilarating and invigorating than any medicine. The next day it was very evident that the end was near. At four o'clock the Bishop suggested that we should partake of the Holy Communion, but Ryder begged it to be postponed till the morning. Late in the evening his strength rapidly sank, and we gathered round the bed in prayer. Only the Bishop and Miller were composed enough to find words. Then Ryder offered up a prayer, but it was very inaudible. Then, summoning up his remaining strength, he added, "O God, grant that this work be not arrested because of this 'kink' in it——." Then he stopped. Poor Alabi, his faithful Yoruba boy, knelt there too in the firelight, his lustrous eyes wet with tears. Ryder then asked if we thought he would last out till morning. Then, seizing the Bishop's hand, he said, "I don't think I can die—it seems too good to be true." Constantly he repeated the words, "Jesus—Keeper," "Jesus—Saviour." At 4.30 on Friday morning, June 1st, we all gathered round the bedside and said good-bye. We sang "For ever with the Lord," and "Peace, perfect peace," with trembling voices. Then, after bidding us farewell, Ryder asked for Alabi. He took the lad's hand in his and kissed it, saying, "Oda! Oda!" (i.e. "It is good—you have done well"). Then he smiled and said, "Sai gobi" (i.e. the Hausa for "Until to-morrow"—the to-morrow of the next world). The first streaks of dawn were just visible in the eastern sky, and with that earthly dawn came the dawn of eternity to Ryder. That afternoon he was laid by the side of Gowans, the pioneer Hausa missionary who died at Gierko. Often Ryder had said, "We must find poor Gowans' grave," but he never went there till borne by those Yoruba soldiers. As we sang once more, "Jesu, the very thought of Thee," the Moslem song of a woman at her corn-grinding died away—a token of what will soon happen. The songs of Christ must for ever drown all other music. So there are now two graves in that little town of Gierko silently calling us to hasten the day when Christ's Name shall be as familiar as that of Mohammed in the vast Hausa State.

"Grant that the work be not arrested."

"Until to-morrow."

Deaths of Miss L. Ruhase,

The third name to be recorded in this connexion is that of Miss Louise Ruhase, of Bremen, who, while under training at "The Willows," volunteered for service in West Africa, and was assigned to work on the Niger. She died in Germany in July, 1900.

and Rev. D. O. Pepple.

And besides the above, the death of a native clergyman has to be mentioned, that of the Rev. D. O. Pepple, who was admitted in 1898 by Bishop Tugwell to Deacons' Orders, the first of the Ibo race to enter the sacred ministry.

Reinforcements.

The following reinforcements joined the Mission during the year:—The Revs. George Percy Bargery and George Thomas Basden, Islington men, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders by the late Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900; Mr. Hans Vischer, B.A., Emmanuel College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, a Swiss by birth; Mr. Alfred Ernest Ball, of Islington College; Miss Ellen Anna Hornby, of Great Missenden, Bucks, trained at "The Willows"; Miss Selina Craven Chambers, of Cricklewood, trained at "The Willows"; and Miss Minnie Jane Martin, of Balham, trained at Highbury and Jesmond. Miss Chambers was assigned to the Yoruba branch of the Mission, all the rest to the Niger.

The Bishops' movements.

Bishop Tugwell, who sailed from England in December, 1899, left Lagos on January 18th, 1900, at the head of a pioneer party for Hausaland, and his subsequent movements will be traced in connexion with that party. (See below, pages 95–100). Bishop Phillips continued throughout the year in the Ode Ondo district. Bishop Oluwole paid four visits from Lagos to Abeokuta, and two visits to Jebu during the year 1900. He confirmed 521 candidates between December 3rd, 1899, and February 14th, 1901. Bishop Johnson arrived at Lagos from England in the autumn of 1900.

I. COAST DISTRICT.

Miss C. C. Boyton sailed to return to the Mission in June, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn, who came home in June, sailed again in December; the Rev. N. Johnson, who came to England in April, 1900, for the purpose of seeing through the press the revised Yoruba version of the Bible, returned again in December; and Mrs. Tugwell and Miss S. C. Chambers sailed in May, 1901. Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn and Miss E. Ballson came home in April, 1901. Mr. F. J. Huddlestone was married to Miss M. Hamlyn, sister of the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn, of this Mission, at Lagos, on February 5th, 1901.

Ordinations.

Bishop Oluwole admitted the Rev. J. S. Owen to Priests' Orders at Christ Church, Lagos, on Sunday, September 16th, 1900; and on December 23rd, at St. John the Evangelist's Church, Lagos, he admitted Mr. James Samuel Adewakun to Deacons' Orders, and the Rev. M. T. Euler Ajayi to Priests' Orders.

LAGOS.

Lagos.

The Society has been in a large measure relieved of the chief part of the work on the island of Lagos and on the neighbouring coast by the Lagos Native Church, but it is still responsible for supplying the European staff of a school for girls and of one of the churches which is attended by an English-speaking congregation. The Grammar School also is one of the Society's institutions, though, like the Grammar School at Sierra Leone, it has a native Principal. Bishop Oluwole held that post for many years. His successor, the present Principal, is the Rev. J. S. Fanimokun. He has four assistant-masters, and the pupils fluctuated in number between 99 and 106. The school won sixteen prizes in a local competitive exhibition of school work, and all the eight candidates who tried for the College of Preceptors' Certificate Examination were successful. Most of the boys are members of the Christ Church branch of the Scripture Union and of the Temperance Association, and the school missionary boxes collected £4 15*s*.

Grammar School.

Girls' Seminary.

Miss E. Ballson (now at home), lady Principal of the Girls' Seminary, was rejoined in July, 1900, by Miss C. C. Boyton. Two boarders left the school to take up teaching, one at Aroloya, under the Lagos Native Church, the other at Ibadan. There were 74 on the roll at the close of the year. The ladies visited the hospital and poor-house, accompanied by one or more of the girls, who acted as interpreters. During the absence of the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn on furlough, the Rev. J. S. Owen came to the coast from Oyo to take charge of Christ Church, Faji. He was unsuccessful in inducing more than one or two members of the congregation to join him in open-air meetings for the benefit of the Heathen and Mohammedans, but there were good and attentive audiences, and thus proof was given of a fact which some had called in question (and had probably made their assumption an excuse for holding aloof), that a large number of helpers is not necessary to success.

Christ Church.

Pastorates. No report has been received for the past few years of the Pastorates connected with the Lagos Native Church. There is reason to fear that the spiritual condition of many of the Christians is not satisfactory. Much formality exists, and much neglect of the means of grace, and the Church does not bear a lofty witness for holiness; sin, and especially sins of the flesh, being lightly spoken of. For several months, from April to September, 1900, Bishop Oluwole gave pastoral help at St. Paul's, Breadfruit, the most important pastoral charge in Lagos, and the parish of which Bishop James Johnson was incumbent for many years before his consecration. During the absence of another African clergyman in this country, the Rev. Nathaniel Johnson, the Rev. A. W. Howells was placed in charge of St. John's Parish, Aroloya, another of the important pastorates of the Native Church. The services and week-day classes were well attended. Mr. Howells baptized twenty-seven adults, most of whom could read the Yoruba New Testament intelligently. Owing to the absence of the Diocesan Inspector of Schools in England, Mr. Howells, at Bishop Oluwole's request, visited the Church Schools and examined them in religious knowledge. Eleven schools, infant and primary, belonging to the Native Church were examined on the syllabus which the Board had approved, and the results were, on the whole, satisfactory. Mr. Howells was struck with two things: first, that some of the best answers were given by children of heathen parents; and second, that in only two instances—two Mohammedan youths—were children withdrawn from religious instruction. He noticed, however, that through want of regularity and punctuality too many children missed the Bible teaching, which is given during the first hour of the school day.

Heathen children excel Christians in knowledge of Scriptures.

Badagry. The ordination of the catechist at BADAGRY in the spring of 1900, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, facilitated a most important reformation among some of the nominal Christians of the place, as it enabled Bishop Oluwole to authorize him to perform the marriage ceremony. The Rev. M. T. E. Ajayi writes:—

> In former years it was never regarded as a sin by the men to retain a heathen woman as wife without lawful Christian marriage, since by that way, they argued, she would become a Christian. They have now seen the matter in a different light. The Holy Spirit has enlightened them as to the nature of sin and convinced them of it, so that all our men are now unanimous in crying down such a sinful way of living among Christians, and in upholding Christian marriage.

Mr. Ajayi baptized seven adults, his "firstfruits" he calls them, in June, 1900. The attendance at the Sunday services improved, and the people were regular at the various classes for instruction. Both day and Sunday-schools have increased in number. The sum of £9 2*s.* 10*d.* was contributed to the funds of the Lagos Pastorates and the Lagos Church Missions. Mr. Ajayi visited Ado during the year, a town which was often visited in the early days of the Yoruba Mission by the late Rev. C. A. Gollmer, and which Mr. Ajayi calls "our Modern Athens," not because of its architecture (!) but on account of its idolatries. The king entertained him at his piazza, and invited all his chiefs and two heathen priestesses who sat dressed in white on the king's right and left, to hear him proclaim the Gospel Message. He enjoined an Egba Christian, whom the king had engaged as private tutor to teach his nephews English, not to neglect the souls of his four pupils. At Ajido there are over sixty who regularly meet for worship on Sundays. The king is one of them, and Mr. Ajayi says that he has had to suffer persecution from his people in consequence. One of the Badagry Church members, an old man, volunteered to teach these people, and they undertook to pay for his support.

A "Modern Athens."

The pastor of Christ Church has two out-stations under his supervision—namely, Leke and Aiyesan—considerably to the east of Lagos, and reached viâ the Lagoon. These Mr. Owen visited and administered the Lord's Supper in both places. At Leke twenty-seven gathered round the Lord's Table, but discipline had to be exercised in the case of two or three, who were living in sin. Five young men belonging to a village four hours distant from Leke were baptized. Upwards of twelve other inquirers, the result of Centenary open-air meetings, are under instruction in the same place, the instruction being given by one of the Leke Christians who visits the village weekly from Saturday till Monday. Aiyesan is two days' journey farther east than Leke. Seventeen inquirers here it was thought best to defer for a longer probation. Efforts have been made by the Bale of the place and others to introduce polygamy among the Christians, but only one young man yielded to the temptation.

Mr. Owen laid the foundation of a new mud church, which the Aiyesan Christians were preparing to build, larger and more substantial than the present one, and to be covered with an iron roof.

JEBU COUNTRY.

The work in the JEBU COUNTRY is supported in the main from the funds of the Lagos Church Missions. Bishop James Johnson gave the following account of the history of the first entrance of the Gospel there at the Society's Anniversary in 1900 :—

How the Gospel first entered the Jebu country.

With the Church in Lagos I have been connected for more than twenty years. Besides supporting its pastors and all its church machinery and schools, it is carrying on a very important aggressive missionary work in the neighbouring interior of the Yoruba country. There is a tribe in the country that for over forty years before 1882 closed its doors against the Gospel, because it was afraid of being deprived of its independence by contact with the English. To that tribe I belong myself on my mother's side. In the year 1882 I visited them for the first time and endeavoured to urge them as a brother to open the door for the Gospel. I endeavoured to assure them that no harm would come to them from this. After long parley the permission was given to me, but I could not make use of it then on account of civil war amongst themselves. This went on for several years. In the year 1888 I was able to use the privilege and opportunity of placing a missionary amongst those people, my own countrymen, and I started that missionary work with some help which I received from friends in England here. We worked for about five years, and were eventually able to make an impression on about seventy persons in favour of Christianity. In the year 1893 a war broke out between their tribe and the British Government, and they were conquered. This event in a great measure helped us to get access to the country in a larger way than had previously been the case. The work is now beyond my own personal control and that of the fellow-countrymen who worked with me. We invited the Lagos Church to take it up. It has responded very readily, and included the work in this Yoruba country with its own evangelistic work elsewhere.

Division of the district.

The Rev. R. A. Coker, in his Annual Letter, gives a geographical description of the country, and of the villages and towns occupied. He divides it into ten districts. (1) Jebu Ode proper, with from fifteen to twenty villages within a distance traversed in an hour and a half. In this district there are five agents: Mr. Coker and a schoolmaster at Iwade, a catechist and schoolmaster at Porogun, and an evangelist at Modi. (2) Musin, to the south-east, contains 300 towns and hamlets. It has two teachers, at Isonyin and Odopota. (3) District between Musin and Igbo, with two teachers, at Simadegun and Oparaki. (4) Igbo district, lying to the east of Jebu Ode. The Rev. J. A. Braithwaite and a schoolmaster are at Ojowo, and there are teachers at Okejaga, Atikori, and Oke Agbo. (5) Ibadan Road district, with one teacher at Ago. (6) Epe Road district, with two teachers, at Isiwo and Odolewu. (7) Epe district, with a schoolmaster and evangelist at Ibonwon. (8) Ejirin Road district, with one evangelist. (9) Ibefun district, to the west, with two teachers. (10) Remo Road district, to the north, with teachers at Okun, Odogbolu, Ijesa, and Aiyepe. Mr. Coker visited all the villages (that is, presumably, those occupied by agents) at least once during the year, and he bears witness to a continuous stream of accessions from the Heathen and, to a less extent, from the Mohammedans. He says, moreover, that the adherents are making progress in Christian knowledge, and that not a few show evidence of their hearts and minds being under the influence of Divine grace. Nevertheless, it is also true that many who join the Church are actuated by inferior motives, simply following the example of friends and associates. They are not readily tractable, but, on the contrary, are stubborn and self-willed. On the other hand, they appear to be frank and ready to acknowledge themselves in error when experience has convinced them that they were wrong. In the whole district 417 adults were baptized during the past year, 301 men and 116 women.

Continuous stream of converts.

In Jebu Ode the ordinary number in attendance at church on Sundays at Iwade is 700; on one occasion there were 1,660 present. On week-day mornings, about six o'clock, the attendance is from 100 to 150, and the service consists of a short form of Morning Prayer, the First and Second Lessons, a few words expounding or applying one of the Lessons, and extempore prayers by one or two of the congregation. The communicants hold prayer-meetings amongst themselves, and they attend a class which Mr. Coker conducts, at which the Gospels, Acts, and some of the Epistles and part of Genesis have been gone through. Mr. Coker remarks, "We are not yet so advanced as to be troubled with Old Testament criticism; on the other hand, we rejoice to know that the foundation of our Scriptures is based on truth—Godward and manward, having Jesus Christ the Midway or Ladder." A new church, St. Saviour's, was opened on April 26th, 1900. Its dimensions, exclusive of the chancel, are 100 feet long by 50 feet broad, and it is capable of accommodating 1,200 people. The cost was £961 7*s.* 1*d.*, besides the labour of the people, voluntarily given, and estimated at £150. Lagos friends gave £75, and the S.P.C.K. made a generous grant of £50; the rest, all but a debt of £300, which still remained unliquidated six months after the opening, was raised by the Jebu Christians. Bishop Oluwole dedicated the church, and a goodly number of native clergy and laymen from Lagos and Abeokuta were present, the Rev. and Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn, who had taken a great interest in the progress of the building, and given Mr. Coker much valued counsel and help, being the only European missionaries. Mr. Coker says of the ceremony:—

admiration of the Jebus at the noble edifice, and the festivities lasting for two days, all these will long be remembered. An attempt was made to number the crowd; those outside quadrupled those inside; it was said to be above 6,000, including Heathen and Mohammedans. The collection amounted to £17 2*s*.

Intrusion by agents of "United Native African Church."

At Porogun the Sunday attendance averages 180, and a catechumens' class has 100 members. In the Remo Road District an agent of the "United Native African Church," on the invitation of one of the communicants, went and baptized a large number of the adherents; and this was not the first occasion of intrusion by agents of this community among the Church adherents in the Jebu Country. Bishop Oluwole went at once to counsel and support the catechist. He wrote: "The danger is great when a body like this, with a lower standard of Christian living, goes among new adherents, who wish for Christian rites but are as yet unprepared to fulfil the conditions. However, our duty is clear, and we leave the issues in the Master's hands."

II. INTERIOR YORUBA DISTRICT.

Mr. J. McKay was married to Miss S. C. Grover, of this Mission, on December 21st, 1900; and Mr. H. F. Gane was married to Miss M. Hamlin, also of this Mission (Niger Section), on February 7th, 1901. Miss J. Palmer sailed to return to the Mission in May, 1900, Mrs. J. B. Wood in June, and the Rev. and Mrs. T. Harding and Miss H. J. Duncum in November. Miss J. J. Thomas came home in March, 1901; Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry and Mr. and Mrs. J. McKay in April; and Miss Duncum (on medical certificate) in May.

Ordination.

Bishop Oluwole admitted the Rev. J. J. Olumide to Priests' Orders at Abeokuta on September 9th, 1900.

ABEOKUTA.

Abeokuta.

After the three ladies had left Abeokuta—Miss M. Tynan in September, 1899, Mrs. J. B. Wood in February, 1900, and Miss H. J. Duncum in March—as mentioned in last year's Report, Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry were the only European labourers left in the town. The former had a Training Class of seven, but four of these, all from the Jebu Country, proved stubborn and intractable, and the other three caught the infection of their bad example, so that the whole class had to be suspended. Disappointing as it was, especially as the men were nearing the end of their course, Mr. Fry reflects that it is better to be without agents than to have such as are not dependable. So many openings for work are now presented to young men in the town of Abeokuta and its neighbourhood, that, if they have not a very real desire to work for their Lord and Saviour, they are not likely to endure the discipline of training for spiritual work. Much of Mr. Fry's time was occupied in building. He erected a Hospital for Lepers, with money raised by Mrs. Wood in memory of Canon Green, her late father. This was opened on May 11th, 1900, in the presence of the Alake and also of the Mohammedan king and the king of the Hausas resident in Abeokuta. This hospital had fifteen inmates in the autumn. Mr. Fry also extended the Dispensary by adding two rooms for the accommodation of in-patients, and covering the whole with an iron roof. There were several adult baptisms of persons who first heard the Gospel at the dispensary, and some of the converts of former years showed zeal in leading others to Christ. Classes were held for the patients while waiting their turn to be diagnosed. The monthly attendance was between a thousand and 1,100. Among these latterly were a number of Hausas, and, with the help which one of them gave her, Mrs. Fry made good progress in the study of their language, with a view to opening a class for their benefit.

Lepers' Hospital.

Dispensary.

Mr. Fry is Treasurer to the Native Church Council, the School Board, and the Native Church Missions. The Anniversary of the Native Pastorates was celebrated on September 10th, and was, Mr. Fry says, most enthusiastic and interesting. The income of the year amounted to £1,215 12*s*. 10*d*., which included a grant-in-aid from the Society of £262 10*s*. The income of the Missionary Society of the Native Church was £255 18*s*. 7*d*. The School Board is now assisted with a grant from the native Government based on the average attendance of the pupils. The sum received in 1900 was £100, two-thirds of the total grant made by the native Government towards Christian schools in the town. Bishop Oluwole was present at the Anniversary, and he again visited Abeokuta in January, 1901, when he held two confirmations in the town, at which 164 candidates were presented.

The Alake, or chief king, attends the Ake church (the opening of which was described last year) regularly twice on Sundays and, influenced by his example, the other three Egba kings also now attend the churches in their respective districts, the last to do so having begun in October, 1900. The Rev. D. Williams considers that Christianity is on the eve of becoming the State religion in Abeokuta. On November 6th, the Harvest Thanksgiving Service, which is always an interesting occasion, was held at Ake. The offertory, which amounted to £20, was devoted to the Abeokuta Church Mission. The king went up separately to present his offering. Among the gifts was the sum of 3*s*. 9½*d*., sent by the poor lepers, who were not themselves permitted to attend. This gift represented one-half of their week's allowance for food.

Thankoffering from lepers.

The Rev. J. J. Olumide, who formerly laboured at Ake as a schoolmaster and won the respect of the people by his earnestness, has, since his ordination in September, 1900, been appointed by the Church Council to assist Mr. Williams in the pastorate. The Bishop reports that a promising work is in progress at Kemta. The Church Council has decided to build a church there, as the congregation has outgrown the accommodation afforded by the verandah of the Mission-house, where they have hitherto assembled. The Oluwa, one of the minor kings, is usually present at the Sunday morning service. At Gbagura, another of the minor kings, the Agura, attends the service occasionally. The Rev. S. Doherty, of Igbore, had several idols given up to him, images of Ifa, Shango, Omolu, Osom, of the twin god, &c. The adult baptisms in his pastorate numbered fifty-five. One of them was a Mohammedan woman of some influence. Her relations called her to task, but she declared her faith in Christ in their presence and expressed joy when they ejected her from the family circle. After her baptism she made a feast, and, like St. Matthew of old, invited to it her former brethren and her new Christian friends. Another of the converts was the eldest son of Ogboloko, a chief of Ikono. After his son's baptism the chief himself appealed to his household to give up idolatry, and several baskets full of fetishes were burnt or sent to Mr. Doherty. The whole household became candidates for baptism. Five centres in the country, where members of the Igbore congregation have their farms, are visited, but the difficulty of maintaining services regularly at so many scattered centres is great. Mr. Doherty says, "We have long been praying for a wider opening, but we are almost alarmed when we see how wonderfully this prayer is answered." The Rev. E. W. George, of Iporo, says that in some respects he notes a decided improvement among his people, especially in the number attending the services, Sunday-schools, monthly prayer-meetings, monthly meetings of the Scripture Union, &c.

Farm out-stations.

The Iporo Christians erected a church at Aberuagba, an out-station in the country district outside the walls of Abeokuta. Many of them cultivate farms at that village, and are obliged to reside there at certain seasons of the year. The church was attended by 450 people on the opening day, June 20th, 1900. Bishop Oluwole, while at Abeokuta, in January, 1901, visited a number of these Out-stations, and held Confirmations at six villages, or "farms," as they are called, when 123 candidates were presented. He was very thankful for what he saw of the work at these outlying places. He wrote:—

Rule against intoxicating liquors.

> There are open doors all round, and the Christians in the farms lead a more consistent life than those in the town. The use of intoxicating liquors is strictly prohibited, and the rule seems well obeyed. The Heathen are copying the Christians in this matter. I visited a station where the heathen head of the village, who was a drunkard when I met him four years ago, has altogether given up drink. This was due to the Christian influence about him, his wife and children being Christians. I visited another farm-station only a few days ago, from which the Local Committee of the C.M.S. had, three years ago, to remove their agent, because the villagers were all given up to hard drinking, and would not listen to his message. This time I found the people total abstainers; not a bottle of rum or gin was to be seen. A small chapel had been erected by them in which I preached last Sunday to about sixty persons, the ordinary attendance on the Lord's Day.

A few months before the Bishop's visit Mrs. Wood had made a tour, which lasted six days, to some of these out-stations. As she observes, the fact that one white person, and that one a lady, could do this with perfect safety is undeniable proof of the security of the country. She was particularly pleased with the reception she met with, abundance of food for her carriers as well as for herself being provided at every place. Still more was she delighted with the good work being done. In some former Annual Reports (see especially that for 1894–95, page 63, and that for 1895–96, page 79) reference has been made to the work at Ishan of the catechist named Fadipe. Mr. Fry gives some recent particulars of this man and of the blind evangelist alluded to in the Reports referred to above :—

The agent is a somewhat remarkable man. Years ago he was a strong leader in idol-worship, and after his conversion was equally earnest as a Christian. Under God he is the father of all the work in the farms in that district, and has been the means of leading hundreds to the feet of Jesus who before were bowing down to wood and stone, especially among the men. Many of these are now working in various parts both as voluntary workers and agents too. The catechist at Igbo Itoku was led to decision by him. He is an illiterate man, but can read and knows his Bible well from beginning to end, and, what is more, knows how to use it. He is a man of much prayer and a scholar of the Holy Spirit's. With his gifts, he is peculiarly a pioneer evangelist, and sadly needs a helper in the building up and teaching of his converts. Out of a salary of 25*s.* a month he has, up till now, supported a blind man for this purpose. The man was bitten by a snake in the forehead seventeen years ago, soon after his conversion, and was immediately cast off by his heathen relatives. Fadipe took him and has kept him ever since. He has a marvellous memory, and prepares all the candidates for baptism. He is over thirty years of age now. He took the evening prayer-meeting in the church. Giving out the hymn verse by verse, and after the singing of it he gave an exposition on Isaiah ix. 6, giving quotations to support his words.

IBADAN.

A member of the Hausaland party, which passed through Ibadan in January, 1900, thus described the town :—

Ibadan "as large as Bristol."

Ibadan is nearly the size of Bristol. At a distance one hardly realizes that it is a city at all, as all the houses are thatch and mud, and the appearance is that of a large extent of brown country; but when one gets inside, and sees it swarming with every kind of life, one realizes what huge places these native cities are. Through winding roads, in some places only broad enough for a single traveller, we passed for about two and a-half miles till we reached the C.M.S. station.

On the Rev. T. Harding leaving Ibadan to come home in the spring of 1900, Mr. J. McKay removed thither from Oyo, and Mr. H. F. Gane was also in Ibadan, engaged mainly in language study. The latter did some dispensary work, and engaged in open-air meetings with some members of the Aremo congregation. Miss S. C. Grover (now Mrs. McKay) and Miss H. R. Hewitt opened the Industrial School for Girls referred to in last year's Annual Report (page 72), with twenty-one girls at the beginning of 1900. The subjects taught, besides the Holy Scriptures and "the three R's," were English, hygiene, ambulance, plain needlework, simple dressmaking, washing, ironing, and preparing and cooking native food. The girls were from Abeokuta and the Jebu Country as well as Ibadan, and at first were very wild and difficult to bring under discipline, but they took an interest in the work, and Miss Grover considered the progress made satisfactory. They contributed over £2 to a missionary box, and took some part in evangelistic work. The Rev. D. Olubi baptized six adults, and has twenty-five under instruction as catechumens. His congregation in the Kudeti township of Ibadan contributed £15 15*s.* 1*d.* to the British and Foreign Bible Society, and £23 to Church Missions. The Aremo congregation, in the judgment of the Rev. J. Okuseinde, showed a marked improvement in reverence during public worship, and the attendance at the various classes was good. The school had 102 on its roll. One of the students from the Lagos Girls' Seminary was appointed teacher on the understanding that the congregation became responsible for her salary. A member of the congregation, after recovery from a severe illness, gave a thankoffering of 5*s.*, and when Mr. Okuseinde expressed surprise at the amount, knowing well her great poverty, she said, "I believe that the Lord saw fit that I should live again to continue to spend and be spent in His service. If I had more I would most cheerfully give. I yield myself and all I have to Him as a freewill offering—though a poor one—which may He graciously accept." Another, during an illness, sent all her yearly church dues with the message, "I would not like to die a debtor to the Church, knowing how much Christ has done for me." Twenty adults were baptized, and Bishop Phillips confirmed nineteen candidates. When at their farms outside the walls of Ibadan, the Christians meet together in little groups for prayer, and preach to the Heathen. Mr. Okuseinde found a whole hamlet whom a convert had taught desirous of becoming Christians. Four adults were baptized at Apomu, one of the out-stations which Mr. Okuseinde visited from time to time.

OYO AND OGBOMOSO.

Oyo.

The Rev. F. Melville Jones returned with Mrs. Jones from furlough to Oyo at the end of 1899. Much of his time was taken up with the work of the Secretaryship of the Mission, owing to the Rev. T. Harding's absence on furlough. Moreover, he suffered from a bad attack of blackwater fever, which he contracted in the summer of 1900, and which obliged him to visit Lagos for a change as soon as he was convalescent. After his return to Oyo in September, he resumed work at the Training Institution. The Rev. J. S. Owen, who, with Mr. F. D. Coleman, reached Oyo with Mr. and Mrs. Melville Jones at the close of 1899, rendered help in teaching the students until May, when he had to relieve the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn at Christ Church, Lagos, and Mr. Coleman took up the work of teaching. Through the kindness of private friends of the missionaries a gymnasium has been added to the Institution buildings, and cricket and football are enjoyed by the students. In teaching the first class Mr. Melville Jones follows the plan of Bible study suggested in "Clews to Holy Writ." The first five students to complete their training in the Institution were sent forth with prayer to their several districts just before Easter, 1900. One remained to work in Oyo, one went to Ogbomoso, two to Abeokuta, and the last to an out-station of Qde Ondo. Soon afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Melville Jones, Mr. Coleman, and the students, made an itinerating tour to Ilorin, in the course of which they visited Ogbomoso, and the students saw their former companion engaged at his work of teaching a class of twenty children. The previous February, Bishop Tugwell, when passing through Ilorin, was treated with marked courtesy by the Emir, who, in his previous visit, declined to see the Bishop when he called upon him. The Bishop held a service for the British Resident and the non-commissioned officers of his company.

Training Institution.

Visits to Ilorin.

The ladies, Miss J. J. Thomas and Miss M. Blackwall, also resided in the Training Institution until April, when they took possession of their new house at Iyalamu, where a dispensary also has been erected. Miss Blackwall attended to the patients' bodily ailments, and both ladies gave them Gospel teaching. They also visited the compounds in their own and neighbouring villages, meeting everywhere with much friendliness and readiness to listen. Miss J. Palmer returned to Oyo, after her furlough, in August, and Miss Thomas then left, in order to secure six months' training in nursing at the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital, Sierra Leone, before proceeding to England. At Alabaka services and Sunday-school are well attended.

Women's Dispensary.

Mr. J. McKay, accompanied by Mr. H. F. Gane, took an itinerating tour from Oyo in a north-easterly direction in January, 1900, visiting Oshogbo, Ikirun and Ila, towns of some importance, in each of which they made a stay of two or three days. Crowds of people, frequently numbering from three to four thousand, listened to their preaching. At Ila they estimated that over 6,000 were present, and were particularly attentive when they preached, with lantern-slide illustrations. The sheet was fixed up in the centre of an extensive open place, which was everywhere closely packed, the king and most of the chiefs being among the audience. Mr. McKay and one of his native companions shared the duty of explaining the pictures and making the Gospel known, one addressing those in front of the sheet and the other those behind it.

Six thousand present at a preaching.

Ogbomoso.

At Ogbomoso there are sixty-five baptized Christians and twenty-two communicants. The Rev. F. L. Akiele says it is usual for the Christians to preach in the streets and compounds of the town on Mondays after their class meetings, and he himself paid two visits during the year to the farm villages in the neighbourhood. Two adults were baptized.

OSHOGBO.

Oshogbo.

A new station.

A cordial welcome was given by the chiefs and people of Oshogbo to Mr. J. McKay when he went there in October, 1900, to occupy it in the service of the Gospel. His time was mainly taken up in house building, but he held services on Sunday in the open air and in the house of the Bale, one of the chiefs. Mohammedanism has gained a footing in the place, but the number of adherents it has so far secured is small.

ODE ONDO, ILESA, AND AKURE.

The district under Bishop Phillips's supervision includes fourteen towns, in which work is carried on by four men (including the Bishop) in holy orders and eleven lay teachers. These towns are from twenty to sixty miles distance apart. The number of adherents is 1,431, an increase of 250 on the previous year, and the adult baptisms numbered 120. The sum contributed by the Christians amounted to £161 7*s.* 6*d.*

Ode Ondo.

Progress made against polygamy.

The first ordination ever held in the district took place at St. Stephen's Church, Ode Ondo, on December 17th, 1899, when Mr. T. A. J. Ogunbiyi, now stationed at Akure in the Ekiti country, was admitted by Bishop Phillips to Deacons' Orders. There were several marriage services in the church, which was a cause of much encouragement to the Bishop and the pastor, the Rev. E. M. Lijadu. The prevalent polygamy, and, alas, polyandry also, opposed difficulties to the marriage of converts, which at one time seemed well nigh insuperable. Before the Bishop's last visit to England he instructed Mr. Lijadu not to suspend from communion young men who should take heathen wives according to the laws of the country, on condition that they declared their intention not to become polygamists, and a written engagement, witnessed by two communicants, was required in each case. In six cases during the year women so married, after due instruction and baptism, were brought to church and the marriage service was there performed. Seeing that from the opening of the work at Ondo, in 1876, until 1897, only six marriages between Ondo converts had taken place, there was manifestly ground for hope. King Osemowe, who was the first Ondo king to attend regularly the Sunday services, died in February, 1900. The first Ondo evangelist was also called to his rest. This was Mr. David Duboku, who was stationed at Oke Igbo from 1895 till the time of his death, having been privileged, however, to see the baptism of the first set of young men whom he had instructed for that rite, and the opening of a new church, the building of which he had superintended. The above-mentioned young men, five in number, and one woman, were baptized by the Rev. E. M. Lijadu, in April, 1900. They had all to endure persecution. The mother of one of the young men, after trying in various ways to prevent his baptism, feigned to be dying and sent urgent messages to him in church. Six months later, in October, Mr. Lijadu baptized six other adults, two of them being sons of chiefs who had been instrumental in bringing others under instruction. At Ekun, the only site which the chiefs would grant for a Mission-house was behind the town walls and adjacent to the grove of Soponna (the god of small-pox). Mr. Lijadu says of this site and of the sequel of its being occupied :—

Death of first Ondo evangelist.

In this country a Soponna grove is the worst place to live near; in it are kept all the poisonous small-pox materials from which the priests usually spread the plague over the town at pleasure; and there also lie the remains, buried or unburied, of the poor victims who have died of the small-pox. When the Mission-house was completed, Mr. Akiwuli removed into it, and made a good street leading from the house into the town. On a certain night one of the townsfolk came up slyly and threw the corpse of his dead slave behind the house. When this was reported to the friendly head-chief of the district he made the Soponna priests responsible for the deed, and pressed on them to bring out the doer for punishment. The man had to clear a broad street from the town-gate up to the Mission-house with his own hands. The priests now took alarm and removed their grove from the quarter.

A grove to the god of small-pox.

The first-fruits of the place, six young men, were baptized by Bishop Phillips on April 29th, and on October 23rd the foundation was laid of a small church 52 feet by 26 feet, with a vestry eight feet square, and a portico attached.

The Rev. R. S. Oyebode reports progress, but not rapid progress, at Ilesa. He says the Christians need more activity and self-denial, and more Christian charity among themselves, and he asks for earnest prayer in this behalf. On Easter Day, 1900, he baptized twenty-one persons, the largest number at any one time since he was placed at this station. Three men whom he entered on the list of catechumens, and whom he found able to read fairly well, explained that they had been led to learn to read through noticing one of the Christians doing so, and through reading they had arrived at a knowledge of the truth. Curiously, the Christian whose example had influenced them was himself a very careless professor, but their earnestness in turn influenced him, and he became a candidate for confirmation. Many of the Christians engaged in evangelistic work. At Modakeke there were eighteen baptisms. The adherents number eighty-six and are building a place of worship. Eight persons were baptized and four confirmed at Ijero. About twenty persons from a neighbouring village called Osi, in groups of ten on alternate Sundays, attended the services at Ijero. Two chapels were built in different parts of the town, and the people also contributed £4 14*s*. 3*d*. for religious purposes. At Ora Mr. Oyebode baptized four adults. This village contains about 600 people. The origin of the little church there was explained in last year's Annual Report (page 78). Mr. McKay and Mr. Gane visited the village at the beginning of 1900, and the latter wrote regarding the voluntary teacher by whom the work has, under God, been done:—

A careless Christian roused by those whom he taught.

> The way in which God has owned and blessed the work of this young fellow, who was not considered from an intellectual point of view suitable to be appointed as a paid agent, shows what our Christians could do, or rather what God could and would do with them, if they were really anxious to win souls for Christ.

A zealous but uneducated voluntary evangelist.

Akure.

The Rev. T. A. J. Ogunbiyi, at AKURE, in the Ekiti country, commences his Annual Letter by a reference to his ordination in December, 1899, expressing his gratitude to his Lord and Saviour for counting him faithful, putting him into the ministry. He reckons his ordination day as one that "witnessed the Divine seal on me as a δοῦλος of Christ." The converts manifest a firm belief in prayer, and frequently members of his flock call on him for the purpose of relating definite answers to their petitions. He finds a dispensary (drugs for which were kindly supplied by readers of Niger and Yoruba Notes, through Dr. C. F. Harford Battersby) a great help both in drawing the Heathen within the arena of Gospel influence and in keeping converts from resorting to fetish priests with their bodily ailments. Mr. Ogunbiyi writes feelingly of the superstitious feelings of the people regarding twin children. Together with a Government official he inspected a grove where the bodies of twins are placed, and no less than 666 of them were found and buried. He succeeded in making five rescues, but in each case one of the twins was destroyed in spite of his efforts. A small class of three students resided with Mr. Ogunbiyi, being trained for future work as evangelists. He had also a school of nineteen children, all residing with him.

Murder of twin children.

The chiefs of Akure are outwardly friendly, but all oppose their people if they wish to be baptized, and some of the most influential even forbid their attending the services. One fear they entertain is that, should their women become Christians, the husbands may forfeit the privilege (!) of beating or biting them when domestic quarrels occur, biting their wives being a custom of which the town people are very proud! A new church was opened in May, 1900, at Ado. The Mohammedans have instigated a persecution of the Christians in this place, as they have also at Ise, where, however, the few Christians continue steadfast. At Emure the cause of Christ is brought under reproach by the immoral lives of some of the adherents. One of Mr. Ogunbiyi's students has been placed temporarily at Ikole, where there are a few converts who stand firm under opposition. A former fetish priest in this town, named Ajagbani, is now a Christian adherent at Akure. This man accompanied Mr. Ogunbiyi on one of his visits and made a point of urging the acceptance of the Gospel message on those individuals in Ikole in whose behalf he had formerly "consulted fetish."

A privilege which is incompatible with Christianity.

III. LOWER NIGERIA.

Of the recruits sent out during the year to reinforce the staff in the Western Equatorial Africa Mission three were designated to Lower Nigeria, namely, the Rev. G. T. Basden and Miss E. A. Hornby, who sailed in September, 1900, in company with the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Dennis; and Miss M. J. Martin, who sailed in November with the Misses E. A. Warner and G. A. Bennett. Mr. F. Webber came home in June, 1900, Miss S. A. Hopkins in July, the Rev. H. Proctor in August, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Mackett in October (returning to the Mission in May, 1901), Miss E. Dennis and Miss M. H. Holbrook in November (returning in May, 1901); Miss F. M. Dennis and Miss M. Bird also in November; and Miss M. L. H. Warner in February, 1901. The Rev. H. Proctor was married on December 5th, 1900, at Holy Trinity Church, Upper Tooting, to Miss Helen M. Payne, who was under training with the view to missionary work in connexion with the Society. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor sailed in April, 1901.

Bishop Oluwole admitted Mr. Johann Maximilian Adulf Cole to Deacons' Orders at Christ Church, Lagos, on April 29th, 1900.

BONNY.

Bonny.

Archdeacon Crowther was ordered in 1899 by the Government doctor to go to Sierra Leone for rest and change, and while there Mrs. Crowther had a severe illness, from which she was mercifully raised up. They returned to Bonny in February, 1900. Much pain and anxiety was occasioned by some members of St. Stephen's congregation, who brought themselves under discipline through observing superstitious ceremonies. At a public meeting held in January, 1901, after plain and pointed statements of Scripture had been quoted, the backsliders acknowledged their sin and asked for the prayers of the Christians. The Archdeacon visited Opobo in March, a distance of about 100 miles by river from Bonny, and there he opened a new chapel built by the Bonny converts, who have trading relations with Opobo. The Rev. J. A. Pratt is the pastor of the congregation at this place. In May, the Archdeacon went to Obonoma for a similar purpose. The chiefs gave him their assurance that the prohibition on church attendance should be publicly removed, and that liberty should be given to the people to attend class meetings for instruction. The church, built of iron and wood, at a cost of £220, contributed by chiefs, adherents, and others, was opened on Sunday, May 20th; 841 persons, including twenty-one chiefs and four Europeans, were present, and six partook of the Holy Communion. On the following day ten inquirers joined a class for instruction. The king and chiefs of Buguma, a neighbouring township, also expressed a wish to erect a church, and undertook to publicly proclaim religious liberty for their people. Again, in July, the Archdeacon was summoned to open a new iron church purchased from England by the chiefs and Christians at Okrika. He wrote:—

New churches opened.

> As at Obonoma, flags were hoisted round the station and churchyard. Before the first bell was rung streams of people, decently dressed, were entering the church; the churchyard was full at the second bell, and during service 1,027 people, including eighteen chiefs and two Europeans, were present to witness the opening. That morning there were eight persons baptized (one male and seven females), and five couples had Church marriage, or their native marriages confirmed at church by the "giving of a ring and receiving the blessing," before the congregation. At the afternoon service there were present 1,042 persons, including seventeen chiefs; and at the close of the service the Lord's Supper was administered to seventeen full Church members, and we verily felt our souls refreshed and strengthened thereby. Delegates were sent from other churches to show their oneness in Christ: from Bonny, six; from Bakana, nine; from Buguma, two; and two visitors from Brass. Collections morning and afternoon, with donations from the two Europeans of £1 each, came to £8 9*s.* 9*d.*

The receipts of the Delta Pastorate Church for the year 1899 amounted to £1,280, and the expenditure to £1,085.

BRASS.

Brass.

At the beginning of 1900 the missionaries on the Brass River, at Brass Tuwon and Brass Nembe, were the Rev. H. Proctor, Miss M. Hamlin, and Miss A. C. H. Squires. The last-named, who had only arrived from home in December, 1899, died on January 10th. Miss S. A. Hopkins and Mr. Salmon, the latter a technical instructor, supported by the Bishop's Diocesan Fund, arrived in January; but Miss Hopkins soon after reaching Brass was seized with blackwater fever, and after a protracted and dangerous illness, necessitating continuous watching night and day, was invalided home in June, and Miss Hamlin had to travel with her. Mr. Proctor left in August to take furlough, and Mr. Salmon was obliged by ill-health to return home in September. Consequently, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson, who had reached the Mission after furlough in May, were the only missionaries at these two stations from September until December, when Miss G. A. Bennett returned, accompanied by Miss M. J. Martin.

Education little valued.

At Brass Tuwon the baptismal and confirmation classes were poorly attended. The school showed an improvement both in the number of pupils and the quality of the work. But education is as yet very little valued by the people. For example, the school fees amounted to nine shillings for each pupil for an education which includes English in its curriculum, yet some of the well-to-do Natives, who spend their money freely on jewellery, &c., begrudge this small payment. The Industrial School had of necessity to be closed after Mr. Salmon sailed for home, though the boys continued to practise what they had learned of carpentry. At Brass Nembe, while the classes were better attended than at Tuwon, the members are nearly all women and children. Much sin openly exists at both places, and polygamy and the laxity with which the marriage tie is regarded are responsible for many grave evils. The creed of too many of the church attendants is thus expressed, according to Mr. Wilson :—

A self-complacent creed.

"I have been baptized, therefore I am a child of God; I do nothing that my country customs acknowledge to be bad; I do not worship Juju; I sometimes come to church; when I die the Church service will be read over me; I shall therefore go to heaven; God is merciful."

Mrs. Wilson relieved many who came with sores to the Mission-house.

ONITSHA AND ASABA.

Onitsha

Onitsha suffered from changes among its staff of European missionaries during the past year almost as much as Brass. The Rev. P. A. Bennett was Acting Secretary of the Mission, and the Rev. E. A. Wise superintending missionary of the station at the beginning of the year; but in April the former left to come home, and the latter went to his heavenly home. The Rev. S. R. Smith, immediately upon his arrival after furlough, assumed the duties of both until he was relieved by the return to the Mission of the Rev. T. J. Dennis in September. Every department of work at the station suffered from the same cause. The following testimony to Mr. Wise's patient and joyful acquiescence in the Divine will in suffering and in death must not go unrecorded. Miss L. M. Maxwell writes:—

Joyful in suffering.

> Mr. Wise, after witnessing through weeks of sickness to the power of God to keep His servants joyful even in suffering, died at Warri. Life was so beautiful to him, and yet he was able to lie still, ready for the Father's will, whatever it might be. And the Father's will was that the joy of which he had tasted on earth should be perfected only above.

Industrial Work—

The obstacles, referred to last year, which hampered the commencement of Industrial Work at Onitsha, were at length overcome, and a promising start was made in carpentering, sawing, and brickmaking; but when Mr. F. J. Mackett left on furlough in October there was no one to take his place. Mr. Mackett reports that the carpenters were able to make panel doors, casement frames and sashes, cupboards, tables, &c.; that the sawyers cut 1,000 square feet of timber per month; and the brickmakers made 13,000 bricks in the same period. The Mission has experienced the benefit of the work, various buildings having been erected, and all the Mission property kept in repair. The training was attended with many difficulties. The pupils had at first no idea of work in the English sense of the word—to cultivate a small piece of ground for a few months, and to spend the rest of the year in drinking, dancing, exchanging visits, and observing heathen ceremonies is the prevailing conception of the claims respectively of work and pleasure. At the time of full moon they are especially trying, playing all night long and then unfit for work for want of sleep. They are unaccustomed to discipline, and find it irksome to be obliged to keep their engagements. Honesty, except for fear of discovery, is a strange quality, and one they are slow to recognize as a thing to be desired. Under the circumstances, the progress made is decidedly encouraging, and it is all the more to be regretted that the work so well begun had to be interrupted. The day's work began and ended with prayer, and some of the pupils were members of the Scripture Union. The Girls' School had a chequered year through the illness of the ladies in charge. Early in the year (1900) Miss E. A. Warner came home, and the Misses E. Dennis and M. H. Holbrook were sent by doctor's orders to Brass, leaving the school under Miss M. Bird, who had only arrived in the Mission a month before. As she says, it was "just a little awkward"; but she managed to attempt teaching arithmetic and singing, and with so much success in the latter subject that on Miss Dennis' return the girls were able to give a concert, and earned £2 for missionary work by means of the charge made for admission. Then in March several of the girls suffered from fever, and one died. In August, Miss Dennis had an attack of influenza, and a few days later Miss Bird was down with typhoid, and both had to come home just as Miss Hornby arrived, followed a few weeks later by Miss Warner. In spite of all these disadvantages, Mr. Dennis says the girls did themselves and their teachers great credit at the end of the year.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work lost Dr. A. E. Clayton in February, 1900, and no doctor was available to supply his place; consequently, Miss Maxwell, who is a qualified nurse but has no doctor's diploma, had to superintend the out-patients, who were more numerous than ever, averaging 300 a week. A small hospital for women, capable of receiving fourteen in-patients, was erected near the ladies' house in the Ozala, and some of the patients proved very hopeful learners of the Gospel teaching. Several of the missionaries assisted in instructing the patients. Miss A. L. Wilson writes of this work:—

"A Teacher Who teaches at night."

My happiest work has been in the hospital. Nowhere do I get such attentive listeners. The patients are not obliged to learn, some of the new-comers sit apart, but one by one they get drawn in and take their part in committing to memory the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments. Not only are they learning to repeat the words, but I believe the Truth is entering into their hearts. One man was baptized a short time ago. The Gospel is a bright reality to him, and he has received it in simple child-like faith. One day when I had finished teaching him he said, "I have a teacher Who teaches me at night." I asked, "Who teaches you in the evening?" He said, "The Holy Spirit comes to me, and I remember all that you have taught me." He is leading a consistent Christian life, and is, we believe, truly taught of the Spirit. We hope when the Bishop comes he will be confirmed. There are others who are a real cheer, and, if not inside, are "not far from the kingdom." Two men are just now leaving the hospital, going to their homes. They know the Gospel story, and I believe the love of the Saviour has touched their hearts.

What a Mission Accountant's work may include.

A great deal of work has necessarily to be done in such a Mission as this for which a layman with business experience may be a very real help. When Mr. J. N. Cheetham received his valedictory instructions from the Committee, he was requested, in view of Mr. F. Webber's approaching return home, to be prepared to be the Accountant of the Mission. He found out, somewhat to his surprise, that this included, in addition to book-keeping, the purchasing of all building materials, the ordering of goods from England, the receiving and consignment of goods at Onitsha, both for the Mission and for individual missionaries. Notwithstanding these distractions to language study, and occasional attacks of fever besides, he managed to make substantial progress, and he expresses his thankfulness for the unexpected privilege of so busy and active a first year in the Mission-field. What, however, gave him most joy was to find so much spiritual work in which he could take part. Christ Church, at the Waterside, was without a pastor, and Mr. Cheetham's help was in request rather frequently to supply the pulpit, and still oftener to play the organ; he also superintended the Sunday-school for a time and conducted reading and arithmetic classes. An English service for Natives of Sierra Leone and Accra was started in August, and appeared to be valued by some of them. This Waterside district has lately grown very much, owing to the river being thrown open to trade. Gin drinking and other concomitant evils are increasingly rife, and it cannot be said that the congregation lifts up a very lofty Christian ideal amidst these surroundings. Miss Holbrook, before she came home (and after that Miss Wilson went two days weekly), spent her days in visiting and holding classes in this district. Of a catechumens' class she expressed her belief that many of the members were truly converted, but their baptism was deferred until they could read. She taught in the school, which has twenty-five girls. One of Miss Holbrook's frequent visitors was an old man named Gideon Ciekwe, of whom a touching account was given in the Annual Report for 1898–99 (pages 78 and 79). Equally touching is Miss Holbrook's story of his last illness and death:—

"I am trusting Him."

In June he was taken very ill, and we could do him no good. He welcomed me eagerly when I visited him, and often told me of the mockery of his heathen friends, and how they told him to sacrifice to the spirits and he would get well. I think it was a great temptation to him, for he was very old, and only just knew about the Saviour, and was still afraid of death; but after a while he seemed to lose some of the fear. One day, when he was very ill, he said to me, "Omenanwata" (he always called me by my native name), "this is death." I said, "No, Gideon, not death but life, if you trust Jesus." He looked up with a smile which was beautiful to see. Another time he said, "I am trusting Him, I am trusting Him." The text which seemed to comfort him most was, "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen, and have the keys of hell and of death." He grew so weak at last that he could scarcely speak, but I believe he had lost all the fear that troubled him at first. He had cut himself off from all his friends by becoming a Christian, so only his dear old wife, Hannah, was with him when he died; but surely that old man went from that little mud hut to be with Christ, to see the King in His beauty.

Generous givers.

The Waterside congregation contributed upwards of £60 towards the salaries of the pastor and another agent connected with the two town congregations, and also helped the town work and that in the out-stations liberally in other respects. The Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam, the pastor of Immanuel Church, complains of the interruption caused to the Sunday services by the noise of drunken revelry made by the Heathen outside. Sunday being generally a free day for those in the employ of the Government and of the trading firms, advantage is taken of it, alas! for dancing and drinking on a large scale. A chief who has charge of the most prominent and important idol in Onitsha attends the Sunday services, and is only prevented by his family and relations from being baptized. Umuaroli Church, in one of the villages of Onitsha, is also under Mr. Anyaegbunam's charge. Miss Maxwell superintended the Sunday-school, and Miss

Sunday revelry.

Wilson took classes of inquirers and children and visited among the women of the congregation. The Christians of Onitsha Town are few in number, and comparatively poor, yet the two congregations contributed £25 towards the salary of their pastor. Ogbunike and Ogidi continue to be occupied, but no progress is observable. Miss Wilson describes a class of inquirers she took in the former town:—

An inquirers' class in a mud hut.

> The "class" is held in a tiny mud hut. One had to stoop to enter. The inquirers consist generally of about four men and as many children, and sometimes one woman. The teacher sits at the end on a raised mud seat, and the people sit anywhere they can; there are always several passers-by standing at the door, and so the seed, the Word of God, is sown.

Obusi.

After the departure of the Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Bennett from Obusi, in April, 1900, Mr. E. Dennis and his sister, Miss F. M. Dennis, were left to carry on the work; the latter, however, was obliged to come home in the autumn. The Christians are erecting a new church, devoting two days a week to the purpose. They are supplying all the timber, but Mr. Dennis thinks some help will be needed towards the roof and fittings. There is a second church at Ugamuma, a village of Obusi, which is attended chiefly by unbaptized people, and the services were conducted during part of the year by volunteer Christian workers. In connexion with the dispensary work classes were held for adults and children. Several adult patients joined the catechumens' class, and were in due time baptized. One of these belonged to the town of Nkpo, where she is the only woman professing faith in Christ. The class of children often numbered nearly a hundred, and they were taught the "Hundred Texts," the Ten Commandments, Bible stories, and hymns.

Notwithstanding that Onitsha has been occupied for upwards of forty years, very little has yet been done to evangelize the Ibo towns and villages situated at a distance exceeding fifteen miles from the river. The undermanned state of the Mission, and the frequent changes consequent on the unhealthiness of the climate, would have rendered it difficult in any case, while the incessant intertribal conflicts made travelling for any distance practically impossible. The latter obstacle, since the British Government accepted the administration of the Niger territory, is being rapidly removed, and the Rev. S. R. Smith, with several native evangelists, was able to make a forward movement to Ogidi early in 1901.

A forward movement.

Asaba.

No European missionary was stationed at Asaba during the past year; the oversight of the work rested on the Rev. J. Spencer, who was assisted by a Sierra Leone and an Ibo schoolmaster, and by native evangelists at each of the three outstations. Mr. Spencer having completed the tenth year in his present charge, institutes a comparison between 1890 and 1900.

Progress in ten years.

In the former year the Christians (all told not more than thirty-six, of whom twelve were communicants) met for worship in the verandah of the dilapidated Mission-house by the riverside; now they worship in a church built by themselves in the centre of the town that is capable of seating 400 people. Many Heathen are always present at the services, and they also listen respectfully to the open-air preaching. Six adults were baptized during the past year. The transfer of political power from the Royal Niger Company to the Colonial Office, and the anticipations of increasing prosperity which appear to have been based thereon, have brought a large influx of Mohammedans and adventurers from the older colonies on the coast to Asaba, which is at present the Government headquarters for Southern Nigeria. Neither of these classes prove helpful to the work of the Mission; the former make and sell charms to the superstitious, and the latter, though many of them are professing Christians, are not of the type to exercise a godly influence over the people.

The out-stations, even more than Asaba itself, afford Mr. Spencer matter for grateful review. Ten years ago the Hinterland was wholly untouched by Christian influence, now three towns have regular Gospel ministrations, and one of them has more baptized Christians and more communicants than Asaba had in 1890. A new church was opened at Ugbolu on March 18th, 1900, and eleven persons were baptized. The converts were challenged by the Heathen to prove their faith by killing and eating a ram, for, according to the superstition of the place, the ram is sacred, and instantaneous death or the cutting off of the nose of the offender is the inevitable penalty the god will inflict on any one killing it and feasting on its flesh. Mr. Spencer adds, after telling the story of his people's hardihood, "I need hardly say that all those who feasted on the ram are still alive, and that their noses are still intact." Last year's Annual Report mentioned the erection of a new church at Akwukwu, capable of seating 200 people. The opening took place on January 15th, 1900. The occasion was one of deep interest both in its retrospective and prospective aspects. Work was commenced at this out-station at the beginning of 1895 amidst great opposition from the Heathen. The first eleven converts and their children were baptized by the Rev. J. Spencer, of Asaba, at the end of 1897. In the course of 1898 a general rising against the Royal Niger Company occurred in the neighbourhood, and the Akwukwu Christians, who would not join in the revolt, had to leave their homes for three months and take refuge on the borders of a forest four miles distant. They returned after the rising was subdued. Then, in the summer of 1899, they decided to pull down their church, which would only hold eighty, and erect one very much larger. The catechist, Mr. Joseph Obimgbo, set the example in manual work, and a building, necessarily narrow, as the roof of leaves requires a high pitch, but 60 feet long and 45 feet from end to end of transepts, was ready by the end of the year. A bell also was provided by friends in St. Silas' Parish, Byker, Newcastle. The late Rev. E. A. Wise and Mr. F. Webber preached at the opening services, at one of which thirty-five were baptized—twenty-four adults, including nine boys old enough to answer for themselves, and eleven children. The two youngest children were objects of special interest. Last year's Report (pages 89, 90) referred to the unsuccessful efforts of Mrs. Spencer to save the lives of some twin children, and mentioned that one of the women who supported her to the utmost of her power became herself the mother of twin girls. This woman was one of the adults, and her twin daughters among the infants, baptized. She received the name of Rachel, and her children were named respectively Mary K'nwakwuluje (i.e., "Let the world talk and go on their way"), and Martha Kaosadolu (i.e., "As God hath determined"), the idea, as Mr. Spencer explains, being this, "Let the world talk what they like, and go their way, yet nothing will happen to the children but what God hath determined." At the afternoon service the first Christian marriages at Akwukwu were celebrated, three couples of those baptized in the morning being united in holy wedlock. The converts at Onitsha-Olona are also making preparations to build a church. The senior wife of one of the leading chiefs—a very bitter opponent of the work—has become a convert and has had to suffer much in consequence. Mr. Spencer says:—

Baptism of twin children.

> This woman, named Onwuegbuzi, has suffered severe persecutions for her faith. Several times she was dragged before the heathen authorities as a woman who had committed an abomination in the land; but, through the interposition of Providence, no bodily harm was done to her. Ultimately the enraged husband broke down her dwelling and drove her away. She is now residing with a relative in another part of the town, and is a faithful follower of the Lord Jesus.

A persecuted convert.

In December, a man of some note in the town decided to give up idolatry. The Rev. G. T. Basden, who was there at the time, thus describes what occurred:—

> There was great rejoicing at this decision. Then began a work of destruction. All began to collect the various objects of worship, medicine-pots, &c., which were in every nook and cranny of the house. What a heap they made! His hunting gods (he was a great hunter, as indicated by the shelf containing a great number of skulls of animals and birds in his courtyard) and his blacksmith's god were taken; and then a small house built on purpose to contain idols was demolished. The things that would burn were then piled in front of his house and beside the main thoroughfare of the town and set on fire. A great crowd gathered and watched in awe and half terror, wondering what vengeance the gods would take.

Demolition of idols.

Mr. Spencer made a fortnight's tour, in company with Mr.

Basden, Mr. E. Dennis, and several converts from the above-named out-stations, in the direction of Benin, reaching a town named Agbo, within forty miles of Benin city. They were the first to preach the Gospel in most of the nineteen towns they visited, and in some of them it was listened to with marked attention. Mr. Spencer was struck with two things: the qualifications possessed by some of the converts for evangelizing their own countrymen; and the "ripeness of the country to receive the messengers of the Prince of Peace."

Ripeness of the country.

Regarding the work at Onitsha and Asaba, the Rev. T. J. Dennis justly says, "The Mission could scarcely be more severely tried than it has been in various ways during the past year, yet the outlook is brighter than it was a year ago."

IV. UPPER NIGERIA.

The Rev. G. P. Bargery and Mr. H. Vischer sailed in November, 1900, to reinforce the Hausaland party, and Mr. A. E. Ball in October for Lokoja, together with the Rev. J. D. Aitken, returning to the Mission. The Rev. A. E. Richardson came home invalided in July, 1900, the Rev. E. F. Wilson-Hill (invalided) in December, and Mr. J. R. Burgin in May, 1901.

Ordination.

At Lagos, on November 4th, on his way back to the Mission, Mr. Aitken was admitted by Bishop Oluwole to Priests' Orders.

LOKOJA.

Lokoja.

The Rev. E. F. Wilson-Hill reported the work at Lokoja, before he left it to come home, to be encouraging in several respects; the attendances at the services and at the classes for baptism and confirmation were good, and the day school had a longer roll of pupils than in the previous year. Some trouble was experienced from members of a Moslem sect from North Africa, known as the El Sanusi sect, who proclaimed that a massacre of Christians would shortly take place. Mr. Wilson-Hill preached twice from the text, "Christ must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet," and this lessened the alarm which some members of the congregation had felt.

BASA COUNTRY.

No European missionary was located at either Akabe or Kpata, the two stations in the Basa country, during the year, though Mr. Wilson-Hill (now at home) visited them from time to time. He writes:—

The Basas.

We are beginning to understand the Basas now, and we find that they are not the peaceful, hard-working people we imagined them to be. Speaking now, with an accurate knowledge of many other tribes, it is my opinion that the Basas are the worst of all, the meanest and most cruel. Yet how pleasing it is to know that God has already used us in bringing some of these people to a knowledge of His Son!

The Rev. Obadiah Thomas, the native clergyman at KPATA, observed a growing indifference on the part of the people. The services and class meetings were attended by very few, though those who did attend appeared to be interested, and the few scholars at the little school became irregular. Mr. Thomas made an itineration to Odagbo in the Basa-Komu country, where he found that the people not only remembered his former visit seven years before but even recalled the substance of his address.

HAUSALAND.

It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report that the pioneer party sent out under the leadership of Bishop Tugwell to seek an opening for making Christ's Gospel known to the people of the Hausa States consisted of the Revs. A. E. Richardson and J. C. D. Ryder, Dr. W. R. S. Miller, Mr. J. R. Burgin, and Mr. Bako, a trusted native agent from Lokoja. Their objective was Kano, and the route selected was to cross the Yoruba country from Lagos to Jebba on the Niger, thence to make for Daba, and to join the caravan route leading from Bida through Guari and Zaria to Kano. They sailed from England in December, left Lagos on January 18th and Jebba on March 1st. They had 270 porters, of whom 142 were Yorubas and the rest Hausas, and for these they had services in both languages on the Sundays. But the daily quarrels between the two sets of men rendered it almost a relief when the Yorubas—excepting three Lagos and four Jebu Ode men—deserted in a body at Wushishi a fortnight after leaving Jebba. The party were specially thankful for this at a later stage, when it became evident that the country they passed through could not have supported so large a caravan. At the stopping places between Jebba and Wushishi the local chiefs were most kind and hospitable, declaring their indebtedness to the white man for the security they enjoyed, and boasting that they were "subjects of the Queen." At Ugu, a day's march beyond Wushishi, their arrival created a panic, and proposals were urged for the whole population to take to flight. The people's fears prevented the party from camping in the town. The probable explanation was that the people were slave-raiders. Guari, which showed signs of having not long ago been a town of very considerable dimensions, they found to contain under 3,000 people. The population of the country generally seemed to be very sparse. Towns and villages are wide apart and mostly small. Along the whole route they met a good deal of traffic. On one day two large parties passed them, one consisting of 140 men carrying loads, all armed; the other was a caravan of nearly 700 donkeys proceeding to Kano. Occasionally at night the party were aroused by the roar of a lion. Dr. Miller's knowledge of Hausa gained at Tripoli proved most useful. He was able to converse freely with kings and others. Zaria was reached on April 6th, and they left it on the 13th, Good Friday. They learned for the first time on reaching this place of the survey party under Colonel Morland (see supra, page 50), sent by General Lugard to explore the Kaduna valley, which party was then encamped only two days' march from Zaria. The Bishop judged that the British advance was regarded favourably by the people. Zaria is a town of from 60,000 to 70,000 inhabitants, and is surrounded by a massive wall in some places forty feet high, and nearly the same thickness at its base. The king was particularly friendly, and the people exceedingly curious in a good-tempered way to watch the strangers and their mode of life. Before they left Zaria the king warned them that they would not have a friendly reception at Kano; and so it proved. Indeed, messengers were sent by the king of Kano to Zaria to stop their approach, but the messengers travelled by a different road from that taken by the Bishop and his party, and consequently the latter reached the city all unconscious of the cold welcome awaiting them. Mr. Richardson describes what occurred when they were summoned before the king on the day after their arrival:—

At Zaria.

The people curious but friendly.

> At once we went to the palace—a splendid specimen of what mud architects can do. The place seemed completely full of curious spectators. We stood in the Judgment Hall, which was thronged with well-dressed men squatting on the floor. Suddenly all the instruments of music burst forth. Very quickly our umbrellas were snatched from us, and we were hurried into the king's audience chamber.
> Our guide motioned us to be seated just inside the door. There at the far end of the room sat the king on a raised daïs covered with a rich red cloth. He wore a black rawani (turban affair) which covered everything but his eyes. The floor was hidden by the throng of chiefs seated in compact rows. Scarcely deigning to salute us, the king turned to Bako and in a gruff voice cried, "Now why have they come?" (We were always compelled to employ an interpreter; kings do not like to talk with you directly.) "Are they soldiers?" "No." "Are they traders?" "No." "Have they come to see the world?" "No." "Then why have they come?" "We are religious teachers—we are Christians, and we have come to ask permission to teach your people." "We have enough teachers of our own," angrily retorted the king. "What will they teach? Will they teach the Koran?" Hardly waiting for a reply he cried in a loud voice, "They must go back—they must go back. I cannot permit them to stay in my town. I salaam them."
> The Bishop begged the king to have patience with us. "We have come from a far-off country. We have been travelling many months, meeting with many difficulties and dangers, and spending much money. And now we have reached this great city you bid us go. What will the world say? All know that we have come here. All will hear the news of our rejection. What will people say? We are peaceful men. We bring glad tidings. We are messengers of God——" "Blasphemy!" cried the king. "Messengers of God? That word settles it. 'You must go away at once." "Let the king hear me," replied the Bishop quietly. "We are not only teachers. We have here a doctor. He will heal your sick——" "We have all the medicine we require by the Koran," blurted out the king. "Let the king appoint men to watch us," went on the Bishop. "Let them stay in our house night and day, let them spy upon us. If we do well, then let us stay; if ill, then punish us. We are your friends." "You are not friends," was the answer. "You cannot stay. Listen. You have entered my city without my consent. Now you must go." "Did not the king receive our letter? Did he not see our messengers?" asked Bishop Tugwell. "Yes, I did receive them and I at once forbade you to enter my town. You have done wrong in coming here before you were bidden. Go!" "Let us remain, if only for a few days," we asked. "How long do you wish to stay?" "As long as the king likes." "No! no! say how long." We suggested a month. "This month or next?" demanded the king, sarcastically. Then suddenly shifting his position, he cried, "Go away from my presence. If you wish to live in my town you must first go to Sokoto and get a written permission from the King of the Moslems" (Sultan of Sokoto). "Very well," replied the Bishop; "let the king send to Sokoto for the permission, meanwhile we will stay here and await the reply." "No; far from it," said the king. "If you want permission, go yourselves and fetch it. But in the meantime you must go. If you like to send your own messenger to Sokoto, go and live at Katsena, Zaria, anywhere, but not here." "You must go."

Reception by the king.

Nothing could be gained by further delay, so we retired amidst approving cries of "Zaki! Zaki!" (i.e. "Lion! Lion!" a kingly salutation), whilst the courtiers, delighted at the king's sternness with us, cried, "God give you long life! God give you long life!"

When they asked the Waziri, who appeared very friendly, why they were treated thus by the king, seeing that Canon Robinson and Mr. W. Wallace had been permitted to stay some time in Kano in 1894–95, he replied that there had been a change of monarchs since then, Belo having been succeeded by Alu. They were hopeful nevertheless that permission to remain would be granted, and accordingly, after returning to Kano, they paid off the donkey men and carriers, except a few Yorubas and Nupes. "We had burnt our ships," wrote the Bishop. On Sunday, April 22nd, the little party partook together of the Holy Communion. The king sent them a present of cowries, rice, and yams as "provisions for their journey," and when the Bishop expostulated that they were not contemplating a journey, as they had come to stay, the king professed to understand that his gift was refused, and sent back the one presented to himself. The misunderstanding was rectified, but the king was firm, and they left Kano on Friday, April 27th, and returned to Zaria. They learned afterwards that the Maaje had been fined for his friendliness to them, while the steward, Dan Kurege, was reported to have been taken to the market-place and "done for," which they feared could only mean "beheaded." "We had burnt our ships."

They approached within sight of Zaria the second time on May 3rd, and sent Mr. Bako forward into the city before they decided upon their course. They wished to know how the situation had been affected, for, since they left Zaria, Colonel Morland with 200 Hausa troops had visited that city from Gierko, a town 34 miles to the south and 250 miles from Lokoja. This town was the prearranged rendezvous of three survey expeditions, which had journeyed respectively along the courses of the Return to Zaria.

Kaduna, the Gurara, and the Kwokwana Rivers (the last viâ Loko on the Binue River). Mr. Bako had an interview with the king, who treated him well, but his report left on their minds the expectation that they would not be suffered to remain in the town. They retired together into the bush, and earnestly prayed God for guidance. Like the king of Kano the king of Zaria insisted that they could not stay in his town without first obtaining permission to do so from the Sultan of Sokoto. He offered to supply them with carriers, and it was arranged that the Bishop and Dr. Miller should make the journey to Sokoto. This enterprise was given up in deference to the counsel of Colonel Lowry Cole, who wrote from Gierko to the Bishop dissuading him from starting for Sokoto before first seeing him. On May 16th, therefore, they left Zaria after a friendly parting interview with the king, who remarked, "You mallams are different from the traders, and different from the soldiers. I know it. I see it." Crowds followed them beyond the city walls crying, "Sai ku dawo"—"Good-bye until you return"; and they turned their feet southward to Gierko.

"Good-bye till you return."

They received the kindest welcome at Gierko from the British officers, but these were soon afterwards summoned away with their whole force by General Lugard in consequence of the depletion of Lokoja of its soldiers to supply the needs of the Gold Coast; before they left, however, Colonel Kemball paid a visit to Zaria, and reminded its king that his province was in the Queen's dominions and that slave-raiding must be discontinued. The king told Mr. Bako, who went to Zaria at the same time, that the missionaries might "sit down" at Gierko, and might build houses if so disposed outside the town. Except for the sad death of Mr. Dudley Ryder, which occurred about this time, and the departure of Mr. Richardson, the outlook appeared to be promising. In the course of June all the three—the Bishop, Dr. Miller, and Mr. Burgin—suffered from fever, and at this time the great kindness of the English officers moved them to the deepest gratitude. The Bishop wrote, "They spare no pains to render us help, and at a time when they are tired with long and trying journeys, in wet weather and heavy rains." As July wore on, their health revived; Dr. Miller was fully occupied with patients at his dispensary, and felt the need of a hospital. In the short services held before patients were treated no resentment was manifested at the references to our Lord and His work; and Hausa services on Sundays were attended by eight or ten people. During August and September the prospect continued to improve; the king himself attended the Sunday services on several occasions, and on one Sunday over forty people were present, and, better still, two or three persons appeared to be sincerely affected towards the Gospel; the chiefs of most of the neighbouring towns sent presents and salutations to the missionaries, and it was hoped after the rains to visit them. The people made no secret of their gladness at their presence among them, as they said it prevented acts of oppression and cruelty. In October Mr. Burgin, accompanied by Mr. Bako, went to fetch the stores that had been left at Wushishi when the porters deserted. The latter returned to Gierko in November, but Mr. Burgin went to Lokoja, which he reached in six days from Wushishi. Then followed repeated messages from the Sultan of Zaria bidding them to leave, ending with an imperative one, and just at the same time, on December 6th, the dispensary was burned down by night, and an attempt was made apparently to burn them out altogether. They judged it necessary to leave Gierko, which they did on January 14th, and reached Loko on the Binue River on February 4th, where they were joined by the Rev. G. P. Bargery and Mr. H. Vischer on February 15th. Dr. W. R. S. Miller thus attempts to sum up the gain and loss of the expedition :— Loko.

I. The Loss. (1) Money.—We cannot hide it that this must be a serious item to the Society, for our journey has been a long and costly one. (2) Life.—We cannot estimate this loss—but shall we balance it all on the debit side? Is a life, even a short one, lived and concentrated on one purpose, and then given up for that purpose, not a gain, and is he not even now aiding us in the work? And our brother Richardson in England, sad as it is to us to lose him, may he not be the means of enlarged interest in England for this work? (3) Time.—One year; and apparently at the end we shall be, in sheer miles, little further on than at the beginning. (4) Hope.—Hope is not lost here: if it is not in England, then we can ignore this. Losses and gains.

II. The Gain. (1) We have met hundreds of people from nearly every town in the Central Soudan and talked with them. Strangers passing down to the west have come and seen a Christian home and heard words of salvation. Men and women and children have come from far and received kindness and love and recovered health, and gone back to their towns to tell the story. The whole people of one little town (about 1,500) won to a real friendship, and very few amongst them who have not heard the Gospel message, and a large number understood it. (2) The Language.—Great advance has been made. I have been able in spare time to translate, revise twice, and test one Gospel and part of the book of Acts, and also to write a fairly full grammar for use of future students, and have been teaching Burgin, who has made good progress. (3) Experience.—We have got to know so much about the people, their history, ways, thoughts, interests, &c., that in future years, if God spare us, the experience will be invaluable. Without any boasting, our name has certainly travelled far and wide all over the West and Central Soudan, and we believe and trust it is associated with the thoughts of love and kindness and future freedom; for a white man in all this land is a symbol of blessing and freedom. The little children love us, and I have nearly always a following of boys; this, of course, I knew would be inevitable—I am incurable in this respect. (4) One Last Gain.—One can only speak of it with trembling, for time must prove, but I believe that three boys, one seventeen years and the others considerably older, have passed over the line and are feebly trusting in Christ; but we must wait and see. The younger is a dear lad; I brought him up here in great sickness, we fed and nursed and drugged him, and now he has become my boy and is a devoted little chap, drinks in the truth, and I really trust is looking to Isa Almasihu (Jesus Christ) as his Saviour.

On hearing of the great kindness met with by the Hausa party from General Lugard, Colonel Lowry Cole, Colonel Kemball, Colonel Morland, and other officers, the Committee instructed the Secretaries to express their gratitude to the Colonial Office.

EASTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and in the following year was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from the freed slaves entrusted to his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and some 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita country in 1883; in the Chagga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima Njaro, in 1885, but the Mission was removed in 1893 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; and at Jilore, in the Giriyama country, in 1890.

When in 1876 a Mission party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Usagara, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Lake were established at Mpwapwa in 1876, at Mamboia in 1879, both in the Usagara hills, and at Nassa, in Usukuma, at the south end of the Lake, in 1888.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with "Eastern Equatorial Africa" as the title of the See, and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th of that year. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of King Mwanga. His successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration, for he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. His successor, the Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two: that portion of the original diocese which falls within the Uganda Protectorate forming the Diocese of Uganda, and the remainder becoming the Diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz. the Diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and on June 29th, 1899, the Rev. W. G. Peel, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in South and Western India, was consecrated Bishop of Mombasa.

The East Africa Protectorate.

THE East Africa Protectorate, according to the report of Mr. Vice-Consul Marsden for the year ending March 31st, 1900, was by that time slowly recovering from the severe distress caused by the drought of 1898, which was followed by famine and small-pox. The revenue was Rs. 482,000, about 7 per cent. more than that of the previous year, and was derived wholly from Customs duties. The effect of the Uganda railway, which at that date had been opened to Naivasha, 362 miles from the coast, was seen in the doubling of the exports from Mombasa, chiefly hides and ivory. The exports were about 18¼ and the imports 66½ lakhs of rupees. Of the latter, 40 per cent. were from India and Burmah, 30 from the United Kingdom, and 10 from Germany. The report stated that the entrance of low class spirits had been checked by the Administration.

Bishop Peel's movements.

Bishop Peel, after his consecration on St. Peter's Day, June 29th, 1899, sailed for East Africa in the following November.

He had only come home from India the previous March, after a spell of eight years of arduous and uninterrupted work. He decided, however, before taking his needed furlough, to pay a preliminary visit to his new diocese and acquaint himself on the spot with some of its problems and needs. During the nine months of his stay he visited all the Mission stations in his diocese at least once. On January 23rd he started by rail for Kikuyu; returning from there he left the railway at Voi and went on foot to Taveta, which he reached on February 3rd. On the 17th he went to Sagalla, where he baptized the first converts of the Taita Mission. The following month he went down the coast to Zanzibar, and, starting up country from Saadani on March 13th, reached Mamboia on the 26th, and Mpwapwa on April 20th. From Mamboia he visited the Berega valley to select a site for a new station, and from Mpwapwa he went into Ugogo. He reached the coast again on May 26th. He paid a second visit to Kikuyu in June, and one to Jilore in July. In September he left for home.

Formation of Native Church Councils.

The Bishop's experience in India in the Secretaryship of the Madras and Bombay Corresponding Committees had made him familiar with the working of the Native Church Councils, and he gladly responded to the Committee's wish that he should at an early date confer with the missionaries on the question of introducing some organization of the kind suitable to the needs of East Africa. This he did, with the result that a scheme, very similar to those in force in the Society's other Missions, was sent home unanimously recommended by the Frere Town Executive Committee, and this scheme the Committee have approved, with a few trifling alterations.

Conference of workers.

A conference of workers, European and Native, was held at Frere Town during the week beginning September 11th, 1900. With the exception of four, all the European missionaries of the coast district and of Taita and Taveta were present, and about 100 Africans, clergy, catechists, readers, school teachers, village elders, and other workers. The Taveta Chronicle, an unpretending little leaflet published by the Mission press at Taveta, gave the following account of the proceedings:—

> The Bishop, having given a short devotional address, announced a list of subjects for discussion later in the day, to which additions were made at the suggestion of some of those present, and on his vacating the chair the proceedings became conversational. At one o'clock, 109 Africans accepted an invitation to dinner, served in Indian style, in the girls' schoolroom, eleven of the Europeans joining them. This took place also on the following day. In the afternoon the chief meeting of the Conference as such was held in the boys' schoolroom. Resolutions were carried in favour of an annual Conference, an annual Choral Festival, a Diocesan Magazine, a Temperance Society, annual "Missions" of a parochial character, and other matters, and there is reason to hope that the gathering together of so many Christian workers of African birth will encourage them in the battle they are called to fight against evil of all kinds. On Wednesday, the 12th, services were held in Frere Town Church at 8 and 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Those officiating included, besides the Bishop, six English and two African clergymen and four African catechists holding the Bishop's license. The Bishop preached on each occasion, on different aspects of the spiritual life, being interpreted into Swahili by the Rev. F. Burt.

Death of Rev. W. Morris.

The Rev. William Morris, formerly of this Mission, died at Malta on November 23rd, 1900. He was trained at Islington College, and laboured in East Africa from 1887 to 1895, when on grounds of health he was transferred to the Egypt Mission. He retired in 1898.

Reinforcements.

The following have reinforced the staff of the Mission:—Mr. Percy Gore Graham, accepted on a special agreement for work as an assistant accountant at Mombasa, and Mrs. Graham; Miss Agnes Mary Austin, of Derby, trained at "The Olives"; Miss Agnes Maud Barnett, of Wolverhampton, trained at "The Willows"; Miss Ada Drake, of Dublin; and Miss Henrietta Georgina Humphrey Malone, a trained hospital nurse of Moy and also trained at "The Olives," a sister of Miss A. K. Malone, of this Mission. Mr. and Mrs. Graham sailed for the Mission in April, 1900, the Misses Austin, Barnett, and Drake in January, 1901, and Miss Malone in March. Miss M. L. Holmes has, to the Committee's regret, resigned her connexion as a missionary of the Society.

I. COAST DISTRICT.

The following left the Mission to take furlough or on medical certificates during the year:—Mrs. J. A. Bailey came home in May, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. L. Hooper, Mrs. J. E. Hamshere, and Mrs. T. S. England in June; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Parker in September; Mrs. K. Pickthall in October; the Rev. T. S. England in November; Miss M. L. Holmes and Miss A. K. Malone in January, 1901; Mr. J. A. Bailey (viâ Uganda and the Nile Valley), and Mr. and Mrs. J. Burness in April; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Smith in May. The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor came home from Egypt in September, 1900. Mr. Taylor is engaged at home in translation work for the Mission. On the other hand, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Vale sailed in August, 1900, to return to the Mission; Mr. E. Luckock in September; Mr. J. Heselwood in December; Mrs. F. Burt and Mrs. J. E. Hamshere in January, 1901; and the Rev. H. K. Binns and Miss E. Lockett in March. The Rev. F. Burt is the Secretary of the Coast and of the Taita and Taveta sections of the Mission.

FRERE TOWN.

Frere Town.

The difficulties and discouragements which the missionaries at Frere Town have met with in recent years have been indicated in the Annual Reports. The sudden changes consequent on Mombasa becoming a port of some consequence, the seat of government, and the starting-point of a railway to the interior, and the rushing thither of men and women of many nationalities from India and Arabia and the hinterland of Africa in response to the demand for labour, could not fail in the first instance to have a disturbing effect on the quiet settlement consisting of freed slaves and their descendants which had been planted on a strip of the mainland just opposite the vortex of the new-born civilization with all its temptations. The Committee were specially thankful, therefore, to receive from Bishop Peel a few weeks before he came home the following encouraging testimony :—

Dangers attending a new civilization.

"Growing improvement."

I shall return to England with a glad heart regarding Frere Town, the place concerning which I had heard so much that was unfavourable, for I maintain, in spite of some still unfriendly, but now unfounded, local criticism, that there is a decided and growing improvement in the whole Settlement. God alone knows fully what you owe to some of your faithful servants, men and women, who have battled here against great odds and much discouragement caused even by fellow-workers; but I, a new-comer, who have for months been accumulating information, stimulated by a sense of my episcopal responsibility, am able to testify that the good fruits of ministerial and other labours are becoming very apparent. Lately I called for a roll of all the unmarried girls in Frere Town who are of an age to be married, and was thankful to discover that out of thirty-five there were only two or three who had grievously erred; these, however, having repented and recovered lost ground. The pastor, his wife, and his grown-up children have the enviable reputation of being without reproach, living blameless lives. God be praised! The pastor in Rabai is a great credit to Frere Town, of which he was a member until he was ordained, his life and learning being well reported of. A layman of Frere Town, now in Zanzibar as a dispenser in the Government hospital, is conducting himself worthily. But, best of all, it is the conviction of those of us who are on the spot that the people of the Settlement have risen higher than they were. Drunkenness is very much less. Immorality has greatly decreased.

Divinity School.

Six men went out from the Divinity School to engage in work after completing their course of training; and one, alas! a student of great promise, was sent back to his station in disgrace, having fallen into sin while at Frere Town. The Masai student from Taveta referred to in last year's Annual Report, whose name is Josiah, went to assist in opening a new station in Kikuyu. The Bishop's Indian experience enabled him to suggest several modifications in the educational branch of the work at Frere Town. Those students in the Divinity School who were preparing to become school teachers, together with some of the existing teachers who needed further training, were formed into a Normal School, of which Mr. E. Luckock took charge after his return in the autumn. It had seven students, the more advanced of whom did most of the teaching in the third standard of a Higher Grade School which was commenced.

Normal School.

A change was also made in the Day Schools. Formerly the boys were taught in one school and the girls and infants in another; now, however, the boys and girls learn together, and the infants are in a separate school. Miss M. L. Mason, who superintends the Mixed School, considers that experience is in favour of the change, though at first she found it somewhat appalling. She says:— A Mixed School.

> The girls, when they heard of the coming change, pretended not to like it at all, and one or two announced their intention of staying away. But they could not keep away, and now they like it very much, and some of them come more regularly than they did before. They were afraid of being behind the boys, and as a matter of fact they are, for the boys have had a great deal more teaching, especially in English, and on the whole they are brighter than the girls, though some of the girls are very bright, and, given the same advantages, would not compare badly with the boys, who at present think themselves vastly superior, and treat with contempt the idea that the girls may some day beat them.

Miss Mason speaks highly of the teacher of the senior class, Isaac Jeremiah, as "a capital teacher, so conscientious and painstaking," and a great help in the management. "A capital teacher." Miss M. C. Brewer found on her return from furlough in February, 1900, that the inmates of the Girls' Home, or dormitory, had increased during her absence by the admission of a number of famine orphans. Famine Orphans. Thirty-eight of these poor creatures were sent down by Mr. J. A. Wray from Kibwezi at the request of Bishop Peel, who had seen their distressed condition on his way up to Kikuyu in January. Three of them died notwithstanding the care that was lavished upon them; and one of these was the little girl mentioned in last year's Report (page 98) whose mother had burned her hands because she had in her hunger stolen a banana. The rest, however, were soon bonny and happy, and became loving and obedient. The girls are taught laundry-work. A class of young women has been affiliated with the World's Y.W.C.A. Miss Brewer also has Bible classes of Wagiriama women, and seven of these, as well as the husbands and sons of some of them, were admitted in July as catechumens. The Boys' Home was under Mr. G. Burns until October, when he was appointed to Shimba, and Mr. B. Laight, who had removed from Mombasa to Frere Town for better opportunities of language study, was then placed in charge. The number of inmates increased from eight to twenty-one, the accessions being famine children from up-country. Mr. Burns says of them:—

> I cannot tell you what a scene they presented; all that hunger and neglect could accomplish were visible on the bodies of those poor children. It was my very painful task to try and train those boys in the ways of truth and honesty; of the former they knew nothing, the latter they had been carefully taught to break. Their whole lives were made up of acts of deception and fraud, from the smallest up. Such is the training of, may I say, millions of the children of this sin-cursed land, where the name of Christ Jesus has hardly, if ever, yet been proclaimed. Truth and honesty unknown.

MOMBASA.

Mombasa.

The famine and subsequent visitation of small-pox in 1899 greatly affected the population of MOMBASA, which now consists of 300 Europeans and Eurasians, 600 Goanese, 70 Parsis, 5,854 Indians, 1,000 Arabs, and 18,476 Africans. From the same causes the Mission statistics show a downward tendency.

Mortality from famine and disease.

The Rev. F. Burt noticed on his return to the Mission at the close of 1899 that nearly one half of a class of "readers" and catechumens had died during his furlough. One woman lost six of her seven children. After Mr. W. E. Parker left in August, the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers took charge of the Boys' School. The pupils belong to two distinct classes, Swahilis and Indians; the latter have more perseverance and ability than the former, but apathy is a trait which is sadly common amongst them all. The attendance is very irregular, and, as there are four forms (though the average attendance is under sixteen) and only one teacher, the difficulties in the way of discipline and progress are very real. The daily teaching of the Word of God does not appear to be seriously objected to, though Mr. Rogers thinks a purely secular school would be preferred by some if one such were opened. The ladies, however, in their Work among Women, find that the influence of the school is perceptible in the boys' homes, and one of them states that the girls in the same homes have a great desire to be taught too. In one house visited, where the father and mother and four daughters were under instruction, the difference between one son who attended the boys' school and his brother who went to a Mohammedan school was marked; both listened attentively, but the second showed a disposition to mock at the sacred truths taught. In another house, however, four boy pupils of a Mohammedan school accepted instruction from Miss Higginbotham together with three girls, and the teacher of the school, so far from objecting, declared that he himself believed Jesus to be the Son of God. Miss Higginbotham took much interest in a number of Washairi Arab women and children, whom she tended when suffering from ulcers and "jiggers." Notwithstanding their passionate enthusiasm for their prophet and the Koran, some of them came to her house and committed to memory the Ten Commandments and a hymn on speaking the truth, and though they objected to the Gospel story as blasphemy they came again and again to be taught. In the Annual Reports for the past two years mention has been made of services held in the house of an Arab lady. This lady, whose name is Fatuma, and her sister made an open confession in the Mohammedan Court during the autumn of 1900 of their having left Mohammedanism and of their intention to become Christians, and they began openly to attend the Mission-hall services and to visit the ladies for instruction. Their secession created a great excitement, and they were told that they had disgraced the place in which they lived, and deserved to die, &c., but these expressions of opinion and veiled threats did not move them. A monthly women's prayer-meeting is, Miss S. Bazett says, a great refreshment to all who attend, and the prayers of some of the old women are strikingly simple and earnest. Miss Bazett took the women's Bible class at Kilindini, and three of the members visited her of their own accord in order to learn to read.

Boys' School.

The constant influx of strangers into Mombasa makes it a specially interesting sphere for Evangelistic Work. Mr. Burt mentions among the encouragements of the year a Beluchi young man seeking baptism; another Beluchi under instruction; a Masai who was also being taught, but got into some trouble and was put in prison, though Mr. Burt believes he was not in fault; and an Indian from Quetta who was an inquirer before he came to Mombasa, reading for baptism. During one of his visits to Jilore, Mr. Burt found instances among the Wanyika of the message which had been heard at the open-air meetings in Mombasa being remembered and thought over.

Mzizima Hospital.

The hospital at MZIZIMA is the scene of frequent prayer. At 7 a.m. one of the native helpers, Frederic Mumba, holds a short service of prayer; at 9 a.m. some of the younger patients join Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards in their family prayers with hymn singing, which is a great attraction; at 5 p.m. there is hymn singing and Scripture teaching in the hospital; and at 8 p.m. evening service is held on the verandah of the men's ward, when a hymn is sung and a chapter read, and all unite in the General Confession, Thanksgiving, and the Lord's Prayer, with additional petitions for particular needs, including for many months of the past year the Christians suffering from persecution in China. The patients learn passages from the Scriptures, and on one occasion repeated the 23rd Psalm without a mistake. A Persian and a Japanese were among the in-patients, of whom the number was 497; the out-patients, including those treated at the Rabai and Taveta dispensaries, numbered 20,000.

Rabai.

The work at RABAI is mainly pastoral, and is sometimes of a very anxious and perplexing character. The Rev. A. G. Smith (now at home) was in charge, and he dwells with sadness on the number of cases which called for the exercise of discipline. A local council appointed by the Bishop sat twice a week for two months inquiring into over fifty cases which occasioned solicitude. It was particularly grievous and disappointing that the affectionate entreaties and fervent prayers of the members of this council failed in some cases to soften those concerned or to draw them from a life of gross sin. In August the Bishop visited Rabai to deal with the erring members of the Church; and the Rev. J. Deimler, who shared the pastoral duties with Mr. Smith, describes what took place:—

Cases of discipline.

An appeal to the erring.

> The Bishop called all Christians to a solemn gathering in church, which was crowded. After an appropriate hymn the Bishop gave an address on the sin of adultery and bigamy, interpreted by me. When the Bishop sat down he asked three of the members of the Church Council to say something on this sin, which they did, proposing also what they thought should be the remedy. The Bishop stood up again and asked those who were guilty of this sin to hold up their hands; then the members of the Bishop's Local Council went through the crowds, picking them out one by one. After another hymn the rest were dismissed, the guilty ones were kept in and dealt with one by one, and nearly all promised to put away this sin. Arrangements were at once made, those having heathen women to be married civilly, baptized ones to have their banns published. The unbaptized husbands and wives form my inquirers' class, which is conducted on Wednesday morning, besides the one on Thursday, which is a baptismal class. Since these arrangements have been made our church attendance is increasing daily.

Twenty-one persons were cut off from Church communion; a large number, but considering the temptations which surround the flock Mr. Deimler expresses thankfulness that so large a proportion of the communicants (510 altogether) have been preserved pure so far as is known. Three adults were baptized. On September 22nd, the Harvest Thanksgiving was observed. Offerings of corn were first collected in baskets by the members of the Church Council, and then the money collection was made. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Miss E. C. Wilde held classes for men and women respectively, and the last-named, assisted for a time by Miss F. T. Austin (who was transferred to Mombasa in the autumn to be a companion, while studying the language, to Miss S. Bazett), treated dispensary patients and a few in-patients in the cottage hospital, commencing every dispensing day with a short bright service. With the help of private friends Miss Wilde received five famine orphans in a small mud-and-wattle house, and it was a joy to her to contrast their happy faces and healthy bodies with the state of emaciation, squalor, and dirt in which they had come to her a year before. That works of benevolence of this kind do not pass unobserved by the people is shown by an incident mentioned by Mr. Smith. He writes:—

Harvest Thanksgiving.

An old woman whose face was heavily seamed by tribal marks (a rough kind of tattoo) was asked by my wife why she thus disfigured her face; the woman replied that the marks were marks of beauty. "But you do not see Europeans mark their faces in this way!" "No," replied the woman; "nevertheless you Europeans have your marks—marks of love, for you feed us when hungry, clothe us when naked, and teach us about God. Others do not treat us like this; even our own people throw us away and leave us to die. Yes, you Europeans have these marks of love by which we know you, even as we are known by our tribal marks."

Missionaries' "tribal marks."

Miss A. J. Madeley conducted the Girls' School, and, for part of the year, the Boys' School also. She was pleased on the whole with both teachers and children, while she asks for prayer that the former may realize more deeply their responsibility to aim at winning the children's souls for the Lord Jesus.

Voluntary evangelists go out on Sundays to preach in surrounding hamlets. At Ganga, one of these, Miss Madeley held a class for women during the early part of the year, and at the beginning of 1901 a trusted catechist went to live there. At Fimboni Mr. Smith baptized three young men at the beginning of 1900, and one of them subsequently entered the Divinity School at Frere Town. Mr. J. Burness was working at CHANGOMBE and the villages around until September, when he went to Jilore. Eleven adults were baptized. Mr. and Mrs. Burness and Miss F. I. Deed held classes for catechumens, confirmation candidates, communicants, &c. The first confirmation at this out-station was held during the year, and eleven were admitted by baptism into the Church. A weekly average of one hundred patients were treated by Miss Deed at the dispensary. Access is thus gained to many people in the surrounding villages. Mr. Burness says the attitude of some of the villages towards the Mission has greatly improved. From being quite indifferent one village now asks for a school and another for a church.

SHIMBA.

Shimba. In November Mr. G. Burns, of the N.S. Wales Association, reoccupied SHIMBA, a place which Bishop Parker selected in 1887 as a station to be occupied for work among the Wadigo, and also as suitable for a sanatorium. It was proposed to form an agricultural settlement there for youths after passing through Frere Town schools, and the Rev. H. K. Binns made a beginning on these lines in the autumn of 1887, but after holding it intermittently for two or three years it was relinquished. Mr. Burns bears the same testimony as did his predecessors to the beauty of the place and the sparsity of the population. The few there are he finds very willing to listen to the Word.

JILORE.

Jilore. The Rev. D. A. L. Hooper had a serious illness in November, 1899, and little hope of his life being spared was at one time entertained, but special prayer was made for him at the Mission stations, and the crisis was safely passed. He was brought home in June, 1900, but his progress towards recovery has been very slow. The work at JILORE was placed temporarily under the charge of Mr. J. Burness, of Rabai, after Mr. Hooper's departure. The Rev. F. Burt visited it three times from Mombasa. On one of these visits, in July, Mr. Burt was accompanied by Bishop Peel. They started from Rabai amid heavy rains, and found the rivers swollen and difficult to cross. During the first two of the five days' march they met with painful evidence of the ravages of the famine and small-pox. Paths "dead," forest clearings left uncultivated, knolls formerly crowded with villages as silent as the grave. But as they proceeded farther into the Giriama country the signs of life and its activities increased, and the Bishop was impressed with the readiness of the people to learn. On July 31st they emerged from the Sosoni forest and were welcomed very cordially by the senior teachers, Paulus and Petro, and other Christians. Though near the coast, Jilore has been little touched outwardly by the march of civilization. Its little lake is the sporting place of hippos; the Sabaki River near at hand is full of crocodiles, and a man was dragged under by one of these creatures and drowned a few days before the Bishop arrived; and its forest is the haunt of lions, no fewer than five persons having been carried off by them from a single hamlet during the preceding few months. The Bishop wrote on the day he arrived:—

A neat and clean hamlet.

Mr. Hooper has given his heart's blood, as it were, for Jilore. Such sowing will end in a very gladsome harvest, we may rest assured. To-day Burt and I walked to a little village not very far away, one of nine in which most hopeful work is going on, one of seven in which are wattle and daub "churches," in which the Heathen assemble at regular intervals to be instructed. The elder of the village we visited is a Christian, who, three years ago, put away two out of his three wives for Christ's sake. Supporting him, out of a hundred or more people in the village, are seven or eight baptized men and women. The elder, Mataio, seems in earnest. May he lead all his people in that neat and clean hamlet to Christ!

A boy who refused to steal.

Twenty persons were confirmed by the Bishop on this visit, among them being the lad mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 106), who refused to steal in the extremity of the famine. The Rev. W. H. Jones was appointed to Jilore and entered on his duties in November, 1900. The Bishop visited Malindi, the ancient city on the coast occupied mainly by Muscat Arabs. Its miles of neglected shambas and general look of decay, as regards the Arab quarters, seem to show that its former prosperity was based upon slavery, and has not survived the limitations imposed by the British Government on the power to enforce labour.

II. TAITA AND TAVETA.

A lay missionary acts as chaplain on a P. & O. steamer.

Mr. R. A. Maynard, of the Victoria Church Missionary Association, sailed from Melbourne in April, 1900, to return to the Mission. An interesting incident marked his voyage. As there was no clergyman on board the P. and O. ss. Victoria on which he travelled, he was invited by the captain to conduct the Sunday services, and on the night before reaching Aden a party of first saloon passengers suddenly appeared on the second saloon deck and presented him with a purse of £10 10*s.* for his Mission, two of them addressing him in warm words of God-speed.

TAITA.

"A year of great events in Taita."

The year under review is described by Mr. J. A. Wray as "a year of great events." He writes: "We cannot but feel that God has been working in our midst very manifestly, for in all the nineteen years that I have been a missionary I have never seen such visible tokens of God's hand upon us in blessing and prospering His work as I see now; never have there been so many open doors of opportunity as there are at the present time." During the early part of the year Mr. Wray was battling with famine and relief work. A camp of 200 strangers was fed and employed in making a road down from Sagalla.

SAGALLA to Voi railway station, a distance of about ten miles. The Bishop, who visited Sagalla in February, 1900, describes Mr. Wray's house as substantially built of stone and lime, with an iron roof, and as standing over 1,400 feet above sea level on the edge of precipitous cliffs. It is on the top of a conical hill where there is only just room for it and the outhouses. This hill, consisting of many acres, was given to the Mission by the Wataita as a token of their gratitude for Mr. Wray's labours among them. It was regarded as a sacred place, because upon it grew the sacred ebony tree under which their tribal conferences were held, and no woman was allowed to go near it. But the people at length joined Mr. Wray in chopping down this tree, and Miss Elliott, of Broadwater Rectory, near Worthing, has raised a considerable sum towards erecting a church by the sale of small articles made from the ebony of this tree, so that a former instrument of superstition is in this way helping to promote the diffusion of Christianity. The services are at present held in the open air, some 200 to 250 coming together to the Mission hill from different parts of the mountain, which is about ten miles in length and two in width. The first-fruits of Mr. Wray's eighteen years' sowing, and that of a few others besides, among the Wataita were gathered during the Bishop's visit; on February 18th, two young men were baptized, receiving the names of Matthew and Mark. On the same day the Harvest Thanksgiving was held. The congregation numbered nearly 500, and all gave as they were able—corn, millet, potatoes, rice, rupees, and fowls. The convert Mark helped in the Sunday-school, which was fairly well attended. In the day school there were forty boys and sixty girls, and help was rendered by a Native Christian from Taveta, who is mainly supported by the Christians of that place. Some sixteen orphans were among the pupils. Mr. Wray had a night school for young men, and Mrs. Wray a weekly women's class, with an average attendance of sixty-five. There was also a weekly prayer-meeting on Saturdays, and Mr. Wray says that all who attended, whether baptized or not, took part in the audible prayers. Some 800 of the Sagalla people have taken up their abode eight miles distant at the bottom of the hill near the Voi River, where they reap better crops than are borne by the rocky soil of their native hills, and a Sunday congregation of over

Visits to the Dabida Hills.

In August, Mr. Wray and Mr. R. A. Maynard, the latter of whom returned to Taita in June, visited the Wataita in the Dabida range of hills, and received a marked welcome from the chiefs and people. The following month the Bishop accompanied them on a second visit. They first went to Mlaleni, and the people there readily undertook to build a house to serve as rest-house, school, &c., and, what is more, they built it at once, and the Bishop and his companions, when they returned two days later, found the house completed. They next went to Mbale and to Kaia, and of their reception in these places the Bishop spoke as follows at the Gleaners' Union anniversary at Exeter Hall on November 1st:—

School built in two days.

> We started about ten o'clock next morning, and said we were going to look round to see whether we could find a good site for a Mission-house. The chief said, "I have chosen a spot for you." We laughed to ourselves when he said that, thinking he could not know what we wanted, but to our surprise he showed us a large stretch of ground on a beautiful hill, well watered, which he said he and his people would give to the Society, so that we might build a house there and dwell in it. Well, we sat down and had a talk—the chief, his followers, Mr. Wray, Mr. Maynard, and myself. Mr. Wray had not been to that place, neither had he been over those mountains for some years, yet I found his influence was extraordinary. When the chief came to him he received him like a brother. Mr. Wray had done many little kindnesses for him and his people, who had gone over to Sagalla to settle any differences that had arisen. We slept in the bosom of the hills that night, and the next morning wound our way to Kaia, which was the place we had been led to determine to visit. There we were similarly honoured. The people saw us coming, and the chief and his son came out to meet us. He greeted Mr. Wray as if he had been greeting his dearest friend. And it was genuine; the old man had almost tears in his eyes. They wanted to know if it were true we were going to allow these "other people" [Roman Catholics] to live there. Mr. Wray then and there gave them a Gospel address, and we put them to the test and said, "Will you build us a house in which we can stay and teach you?" They said, "Yes, we will." The next morning 300 or 400 people went out and cut sticks and grass; and the following day 500 people went out to work, and in the course of two days a house was built!

Eager to welcome teachers.

As a result of this visit it was decided to divide the Taita district and to locate Mr. Maynard at Mbale, Mr. Wray remaining at Sagalla, the latter having also under his charge a place called Kasigau, some twenty miles south of Sagalla, where the people have built a church.

New station at Mbale.

Mr. Maynard went to MBALE, his new station, on September 22nd. On the following day (Sunday), 400 gathered for the morning service; on the next Sunday over 1,100 were present, and the average for the next three months was about 1,140. The testimony regarding this remarkable movement of two brother missionaries from the coast, who visited Mr.

Maynard, may be quoted. Mr. G. Burns went to Mbale in October, and wrote:—

Congregation of 1800.

While there it was my privilege to witness a scene the like of which my eyes have never before looked upon, and which, to be understood, must be seen with one's own eyes. There could not have been less than 1,800 people, all told, gathered on Sunday morning to hear from the lips of Christ's servant the "Words of Life." It is useless to try to describe that scene as it presented itself to my vision. Neither will I attempt to do so, as I might be thought, by those who have never seen anything like it, to exaggerate, which, try how I might, I could not do. Truly Mr. Maynard needs the prayers of all God's people that he may have wisdom and grace given him for the great work that stretches out before him.

And the Rev. J. E. Hamshere, who was there in December, relates what he witnessed on Sunday, December 23rd:—

A grand and solemn sight.

From all around these mountains to this central spur—so admirably selected by the chief himself—I saw long lines of people streaming along and down the narrow paths that led to where the man of God had come to teach them of the Saviour's love. They poured in till fifteen hundred were gathered round before the tents of the missionaries here, and their long "alpenstocks" stuck upright in the ground looked like a miniature wood. It was a grand and to me a solemn sight. They did not know Swahili, but Mr. Maynard is rapidly mastering their dialect. They have been coming like this—and on some Sundays more (up to 1,800)—for some three months now. Surely there is need of prayer for our dear brethren here. These mountains are full of villages; I can see them on every side, and it is estimated that there are some 20,000 people in this district which Mr. Maynard has to superintend. May he be strengthened in every way!

Mr. Maynard writes of his temporal surroundings:—

An ideal spot.

"The water laid on."

This hill is an ideal spot, meeting every requirement. Besides being splendidly central, it is beautifully sheltered, without being shut in, and has the further advantage of having the water laid on, a nice runnel which taps a fine stream a mile away conveying the water down the spur to our doors. During my first week here I built a grass house over my tent, about 30-by 15 feet, the people turning out in large numbers to assist in the work. My tent stands in the centre of the building, and does duty as a bedroom; the room at the back is utilized as bath and store-room, while the front portion is dining and sitting-room, office, &c.

Very encouraging gatherings also assembled at the two out-stations, where the people had erected preaching-places. At both villages some hundreds of the people meet together on Sunday mornings, and, as Mr. Maynard cannot be with them, one of their number instructs the rest as he is able, these native teachers visiting Mr. Maynard to be themselves instructed concerning their message. At Kaia five hundred were present at an early morning service during the first week of the new year, and this notwithstanding the fact that the long grass was wet from rain which had fallen during the previous night. On the same morning, somewhat later, 350 were present at a service at Chawia, a village near to Kaia, and Mr. Maynard was told that many more would have attended if adequate notice had been given. The notice in this case was the firing of a couple of shots from a rifle! Some French Roman Catholic missionaries built a house at Chawia, but it was against the wishes of the people. The chief, on the other hand, offered Mr. Maynard any piece of ground in the whole place he might wish to select for building. The second out-station is at Mlaleni, which is near enough to Mbale for Mr. Maynard to hold a Sunday afternoon service there occasionally; the other places, Kaia and Chawia, can only be visited on week-days.

TAVETA.

Taveta. TAVETA, like Taita, is reached from Voi railway station, from which it is seventy miles distant. At about twenty-five miles from the station, Bura—where there is a French Roman Catholic Mission—is reached. From thence forward the journey is over a scrubby plain without water. When Bishop Peel and the Rev. H. K. Binns visited the station in February, 1900, huge apes were careering about in a wood which the path skirted, and the firing of a gun at a lioness some fifteen miles from Taveta was the first announcement of the Rev. A. R. Steggall's proximity. Mr. A. W. McGregor had two providential escapes from death through snakes and wild beasts. One occurred in October, 1899, when he went to meet Mr. Steggall returning from furlough. He was camped at the time in the midst of the above-mentioned plain, and he writes in his Annual Letter:—

Providential escapes from snakes and wild beasts.

> About ten o'clock I was disturbed by something on my face, and, thinking it was a branch of a tree which had fallen there, I grasped it, when to my horror I discovered it was a snake. However, I whipped it off before it was hardly aware of it, and jumped up. Having got a light, I discovered it on my pillow, a very deadly black snake about four feet in length. Having nothing but an umbrella handy I could not kill it, and it disappeared into its hole under the blankets.

In the following April, he was badly mauled about the hands and feet by a wounded leopard. He was taken to the German fort at Mochi, and remained there three months under the kind care of the military doctor, Dr. Pritzel. He then left Taveta to open a new station in Kikuyu. He writes of the present condition of Mahoo as compared with what it was when he first went there in 1892:—

Once a wilderness, now cultivated and populous.

> What a contrast Mahoo is now from what it was when we went there first of all! Then a dreary wilderness with no population near, now acres and acres of cultivated land, containing all kinds of native foods, besides other products, such as vines, pineapples, mangoes, limes, &c.; a large population, many saved by the Mission from slavery, starvation, &c., now thronging the church Sundays and week-days; and, best of all, many who were then pure Heathen now sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in their right mind. May God abundantly bless those who are left there, both European and Native!

The Bishop confirmed twenty-one candidates, thirteen males and eight females, on February 10th, and on the following day, Sunday, administered the Lord's Supper to thirty-eight communicants. The attendance at the services held in different parts of Taveta is encouraging. One for Masai was commenced during the year at Mahoo, the district where the Mission premises are located. For these Masai several hymns have been translated into their tongue, while there are about 130 hymns now available in Kitaveta. Dr. C. S. Edwards visited Taveta in the autumn to superintend the erection of two houses.

Masai services.

There was no European lady at Taveta from February, 1899, until February, 1900, when Mrs. Verbi and her sister, Miss E. Mayor, resumed the Women's Work. A class of Taveta women has thirty-five members, whose spiritual tone is said to be high and their faith in prayer great. Another class of Masai women averages twenty. The Girls' Schools at Mahoo and at Sela Ndongo cannot aspire to a high educational standard, as the girls are in request for cultivating the fields, &c. At the Sunday-school, however, Miss Mayor can say that the attendance and behaviour are always good. Mr. Verbi devoted some time every day to dispensary work.

Work among Women.

III. KIKUYU.

The Committee have long desired to open work among the Masai and Wakikuyu who inhabit the high ground skirting the Mau plateau. Bishop Tucker, of Uganda, has repeatedly urged their doing so, and every party of missionaries passing through this country en route to and from Uganda has echoed the appeal. The visit of Bishop Peel in January and June, 1900, was for the purpose of prospecting and making preliminary arrangements, and it was subsequently decided to transfer Mr. A. W. McGregor from Taveta to occupy the district. He took possession of Fort Smith, a house formerly occupied by an officer of the Government, close to Nairobi, on October 13th. A month later he wrote:—

Fort Smith.

> The Wakikuyu, This is a delightful place, being at an altitude of about 6,800 feet above sea-level. The opportunities of work here are immense. The Wakikuyu are one of the largest tribes in British East Africa. Around here they are fairly friendly, though they have the character of being treacherous. They work fairly well compared with other East African tribes, but, unfortunately, owing to the many caravans which passed here in the past and the proximity of the Uganda Railway, with its demand for foods of all kinds, the love of the rupee is getting hold of them in a remarkable degree. The work will no doubt require plenty of faith, courage, and perseverance for many years, but in the end we may be assured of an abundant harvest. At present I am hard at work with the language, which, being a Bantu language, I shall not find so difficult. and Masai. Besides the work at Kikuyu I have the oversight of the Masai on my hands. I am getting a fair vocabulary of their language, and with the help of a native teacher from Taveta, named Josiah, who has been sent with me by the Executive Committee, we shall be able to begin work among them almost immediately. There are thousands of this tribe within twenty miles. Their biggest chief lives about sixteen miles from here. I hope to call upon him this week. For years, I feel, we must not be discouraged if we do not see much fruit from them. The lot of the Masai is in many ways a hard one. They have been the terror of East Africa, always on the move, plundering, robbing, and murdering, so that now it seems almost impossible for the present generation to settle down. At present they cannot and will not settle down and cultivate like other tribes, so that in the near future they will either be greatly reduced by chastisement from the Government or, should rinderpest carry off their cattle again, their end will be starvation. Beyond their word for God, "Engai," I cannot find that they have any word for soul or spirit, not even for the spirits of the departed; in fact, they seem to have no idea of a future existence. To them a man is like the beasts that perish. Some idea of the state of their morals may be gathered from the fact that the word we shall be compelled to use for "good" has an obscene sense. In addition to work among the Wakikuyu and the Wamasai, I have also work at Nairobi, a field of itself. As you may be aware, this is the headquarters of the Uganda Railway. A few years ago it was nothing but an open plain inhabited by the wandering Masai; now it is a town with a population of from 600 to 800 Europeans, Eurasians, and Goanese, with a mixed population of Arabs, Indians, and representatives of every tribe in East Africa to the number of eight or ten thousand. Here, if we had a house, classes, services, &c., might be held in Kiswahili, Kimasai, and Kikikuyu. The only reason I can see for the authorities choosing this place for the headquarters of the Uganda Railway is owing to the altitude and to the large extent of open plain for the sidings, &c. The station is a very fine one, and is reported to have cost the Government for the building alone over 70,000 rupees. In addition to being the headquarters, it is also the great repairing place, so that in the near future it will be a still more important place, with a still larger population, both European and Native. From what I have written I think you will be able to realize some of the possibilities of a Mission well manned from Fort Smith. It is a splendid field. May I ask your prayers on our behalf?

No word for soul or spirit.

IV. USAGARA.

The Rev. H. Cole sailed to rejoin the Mission in June, 1900, Dr. E. J. Baxter in September, and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Doulton (who came to England from Australia in June) and Mrs. D. Deekes in October. Together with these last Miss M. A. Ackerman, transferred to Usagara from the Coast district, also left home. The Rev. E. H. Fincher came home in August, travelling viâ South Africa. Mr. J. H. Briggs was married to Miss R. Colsey, of this Mission, at the British Consulate, Zanzibar, on October 27th, and the religious service took place at Mamboia on November 23rd.

The visit of Bishop Peel to Usagara in the spring of 1900 was on many accounts an event of considerable importance as well as interest. It cheered the workers more than words can express to have their Bishop among them, and to join together under his leadership in conference and prayer regarding their work. They had the opportunity of showing him from the tops of their mountains the land waiting to be occupied, and of accompanying him on visits to distant chiefs. The Bishop's party when he left the coast on March 13th included the Bishop Peel's visit to Usagara.

Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Wood and Miss R. Colsey, and a large caravan of porters—at least 160 in all. A broad road, though not metalled, has been made by the Germans from Dar-es-Salaam at the coast to the southern shore of the Victoria Lake, but it was necessary from time to time to deviate from this bara-bara, as the road is called. The first half of the journey to Mamboia is a succession of ascents and descents over hills covered with forest or scrub, and water was very scarce. The latter half is more mountainous, with frequent rivers and long swamps to be crossed, and with sugar-cane, oranges, and mangoes in plenty, and numerous villages. In some places the road was through tall grass, eight or ten feet high, which cut the face "like lemon grass does in India," the Bishop remarked. Mamboia was reached on March 26th. On the return journey Mr. Fincher, who was starting for home on furlough, was the Bishop's only travelling companion from Mamboia to the coast, which they reached on May 26th.

The Bishop reported himself after the exertions of the two months spent in Usagara as in excellent health. He wrote:—

> From Saadani to Mvumi, fifty miles beyond Kisokwe, and back, over plains and hills, up mountains, through rivers, swamps, and forests, often wet through during miles of marching in grass six, eight, ten, and even twelve feet high, sleeping in a tent for at least sixty-six days in the rainy season, and continually on the move until nearly 800 miles had been accomplished on foot, I enjoyed excellent health. No fever, no sickness, no chills, no jiggers did I experience in the tour which lasted ten and a half weeks. You will join with me in praising our God for His goodness, for it was His Hand that kept me. The sojourn with the missionaries was delightful. I must not now write more than that I have left the Usagara-Ugogo Mission very much encouraged, and that the chiefs and their followers are ready and waiting to be taught the Gospel, of which they are, for the most part, entirely ignorant.

Eight hundred miles on foot.

On April 5th, the whole of the Usagara staff then in the field, ten in number, spent the day in conference at Mamboia for the deepening of the spiritual life, commencing with an administration of the Holy Communion at 8 a.m., and the following day was spent in consultation with the Bishop on matters of business.

Conference.

The Rev. D. J. Rees is the Acting Secretary of this section of the Mission.

MAMBOIA.

One effect of the Bishop's visit to Usagara was a redistribution of the staff at Mamboia. Previously there were two stations, the older one about 800 feet up the Mamboia Hill, which has an altitude of 5,000 feet from its base, and the more recent one in the valley, which is some 3,300 feet above the sea-level. It was decided in April, 1900, that the two ladies, Miss R. Colsey and Miss E. R. Spriggs, should continue to reside at the Valley Station, the work there and on the hill being supervised by the Rev. D. J. Rees, who should occupy Berega, and that the Rev. A. N. Wood should occupy Itumba and Mr. D. Deekes Nyangala; and these dispositions were at once carried out.

Mamboia Valley.

The shock caused by the fall of the church in MAMBOIA VALLEY in December, 1899, affected the attendance of the people both at services and school for several months. Moreover, the houses in which the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Rees and the ladies resided were condemned, and they had to betake themselves to Mpwapwa, and then to Mr. Deekes' house on the hill, until a new house was ready for the ladies' occupation in April, by which time also a new church had been erected. The ladies were busily engaged holding school and classes, treating patients, and visiting the women both on the hill and in the valley, and also at some of the neighbouring villages. Three adults were baptized, two of them having been scholars with more or less regularity since 1894, and having had falls and risings again. Miss Colsey (now Mrs. Briggs) says of these:—

An African's prayer for his country.

A slave woman's persistence in attending church.

Yohana Maganga was an occasional scholar at the Hill in 1894, before the Valley work was commenced, and on the opening of that he seemed very promising, being both regular himself and bringing his companions with him, but from time to time he fell away, and though he was the first inquirer to come forward in January, 1896, he has been kept back from baptism until now through various grievous offences. Of late he has given us joy by his consistent life and earnestness, and not long ago at one of our classes he prayed, "O Lord, let Thy Word go abroad over this land like a bird on the wing." May he be used to spread it! Rutu Laoni, a woman of middle age, has been a scholar from the opening of the Valley school in 1894, and after regular attendance and perseverance she is now able to read slowly from a simple book. You will gather she is not brilliant, but as to the truth of her conversion we have no doubt. At first I remember her working in her garden on Sunday before service, and being often absent from school at pombe drinking, and I have met her most hopelessly drunk. Now she has given up the drink entirely, and has so great a regard for the Lord's Day that she refused to travel on it when out buying corn with her mistress, the chief's wife, and one time when the chief was preventing his people from coming to us I said to one, "But how is it Laoni comes?" "Oh, he has beaten her so often, and she insists upon coming, that now he is conquered, and does not interfere with her."

The ladies had the efficient help of Gideoni and Yeremiya, two catechists. Miss Spriggs gives examples of the latter's wisdom in meeting objections:—

A catechist's skill in answering objectors.

On one occasion when visiting with me he had two rather hot arguments with men in the villages we visited. The first was on the drink question. A man declared that Yeremiya feared to drink pombe (native beer) lest the Europeans should find it out. Yeremiya's reply, to show that it was not we but his own conscience which forbade him, was something to this effect. "When you wish to learn to hunt you go to the mganga (or medicine-man) of hunting, and he inoculates you and teaches you, and then sends you away, and you hunt and kill animals. Who kills the animals, you or the mganga?" The desired reply having been given, Yeremiya added, "And just so it is not the Europeans who keep me from taking pombe; they have taught me, and I now refuse it myself." In the next village I had been talking to some women in a house, and came out to find Yeremiya in earnest discussion with a man on the question of his hope of eternal life. The man declared at last that as he had helped to build the preaching-place at the chief's village, and had fetched water, poles, &c., therefore when he died he should be accepted of God. "Look here," said the teacher, "if you are sick you take a present to the medicine-man, and he makes medicine and tells you to drink it. If you do not drink it, would you expect to get well?" "No," was the somewhat reluctant reply. "In the same way," continued Yeremiya, "if you do all these things, build a house for God, and go to the teaching, but do not receive the Word of God, you will not receive eternal life."

Berega.

BEREGA is in a populous valley about nine miles from Mamboia. Soon after Mr. and Mrs. Rees had taken up their abode there, in a tent protected under a grass hut, they were startled in the night by the roaring of two lions in close proximity to their quarters. Much time was necessarily occupied with house-building. The church mentioned in last year's Annual Report as in course of construction was completed, and had an average congregation of ninety on Sunday mornings. Around the place are found not only the Wamegi, but also a number of Wakamba and Wamasai. Mr. Rees was informed that the males among the Wakamba understood Kimegi and the females Swahili in addition to their own vernacular, a fact (if it prove to be a fact) which, however it may be explained, will prove convenient to the evangelists. At Chipera, a village in the Berega Valley, some sixteen miles from Mamboia, the six chiefs of the neighbourhood with their people have built a large and strong church, 45 feet long by 15 feet broad and 18 feet high, the grass for the roof having had to be carried several miles. On the occasion of the Bishop's visit lantern views illustrating the Pilgrim's Progress were exhibited before a large audience in this building, Mr. Wood giving the lecture in Kimegi. At the same time a site for a missionary's residence was selected at Mgugu, another village in the same valley under a chief called Kilongolo, "a most intelligent, friendly, and nice-mannered man." The Bishop wrote, "We shall only have to say the word, and each chief will put up a preaching-place in his village or near it."

A singular distribution of linguistic know ledge.

Chiefs ready to build preaching places.

Nyangala.

Mr. D. Deekes is located at NYANGALA, where he has built a stone house. He was joined by Mrs. Deekes in November. The Bishop says of the site selected:—

> I was charmed with it—such views all round, and huge mountains filling up a background, to the south-west and west, which was rendered the more effective by the wide and deep valleys of hill succeeding hill in the foreground. Water is good and plentiful.

The chief of this village, Manya, has built a church, in which nearly one hundred men, women, and children gathered for worship on Sunday, April 8th, when the Bishop was present.

Mwando, the chief of Mahundiki, a village between Nyangala and Mamboia, has also erected a church.

The last of the four stations is ITUMBA, under the heights of Punello Mountain. In March the Bishop and Messrs. Rees, Wood, and Deekes scaled Punello in order to judge from its summit as to the number and accessibility of the tembes (villages). On the summit, Mr. Wood mentions, they "sang the Doxology in English and the Gloria in Swahili, thus taking possession of the land by faith in the name of the Sacred Trinity." Mr. and Mrs. Wood took up their abode on the Itumba Mountain in April on a site central to a number of villages. He wrote in November :—

"Taking possession of the land."

The people are great agriculturists, and often have food to sell when there is famine all around. The soil is very productive and well watered. It is too cold for the millet or dhurra to grow to perfection. The altitude is from four to seven thousand feet above sea level. Maize is the principal grain grown; beans, marrows, and potatoes the principal vegetables; and bananas the fruit. Spiritually the people are very low. They have no desire to be taught about God or a hereafter, but nevertheless come to worship on Sunday, which they call "dancing to God" ("kumuvinila Mulungu"). The numbers vary, generally from two to three hundred. They used to bring their pipes, snuff-boxes, &c., and sit and smoke, chew, and spit. I have gradually got them to leave off these things during service, but they often have to be called to order for laughing or talking. They are beginning to observe Sunday as a day of rest.

"Very low spiritually."

In itinerating Mr. Wood found lantern pictures a great attraction. At Mulale a fetish recently put up to keep away lions afforded him a text. He says :—

A fetish to keep away lions.

I asked the chief, named Baba Gayoni, about it. He said that owing to the lions having killed several people he called a medicine-man from Nyangala, named Chiduwo, and gave him a cow, five goats, a hoe, and four yards of calico to put up this charm. It is made of red clay, shaped to resemble a woman. Two cowrie shells are put in for eyes, and an oblong hole is made to represent a mouth. No attempt is made at teeth, the ears are distended but not pierced; the forehead and crown of the head is made of brown mud, the nose is aquiline; its arms are extended and consist of bent pieces of stick, plastered over with red mud. Its hands are large, and cover medicine which is placed underneath. Medicine is also placed in the stomach, and is supposed to influence a serpent, which will go whichever way the lion is coming and will kill it. Its name is Nemganganelugendo, which means, "The little travelling medicine-woman." It is surrounded by a fence to protect it from the cows and goats. "If it needs protection from these harmless creatures," I said, "how can it influence a lion?" They were amused at the idea. "Would it not be washed away when it rains?" I asked. "We had not thought of that," was the reply. I told them they had thrown their money away, and exhorted them to put their trust in God, the Great Shepherd and Protector, and forsake these vain superstitions.

"We had not thought of that."

MPWAPWA.

To Mpwapwa from Mamboia the distance is fifty-five miles. The march leads through a locality which is infested with man-eating leopards, and where in the defiles of the mountains many straggling porters of passing caravans have been victims of their voracity.

Danger from man-eating leopards.

Mpwapwa

The Rev. H. Cole, on his return in July, was stationed at MPWAPWA, where some two hundred people, he says, reside within the Mission enclosure; "but," he adds, "it is one thing to be in the fold and another thing to be of it." He found that just before his return five baptized Christians and three catechumens at Kisokwe, his former station, had fallen into sin; of some of these high hopes of their future usefulness in Christ's service had been entertained. At Kimugaye, a place nine miles from Mpwapwa, the Bishop met the three chiefs of the district, who all agreed to build at their own expense a building to serve as a church and school and a teacher's house. The people belong to the Wahehe tribe, the Ruga-Ruga of former days, kidnappers and robbers, but they are now kept in order by the German administration.

The Ruga-Ruga of former days welcome teachers.

Mvumi.

MVUMI, fifty miles from Mpwapwa, in the Ugogo country, was occupied during the year by Mr. J. H. Briggs. It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report that he had made an itinerating journey into Ugogo in 1899. In February, 1900, he went again, and especially visited Mvumi to ascertain the views of the chiefs on the question of his settling amongst them. A large piece of ground was promised for the erection of Mission buildings. He spent a week there, and arranged that teachers should be sent from Mpwapwa for a month at a time to open a school. The Bishop visited Mvumi in April.

UGANDA MISSION.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the traveller Stanley of the readiness of Mtesa, King of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party proceeded accordingly to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill were killed; and later several others, including Bishop Parker in 1898, died before reaching the country. The Mission, however, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877, and this notwithstanding tremendous difficulties. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa, who died in 1884, was succeeded by Mwanga, and the new king was led, in 1885, to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on October 31st of that year. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country, and a period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and the missionaries returned with him. In the same year King Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate. In the summer of 1897 Mwanga fled from the capital, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. In September of the same year a serious mutiny of the Soudanese troops broke out; several European officers were seized and murdered, and one of the missionaries, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891; Toro was occupied in 1896; and Bunyoro in 1899.

In 1897 the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate being formed into the Diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the Diocese of Mombasa.

Uganda—the Protectorate, and the Kingdom.

THE Uganda Mission and the Uganda Diocese are co-extensive with the Uganda Protectorate, which includes not only the Kingdom of Uganda, but also the neighbouring countries of Kavirondo, Busoga, Bunyoro, Toro, and Nkole. It is bounded on the east by the British East Africa Protectorate, on the south by German East Africa, on the west by the Congo Free State, while on the north the boundaries between it and the Equatorial Provinces of Egypt and Great Britain have not been exactly defined. The boundary of Uganda proper—i.e., of the Kingdom of Uganda—follows the course of the Nile from where it issues out of the Victoria Nyanza, through Lake Chioga to Mruli, up the Kafu River and down the Nkusi River to the Albert Nyanza, it proceeds in a south-westerly direction along the coast of that Lake, then it follows the course of various rivers to a small lake named Kachira, whence it trends south-east to the Anglo-German frontier on the west of Victoria Nyanza. The Sese Archipelago and other islands in the north-west portion of the lake are also included in the Kingdom.

New treaty with regents and chiefs of Uganda.

Sir H. H. Johnston, His Majesty's Special Commissioner, concluded a treaty in March, 1900, with the regents and chiefs of Uganda relative to the government of the Kingdom. The child-king who has succeeded to the throne of Mtesa and Mwanga is recognized as native ruler under British protection, and he is to be styled henceforth "His Highness the Kabaka of Uganda." On his death his successor is to be chosen by the Native Council from the royal family of the country, the choice being subject to the approval of the British Government. The Kingdom is divided into twenty counties or sadzas, over each of which is placed a chief (Abamasadza), to whom the task of administering justice, collecting taxes, upkeep of main roads, and the general supervision of native affairs is entrusted.

"Native Council."

These chiefs are ex-officio members of the Lukiko, or Native Council, and each may appoint a lieutenant to attend the meetings in his absence and to speak and vote in his name. The Kabaka (king) selects three notables from each county and six others to serve during his pleasure on the Lukiko. In making these appointments, "no question of religious opinions shall be taken into consideration" by the Kabaka, who shall "use his judgment and abide by the advice of H.M. Representative, assuring in this manner a fair proportionate representation of all recognized expressions of religious beliefs prevailing in Uganda." The Katikiro (Prime Minister), or in his absence one of the other Ministers, presides over the meetings of the Lukiko. Before giving effect to the resolutions adopted by the Lukiko, the Kabaka must consult H.M. Representative; the decisions also of the Lukiko as a Court of Appeal from the Courts of the County Chiefs must be countersigned by H.M. Representative before they are final. Cases in which other than Natives of the province are concerned must be subject to British Courts of Justice only.

Imposition of a hut tax.

A hut tax on every house of three rupees per annum was also agreed upon. Regarding the collection of this tax, the following particulars from an article in Mengo Notes are interesting:—

> So far as the general public is concerned the most important point in the treaty was that a hut tax should be imposed of Rs. 3, and this is now being collected. The effect has been very marked throughout the country. Grumbling we have heard none of; the Baganda do not grumble. They were told by the chiefs that they had to raise Rs. 3 by Christmas, and they forthwith set to in most cases to try to do so. Thus, where before labour was not easy to get, for some months now men have been crowding round asking for work, for loads to carry, and bringing all kinds of things for sale. Others not likeminded, unenlightened countrymen, tried other methods: a few we heard of (not mere hearsay) actually reverted to an old custom and pawned their children for a year or two. . . . The Commissioner offered to remit the tax on 1,000 huts for every young elephant brought in alive; that is,

Rs. 3,000, or £200. For every live young zebra, on twenty houses, i.e. £4; for a tame zebra, thirty hut taxes or £6. For every live pig, one hut tax or Rs. 3. For every hippopotamus, 100 hut taxes or £20. In a few days after the receipt of this news (news spreads in Uganda in a marvellous way), the capital and the country seat of government at Entebe seemed likely to become a sort of menagerie.

The Kabaka during his minority receives £650, and will receive £1,500 subsequently; the Ministers £300 each, with £100 each extra to the Regents; the County Chiefs £200 each; the present Namasole, or Queen-Mother, £50 during her lifetime. The treaty also dealt with the land and its distribution, as follows:— Redistribution of the land.

	Sq. miles
Forests to be controlled by the Uganda Administration	1,500
Waste land to be vested in H.M. Government and controlled by the Uganda Administration	9,000
Plantations and other private property of the Kabaka	350
Plantations and other private property of the Namasole	16
Plantations and other private property of former Namasole	10
Among four princes	32
Among princesses and other royalties	90
To the twenty Chiefs of counties, each 8 square miles (private property), and 8 square miles (official estate)	320
To the three Ministers, each 16 square miles (private property), and 16 square miles (official estate)	96
To the Mbogo (Mohammedan chief) and his adherents	24
To Kamswaga, Chief of Koki	20
To other chiefs and private landowners	8,000
To the three Missionary Societies in existence in Uganda as private property and in trust for the Native Churches	92
Land taken up for Government stations	50
	19,600

Regarding the ninty-two square miles to be placed in trust by the terms of the treaty as "Church Property," and divided between the two Roman Catholic Missions (French and English) and the C.M.S., Bishop Tucker wrote in September:— Church property.

You will be interested in hearing that this land will give us something like 1,000 sites for churches and gardens for the support of the clergy and teachers in charge. These 1,000 sites are of course scattered all over the country and will bring us in touch with the whole nation. At populous centres larger sites have been selected and sufficient land to support both clergy and teachers.

For a time the work of the Mission was considerably interrupted by these important changes, as the following from Mengo Notes shows:—

The marking-off of church sites has meant a great deal of work and travelling about by missionaries in charge of stations and their native teachers, and a forced neglect of teaching; but it had to be done, and done quickly. Then it has meant a great deal of work for the chiefs and their followers, and a consequent interference with their attendance at classes and church on week-days, and indeed for three months it was quite a break-up of the work. Now we are settled down again and things are going on much as Marking-out of church sites.

before, and on the whole we have nothing to complain of in looking over the results of the year's work. One department, however, has suffered, and that is book sales. Firstly, many people positively had not the money to buy them, and could not get it whilst trying to raise the hut tax; and secondly, the inability to attend classes naturally diminished the demand for books. This will right itself as soon as the tax is collected, but meanwhile the year's receipts must show a great falling off.

It will naturally take some time to apply the terms of the treaty in their integrity, and the transition period must be more or less a trying one to all concerned. The registration of titles to land is always a troublesome and lengthy operation, and the collection of taxes on any impartial system could not fail to give some trouble and cause some inconvenience. The revenue is reported, in an article contributed to the Times of February 14th, 1901, to exceed already £40,000.

Revenue.

Mourning for Queen Victoria.

The day of Queen Victoria's funeral was observed throughout Uganda with profound mourning. Memorial services were held by Bishop Tucker in the large church on Namirembe. Judge Collinson represented the absent Special Commissioner, and Lieutenant Keen represented the Uganda Rifles. There was a large gathering of Baganda, and the scene was deeply impressive. At Port Alice a memorial service was conducted by the Rev. E. Millar. Colonel Coles, Commandant of the Uganda Rifles, and the heads of all departments formed a procession, together with 10,000 native mourners, from the court-house to the public square, where an open-air service was held with military honours. Subsequently all the chiefs called at the Collectorate and took the oath of loyalty to His Majesty King Edward VII. All offices and shops of all nationalities, including those of Arabs and Indians as well as Europeans, were closed.

A Government steamer on the lake.

A steamer, the William Mackinnon, which was designed at the request of the late Sir William Mackinnon, and taken over by the Government after the declaration of the Uganda Protectorate, was floated on the Victoria Nyanza on November 15th, 1900. It took from 1895 to 1899 to convey the various sections and parts up from the coast, a task which was at length effected by the Uganda Railway transport. This vessel is capable of carrying 200 men.

Uganda Railway.

By October 30th, 1900, the Uganda Railway had reached to 452 miles from the coast, and the advanced gangs were working up to the 490th mile. The total length will be 550 miles. The original survey contemplated the line taking the route adopted by all previous travellers since Joseph Thomson and Bishop Hannington, which made a detour northward to avoid the Wanandi, one of the fiercest of the tribes occupying the mountainous and densely wooded country to the east of the Victoria Nyanza. The unexpectedly heavy cost of the railway led to explorations and the discovery of the Nyando Valley route, which was followed by Sclater's road and by the telegraph wires, and is being followed by the railway, considerably reducing the length. But the Wanandi, resenting the intrusion of the white man so near to his native hills, resisted, and an expedition, under Colonel Ternan, was led into his country in 1897. The Soudanese mutiny obliged Colonel Ternan to leave his task unfinished, with the consequence that caravans have been harassed, the telegraph wires repeatedly destroyed, and a mail which left Mengo on July 9th, 1900, was almost totally lost. Captain Hornby (see supra, page 53) and subsequently Colonel Evatt led punitive expeditions into the country in the autumn of 1900, and the Wanandi at length sued for peace. It is an interesting fact that, while the communications with the coast were rendered precarious and were for a time actually interrupted, dispatches from one of the Society's missionaries in Uganda, or at least in Bunyoro, reached England viâ Fort Berkeley, Omdurman, and Cairo, and arrived in a much shorter time than they would have taken by the usual route.

Expedition against the Wanandi.

Dispatches viâ the Nile.

In the "Preliminary Report by His Majesty's Special Commissioner on the Protectorate of Uganda," which was issued as a Parliamentary Paper in July, 1900, Sir Harry Johnston expressed in the following words his views regarding the results of missionary work :—

> Amongst the naked Nilotic negroes of the eastern half of the Protectorate, missionary propaganda seems at the present time absolutely impossible. These peoples take absolutely no interest in religion or in any subject which is not of a purely material nature. On the other hand, the Bantu-speaking Natives are well inclined to religious inquiry; and the rapid spread of Christianity over the kingdom of Uganda and the district of Toro is one of the greatest triumphs to which the advocates of Christian propaganda can point. It must not be imagined, of course, that the Baganda or Batoro have none of the old Adam in their composition since they accepted Christianity; but, undoubtedly, their intelligence is quickened, their ideas are enlarged—to a very notable extent—and their harmful old superstitions are swept away by their acceptance of the new faith. The difference between the Uganda of 1900 and the blood-stained, harassed, barbarous days of Mtesa and his son Mwanga, is really extraordinary; and the larger share in this movement is undoubtedly due to the teaching of Anglican and Roman Catholic missionaries.

Special Commissioner on missionary work.

"The difference is really extraordinary."

The Government recognized the help rendered by the missionary body during the perils of the Soudanese mutiny by conferring upon such of them as were then in the country—thirty-two in all of the C.M.S., including seven ladies—a medal, bearing a figure of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria on the one side and on the other a figure of Britannia, with "East and Central Africa" underneath.

Confirmations.

middle of January, 1900. Again, in April, he made a confirmation tour, first to Mitiana and then to Jungo to the south of Mengo, in the Province of Busiro; and from there to the islands of Busi, Bubembi, Bukasa, and Kome, on the Victoria Nyanza. In June he was at Nakanonyi, July in Bulemezi, August in Busoga and South Kyagwe, October in Budu and Koki, December in Singo and Toro, February, 1901, in Bulemezi and South Kyagwe and at Gayaza and Jungo. For the year ending September 30th, 1900, the total number of confirmees was 2,233. In 1898 the total was 1,486, and in 1899 it was 1,980. Between September 30th and the date of his leaving Uganda in March to come home, the Bishop confirmed 1,353. He reached this country in May.

Ordinations.

The following were the ordinations of the year:—On June 10th, 1900, Trinity Sunday, at Mengo, Messrs. Yosiya Kizito, Yoeri Wamala, and Aloni Muyinda were admitted to Deacons' Orders, and the Revs. A. B. Fisher, G. H. Casson, Samwili Kamwakaba, and Ediwedi Bakayana to Priests' Orders; on July 1st the Rev. J. W. Purser to Priests' Orders; on St. Thomas' Day, December 21st, at Kabarole, in Toro, Apolo Kivebulaya to Deacons' Orders; and on St. Paul's Day, January 25th, 1901, at Mengo, Messrs. R. H. Leakey, Andereya Batulabude, and Mikaeli Bagenda to Deacons' Orders, and the Revs. S. Aliwonya, Z. Buligwanga, S. Kibuka, T. Semfuma, N. Nakiwafu, and A. Nkangali to Priests' Orders.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out to the Mission during the year consisted of the following:—The Rev. Herbert Thomas Candy Weatherhead, B.A., of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and late Curate of St. John's, Upper Holloway, a son of the late Rev. T. K. Weatherhead, formerly—from 1860 to 1878—of the Western India Mission, and a brother of the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead, of this Mission; the Rev. John Jamieson Willis, M.A., of Pembroke College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, and late Curate of Great Yarmouth; Mr. Alexander Gordon Fraser, B.A., Trinity College, Oxford, late Travelling Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union; Mr. Ernest Cyril Davies, an engineer, who received some training in Divinity at Islington College, and in medicine at Livingstone College, a son of the late Rev. Uriah Davies, Vicar of St. Matthew's, Essex Road, Islington; Mr. Archie William Kemp, of Plumstead, a skilled artisan and "Shortcourse" Islington man; and Mr. Charles John Phillips, late a clerk in the Church Missionary House, engaged as an accountant and business agent. The above—except Mr. Fraser, who started a week later and caught the others up at Marseilles—sailed on August 30th, 1900, together with the Rev. and Mrs. F. Rowling, the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, Mr. T. B. Fletcher, and Mr. H. B. Lewin, returning to the Mission. They were delayed for some time at Lake Naivasha, owing to the operations against the Wanandi referred to above, and did not reach Mengo until December 18th. A party of missionaries coming home on furlough were detained three weeks at Mumia's owing to the same cause. These were Mr. A. Wilson, Miss E. M. Furley, Miss G. E. Bird, Miss E. L. Pilgrim, and Miss M. S. Thomsett. They reached England in August. The party which sailed in January, 1900, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lloyd and the Misses A. E. Allen, A. B. Glass, R. Hurditch, and A. H. Robinson, reached Mengo on March 31st. They left Mombasa by train on February 23rd, and on the 28th they mounted their bicycles at Fort Smith in Kikuyu.

Death of Rev. Martin J. Hall.

The Mission suffered a great loss by the death of the Rev. Martin John Hall by drowning in the Victoria Nyanza on August 15th, 1900. Mr. Martin Hall was a graduate of St. John's College, Cambridge, and before he offered for service in Uganda he had done excellent and fruitful work for the missionary cause in connexion with the Children's Special Service Mission, as a Visitor of the branches of the Gleaners' Union, and as a "Missioner," in company with the Rev. E. N. Thwaites, in India. He was a member of the party which included the first band of lady missionaries sent to Uganda in 1895, most of whom came home on their first furlough in 1900, as mentioned above. His spheres of work in Uganda were, first Ngogwe, then on the Sese Islands, where for over two years he was without a colleague, then in Koki, and lastly in Mengo, where he took the Divinity Class on Archdeacon Walker coming home. Learning that Nassa, at the south of the Victoria Lake, was undermanned, he volunteered to go and spend his holidays there, and it was on the return journey that his death took place. He had crossed the lake in a new boat which his friends had sent out to assist his visiting the islands. This was a canvas sailing boat, built in sections, known as a Berthon boat. In a private letter he wrote respecting it just before he started from Uganda:—

"Heaven seems nearer to the Equator."

> Should the Grace (as I propose to call her) fall upon the same fate as Dr. Paton's Dayspring I hope that I may be in her, for I can conceive of no more appropriate way for me (always three parts a sailor) to be translated to my "desired haven" than in a boat. . . . Somehow heaven seems nearer to the Equator than to other places—like the sun—and one has come to think as naturally of going to the one as of looking at the other.

His aspiration was realized. On August 9th, he and his two Baganda boys and two Basese boatmen left Nassa. The account of the sad event, as received from the boatmen who survived, is thus given by Mr. C. W. Hattersley:—

> All went well until the 15th. At daybreak they left camp at Majita (three or four days' canoe-journey from Nassa), and a terrific storm came on, with terrible waves, and the first three sections of the boat filled with water. The men baled out as hard as possible with bucket and saucepans, but to no purpose. Finally, Mr. Hall took up his tent and table to throw overboard to lighten the boat, and apparently the doing this capsized it. The five occupants climbed up and sat on the keel of the upturned boat for some time, but the wind and the force of the waves probably broke the air-tight compartments, for the boat sank. The two Basese managed to cling to the floating table. One boy sank almost at once, and very soon Mr. Hall, who, being a strong swimmer, was trying to undress, sank too. He was carried some one hundred yards from the men by the force of the wind. His hat and coat came to the surface as he sank. Next the other boy sank. At noon the storm abated, and a canoe put off and rescued the two Basese.

His body was discovered three days later, and buried at a place called Shirati, on the shores of Speke Gulf. "Thus," as Dr. A. R. Cook writes, "one more grave has been added to the many on the southern coastland, silently holding the land in pledge 'till He come.'"

Death of Mrs. P. O'Flaherty.

Mrs. O'Flaherty, widow of the Rev. P. O'Flaherty, who laboured in Uganda from 1880 to 1885, died in February, 1901.

When the Secretary of the Mission, the Ven. Archdeacon Walker, was invalided home in June, 1900, the Rev. J. Roscoe was appointed Acting Secretary, and the latter, on being ordered home, was succeeded by the Rev. E. Millar.

I. UGANDA.

Archdeacon R. H. Walker and the Rev. T. R. Buckley came home in June, 1900; the Misses E. M. Furley, M. S. Thomsett, G. E. Bird, and E. L. Pilgrim in August; and the Rev. J. Roscoe in April, 1901. Of the two parties of recruits who reached the Mission in March, 1900, Miss Allen, Miss Robinson, and Miss Glass were located to the kingdom of Uganda; and, as already mentioned, the Rev. and Mrs. F. Rowling, the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, Mr. T. B. Fletcher, and Mr. H. B. Lewin sailed in August, 1900, and reached the Mission in December. Dr. A. R. Cook was married to Miss K. Timpson, of this Mission, by Bishop Tucker, at Mengo, on March 20th, 1900; and Mr. A. G. Fraser was married to Miss A. B. Glass, of this Mission, also at Mengo, on January 10th, 1901.

Literary work.

The Rev. W. A. Crabtree, who continued to reside for the greater part of the year under review at Gayaza (see below, page 140), did some valuable literary work. He prepared a Luganda Grammar and Vocabulary, which have been received in MS. at home, and which the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge has undertaken to print and publish. He has in hand a revision of the Luganda Prayer-book, and of the Thirty-Nine Articles; also a polyglot vocabulary, the object of which is to assist missionaries who know Luganda, and Baganda teachers, to acquire any of the other leading languages used in this Mission.

PROVINCES OF KYADONDO AND BUSIRO.

Mengo.

The general appearance of MENGO, the capital of Uganda, has probably changed much less than is generally supposed since the days when it was visited by Speke in 1862, and by Stanley in 1875. One of the ladies who arrived in March, 1900, thus described the town as seen from the verandah of her house on Namirembe Hill:—

Description of the capital.

The town just looks like an enormous banana-grove. All the houses, except those of the Europeans and the Prime Minister, are little conical reed huts, and the banana trees, with their huge broad fronds, quite cover both them and the brown, parched ground also, so that, as one looks over the tree-tops, the place is a beautiful stretch of greenery, though when down on the ground one sighs for a blade of grass. The town is built on a number of hills, like Rome, I suppose. Mengo is only the name of the king's hill, with his house crowning it. Then the Roman Catholics have a hill all to themselves, and the Anglicans a hill to themselves. Ours is called Namirembe, and on the very top is the cathedral, surrounded by the school-houses for adults, children, women, and ordination candidates, and on the slopes the missionaries' houses and the hospital. The Bishop's house is on the top of another hill, and the Archdeacon's is on its slope. Over the valley lies Bulange, the Industrial Mission hill, and to our extreme left Kampala, the European fort. Swamps and malaria have their home chiefly in the hollows.

A reminder,

But, while the outward aspect has altered little, the change beneath the surface, in the habits, the character, and the homes of many of the people, has been truly remarkable. For example, the same lady mentions that on a Sunday soon after her arrival a Native Christian woman who knelt by her side at the Holy Communion had no hands, "they had both been cut off by Mwanga, the late king." What a contrast with the incident thus recalled, sadly characteristic as it was, is the fact she also mentions that the present Katikiro, the chief officer of the kingdom, and one of the regents during the minority of the young king, keeps part of every afternoon for prayer, and will not allow himself to be interrupted at that hour by callers.

Anniversary of king's accession.

Or again, what a contrast is the account given of the anniversary of the accession of the present King Daudi (David), Mwanga's son, to the throne of Uganda. The celebration on August 14th, 1900, was for the first time observed with a religious service. At 9 a.m. the king, who is four years old, carried on the shoulders of a chief, reached the cathedral church of Mengo, together with the queen-mother and queen-sister, also carried; the Katikiro followed on horseback, then another regent, the Rev. Zakària Kizito; and these were followed by a number of chiefs and their retainers, all dressed in white cloth. The imposing procession was headed by native drummers, buglers, and horn-blowers. Bishop Tucker, supported by the Revs. J.

Roscoe, E. Millar, Henry W. Duta and seven other native clergymen, in their robes, awaited the king at the church gates, and preceded him into church. Mr. C. W. Hattersley presided at the harmonium, and played the National Anthem as the royal party approached, and "Onward, Christian soldiers," was sung as they entered the church. The service was adapted from that for June 20th, and Mr. Roscoe gave a short address. The king presented a tusk of ivory and 10,000 shells as a thankoffering.

A servant of the late Bishop Hannington killed by the Wanandi.

Another reminder of the contrast between the present and the past was afforded by the death of Robert Livingstone, a native clerk in the Government office at Kampala, who was servant to Bishop Hannington, and is mentioned in his published letters. He was rescued from slavery and educated at Frere Town before he became Bishop Hannington's servant. After the latter's death he was servant to Bishop Parker, and was with him when he died, and, later, he accompanied Bishop Tucker as his servant to and from Uganda on his first journey in 1890. He was at one time a member of the Divinity Class at Frere Town with a view to ordination, but the class was given up and he never completed his course. He then went to Uganda in the service of the British East Africa Company. He met his death at the hands of the Wanandi in the summer of 1900, when he was going down to the coast on leave.

A letter written by the Bishop and addressed to the chiefs, and more especially to Christian parents throughout the country, and which the leading chiefs did their utmost to second and support, had a considerable effect in increasing the interest in education throughout Uganda, and especially in Mengo. The Normal classes.

Normal Classes for training school-teachers were encouraging. The male students under Mr. C. W. Hattersley did exceedingly well, and impressed him deeply with a sense of the capabilities of the Baganda. He says:—

Capable students.

Let me mention the eldest of them, Judah Musoke. He joined us in January. Although only about eighteen years of age he had been out as a Gospel teacher in the country for a year. He could just do multiplication and division when he came to me, and now in the twelve months he has mastered the intricacies of £ s. d. and rupee coinage, exchange of these and cowrie shells, has gone through vulgar fractions, and is engaged on problems such as: "If 5 miles 3 furlongs 15 poles 3 yards cost Rs. 6,580.12 an., what would 87 miles 5 feet 12 poles cost in £ s. d. with exchange at Rs. 14.12 an. to the £?" This may not seem difficult for any one in England, but for one year's work I consider it shows ability of no mean order. The others are very capable, too, and working extremely well. To get teachers on in this direction is encouraging, but the main branch of their education shows an equally encouraging result. Their knowledge of the Bible and their earnestness after the things of God are a real treat to notice. Our examination on Old Testament history (written) showed most gratifying results, and their knowledge of the Gospels was shown by the way in which they passed their examination for confirmation, which here is a different and much more difficult matter than getting confirmed in England. . . . Our Sunday-school and children's service on Sunday morning have been a feature of the work, and have given grand opportunities for our teachers to get a thorough knowledge of dealing with children spiritually. Each week we have a special class with a model lesson by myself to prepare for Sunday, and as I go round the classes and hear the lesson repeated I am truly more than encouraged by the way they have grasped, and repeat to the 300 little ones, the glorious message of salvation and what God expects of those who profess to be His.

On Miss E. M. Furley leaving to come home in June, 1900, Miss J. E. Chadwick took charge of the Women's Class, which then numbered twenty-five, and increased towards the year's close to thirty-seven. Most of these were married women, wives of male students, or of small chiefs, with the prospect of having opportunities to teach among their husbands' retainers. All the existing staff of female teachers in Mengo went to Miss Chadwick for an hour each afternoon for further instruction. The social disturbances caused by the Government land registration measures led to a scattering of the native workers, which made it difficult to keep the classes supplied with teachers, but the nearest approach to a complaint which Miss Chadwick heard was the remark, "Ah, well, we'll rest when we're dead!" from one to whom the suggestion had been hesitatingly made that she must teach yet another class. And these teachers, Miss Chadwick says, "are just as eager to be taught themselves and just as modest about their own attainments as the keenest of the younger lot of women."

Patient and willing workers.

"We'll rest when we're dead."

When Miss Chadwick took the women's class it was necessary to ask Miss Glass—three months after her arrival in Uganda—to undertake the Girls' School. She of course had the help of several native teachers, and the eighteen senior girls gave considerable assistance as monitresses, teaching in relays, morning and afternoon, and working hard at their own education in the intervals. Among the scholars was the "queen-sister" (she is in reality the king's cousin, a daughter of Kalema, Mwanga's brother), who is nine years old and is described as "very good-looking and dignified." She has already a household of her own, with quite a retinue of servants and a head-steward, also a chaperon to accompany her when she goes out calling, and much the same ceremony is observed when she attends school. "She is very bright and intelligent," Miss Glass observes, "but mischievous, and when she makes a joke all the other children feel it good manners to laugh." The Boys' School under Mr. Hattersley had during the latter part of the year a daily average of 240 boys in attendance. The new hut tax affected the Sale of Books. A depôt, or book shop, was, however, opened in the market-place and was largely resorted to by Mohammedans, whose chief purchases were paper and writing materials, to be used in some cases, Mr. Hattersley thinks likely, for writing passages from the Koran to serve as amulets.

Medical Work.

The report of the Medical Work for the past year is full of encouragement. The two brothers, Drs. A. R. and J. H. Cook, shared the medical duties, when, that is, one or other of them was not itinerating or attending sick missionaries at distant stations, which absences left them only five months out of the twelve together at the capital; while their wives had charge of the nursing, Mrs. A. R. Cook of the in-patients, and Mrs. J. H. Cook of the out-patients and dispensary. The new hospital, the erection of which was referred to in last year's Annual Report, was opened on May 31st by Sir Harry Johnston, nearly all the Government officials being present. Special prayers, printed in English and Luganda, had been prepared by the Bishop for the occasion. The Commissioner, in a speech to the Natives (by interpretation), expressed himself as very pleased with the work of the hospital, and urged the Baganda to make good use of it and to give attention to questions of sanitation. Before he left he presented six cows with their calves to the institution. This thoughtful gift was supplemented by friends at home and in the field, and the hospital had ere long a herd of sixteen cows, which yielded a fair supply of milk for the patients. The hospital, situated on the side of Namirembe Hill, is the finest building in Uganda, and its design and erection by Mr. K. E. Borup is regarded by all as a most creditable performance. The length of it is 120 feet, and at its widest part it is sixty feet across. The labour was freely given by the chiefs and people, and represented in value between £200 and £300. Dr. J. H. Cook thus describes the building:—

Opening of new hospital by Sir Harry Johnston.

"The finest building in Uganda."

> This new hospital ("The house of the sick," as the Baganda call it) forms a conspicuous object upon Namirembe, with its white walls, and three spires visible for many miles off. Immediately behind it is the operating-room, the roof of which forms the third spire. There are twenty beds in each ward; and a skilfully-constructed centre fireplace, whose chimney conducts the smoke out through the roof, forms a conspicuous feature in each ward. There are two large wards, one for men and one for women; an obstetric ward opens out of the women's ward, and a pathological laboratory out of the men's ward. Luganda texts line the walls, and are painted in blue stencilled letters upon the chimney and above many of the beds. The names of the beds are stencilled in blue upon linen stretched over wooden frames and suspended above each bed. Each ward has a broad wing extending at right angles to its main length opposite the central chimney, and thereby preaching and nursing are facilitated.

Mrs. Albert Cook adds the following particulars regarding the furniture:—

Hospital furniture.

> There are fifty beds in all—twenty-five for the men, and an equal number for the women and children; the bedsteads are made of the branches of the palm tree, and only last a very short time, but we hope before long these may be replaced by plain iron ones from England. The mattresses are made from the dried peelings of the banana tree, which are rolled and then sewn together, and on this we place a mat of grass, which the Baganda use as a sheet and seem to like very much, and they have the great advantage that they can be easily scrubbed after each patient. Then we also provide them with a piece of bark cloth (the native covering), and last of all as a coverlet a nice red blanket, a number of which have been presented to the hospital by kind friends in England. A pillow of straw is all that is required, and, although neither this nor the mattress sounds very comfortable to our English ideas, I can assure you that our Baganda look upon it as a great luxury, and the mattresses made as I have described are just as soft as those we bring from England, although of course they do not last as long.

During 1900 the attendances of out-patients at the dispensary numbered 33,983; there were 511 in-patients, whose stay averaged between two and three weeks, 233 operations were performed, 624 visits were made to patients at their houses. The obstetric work increased considerably, and the patients in this department included representatives of most of the religions and tribes in the country—Mohammedans, Heathen, Roman Catholics, Protestants, Bahuma (the shepherd tribe), Banyoro, Basoga, and others. Mrs. A. R. Cook washed the babies in public every morning, inviting the women to be present, to whom she addressed a few words on how to take care of themselves and their infants—lessons which are greatly needed. The fees from patients amounted to £39 4*s*. 4*d*., given mostly in very small sums, e.g. on their first visit they bring ten shells (about ½*d*.), and on subsequent visits three shells. Chiefs often give much more than these sums, and thankofferings are frequently presented in addition. Dr. J. H. Cook, who had made good progress in the language before he reached the Mission, with the help of the Rev. Beresford Wigram at home and of Mr. (now the Rev.) R. H. Leakey on the way out, says of the preaching to the out-patients:—

Lectures to mothers.

I cannot tell you the joy of this part of our work. It is almost the happiest half-hour of the day. The dispensary door closes at 9 a.m. punctually, and one has 100 or more out of every class—chief and peasant, young and old, utter Heathen, bigoted Mohammedan, ignorant Roman Catholic, and our own converts. They literally drink in the message of life, and never make any disturbance. Though we point the most plain, unvarnished denunciations of their errors, and strip the gloss off sin, and bring them to the test of the Word of God on every point, I have never had a word of objection raised.

Preaching to out-patients.

The above services for the out-patients are mainly evangelistic in their character, while at the daily half-hour's services for the in-patients the aim is to give systematic religious instruction, a whole Gospel or Epistle being sometimes taken consecutively. Several cases of conversion rewarded the loving labours of the staff, and both the brothers refer to the change observable in the faces of the patients under the influence of the Gospel. Dr. A. R. Cook says:—

Faces changed under the influence of the Gospel.

> One interesting fact, not, of course, confined to hospital patients, may be taken as absolutely true: the change in face undergone by those who are learning about Christ. I have seen this over and over again, and on asking others they have told me the same thing. Their faces seem positively plastic under the moulding of the Holy Spirit. The dull, unintelligent look that so many of the quite ignorant wear on first coming into the wards changes in as short a period as two or three weeks into a far more intelligent and brighter "facies," to use a medical term. We doctors speak of the "facies Hippocratici," and the "facies" of this or that disease, but, thank God, this is a "facies" of life, everlasting life, and not of death or disease.

"The man of grace" and "the boy with a smile."

Several Natives are under training, one or two of them having formerly been patients. One of these, Semei, is known as "the man of grace," his patience and tact with the fractious and tiresome patients are so remarkable; another, Yusufu, is "the boy with the smile," for he is "never seen cross, never weary, never without his smile, except on one occasion when he had the onerous duty of acting as 'best man' at Semei's wedding!" These native helpers are able to take temperatures, keep a chart, wash the patients, dress the wounds antiseptically, prepare the patients for operations, and occasionally they, in the absence of the doctors, conduct the services in the wards. Mrs. A. R. Cook, on whom rested the chief share of their training in nursing, says: "It is a real pleasure to teach them, they are so quick and clever and lead most self-denying lives, never being sure of a quiet half-hour, ready to help night and day." Dr. J. H. Cook also bears witness to their gentleness:—

> Their gentleness and patience is marvellous. I have often come home, after watching them and hearing them speak to a refractory patient, feeling I had learned a lesson that I should not easily forget. They distribute all the food and medicines in the ward, and there are no boys who work harder than our hospital boys from early dawn till night. Until quite recently their only reward was the food they ate and the clothes they wore, and that happiest of all wages, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Industrial Work.

In the Industrial Work also Natives have made commendable progress, under Mr. K. E. Borup's tuition. Last year's Annual Report mentioned the apprenticing of six baptized youths. These were regularly indentured on articles of agreement signed by the Katikiro and by the Bishop. Some specimens of their printing sent to this country have been pronounced by those competent to judge as so excellent that they would do credit to any of the large printing firms at home. The late Rev. Martin J. Hall thus wrote of the buildings devoted to this branch of work and of the work itself:—

Excellent samples of printing.

> The hill of Nviri Bulange is situated about three-quarters of a mile to the west of Namirembe Hill, and is crowned with the well-constructed buildings of the Industrial Mission. At the north end of the levelled summit stand the house of the superintendent of the industrial work, Mr. K. E. Borup, to whose untiring industry and mechanical skill much of the success is due. On either side of the open space runs a long building containing the various workshops, dormitories, and class-rooms of the apprentices. On the left, as you face Mr. Borup's house, is a building containing two carpenters' shops, from which some excellent work has been turned out, the results of which may be seen throughout the Bishop's new house, the door and window frames as well as the panelled doors and shutters and not a little of the furniture having been made by the apprentices on Bulange. All the woodwork in the beautiful new hospital is also their handiwork. There is also a printing-office in the building, containing four hand-presses, a cutting-machine, and a machine for sewing books with wire. Here a good deal of printing is done for the Government, e.g. the whole of the new National Constitution, regimental orders, return forms, &c., is the work of the Bulange boys, who make excellent compositors. At the present time they are engaged in printing a native Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, and a first reading-book in Lutoro—a second edition. In the past they have printed reports of the Diocesan Conferences, two editions of the Church Canticles, pointed for singing, and much other useful literature. Workshops.

Mr. Borup bears testimony to the cheerful and willing spirit in which the lads discharge their work. As printers they have an undoubted advantage over English apprentices, inasmuch as they can read with equal ease whether the page is upside down, sideway, or right way up. The bearing of this singular accomplishment on printing is that they can read nearly as well from the face of the type as from the printed page. The Industrial Mission Press commenced the issue of a monthly missionary leaflet, Mengo Notes, in May, 1900, consisting of four octavo pages of small type. The August number of this publication was set up and printed off entirely without supervision, as Mr. Borup was away on his holidays, by three Baganda youths, not one of whom knew more than a few words of English! Frequently three different languages are being simultaneously printed—Luganda, Lutoro, and English. During the year nearly 100,000 impressions were made on the presses—all hand-presses. This industrial work involves no burden on the Society's funds; indeed, to safeguard the possibility of such a result the Katikiro engaged himself in the indentures of the apprentices to pay a certain sum yearly towards their maintenance. On the other hand, Mr. Borup points out that the Society has benefited in a pecuniary sense by the labours of the apprentices, and the Mission has undoubtedly reaped large advantage from their building and carpentering and printing. An ambitious project in bricks and mortar has been entered upon by the Christians at Mengo. It has been decided to erect a new brick cathedral on Namirembe Hill. Mr. Borup says that the architecture is to be in a style similar to that of the Temple Church in London! The only help that is craved from England is trowels, bricklayers' adzes, &c., in great abundance, and carriage paid to Uganda.

An uncommon but useful accomplishment.

Cathedral Church.

At the present Cathedral Church there are adult baptisms every second Sunday, sometimes also on the intervening Sunday. Infant baptisms take place as a rule on week-days, but adults are admitted in the presence of the large Sunday congregation. Twice before their baptism the candidates' names are announced in church, so that the fullest degree of publicity is given to their candidature, and every opportunity is afforded for objections on the score of character or conduct. Mrs. Fraser (when she was Miss Glass) wrote of the service on April 29th, 1900:—

> Fifty-one were baptized on Sunday, and four Roman Catholics were admitted. With their godfathers and godmothers they were a congregation in themselves. The godfathers sit all together in one roped-in enclosure and the godmothers in another, while the candidates are grouped near the font, and the rest of the congregation in the remaining space. As each candidate's name is called he steps into the open space by the font before all the people, and his godfathers and godmothers stand up in their places. Many of the men were quite old and wrinkled.

Titular widows of King Mtesa baptized.

On another day in the spring of 1900 seven of the ladies in charge of the late King Mtesa's tomb, his titular widows, were baptized. Miss Chadwick says:—

> Several of these had been looked upon as regular old Heathen who could scarcely be hoped for any longer, and their coming forward together caused great rejoicing amongst our Christian women. One of them, on the other hand, was quite a little girl, who had lately inherited the office and title, and has since made all her household learn too.

One feature of the work which gave some concern was the impossibility of keeping in touch with many of the converts after baptism, but Miss A. H. Robinson did her best by diligent visitation to supply this need. The missionary interest of the Christians is maintained by monthly missionary meetings on Friday mornings, usually conducted entirely by the Natives themselves. These meetings are held in the "cathedral," and at the close of each the people take their free-will offerings to the chancel steps, some taking cowries, others bunches of bananas, eggs, &c., and now and then a cow is presented, but this contribution does not of course enter the sacred building. At these meetings the native missionaries relate their stories of God's work, and from time to time new parties of recruits receive their valedictory instructions. Mrs. Fraser thus referred to one of these "Dismissal Days," that of August 17th:—

A valedictory meeting.

> Twenty-nine trained native missionaries were being dismissed to Busoga, Koki, Budu, &c., some even to Toro. It was a very happy service. The most thrilling bit was when Mr. Roscoe, as Acting Secretary, in the absence of the Bishop, called each of the new lay readers and gave them their letters of license; after that each of the new teachers stood up, and, turning round, faced the congregation while their names and destinations were read out. Each of these men is being entirely supported by the Natives themselves. Many of them are taking their wives with them, who are also trained teachers.

The collection was a wonderful time. It amounted in all, besides some cloth, to 36 rupees, 25,383 shells, and a cow. When one considers that eighty shells is good payment for a day's work of a builder, thatcher, hedger, &c., you can see the people were many of them giving even as the Macedonians. Generous givers.

The estimate made by the Native Church Council of the sum required to support the missionary agencies for the six months ending June, 1900, amounted to 1,840,000 cowrie shells, or Rs. 3,345. About one-half of the contributions to meet this expenditure are received from the Christians at the capital, the rest is given at the other stations. The Gleaners' Union is becoming a missionary force in Uganda, as it has been and is at home and elsewhere. The formation of a new branch at Mengo was thus described by Mrs. Fraser :—

Some of Miss Chadwick's women have been earnest Gleaners for some time, but it was now decided to form a proper branch, with male members, too, and about six times as many men as women were enrolled to begin with. Each rule was solemnly read out and placed before the meeting for discussion, and didn't they just discuss! They didn't mean to go in for anything they didn't quite understand. "How much were we to glean out of Scripture?" "Had we to write it down?" "Learn by heart?" "Show it to any one?" "Where are we to get information on Missions?" "Have we to write letters to out-stations?" "Often?" "Will they write to us?" "Have we to give a tenth to it?" "Is the prayer in Luganda?"—and so on till closured. The short prayers at the end were very simple and earnest and to the point. It does seem a pity that more British Gleaners should not have the joy of seeing such a keen new branch as this. Only five Europeans were present, each one representing a whole department of work—medical, educational, evangelistic, &c. These good, kind, steadfast faces of the Christians here simply startle one by their contrast with the sullen, sin-sodden faces of the Heathen. It is a tremendously living Gospel which can bring about a change like that. New branch of Gleaners' Union.

There are other churches in Mengo besides the large "cathedral" on Namirembe Hill. For example, both the king's and Katikiro's enclosures contain churches for their respective households and retainers, and about thirty-five small churches are found in the suburbs of the capital, all served from the mother church, or at least the pastor of that church, the Rev. Henry Wright Duta, is responsible for the arrangements. Mr. C. W. Hattersley visited one of these suburban districts, the place where Mika Sematimba, who accompanied Archdeacon Walker to England in 1892, resided when not in the capital. The place is twelve miles from Mengo, several swamps having to be crossed; when they are not bridged, Europeans and chiefs accomplish this on the shoulders of native servants. On his arrival he was welcomed by Mika, and taken to his upstairs sitting-room (a European innovation), and, at Mika's suggestion, they at once knelt down to offer thanks for his safe journey. Then visitors brought presents—eighty eggs and a goat were given by Mika himself. The church adjoins Mika's enclosure. It holds about 160. The walls and roof-lining are of reeds, neatly sewn; A suburban church.

the pulpit and reading-desk are of the same material; the Communion Table and rails are of roughly-hewn boards and rough poles; grass covers the floor, and numerous poles support the roof. On the walls are texts painted by Mika's friends in England. A hearty congregation crowded the building; Mika conducted the service, and a native teacher preached the sermon. Mika was made responsible by the Church Council for supervising a circuit containing several of these little churches, and arranging the distribution of the teachers among them each Sunday.

Gayaza.

GAYAZA is twelve miles from Mengo. The Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Crabtree resided there, the former being engaged in literary work, as already mentioned (supra, page 130). Miss E. C. Pike was transferred to Toro in April, 1900, and Miss M. S. Thomsett left in May to come home on furlough. Miss B. Taylor (now Mrs. Maddox) was joined about the same time by Miss A. E. Allen. The last-named lady says that Gayaza is reckoned to be the least encouraging of all the stations occupied by European missionaries, because the chief "is a noted drunkard, and his drum is constantly heard summoning low companions to drink with him." Nevertheless, she adds:—

"Nothing external to attract."

A Women's Council.

> Daily at nine o'clock we have full Morning Service with hymns and lessons, and a good number of men and women come regularly, some who have been baptized and some who are preparing. They have to walk long distances to attend, and there is nothing external to attract them. The church is like a big barn, supported on small palm-trunks faced with reeds (which look like bamboo-canes, and are lashed together with strips of palm-bark); the floor is of red mud polished by the bare feet of the worshippers. There is no harmonium, no painted glass, there are no seats—in fact, there are only mud walls, with slits in them to let in as much light and as little heat as possible. After the daily Morning Service the unbaptized people stay behind to be prepared for baptism. No one is accepted as a candidate who cannot read well and answer all the needed examination questions. There is a Native Church Council of women which meets every week, and if a member preparing for baptism is known to be living inconsistently the Council makes her wait another six months to prove her sincerity. Yesterday we went for a long walk to a neighbouring church; it was really a kind of meeting-house, because no sacraments are administered at these outlying churches, but the congregation is led by a native unordained teacher. There are hundreds of these meeting-places all over the country now, and at every one of them large numbers are always present, daily and on Sundays.

Through the work of the ladies a large increase in the number of female teachers took place during the year; they rose from one to eleven, five being stationed at as many villages in the district and the other six at Gayaza. Miss Taylor said it was one of the great joys of the work to notice how the women delighted to impart to others what they had learned; and if in the chapter they were teaching there was anything they did not thoroughly understand they never passed it over, but first obtained the explanation and then went over the passage again with their pupils. A class Miss Taylor had for training teachers gave her much encouragement. She wrote:—

Women walking daily twelve and sixteen miles to be taught.

When they once have entered into the class no weather or difficulties seem to daunt them. One woman daily walked twelve miles (six there and six back), carrying her baby on her back. Another woman walked sixteen miles daily, and crossed two large swamps, often arriving at class in a dripping condition, from the long grass through which she had passed. She came to see me the other day, and gave me a most cheering account of the women she is now able to teach in her village.

Miss Allen had, from stress of circumstances, to take charge of the School, and refers to some of the many difficulties of such a task, especially to one only just arrived in the country:—

Mixed scholars.

Difficulties of school work.

Africa is called out here "the land of surprises," and certainly when I left home I did not at all expect to have to fulfil the duties of dairy-maid, carpenter, gardener, cook, bread-maker, and schoolmistress to the wildest set of mixed scholars that I ever before met. We have pupils ranging from one to forty years old: men, women, boys, girls, children, and babies. Their dress is still of a very primitive order, some wearing only a string of brightly-coloured beads round their waists, some merely a circlet of plaited grass, some a goat-skin knotted on one shoulder, and some bark-cloths, while white drapery with a bright mixture of pink and blue cotton pinafores, sent from home, are worn by the most deserving little learners. To keep a register in a Uganda school is no easy matter, for not only are the heathen names ludicrously long, but there are so many of the same name that it is absolutely necessary to enter the name of the child's owner (unfortunately one cannot yet say parents, as so very few of them live with their own fathers and mothers). I am trying to visit the homes of all the scholars, but this, again, is no easy matter, as the huts are all so alike, and they lie buried away in the banana plantations; so I get one of the school-children nearly every afternoon to conduct me to his or her home, and, when there, Bible pictures are again an enormous help; the people very much enjoy looking at them and having them explained, and the neighbours flock round when they see the picture-book. Many are the happy visits we have paid together in this way, the scholar going on ahead along the narrow path to lead the way, and then thoroughly entering into the picture show at the end.

Jungo.

"One of the brightest spots in Uganda."

Jungo is about sixteen miles south-west of Mengo, and in the Province of Busiro. For the past five years, since 1896, the work there has been under the sole charge of the Rev. Yairo Mutakyala. Mr. Pilkington, in a letter to Bishop Tucker, written shortly before his death, after a visit to Jungo, described the place, on account of the blessing resting on the work, as "one of the brightest spots in Uganda." There are some forty churches scattered over the district, and 206 adults were baptized during the past year. In June, 1899, Bishop Tucker confirmed eighty-eight candidates; and again in April, 1900, seventy-four others were confirmed in the presence of a large congregation, who came together in spite of heavy rain and the drenching from the long wet grass through which most of them had to pass on their way to church. Miss Chadwick and Mrs. A. R. Cook (then Miss Timpson) paid a four days' visit to Jungo in December, 1899, and held women's and children's meetings. The latter wrote:—

We had a tremendous reception, the native clergyman, the Rev. Yairo Mutakyala, coming out with a crowd of young men for some miles to meet us, and escorting us in with the sound of flutes and much rejoicing. Then on every hill-top as we got nearer there were little crowds of women collected to welcome us, and, as all these fell into procession behind us, by the time we reached our destination the crowd was quite imposing, and we had a little open-air thanksgiving service before dismissing them, as we were very tired. We had two fine women's meetings while there, and on the Monday morning over four hundred children were collected in the church, brought in from the surrounding villages in little groups of from twenty to forty by the local teachers, and we had one of the heartiest children's meetings I have ever been present at.

A children's meeting.

At Busi, which is an island close to the mainland, and is, like Jungo, under the charge of a native pastor, the Rev. Samwili Kamwakabi, a church accommodating 1,000 people, which had been built by the Natives without European superintendence, was dedicated by Bishop Tucker on April 22nd, 1900. The congregation on the day of the dedication numbered 1,019; sixty-three were confirmed, and 163 partook together of the Lord's Supper. On the same day eighteen men and women were baptized.

PROVINCES OF BULEMEZI AND BURULI.

Ndeje.

Ndeje, the station to which Mr. (now the Rev.) R. H. Leakey was appointed on his return to the Mission, accompanied by Mrs. Leakey, at the close of 1899, is twenty-two miles due north of Mengo, and is in a central position for superintending the work throughout the Provinces of Bulemezi and Buruli. Mr. and Mrs. Leakey found an excellent mud-house built by Natives but not quite finished. There was also a mud church—"one of the nicest churches in Uganda." Mr. and Mrs. Leakey took several classes for instructing teachers and others, but the former's chief work is the oversight of the work of others. A change was made in the governorship of the Province. The late overlord (who was in Deacons' Orders, the Rev. Zakaria Kizito), who held the office of Kangao, was appointed one of the regents, and he was succeeded by another deacon, the Rev. Samwili Mukasa. Of the new Kangao Mr. Leakey writes in high terms. His consistent life both in his home and as a chief is an example to all. In the recently inaugurated distribution of the land he divided the best gardens left unappropriated by his predecessor to other chiefs and kept for himself only uncultivated land. Of the native pastor, the Rev. N. Mudeka, Mr. Leakey says:—

A disinterested Christian chief.

An ideal pastor.

> He is, to my mind, an almost ideal pastor. He is very humble in all he does or says, and always anxious to learn, even though he is one of the best-educated Natives up here. He is, moreover, a very hard worker, as, being the only ordained man in the district, he has to take all the baptisms and administer the Holy Communion. This takes him all over the district, as he likes to give those in the country a chance of seeing baptisms and so contradict the absurd stories that exist about this Christian rite.

In the two provinces there are more than 150 churches, and trained teachers are placed at the important centres who supervise a group of these churches. Connected with nearly all the churches there are churchwardens who are expected to give some time every day to teaching catechumens. The Bishop held two confirmations in the district, one at Ndeje and the other at Kikubira; the number confirmed was 406. The sales of books were considerable, over Rs. 90 being taken in one month. Mrs. Leakey accompanied her husband in the autumn of 1900 on a three weeks' tour in North Bulemezi, where a European lady had not been before. A counter attraction, however, accompanied them which excited even more attention, it was a baby zebra which had been caught when a few days old and successfully reared, and which followed them everywhere. Strangely, many of the Natives had never seen one before and took it for a leopard.

Churchwardens expected to teach catechumens.

PROVINCES OF SINGO AND KITUNZI.

A new church was dedicated by the Bishop at MITYANA on Easter Day, 1900, built under the supervision of the Rev. H. W. Tegart, with some assistance from the Rev. G. H. Casson, who spent seven months, from September, 1899, till April, 1900, at the station. The Bishop thus describes the church, and gives particulars of the opening service :—

Mityana.

I arrived on the Thursday evening before Easter and at once inspected the church. I was altogether surprised and delighted with what I saw. At present the materials in Uganda at the disposal of a church builder are extremely limited. Roughly speaking, they consist of timber, reeds, mud, and grass. For some years our churches have been built mainly with timber and reeds. Airy and pretty structures (when new) have dotted the country over. But alas! their unsubstantial character has spelt ruin. Constant repairs are needed, and reconstruction in four or five years is the lot of all. Even the great church at Namirembe has not been exempt from the common fate. But now a new era in church building in Uganda has dawned. Mud has taken the place of reeds, and structures are being reared which will we trust stand for many years. The new church at Mityana will be a model from which many other churches will be built. Let me briefly describe it. Roughly speaking, it consists of a nave with two aisles and a rather deep chancel. The numerous poles which form one of the chief characteristics of the earlier churches have been replaced by what appear to be a double row of columns supporting the roof. These columns are each formed by three palm poles planted in the ground and lashed together. They are beautifully reeded and present an appearance of strength combined with lightness. A clerestory reeded in panels is a striking feature of the church. The substantial walls are beautifully plastered and coloured. The upper parts are white, whilst a dado of dark grey some six feet high runs round the church. Outside, over the west door, on the dark grey surface of the wall is the text, in white letters, "Enter into His courts with praise," whilst on the inside is written, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." Over the Communion Table in blue lettering is the text, "This do in remembrance of Me." A wide verandah divided into compartments gives shelter from both sun and rain. Two vestries complete what is without question a very remarkable church. It has been designed with great skill and finished with great taste. It is both artistic and permanent, and as convenient as it is commodious. It has been built entirely by the Natives themselves with native material, but with the advice of Mr. Tegart, who has been most indefatigable in superintending the work; but so wisely did he guide the workmen that they threw themselves with the utmost enthusiasm into the undertaking, and now declare themselves able to build a similar church without European superintendence. The Good Friday services were held in the temporary church, as also was the Confirmation Service on the Saturday. Some fifty-four candidates were presented and received the laying-on of hands. Many of them had come long distances—from Kasaka and Kinakulya. In the latter case a long and weary tramp of some eighty or ninety miles was involved, in the former a walk through as bad a swamp almost as you will find in Singo—which is saying a great deal. It speaks volumes for the sincerity and earnestness of these people that they should be willing to endure such hardness in seeking for promised blessing. Easter Day, long looked forward to, dawned dark and lowering. Heavy rain with distant mutterings of thunder told of broken weather and consequently of small congregations. However, towards nine o'clock it commenced to clear, and to our surprise a well-filled church of some eight hundred souls told of widespread interest in the services of the day. I was met at the west door of the church by Messrs. Tegart and Casson, accompanied by the Mukwenda (the chief of Singo), the churchwardens, and the master builders. We proceeded up the nave, repeating with the congregation alternately the 122nd Psalm. On reaching the chancel the dedication prayer was offered and the morning service was proceeded with. I preached to most attentive listeners from St. Luke xxiv. 6, on the resurrection of our Lord. One hundred and seventy communicants gathered around the Table of the Lord. At the afternoon service Henry Wright Duta, who had come over from Mengo for the purpose, preached.

Earliest confirmation candidates.

Easter Day service.

Mr. Casson mentions that the teachers from the villages round Mityana gathered there once a month from Friday till Monday to be instructed in the Bible and Prayer-book by Mr. Tegart and to partake together of the Holy Communion on the Sunday morning.

KOKI AND BUDU.

Rakai.

The late Rev. Martin J. Hall joined the Rev. H. Clayton at RAKAI, the capital of Budu, in December, 1899, and on his leaving three months later to take Archdeacon Walker's place at Mengo Mr. H. O. Savile succeeded him. Bishop Tucker paid his second visit, only six months after the first, to Koki in November, 1899, remaining six days at Rakai, two or three of which, however, he was suffering from fever. He confirmed forty-seven candidates (fifty-two having been confirmed on his former visit) in the presence of a large congregation, and seventy-seven subsequently received the Holy Communion. The service was held in a new church which had been erected, though it was in an incomplete state. The Mission-house, which was burnt down by the rebels at the beginning of 1898, had been rebuilt on a spot which gave the missionaries much closer access to the people. Dr. A. R. Cook, who accompanied the Bishop, treated a large number of patients—as many as 600 in three out of the six days—and performed seventeen operations, Messrs. Clayton and Hall acting as anæsthetists. The Bishop wrote:—

"A piteous sight."

It was a piteous sight to see some of the poor creatures who came asking for medicine. Many of them were in the last stage of exhaustion; others were leprous; others, again, ulcerous; others were suffering from tumours; a few were blind, and many were suffering from various diseases of the eyes. It was a sad and solemn sight, and one that will long linger in one's memory. I felt thankful that Dr. Cook was able to do so much for them, but sorry that owing to the limited time at our disposal so many were left with but only temporary help.

Daily Bible-readings.

The Bishop was much interested in one feature of the work at Rakai, namely, a Bible-reading which Mr. Clayton holds every evening for the members of his household, the teachers, and all who choose to attend, usually about fifty altogether. A hymn is sung, a passage of Scripture is read and explained, questions are asked and answered, then another hymn, and closing prayer. "The whole is an opportunity for instruction and worship," the Bishop wrote, "which evidently is greatly valued."

Baptism of the king of Koki.

Kamswaga, the king of Koki, had not then been baptized, but the Bishop was impressed with the manifest change in his life and character. He was baptized in the following February, receiving the name Edward Hezekiya, and he was confirmed in October, when the Bishop made his third visit to the province. The king's wife, who is named Keziya, was confirmed at the same time. There were 137 communicants present at the administration of the Lord's Supper which succeeded the confirmation. In the spring of 1900, the Rev. Silasi Aliwonya was transferred to Rakai from Ngogwe. He belongs to the Bahuma tribe, and he is probably the only one of the Baganda clergy who has had a course of training both at the Frere Town Divinity School and under Archdeacon Walker at Mengo. He is the only spiritual agent apart from Europeans whom the Church in Koki has received from outside its own borders.

A self-maintained Church.

This Church may, indeed, be said to be self-maintained, humanly speaking, both as regards men and means. It has also begun to take part in the foreign missionary enterprise, as two Koki teachers volunteered to go with Bishop Tucker in November, 1900, when he went forward from Koki into Nkole. Two members of the Church seceded to the Roman Catholics during the year.

Budu.

Four of those confirmed by Bishop Tucker at Rakai in November, 1899, were from the neighbouring Province of Budu, through which the Bishop and Dr. Cook had travelled on their way from Mengo to Koki. The Bishop did not visit Kajuna, where the Rev. Seduraka Kibuka is stationed, but he spent a night at Kabawoko, the chief of which was formerly a teacher, and is now a sergeant in the Uganda Rifles; and at Kyampagi, where again the chief was formerly a teacher, and where Apolo, the Katikiro of Uganda, has some property. At both these out-stations they found churches. One of the largest congregations in Budu is at Kiwomya, the chief of which was formerly a Roman Catholic. Eleven new churches were built in the Province of Budu during the year, and to some of them resident teachers were appointed.

SESE ISLANDS.

Bukasa.

Bishop Tucker visited BUKASA on April 26th, 1900, and confirmed seventy-four candidates, most of them belonging to this island, but a few having come from some of the many neighbouring islands. The Bishop described Bukasa as "an earthly paradise." He wrote:—

"An earthly paradise."

> Earth, air, sky, and water combine in fashioning pictures of the most exquisite beauty. The lake, most variable in its moods, reflects at one moment the glories of sky and land, and at another the picture becomes blurred; the vision passes away and a surface flashing like burnished silver takes its place. Then the islands, which seem innumerable, have each their distinguishing characteristics. Here is one covered from one end to another with the most luxuriant foliage; here is another rocky and broken in outline; there a third showing on its surface large tracts of grass land varied here and there by picturesque clumps of trees, and so on in endless variety of form and colour.

A new church was nearing completion at the time of the Bishop's visit, and a commodious (as compared with the former one) new Mission-house was in course of erection. The Rev. E. C. Gordon opened a school for the young, and he had classes from time to time for the teachers (of whom over 100 are scattered over the islands), having from fifteen to twenty-five at a time for a visit of several weeks. In addition to the study of certain books of the Bible they received lessons in writing and arithmetic, both necessary for the due discharge of their work, as they are expected to send Mr. Gordon information about current events in their several spheres, and to keep account of all monies collected. The pay to unmarried men is two rupees a year, and that to married men two and a half; many work without any pay whatever.

The Bishop's hundredth confirmation service.

At the same time that the Bishop visited Bukasa he also went to the islands of Bubembe and Kome. The confirmation service at Bubembe was on April 25th, the tenth anniversary of the Bishop's consecration, and it was somewhat curiously, as he noted, the hundredth confirmation service he had held in Africa. He had in the ten years confirmed 7,580 persons. The chief of Bubembe, Guga, has since the Bishop's visit fallen into the sin of drunkenness, a sin to which he was formerly addicted. He has, alas, also sought to lead the young people about him into the same and other sins. One of his female Christian servants had the courage to refuse to drink some beer which he offered to her. The Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Gordon accompanied the Bishop on his visit to Kome, which is a two days' sail from Bukasa, and the Bishop confirmed fifty-one candidates on Sunday, April 29th. The chief secretly opposes the work, but it grows notwithstanding.

The resident teacher, Yoeri Wamala, was one of the men admitted to Deacons' Orders on Trinity Sunday.

An event of some consequence to these islands, resulting from the new method of government, occurred during the year, and has added greatly to their importance and also affected the disposition of the little missionary force. It was the advent of the Admiral of the Lake—the "Gabunga" so often mentioned in the early letters from the Mission as a chief of great consequence—to reside on the islands. The present Admiral succeeded his brother in office when the latter was killed by the Mohammedans in 1888, at the time when they expelled the Christians from the country. The title has now been changed to "Kweba," and the island of BUGALA, the largest of the group, has been selected by the present Admiral as his capital. This island was at one time occupied exclusively, so far as Christian Missions are concerned, by the French Roman Catholics, who have imposing buildings there, but in 1895 Mr. Gordon found three small Protestant congregations on the island, and now there are fifteen, more than twice as many as on any other island. The Bishop therefore requested Mr. and Mrs. Gordon to remove from Bukasa and take up their abode on Bugala. The Kweba is a Protestant Christian and has appointed the good chief of Bukasa, Danieri (Daniel), one of his councillors. He has made preparations for building a stone church, and promises to build a house for Mr. and Mrs. Gordon. Bugala.

There are in these islands, thirty in number, nearly 1,300 baptized adults, of whom nearly 500 have been confirmed; the latter are distributed on eighteen islands. To visit them in order to cheer and establish them might well employ a man's whole time.

PROVINCE OF KYAGWE.

The staff at NGOGWE, which consisted of the Revs. G. K. Baskerville, Yonasani Kaidzi, and Silasi Aliwonya, and the Misses G. E. Bird, E. L. Pilgrim, and S. R. Tanner at the beginning of 1900, saw several changes during the year. The Rev. S. Aliwonya was transferred to Koki in the spring, to be succeeded after the Trinity Ordinations by the Rev. Aloni Muyinda; Miss H. D. I. Scott arrived from Mengo in April; and the Misses Bird and Pilgrim left in June to take furlough. Miss Tanner gives an account of the usual routine of work at the station:— Ngogwe.

The work of the day begins at 8 a.m. with prayers in church, to which old men and young, old women and young, come, over 200 altogether, every day. Imagine this in England! The women get up at daybreak and cultivate their banana plantations until 7.30 a.m., when a drum is beaten for church. They go home then, wash and dress, and come to church. When prayers are finished, the people divide into classes, some being prepared for baptism, some for confirmation, some for being teachers. The women are taught in church from eight to nine, and the men in buildings they call synagogues. Daily services and classes.

The children vary in age from tiny dots hardly old enough to learn the letters, to boys and girls reading the Gospels and being prepared for baptism. At present nineteen of the elder boys and girls are reading for baptism; and it is a great joy to see the earnest desire which seems to prompt some of them to take this step. For example, one boy whose reading had been interrupted for some time on account of being sent elsewhere to work for his master, was very happy at being able to resume it again, and when asked why he wished to be baptized said most earnestly, "Oh, my friend, I want Life!"

'Oh, my friend, I want Life!'

Help in teaching is given not only by paid teachers and monitors, but by one or two voluntary helpers, one of whom said to Miss Scott, "This is not your work only, it is mine also." Of one of the teachers Miss Scott says that he has a remarkable talent for his work. He conducted the Sunday morning children's service and kept the attention of his congregation unflagging by tactful catechizing. Miss A. E. Allen, of Gayaza, who visited Ngogwe in August, wrote concerning him:—

A tactful catechizer.

There is one very intelligent lad here; he has a flat brown face, quite bald, of course. He wears a white garment knotted over one shoulder. He has a real thirst for learning, and especially wants to learn English. It is quite an interesting sight to see him with his class around him, all listening open-mouthed as he holds forth, with a brown finger extended, on the few verses of St. Matthew's Gospel, which they read round in turn.

Special petitions.

Miss Scott also attended to the dispensary work. On Wednesday afternoons a prayer-meeting is held and special petitions for prayer are sent in. One mentioned by Miss Tanner was, "I am very weak, always hearing the voice of Satan"; and another, "For my wife, whose heart is very hard; she refuses to hear the word of God." Then on Friday afternoons a women's committee meets to register the names of candidates for baptism and confirmation and to discuss other matters relating to the work among women. Testimony is required and is carefully sifted by these native women. The witnesses of one girl, for example, said that she had refused to serve her father and mother, and she was accordingly kept back. The decisions of this committee are submitted for confirmation to a men's committee. Miss Tanner took charge of several classes for women: a Bible-class meeting at 8 a.m., with between forty and fifty members, a teachers' class, &c. The ladies also visited the "gardens" of neighbouring chiefs from time to time. Mr. Baskerville had to undertake the anxious business of supervising the registration of church properties. This necessitated his visiting 150 villages, and preparing plans in duplicate of every plot. The permanent settlement of the Sekibobo, the chief of Kyagwe, at Ngogwe promises to make the village a centre of busy life and to lead to a large increase of its population.

A candidates committee.

Nakanonyi.

The Rev. G. R. Blackledge was joined at NAKANONYI by the Rev. T. R. Buckley early in 1899, in anticipation of his leaving to come home in the following autumn. Mr. Buckley himself came home in the spring of 1900, and he was succeeded by the Rev. G. H. Casson. The last named was much occupied in building operations, a new Mission-house, a church, and a school having been commenced just before his arrival. He was very grateful for the co-operation, in the spiritual part of the work, of his brother in the ministry, the Rev. I. Lwaki, in Deacons' Orders, of whom he writes:—

"A curate to be thankful for."

> A vicar who at home has a curate equal to him in piety, humbleness, sound common sense, &c., has a curate to be thankful for. We hear of "making allowances" for native converts; but if ever tempted to lower my standard, I have ever before me a living standard of what a Native Christian can be. I am truly thankful to be with that man. We have had a sad number of Christians who have fallen into gross sensuality; but men can far more easily keep pure at home. Clothing, housing, &c., is so different here, and our Christians have inherited strong passions from forefathers who never knew what it was to deny themselves any pleasure they lusted for, yet I have seen in that man and others what the Spirit of God can do.

Bishop Tucker confirmed 209 candidates, 121 men and eighty-eight women, on Sunday, June 17th, 1900. At the subsequent administration of the Holy Communion 332 partook of the Sacrament. Mr. Casson baptized nearly two hundred persons who had been prepared and examined by the native workers, his own knowledge of the language being too imperfect for him to take part in this branch of the work. He visited Unga, the station occupied by the Rev. E. Mukasa. Some villages he went through had not before seen a white man, and the children ran away in terror on his appearing.

The Bukedi country.

It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 134) that Mr. Blackledge had visited during 1899 the wild race called the Bakedi, who inhabit the valley of the Nile beyond Lake Kioga, whose country extends to the slopes of Mount Elgon. In January, 1900, before leaving Nakononyi to take furlough, Mr. Buckley spent two or three weeks among them, involving a journey of seven days, four days walking and three days passing down the Nile and across Lake Kioga in canoes. Mr. Buckley directed his course to Mpumude, the headquarters of a Christian Muganda chief named Semei Kakunguru, who was placed over the Bukedi country after the suppression of the rebellion of 1897–98. The delight of the Christian chief on Mr. Buckley's arrival was manifested by his summoning some hundreds of his men and having a large reed church erected at once. Mr. Buckley reached the place on Friday, and the church was used on the following Sunday by a congregation of 250 of Semei's followers. In November the Rev. W. A. Crabtree, of Gayaza, visited the Bukedi country, principally with the view of preparing a first reading book in the language of the people, and Mrs. Crabtree accompanied him. He says the name "Bukedi" is a term vaguely given by Baganda to all the country beyond Buñyoro, Busoga, and their own country. It embraces two non-Bantu languages, Teso and dialects of Chopi, and two Bantu languages, dialects of Lusoga and Kavirondo. Mr. Crabtree wrote in January, 1901:—

An inviting opening.

We little knew when we started what a large tract of country has been opened up by Kakunguru. There are three distinct spheres of work, besides an extension of work already existing in Busoga, and the organization of work amongst the Baganda stationed at each of the "forts," which now number nine. Some one is needed at once to live with Kakunguru and arrange for the work in the forts. There are twelve people at Burulu waiting for baptism. . . . This is but the beginning of, I hope, much more work. There are, for instance, sixteen people reading for confirmation here; there are a few communicants in each of the forts, and a good number of baptized people who ought to read for confirmation. But teachers have not yet come; no less than seven forts are needing teachers. This shows that the work has outgrown supervision from Nakanonyi. The importance of Mpumude—not perhaps so much for its work as for its influence—grows on one. Traders come in frequently; Mohammedans are numerous; and the spiritual provision for Kakunguru's Baganda in the different forts seems quite inadequate. Then there is a large sphere of work amongst people whom I find are called Teso. I should think about two-thirds of the people in Kakunguru's district speak Teso. It is spoken at Sambwe, and from there in a direction about N.E. and nearly E. to Mount Elgon. The people seem most friendly; many of them are of fine physique, but others are poor. There are crowds of them, and I do not know why work should not be begun amongst them at once. It is just the sort of work for any one wanting a new work and a free hand, though he must have a strong constitution, for, as you know, all this district is intensely hot—so much so that mothers protect their children with large half-gourds from the sun. I have been able to draw up a Mateka and have sent it to Mengo, as I want to correct the proofs before I leave.

II. BUSOGA.

During 1899 and 1900 much drought was experienced in Busoga, and in consequence there was a severe famine during the past year from which many died. There were registered as many as 4,800 deaths, but the Rev. S. R. Skeens says that 20,000 would be a low estimate. There was also much sickness, especially dysentery. A remarkable Mohammedan movement which overran the country affected the work of the Mission, though its character was rather political than religious. Its chief authors are said to be men who were concerned in the mutiny of 1897–98, and who, when that was quelled, fled from the country. Some thirty chiefs, great and small, declared themselves Mohammedans, influenced by the assurances of these men that Busoga was about to become an independent Mohammedan country, and influenced also, probably, by the fact that Mohammedanism sanctions polygamy.

A Mohammedan movement in Busoga.

Mr. A. Wilson came home in August, 1900, and the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead in December.

BUKALEBA.

The sickness in Busoga, to which reference has been made, especially affected the workers at BUKALEBA. It obliged the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead to come home invalided after an attack of blackwater fever; and it brought to Mr. and Mrs. W. G. S. Innes the loss of their child. One of the Roman Catholic fathers in the neighbourhood of Bukaleba, who was suffering from a severe attack of blackwater fever, was brought to the station and there watched over and nursed by Mr. and Mrs. Innes till his health was restored. Mr. Innes had a class of seven young men under training to be teachers, taking a six months' course in the first instance in certain books of the Old and New Testament, the Prayer-book, the Catechism, writing and arithmetic. They read daily till 3 p.m., after which they went out to visit neighbouring gardens and to read with and teach the peasants in their houses. At Kigwisa, the Rev. F. Rowling's old station, there is now a regular Sunday congregation. At Nanyumba's village the chief has given a site for a church. The Christians on the island of Bugaya were subjected to a severe test by the chief, who turned five of them out of their gardens and refused either to supply them with food or to permit them to leave the island. Mr. Innes' expostulations led the chief to restore their gardens. The Bavuma Islands, about twenty-five in number, which had maintained their independence of Uganda previously, were conquered in November, 1900, and six chiefs at once expressed a desire to receive teachers

Bukaleba.

Christians severely tested.

IGANGA.

The removal of the Government station to IGANGA from Bukaleba, mentioned in last year's Annual Report, led to considerable alterations in the place. There was much building, as all the most important chiefs of Busoga required a "town residence" there; new roads were made and markets opened. Better still, the telegraph line was brought to Iganga. The departure of Mr. A. Wilson for furlough in May, 1900, left the Rev. S. R. Skeens without a European companion. The congregation showed an improved attendance more than proportionate to the increase of the population of the town. The average more than doubled, from 102 to 240, and once the number even reached 1,220. This was on Christmas Day, 1900, when the collection consisted of a cow, several hoes for cultivating, fifteen bunches of bananas, eggs, sheep, and about 6,000 shells. The majority of these gifts were from Heathen, as the Christians only number 200. There was persecution, in some cases of a severe character. Mr. Skeens says:—

Cruel persecution of a woman.

Teachers and readers alike have been beaten. The women, however, are the chief sufferers in this respect. One woman near us recently was most cruelly treated by her chief. She left the church in the afternoon, after reading. On entering the village of the chief she was seized and held down, while he beat her with a piece of buffalo hide; he then drew a native dagger and stabbed her several times in the back. One would have thought that this would have sufficed his cruelty, but it did not. Taking burning sticks from the fire and blowing them into a white heat, he deliberately cauterized the flesh and wounds of the writhing victim, making a dreadful and large open wound. The woman is now with us, and slowly recovering. For the future we trust she will be allowed to read the Word of God in peace.

The out-stations number thirty-four. Budiope, the district which was under chief Gabula, who has been deposed, is now under his younger brother, Nadiope, an earnest catechumen. The new chief ordered total abstinence throughout his country from "bhang smoking" under penalties, and refused to allow any wine-drinking in his court. At Namendwa, which is under his jurisdiction, where, in 1899, there were thirty readers but no church, there is now a congregation of over 300 people under a resident teacher. The contributions of the Christians in North Busoga increased during the year from Rs. 12 to over Rs. 60.

A law enforcing total abstinence from bhang smoking.

III. BUNYORO.

Bunyoro has an area of about 4,000 square miles and a population of some 70,000, according to the statement of one of the missionaries. It was occupied for the first time in February, 1899, by the Rev. A. B. Fisher, who made his residence at Masindi, the capital. During the past year, however, Kawola, a town about thirty-three miles south-west of Masindi, was constituted the civil capital, while the older capital is to remain the military headquarters. There are about seventy baptized Christians in Bunyoro and thirty catechumens.

Masindi.

The Rev. A. B. Fisher was joined at Masindi, which is 130 miles from Mengo, by Mr. H. H. Farthing in October, 1899. In the summer of the following year, Mr. Fisher was transferred to Toro, and the Rev. C. H. T. Ecob succeeded him at this station. The work was much retarded, first by the pre-occupation of the chiefs and people, who were engaged in Government work, and second by the demand of the hut-tax from the teachers, obliging them to leave the work and earn the money by trading. Nevertheless, the congregation considerably increased, and the church, which holds 200, proved too small to accommodate those who attended the Sunday services. The building of a new church was in contemplation. The number of communicants at the close of 1900 was only eleven, of whom several had been instructed and confirmed in Uganda. Fifty adults altogether have been baptized at the station by the Rev. Tomasi Semfuma since he was placed there in 1899. At Ngogli there is a church with a Sunday attendance of eighty people.

The country lying between Masindi and the River Nile is occupied by the Bakedi tribe. Some work was commenced by Baganda teachers amongst these people at Foweira and Fajao, both on the Nile, but was relinquished at the former place because the supply of teachers ran short, and because of the scarcity of food at the latter.

KAWOLA.

Kawola.

KAWOLA is the centre for work in Western Bunyoro, which is thought to be more thickly populated than the eastern portion of the country. An influential and friendly chief resides there, and it has a large church capable of holding 500 people. The Muganda deacon, the Rev. N. Nakiwafu, is described by Mr. Farthing as a good, steadfast Christian. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lloyd arrived at this station in October, 1900.

IV. TORO.

Going forward "by leaps and bounds."

BISHOP TUCKER visited Toro in December, 1899, and again in December, 1900. After the former visit he reported the work as going forward "by leaps and bounds." The training of teachers was well in hand, with a view to the work of evangelization being done by those familiar with the language of the country (which is practically the same as that spoken in Bunyoro) rather than by men supplied by the Uganda Church. The Church Council also he found to be a real and increasing factor in the direction of the work; it held monthly meetings, and minutes were properly made of the proceedings; and it sent forth and supported the teachers. After his visit at the end of 1900 the Bishop wrote home:—

"Borne it all with a smile upon his face and a song upon his lips."

Through God's great mercy and goodness I have just completed my fourth visitation of Toro. It has been a time of most wonderful experience. As you know, it is only four and a half years since I baptized the first converts there, and yet on December 20th I was enabled to confirm 356 candidates—men and women. On Christmas Day, 428 communicants gathered at the Lord's Table. At the children's service held at the same time in another building some 600 came. Every week-day morning there assemble for instruction at least 1,000 souls. I was able to ordain as Deacon a man named Apolo Kivebulaya—a Muganda who has worked as a missionary in Toro for at least five years. The history of this man is a very remarkable one. He has suffered many things in the cause of God. He has been beaten, imprisoned, put in the chain-gang, had his house burnt down, all his property destroyed, and yet he has borne it all with a smile upon his face and a song upon his lips. To no one is Toro more indebted than to Apolo Kivebulaya.

While in Toro in December, 1899, the Bishop met a German trader who was on his way to the Aruwimi Forest (Stanley's "Great Forest") in order, if possible, to obtain some of the dwarf people, pygmies, inhabiting it, for the purpose of exhibiting them in Paris during the Exhibition. A few weeks later, after the Bishop had returned to Mengo, he learned that this so-called trader had arrived there in possession of nine pygmies. The Bishop secured evidence that the unfortunate creatures had been carried off by force, which he supplied to the Resident, Mr. Jackson. Sir Harry Johnston, the Special Commissioner, warmly espoused their cause, arrested the German, and took possession of the pygmies, whom a few months later he personally conducted to their forest home and restored to their own people. Sir H. Johnston states that these Congo dwarfs no longer speak an original language of their own, but talk in a slightly altered form the language of the negroes in whose land they dwell. All those whom he examined spoke either the Kibira, a debased form of Bantu speech which is widely spoken by the forest tribes between the Semliki and the Congo Rivers, or the Mbuka language, which is not Bantu but approximates more to the Soudan languages spoken to the north of the Bantu language field. But in speaking either language the dwarfs introduce curious "hiatuses" into their pronunciation, which bear strong resemblance to the "clicks" of Bushmen and Hottentots. Sir H. Johnston considered the Bantu dialects spoken by the Natives of the upper parts of the Ruwenzori of the greatest interest as throwing light on the origin of the Bantu languages. While in the neighbourhood, he ascended Mount Ruwenzori to a height of 14,800 feet. He reached snow lying at 13,000 feet, and permanent snow at 13,500 feet.

The Bishop instrumental in preventing deportation of pygmies.

Language of the Congo dwarfs.

A conference of the native teachers engaged in Toro was held at Kabarole from August 13th to 18th, 1900, when forty-three attended. On the 13th all were entertained at a native feast, Kasagama, the king, being amongst the guests. The Rev. A. B. Fisher wrote of the proceedings :—

Conference of native teachers.

> On Tuesday we had an address by Mr. Maddox on the spiritual life, followed by Holy Communion for teachers only and workers, when some eighty-five communicated. At the evening meeting we discussed the best way of winning the Heathen—visiting, &c. Apolo was fine, and all pledged themselves to constant visiting from house to house in gardens. On Wednesday morning we discussed the best kind of service to hold for the Heathen. After the meeting had become impregnated with the conviction that to simply read right through the Prayer-book was beating the air and turning the Heathen away, we marched into the children's centre, Miss Pike's school, and Mr. Maddox tried a model service lasting about one hour, which consisted of (a) hymn and explanation, (b) General Confession and Lord's Prayer, (c) hymn and explanation, (d) portion of God's Word and explanation, (e) Creed and hymn, (f) prayer and address. The teachers were all greatly impressed with the service, and the school certainly enjoyed and answered the questions very well. A little paper was afterwards given to each teacher to remind him of the order,

A model service.

At 2 p.m. our subject was, "The necessity of first preaching the Gospel to the Heathen, and not waiting until they can read it for themselves." On Thursday morning our subject was "Prayer." In the evening we located new teachers and discussed the needs of the country. On Friday we presented each teacher with a copy of ten Lunyoro hymns and taught them the tunes. We also gave them hints as to organizing work in the gardens. In the evening we fitted them out with books, paper, cloth, &c., and on Saturday said farewell. We are looking for great blessings as a result of the conference, and I feel quite certain we shall not be disappointed.

Apolo (now the Rev. A. Kivebulaya) to whose house many of the others resorted during the intervals of the conference services and meetings, reported that several of the teachers received much blessing.

Mr. H. E. Maddox was married at Mengo to Miss B. Taylor, of this Mission, on January 30th, 1901.

At the beginning of 1900, Mr. H. E. Maddox was the only European missionary at KABAROLE, and he remained so until May, when, on the 11th, the first two ladies to reside in Toro —Miss E. C. Pike and Miss R. Hurditch—arrived, and a few weeks later the Rev. A. B. Fisher joined the party. Miss Hurditch thus described the reception which Miss Pike and she had on their arrival :— Kabarole.

As we drew nearer and were three hours' walk from our destination, a few teachers and others came to prepare us for the reception that awaited us, and informed us that the women of Toro were congregated just behind our next hill. We little guessed what an army lay entrenched there. As we approached, one moving mass of fluttering white and crimson gowns came bearing down upon us, rushing, clapping their hands, and shrieking. Then crowds of black arms were thrown wildly round our necks. We talked as well as we could to them, but our progress was slow, as every now and again they stopped us and repeated their demonstrations. Over the next hill the male force had rallied, and here a no less hearty though more formal welcome awaited us. We made for the church, which was crowded, and a few impromptu prayers and hymns of praise went up on our behalf. The arrival in Toro of the first European ladies.

The ladies were chiefly occupied in language study, but they took part in the work as far as possible, and greatly encouraged and stimulated the native women workers and attended to some dispensary cases. Dr. J. H. Cook, of Mengo, visited Kabarole about the same time as the ladies arrived, and saw a large number of patients, about 160 a day. King Daudi Kasagama, his wife, the Namasole, the Katikiro, and all the leading chiefs who were in the capital were treated for some ailment or other. The doctor wrote :—"The more one sees of the king the more one admires his simple, open-hearted, true Christian life, and his influence in Toro, we hear, is untold." Mr. Maddox visited Kitagwenda at Easter, 1900, and the Rev. A. Nkangali baptized on that occasion the first converts of that place and of the province in which it is situated. He also visited Mboga, and returned thence to Kabarole through the country of the Baamba, on the western side of the Ruwenzori Mountains, and placed a teacher there. The king's good influence.

The Rev. C. H. T. Ecob was transferred from BUTITI to Bunyoro in the summer of 1900, as already stated.

V. NKOLE.

MENTION was made in last year's Annual Report of Bishop Tucker's visit to Nkole, the country to the west of Koki, in December, 1899. He went there from Rakai, and reached Lulembo. LULEMBO, the capital, after a march of five days through very lovely scenery. The king of Nkole, Kiwaya, belongs to the Bahuma race, but many of the people, especially in the north, are of Bunyoro extraction, and are cultivators of the soil. The Bishop's interview with Kiwaya is thus described:—

The capital like a huge cattle kraal.

Certainly our first view of the native capital of Nkole was disappointing, to say the least. It is little better than a huge cattle-kraal. The king and his dependents live inside the kraal with the cattle. The lodging of his majesty is not much better than that of his herds. A thorn boma surrounds the whole enclosure. Happily our tents had been pitched, not inside the king's kraal, but in the enclosure of the Katikiro, some three or four hundred yards away. The Katikiro is a "progressive," and had built his house after the Uganda model. We were therefore fairly comfortable. In a little while a messenger came from the king to say that he was about to visit us. We awaited his coming with no little interest. Much, humanly speaking, depended on the issue of our meeting. Our object, of course, was to gain an entrance for the Gospel of Christ into Nkole. It was therefore our first work to try to get permission for our two Koki evangelists to remain amongst them to preach and teach the way of salvation. We told them how that the Gospel is good for both worlds—this and the next—"having the promise of the life which now is, and also of that which is to come." Baguta and the king agreed that no doubt that which we told them was true—but—there was great hunger in the land, and it would be difficult to support the two teachers. Would it not be better for them to go away and come back again in three months' time, when there would be an abundance of food? Our teachers, Andereya and Philipo, both agreed that they were prepared to endure a little hardness, even a little starvation. Would the king provide them with milk?—they would be content with that. The king was doubtful whether it was possible. "What!" I exclaimed, "the king of a great country like Nkole unable to supply two men with milk twice a day!" The thing was impossible to imagine. After a great deal of discussion it was agreed to receive the teachers and to give them milk morning and evening until the food famine was over. In the meanwhile food would be sent in from Koki, from the garden of Andereya, who is a Koki chief. The struggle was a prolonged one. First one excuse and then another was brought forward, only to be met and combated by our two evangelists. They showed an immense amount of intelligence and wit in dealing with Teachers allowed to remain. Baguta, and finally gained the day. It was agreed that they should remain, and the king would build them both a house in which to live and a place in which to teach. So far the victory was won. But the next day the struggle was renewed. The king and Baguta came to see us in the afternoon, and re-opened the question by asking whether it was not possible to postpone the commencement of our work until the harvest. Inch by inch the ground was fought over again until darkness came on and it was agreed to let the original arrangement stand—and so we parted.

On his way northward to Toro the Bishop was instrumental, through the British Sub-Commissioner of Nkole, Mr. MacAllister, in restoring to her own country a woman who had been kidnapped from Busoga by a party of Mohammedan Baganda some three years before.

When the Rev. H. Clayton, of Rakai, visited Nkole in September, 1900, he found that the king had built a small church near his house, which was used for the first time during his visit. The king expressed a willingness to be taught. Regarding Baguta, the Prime Minister, Mr. Clayton wrote:— King willing to be taught.

> Baguta, the Prime Minister, and one or two other chiefs with some of their followers seem really keen to learn. Baguta had to go off the other day on a small fighting expedition, and got one of the Koki teachers to go with him that he might be able to go on with his reading during the intervals of business.

The Rev. A. Muyinda visited Nkole at the close of the year, and related at a missionary meeting which he addressed at Ngogwe, his former station, his experiences. The Rev. G. K. Baskerville writes:—

> When Aloni got to Nkole he saw a large church in front of the king's enclosure. He did not know that we had any teachers, but on inquiring was directed to their house. They are people of Koki; he promptly called on them. After he had been there a few days the Prime Minister came, bringing all his charms and fetishes to the teacher, saying he wished to give them all up. The teacher arranged to bring them up to the church, so that every one might see them burnt, as many of the peasants think we keep these charms in order to benefit ourselves. Arrived at the church, the king heard of it, and came himself and gave orders for the burning to be in his courtyard, and he sat out there with all his big chiefs. The people as soon as the fire was started began bringing their charms, and there was soon an almost universal moving towards the fire, which was kept going half the day. Then the Prime Minister stood up and said that he was afraid these people were only following his example—they had better think over it—he had given up his freely; but all said they did not want any time for thinking, they had resolved to be taught. Presently the king, Kiwaya, himself brought his charms. Charms and fetishes burned.

The Rev. J. J. Willis, one of the past year's recruits, was located to LULEMBO.

VI. USUKUMA.

MR. A. WHITEHOUSE came home on furlough in November, 1900. The staff which the Rev. J. W. Purser, as stated last year, reinforced at NASSA in December, 1899, consisted of the Rev. F. H. Wright and Mr. A. Whitehouse. A fortnight after Mr. Purser's arrival the former left to take furlough. Mr. Purser visited Mengo in the summer in order to be admitted to Priests' Orders. During his absence the late Rev. Martin J. Hall paid a brief visit to Nassa, crossing the lake in his new boat. Mr. Purser returned in August, accompanied by Mr. H. O. Savile and Mr. K. E. Borup (the latter on a brief visit), and immediately afterwards Mr. Whitehouse crossed the lake to come home on furlough, and Mr. Hall left at the same time. The particulars, so far as they are known, of Mr. Hall's death by drowning Nassa.

The Rev. Martin J. Hall's grave.

have been stated above (page 129). Mr. Purser and Mr. Savile visited the place where the body was found and erected a cross and stones over the grave.

The people at Nassa attended Divine service both on Sundays and week-days in good numbers—about 400 on Sundays—but it was not found possible to induce the adults to join classes for the purpose of learning to read. The king himself attends the Sunday services, but he is suspected of secretly opposing the people from seeking baptism, though a few young men are inquirers, including an apparently serious-minded headman of safaris (porters). The heir-apparent and his brother are learning to read.

Mr. Borup, of Mengo, during his brief stay at the south side of the lake in August, visited Usambiro, the scene of Mr. Alexander Mackay's last years of labour and of his death. He wrote:—

"Bwana Makaya."

"It was very interesting to talk to the people who came to see me in camp. Many of them remembered all of our five brethren who sleep in that lonely burying-place at Usambiro, but the one who seemed to have impressed himself most upon their minds was Mr. Mackay. They nearly all remember "Bwana Makaya," as they call him.

A visit to Usambiro.

On Saturday, August 11th, I visited our old Mission station at Usambiro. There is not very much left of it; a few of the pillars of the workshop are still standing, and the boiler which Mackay was making is lying there also. My object in visiting Usambiro was to try and bring that boiler away with me; however, I found it too heavy to take away in canoes, and it would require a larger dhow than is at present afloat on Lake Victoria to take it. The graves are in good order, but the living fence which surrounds them has suffered from grass fires.

MOHAMMEDAN LANDS.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: first, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, second, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mohammedan can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

Cautions expressed by the Prime Minister.

THE important speech made by the Marquis of Salisbury at the Bicentenary Meeting of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel on June 19th, 1900, to which reference has already been made (see supra, pages 16, 17), alluded to some dangers attending the carrying on of missionary work among Mohammedans, and expressed some cautions. The dangers are rarely absent from the thoughts of those responsible for the initiation and administration of Missions to the followers of Islam, and the cautions of the Prime Minister were welcomed for their wisdom and welcomed gratefully for the tone of sympathy in which they were spoken. Lord Salisbury said :—

I have pointed out to you how difficult it is to persuade other nations that the missionary is not an instrument of the secular Government. It is infinitely more difficult in the case of the Mohammedan. He cannot believe that those who are preaching the Gospel against the religion of Mohammed are not incited thereto and protected therein and governed in their action by the secular Government of England with which they are connected. Many warnings have reached me. Those warnings are always exaggerated, and I do not attach much importance to them; but still careless action on the part of British missionaries in a Mohammedan country may, without any moral fault on their part, light a flame which it will be hard for them to suppress. You must not imagine that all politicians are simply regardless of the higher interests of their race; but the politicians see closely the dangers which those who do not examine so carefully will perhaps not appreciate so entirely; and I earnestly urge, not as a political matter, but as an element of Christian duty and as a condition of giving the highest position in the world to the religion which they adore, that those who carry on Missions should abstain from all appearance of any attempted violence in their religion, and abstain, if possible, from undue publicity wherever that construction is very likely to be placed upon their acts. I am conscious of the enormous difficulty to a pure man's conscience which this question will impose upon him. But yet it is a great and serious danger, and, having had this opportunity of speaking to you, I did not like to pass it by. I will only urge you to remember that the world, however slowly (and I am afraid that at this moment it is very slowly), is travelling to the point where the government of all races will be done, not by organized force but by regulated and advancing public opinion; and that you have in your hands one of the most powerful and one of the most sacred levers that ever acted upon opinion, and that it will be dependent not only on the zeal but also on the wisdom and Christian prudence with which you work that instrument whether the great results which we all pray for will be achieved.

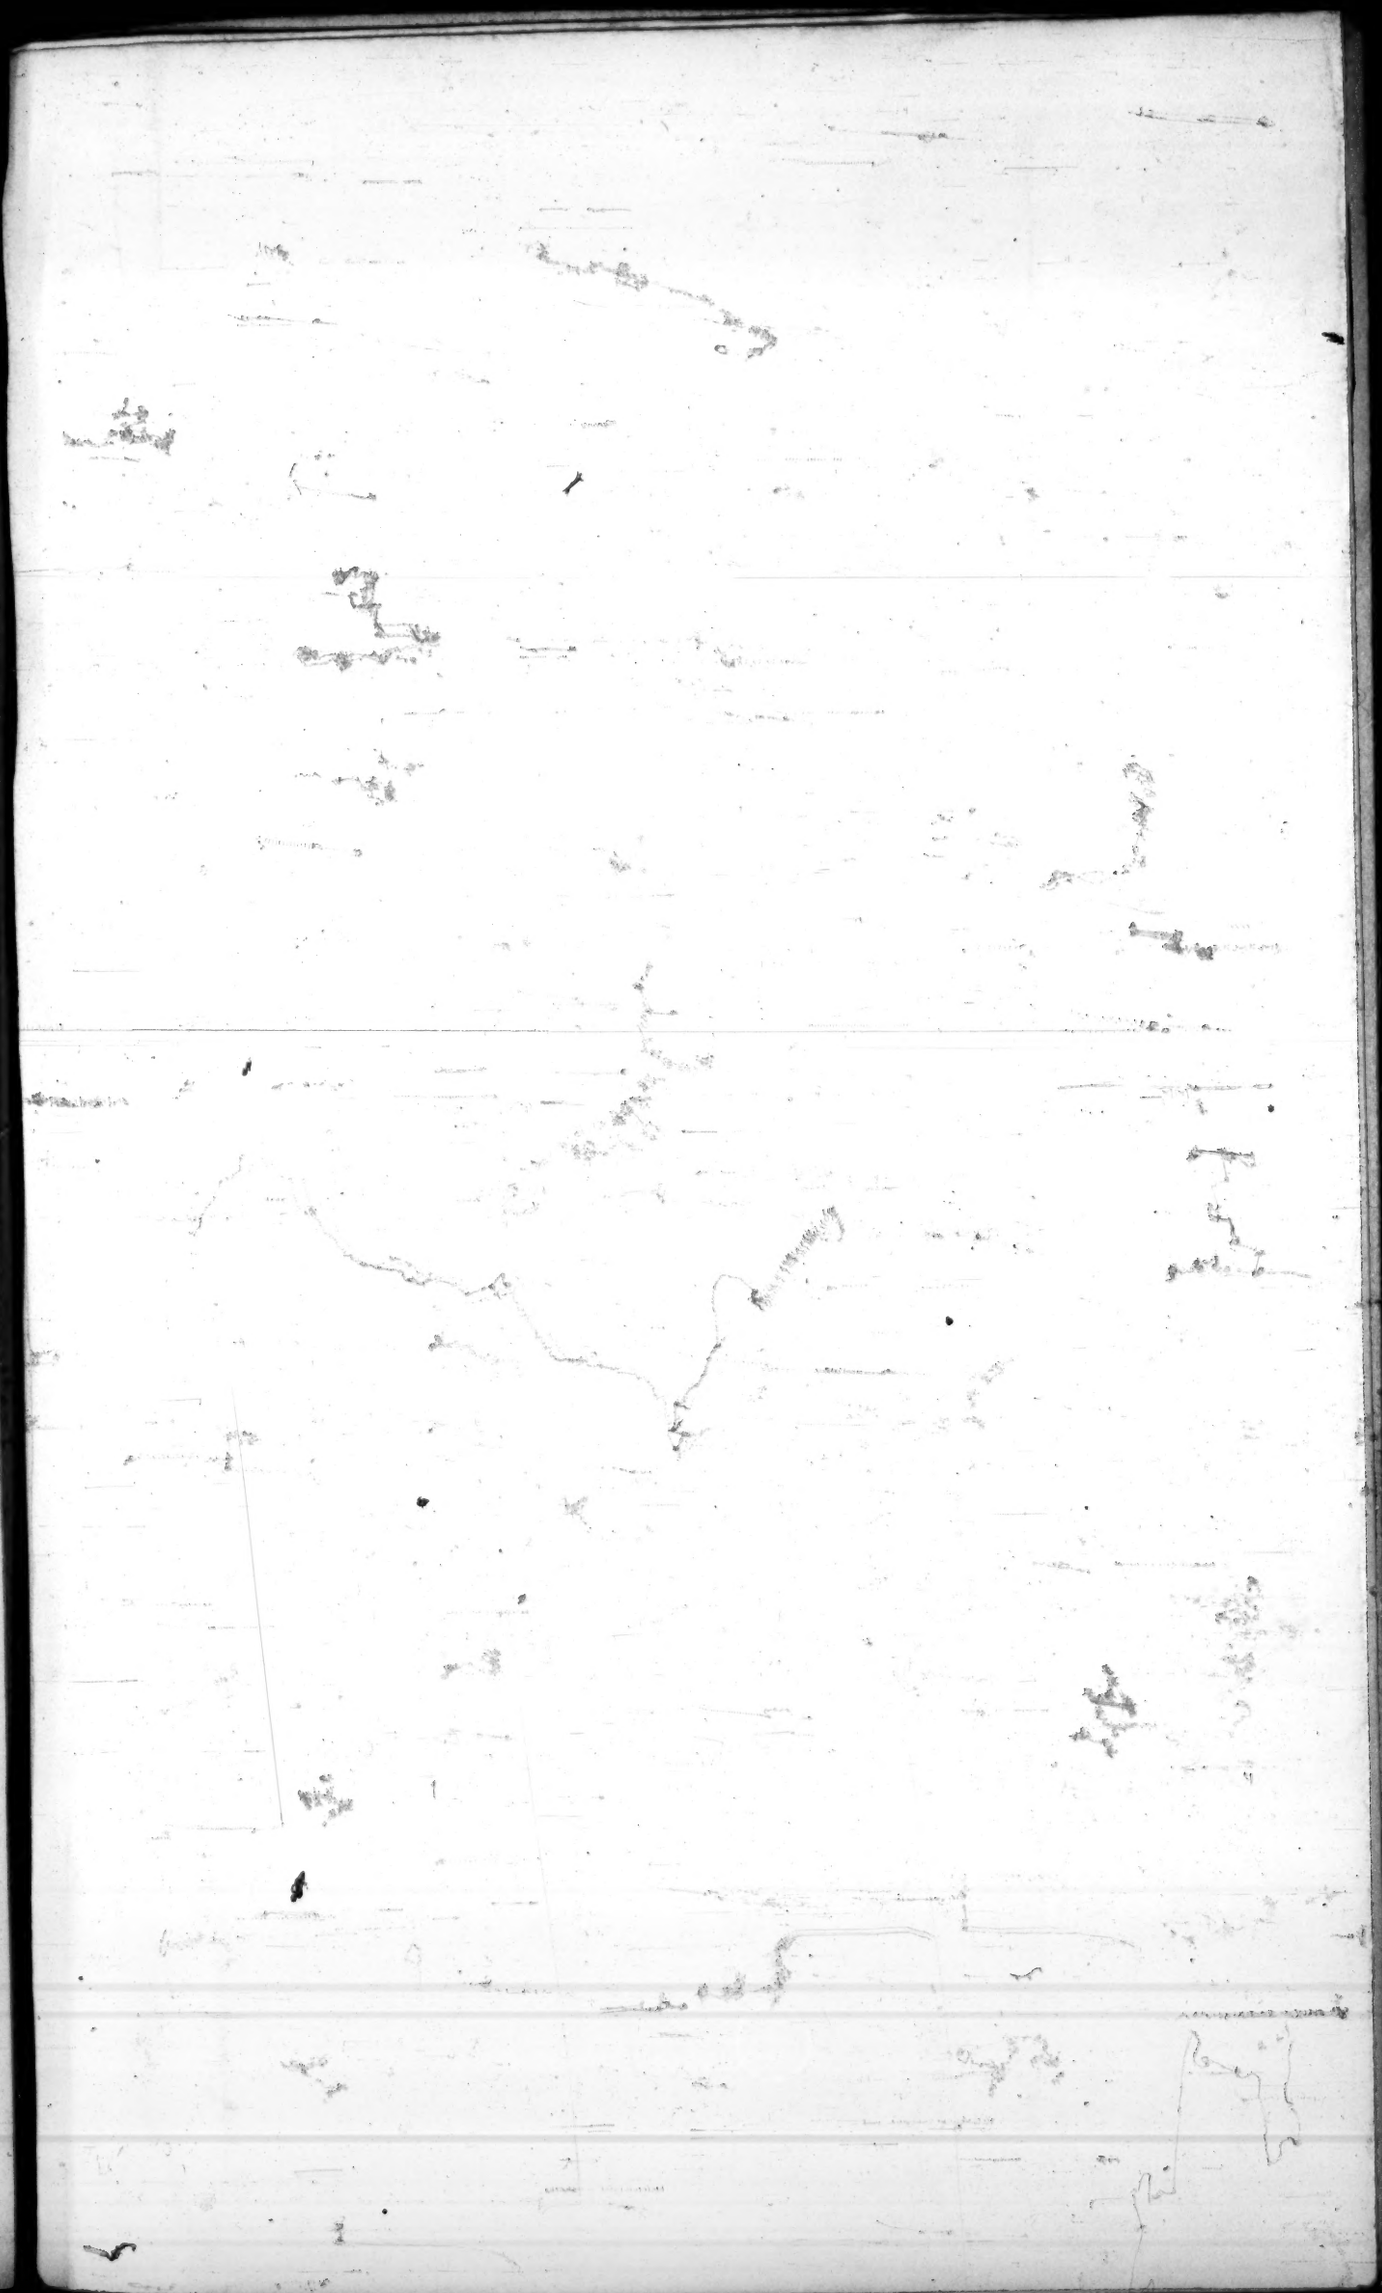
The Gospel a most powerful lever.

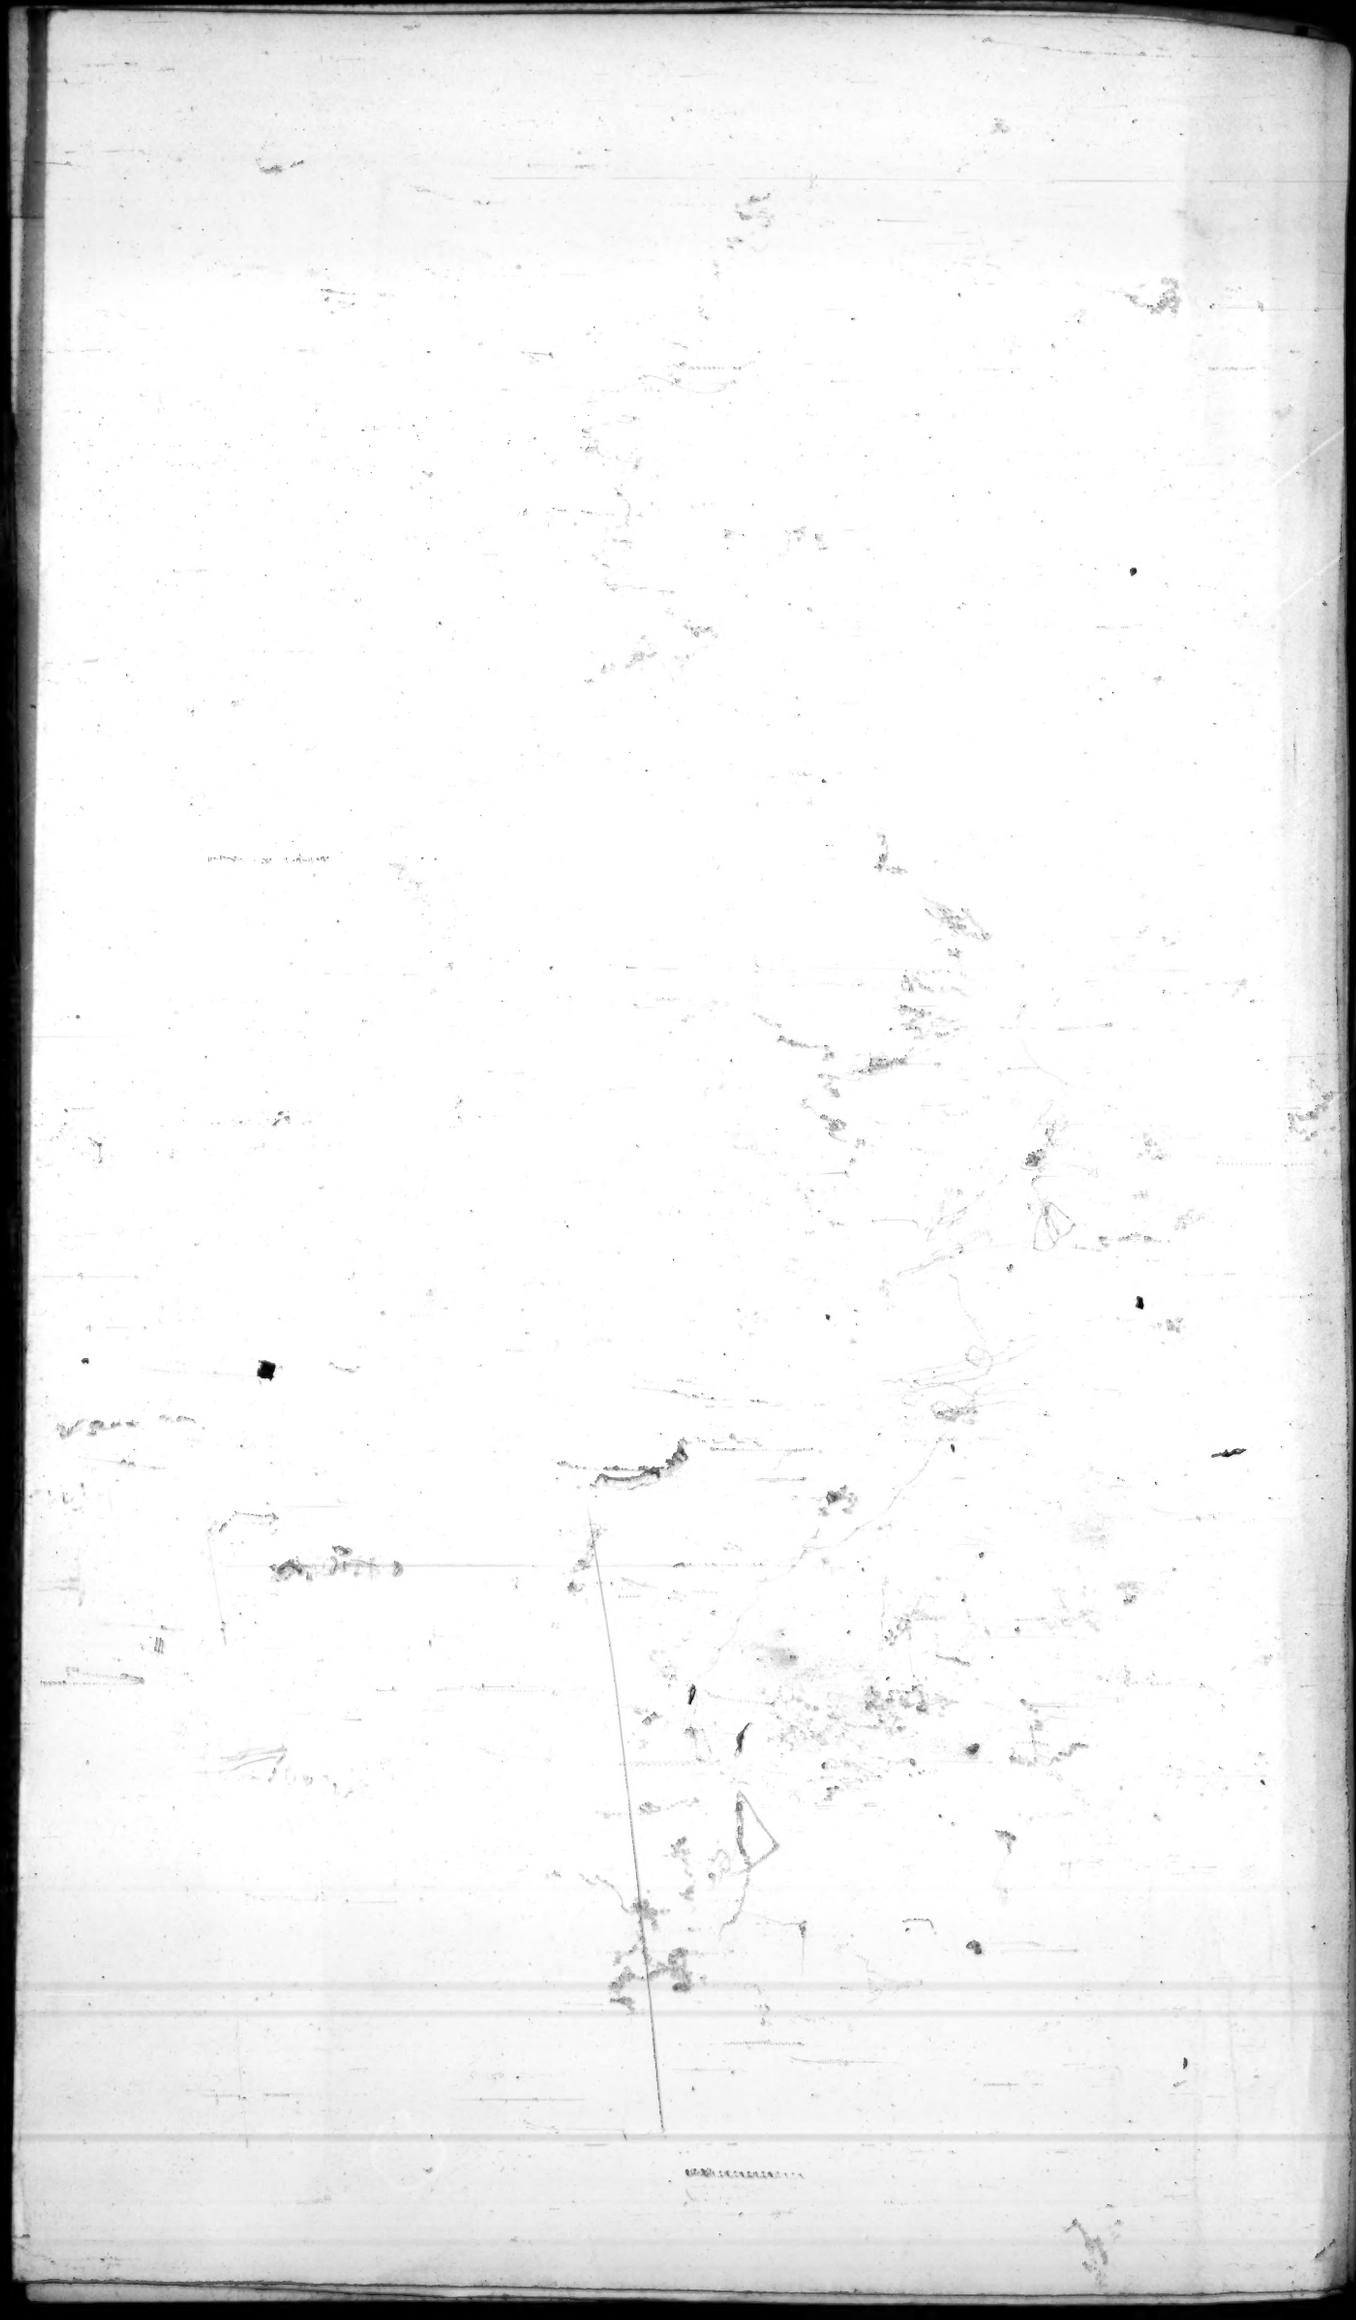
The closing words of the above extract, with which the speech concluded, are particularly gratifying to the friends of Missions, acknowledging as they do the potency of the Gospel as a "sacred lever" capable of elevating society and regulating and advancing public opinion. It is no small gain that the Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs—as Lord Salisbury was at that time—of Great Britain, whose empire contains so large a proportion of the Mohammedan population of the world, should publicly recognize that the State has very much to gain in Mohammedan lands as elsewhere from the labours of those to whom this mighty regenerating instrument is entrusted.

The Sources of the Koran.

An important book, bearing on the Moslem's rule of faith, has lately been issued in the Persian language for the S.P.C.K. by the Punjab Religious Book Society. Its name is Yanābī 'ul Islam ("The Sources of the Koran"), and its writer is the Rev. W. St. Clair Tisdall, of the Society's Persia Mission. The book shows first how many of the rites and ceremonies of the Koran were borrowed from the Pagan Arabs; then it proceeds to show how much was borrowed from Judaism and from the early Christian heresies; and thirdly, carrying the research into much less explored fields, its indebtedness is proved to Zoroastrianism and other ancient religions. The writer's unusual, not to say extraordinary, knowledge of languages enabled him to pursue these researches, and no fewer than eighteen languages, including Pahlavi, Armenian, Assyrian, Arabic, Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, afford quotations, all which Mr. Tisdall has translated into Persian. In a review of the book by Sir William Muir in the Nineteenth Century of December, 1900, the reviewer says, "If it can be shown that much of the Koran can be traced to human and unworthy sources existing round about the Prophet, then Islam falls to the ground. And this is what the author proves with marvellous power and erudition." "The Sources," Sir William adds, "is a noble work, and reflects high distinction on the writer." Another of the Society's missionaries, the Rev. E. Sell, B.D., of Madras, has published, under the title Essays on Islam, articles on some of the sects and offshoots of Mohammedanism. One of these essays, on "The Status of the Zimmis," appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer of May, 1901. A Zimmi is a non-Moslem subject of a Mohammedan government, a Jew or a Christian, who enjoys security of person and property on payment of a poll or capitation tax. Mr. Sell gives some striking quotations from the faton, or judicial opinions of the Ulama on the subject, and concludes that it is unreasonable to suppose that an active, industrious people, like the Armenians, for example, will be for ever content to exist in the status of the Zimmis.

"The Status of the Zimmis."





EGYPT MISSION.

The Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy and one Bishop were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small, and the work was discontinued in 1862. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A Medical Mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year.

Visit of the Khedive to England.

THE visit of Abbas Pasha Hilmi, the Khedive of Egypt, to England in the summer of 1900 was an event of happy augury for the land over which he rules, inasmuch as it both afforded a demonstration of the close relations of unity which exist between himself and the British Government and also tended to cement those relations in a still closer bond of co-operation for the welfare of Egypt. The Hon. Sir John Scott, who was Judge and afterwards Vice-President of the International Court of Appeal in Egypt from 1874–82, and Judicial Adviser to the Khedive from 1890–98, has borne strong testimony to the sincere interest which Abbas II. takes in the welfare of his people, and especially in the administration of justice. In an interview with Sir John the Khedive told him that "after much hesitation he had made up his mind that English rule for his country was the best; that the people were happier, less taxed, better supplied with water, and there was no difference made in the administration of justice between the rich and the poor." All noteworthy admissions for an Oriental ruler, and exceedingly creditable to his spirit of patriotism.

The Government's attitude towards Missions in the Soudan.

It must be wished by those who long for the spread of Christ's Gospel among the Mohammedan inhabitants of Egypt that the Government of the country may be led ere long to apply the same liberal and enlightened policy in the sphere of religious toleration which has been so successfully pursued in the departments of finance and of justice. A strict impartiality is doubtless the correct attitude for a Government like that of Egypt, whose subjects are divided in their religious profession. Such an attitude is not consistent, however, with the system of education which provides schools for the Mohammedans in which the Koran is diligently taught, but provides none in which the Bible is taught, although the Coptic Christians number one-tenth of the population. The conscience clause, it is true, enables Christian parents to withdraw their children from instruction in the tenets of Islam, but they are still left at a great disadvantage as compared with their Mohammedan neighbours. The prohibition of missionary work among Mohammedans in the Egyptian Soudan is also inconsistent with neutrality, which requires strict fairness and toleration of all religions alike. The history of the Punjab proves indisputably that Mohammedans respect rulers who are Christians, and avow it, and who, while scrupulously just to all, do not conceal their desire that those they rule over should enjoy the blessings of Christianity. That the Mohammedans of Egypt do not differ in this respect from their co-religionists in India is evidenced by the significant fact that the man who exercised the greatest influence that any European has ever succeeded in gaining over the people of the Nile valley was a man who never concealed his desire that all the world should be Christian, and who, before he last went to Khartoum, visited Archbishop Temple, then Bishop of Exeter, to ask him whether he himself would be justified, if he could not get a clergyman to do it, in baptizing people of whose acceptance of Christian truth he was fully satisfied. The special correspondent of the Times, Mr. Arnold Ward, concluded a series of articles on "The Opening of the Soudan," which appeared during the spring of 1900, with these words:—

The late General Gordon and Mohammedan converts.

> It was the followers of the Mahdi who murdered Gordon. It was the Mahdi whose tomb and body we destroyed. It was to heal this feud, to atone for all this violence, to bear the reconciling Christian message to the Mahdists, that the missionaries sought to enter the Soudan. It is this work that they have been forbidden to attempt. It is to be hoped that the Government may eventually see its way to modifying this prohibition. In return it might exact a promise from the various societies that, in view of the delicate situation in the Soudan, no one should be sent out who had not some previous experience of Oriental peoples. For it is true, and it is no use disguising the fact, that much is to be feared from the indiscretions of inexperienced zealots. Nothing is to be gained by martyrdoms or by the rousing of fanatical opposition. But these dangers are more than counterbalanced by the value of the indirect example of men inspired by Christian ideas, leading devoted lives in the midst of a degraded population like that of the Soudan. The value of missionaries to a State lies not in the proselytes whom they convert, but in the lives they lead. A Government must be strong and self-reliant indeed if it can afford to order such men out of its dominions. It will be stronger still when it allows them to return.

Value of missionaries as a moral and social force in a country.

The Rev. F. F. Adeney is the Secretary of the Mission. He and Mrs. Adeney came home in July, 1900, and Mrs. Bywater in June, all three returning to the Mission in October. Dr. F. O. Lasbrey came home in December, 1900, and Miss H. Adeney in March, 1901. On the other hand, Mrs. F. J. Harpur and Mrs. A. C. Hall sailed to rejoin their husbands in December, 1900, the former in Old Cairo and the latter at Omdurman.

CAIRO.

Cairo.

The missionaries labouring at CAIRO during the whole or part of the year under review were the Rev. and Mrs. F. F. Adeney (who reside, however, at Helouan), the Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Thornton, the Revs. W. H. T. Gairdner and R. MacInnes (the latter only since the autumn), Mrs. and Miss J. E. B. Bywater, Miss H. Adeney (now at home), Miss M. J. Greer, and Miss G. M. Western.

The Boys' School was under Mr. Thornton's supervision until October, when Mr. Gairdner took temporary charge. It has 100 boys, taught by six Christian teachers. Four of the boys passed the Government Primary Certificate Examination, the first passes obtained direct from the school. Mr. Thornton held a weekly Bible-class for the teachers. The year was one of steady improvement in the Girls' Boarding-school under Miss J. E. B. Bywater and Miss M. J. Greer, and also one of spiritual blessing. The number of boarders went up to thirty, nearly half of whom were Mohammedans. The two girls who were mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 147) as under preparation for baptism were baptized on Easter Day, 1900. They are sisters, and received the names of Phœbe and Elizabeth. The elder of them, who suffers from epilepsy, is learning the type for the blind in order to teach it. The other sister is also preparing to be a teacher. A sister of the convert named Lydia, who was baptized in November, 1898 (see Annual Report for 1898–99, page 130), was under preparation for baptism when the Annual Letters were written. A missionary working-party was commenced in the school at the beginning of 1900. Eight of the girls are members of the Scripture Union. Miss Greer, accompanied by Lydia, visited the parents of the girls, and was much cheered by the eagerness of one woman to hear the Gospel Message. This woman attended the church somewhat regularly until she was obliged to remove to a distance when the ladies lost sight of her. The work of Visiting the Women was especially the sphere of Miss H. Adeney, who with her Bible-woman read on an average with over seventy women weekly throughout the year. For the most part their visits were cordially welcomed. On one occasion, while Miss Adeney was engaged in reading the story of "the Nobleman's Son" to a group of women, a man came by belonging to the class who gain their livelihood by going from house to house reciting chapters of the Koran. He took the Gospel from Miss Adeney's hand, read the story aloud, and then passed on without a word of warning or reproach to the women. Miss Adeney had a Sunday class of Fellaheen, but their attendance was irregular and they were very restless. The Rev. F. F. Adeney sends an account of the Book Depôt, which continues to be a centre of light. Bibles and portions to the number of 775 were sold there, and 524 by the colporteur elsewhere. About 1,000 other books and tracts on Christian subjects or on the Moslem controversy were also sold. Two editions of 5,000 each of the Sermon on the Mount having been sold or given away, a third edition was printed. A tract called Christ or Mahomet —Which? was sent by a member of the Egypt Village Mission to all the chief men of the country and created a considerable stir. Numerous copies were applied for and purchased by Mohammedans out of curiosity.

Evangelistic Work.

There were encouragements in the direct Evangelistic Work among the men. After the holidays, before resuming work, a "quiet day" was observed, and special blessing on the efforts to be put forth to enlighten the Moslems of Egypt was asked for. And blessings were given. The meetings in the school court were increased in number. Lantern services on Sunday evenings appeared to exercise a marked influence. Inquirers came forward nearly every week. A class for catechumens, consisting of a Syrian, an Arab, and an Egyptian, asked that a second class might be held weekly for Bible reading and prayer. Two of the above three catechumens were baptized on Easter Even, 1901. For them the familiar prayer of our Litany is likely to have peculiar force: "Graciously hear us, that those evils, which the craft and subtilty of the devil or man worketh against us, be brought to nought; and by the providence of Thy goodness they may be dispersed; that we Thy servants, being hurt by no persecutions, may evermore give thanks unto Thee in Thy Holy Church."

OLD CAIRO.

Old Cairo Hospital.

Dr. A. C. Hall was in charge of the Hospital at OLD CAIRO until December, 1900, when he exchanged places with Dr. Harpur, and went up the Nile to Omdurman. Dr. Hall had the assistance of Dr. F. O. Lasbrey (now at home) and of a large staff of missionary nurses, namely, the Misses L. Crowther, F. M. Sells, L. E. D. Braine-Hartnell, and E. K. Brown. The catechist, Athanasius, also spent most of his afternoons among the in-patients. Of the dispensary patients, one was the wife of a sheikh who teaches in a Mohammedan school. This man, as a token of his gratitude, brought his scholars to a Sunday-school held by Miss L. Crowther. A new dispensary has been built with funds sent out by the Paddington C.M. Association. The medical work was instrumental in creating an opening at Rhod-el-Farag, which Dr. Hall began to visit in January, 1900. At first the people were shy and suspicious, and he had not more than fourteen patients, but they soon went up to over 150.

Efforts to build a church.

The Services are held in one of the waiting-rooms of the hospital, but the congregation, which is chiefly composed of those who, directly or indirectly, are in the employ of the Mission, are making an effort to build a church. The Rev. J. L. Macintyre mentions a few instances of self-denying effort in this behalf. A young teacher gave half her first month's salary towards the fund; the head of a large household earned 25*s.* by making bread and selling it; and a blind girl knitted socks and sold them for the same object. In these ways and others some £60 was obtained towards a site and building. Miss Cay had a weekly class for instructing the women, a larger number of whom now attend the services; and Miss Waller had a Sunday-school of some dozen girls, most of them daughters of Christians.

The Boys' School suffered from unavoidable changes in the staff of teachers, and consequently made no perceptible progress. The Girls' School moved into new quarters in the midst of the Moslem part of the city during the past year. Frequently passers-by were noticed stopping to listen as the thirty or forty girls repeated texts together or sang Christian hymns. Some of the pupils were drawn away by an opposition school, but the marked inferiority of the teaching soon made them discontented and wishful to return. Miss E. F. Waller considers that the desire for the education of girls is steadily, though slowly, increasing. Some of these young children manifest a desire to become Christians. One of them plaintively said, "I cannot go to heaven without my mother. Let her be taught too." The Villages near Old Cairo are visited on Saturday afternoons during the cooler months. Miss Crowther mentions an old woman in one of them who confesses herself a Christian before her Moslem neighbours. She remarked one day, "My love for Him comes from the bottom of my heart, for He is my Mediator and Advocate in the day of judgment, and, if I do not trust and love Him, to whom shall I go?"

"I cannot go to heaven without my mother."

"I love Him from the bottom of my heart."

THE EGYPTIAN SOUDAN.

Of the several works of magnitude which the Government of the Egyptian Soudan has undertaken, that of rebuilding the cities which the Dervishes had destroyed or had allowed to decay is not the least considerable. Khartoum is by far the most important of these cities, and its reconstruction involves the transference of the seat of government from the Dervish city of Omdurman. The special correspondent of the Times thus described the new city at the beginning of 1900:—

Restoration of Khartoum.

> The whole city has been laid out on a metropolitan scale. The river front along the banks of the Blue Nile is more than three miles long; the depth inland is nearly a mile and a half. The public buildings lie along the river bank. At the extreme south-east the Gordon Memorial College, a large red-brick structure with shady galleries and porticos, covering three sides of a square, has far outstripped its scholars, and in a few months it will be ready for work. In the centre of the lines, on the exact site of Gordon's palace, rises the palace of the Governor-General, now practically completed. It is a handsome Venetian-looking red-brick edifice, with white stone arcadings and ogives; the façade overlooks the river; the open court, flanked by two wings, looks out over the city across a spacious garden, in which there still flourish a few of the old palms and lemon trees of Gordon's day. Further north-west are other large buildings which will soon be finished, the Government offices, and the supply and ordnance stores. The road in front of them will be flanked throughout by a stone river-wall. Parallel with this imposing river front run several long avenues—Sirdar's Avenue, Victoria Avenue, Shâsia Cromer. These are regularly crossed by main streets not less than ninety feet wide.

The blocks thus formed are further intersected by diagonals, the cross-roads forming the keypoints of the city for purposes of defence in such a way that four Maxim guns could control the whole interior of the city. Near the north-east corner of the river front there is being rapidly built by British capital the hotel which at the end of their long desert journey will receive the weary visitors to the capital of the Soudan. Nearer the centre of the town are the shops, restricted to the quarter round the "sook" or bazaar, and close at hand a covered market on Indian models is about to be built in "Abbas Square." A mosque and an English church are also to be erected at Government expense, and the Christian cemetery of the Austrian Mission, which had been utterly wrecked by the fury of the Dervishes, has been restored and the gravestones replaced by Colonel Drage's care. Outside all these buildings, on the desert front, a line of defensible barracks with redoubts will be drawn along the narrow arc from Nile to Nile.

The Society has secured an excellent site on the river front for a missionary hospital. The Rev. Ll. H. Gwynne, with the Committee's permission, accepted temporarily the chaplaincy to the troops at Khartoum at the close of the year, and moved thither from Omdurman. At the latter place Dr. Harpur was succeeded by Dr. A. C. Hall, accompanied by Mrs. Hall, in December.

Journey up the Blue Nile.

Five weeks were spent by Dr. Harpur and the Mr. Gwynne during the spring of 1900 in a visit to Senaar, 97 miles from Omdurman, up the Blue Nile. They started on March 26th in a hired boat, 35 feet long by 15 feet broad, drawing 18 inches of water, but it was often difficult to find a channel even with this light draft, as the Nile was then at its lowest. The heat was very great, as high as 112 degrees at one time. They reached Senaar on April 17th. The place is now a ruin, having been destroyed by the Dervishes. The greater part of the return journey from Wad Medani to Omdurman, a distance of 105 miles, was made by land on donkeys, and, except for wild beasts, travelling seemed as safe as in Egypt itself. Dr. Harpur exercised his medical skill in several villages. He wrote at the conclusion of the return journey:—

Desert travelling as safe as in Egypt.

After what we have seen of the earnest efforts of our British officers to administer justice and relieve the sufferings of the people committed to their care, we cannot but feel that a brighter day is dawning on the Soudan, and that, however indirectly, the influence of Christianity is already being brought to bear upon its people.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif, 1892; Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh, 1894; Kerak, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their work among Mohammedan women has been greatly blessed. In 1899 the work of the late Female Education Society at Bethlehem and Shefamer was taken over by the Society. Medical Missions also have done much to diminish prejudice. The first Mission hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, Salt, and Kerak have been made centres of medical missionary work.

Increasing prosperity of Palestine.

THE growing popularity of Egypt as a winter resort has increased also the number of tourist visitors to Palestine, and has added greatly to its material prosperity. The number of pilgrims also increases, and according to the report of H.B.M. Consul at Jerusalem, Mr. Dickson, amounted in 1899 to 13,400, of whom 7,500 were Russians, 1,200 Greeks, 900 Armenians, 800 Copts, and 3,000 of other nationalities. Of the imports, whose increase bears witness to this prosperity, 18·4 per cent. was from France, 14·2 from Great Britain, and 7·1 from Germany. The chief exports are oranges (nearly all of which come to Great Britain), soap, water-melons, and sesame. Orange cultivation is extending rapidly in all directions over the plain inland from Jaffa. The report stated that, in consequence of the increasing traffic with the districts of Moab, a steam launch and barges were about to be placed on the Dead Sea for the conveyance of goods and passengers across to the town of Kerak. The launch has since been floated.

One of the senior missionaries, whose experience in the Levant reaches back more than forty years, gives expression to his views regarding the two aspects of the Society's work in Palestine—that of enlightening the Oriental churches, and that of evangelizing the Mohammedans. He says:—

Work of enlightening the Greek Christians.

With regard to the acceptance of evangelical truth by the Christians of this land, the conviction is forced upon one increasingly that the time of grace, if I may call it so, is passing away rapidly. I speak more particularly of Greek Christians, because it is these who have come almost exclusively under the influence of our Mission. The Romish clergy keep their people in hand far too well to allow unwelcome influences to come near them. One hears, e.g., from time to time that Romanists are told by their leaders that it is far better to be a Moslem than a Protestant, an evidence of bigotry which is unknown, or, at least rare, among Greeks. Yet, in spite of the many points of contact between Greeks and ourselves, the progress of the Gospel has been very slow among them in late years. We seem to have reached a certain point beyond which there has been no advance. It is true that our schools continue to dispel the prevalent ignorance of God's Truth, to break the chains of superstition and prejudice, and to loosen the yoke of priestcraft, but this enlightenment does not seem, in most cases, to lead to true conversion. It co-exists in the same individual with unreserved devotion to the Greek Church and a tolerance of its superstitious practices. Nor does it seem to hold out any prospect of a general reformation of this church. We influence, more or less, the native element in the Greek Church, but this native element is in reality in bondage to the Patriarchate, which is not Syrian and thus native, but Greek, and therefore foreign. Very few of the clergy of the Patriarchate understand Arabic, they are strangers who come from other parts of the Turkish Empire, and have but little sympathy with the people they rule. The Patriarchate has come to be not simply a religious, but also, and perhaps chiefly, a civil institution. As such its prestige and power are far too great to be ignored by any except such as have been really brought under the constraining influence of God's saving grace. When, in addition to this, the Patriarchate bestirs itself, as it is now doing, to provide for the educational wants of the people, the probability of any reformation in the near or distant future is very materially lessened. The Greeks have had for many years past a Theological Seminary at the Convent of the Cross just outside Jerusalem. Quite recently they have opened a large college, in a fine building, within Jerusalem itself for the purpose, I understand, of training teachers for their schools. This college is at work with more than 200 pupils, nearly fifty of whom are boarders. The Patriarchate is thus providing for the educational wants of the Greek communities throughout the land with the view, no doubt, of making them independent of our Mission Schools.

Dawn of "a day of grace" for the Moslems.

My second thought refers to Moslem work. Here the case is not one of "a day of grace" passing away, but of the dawn of such a day. Our Medical Missions are fast breaking down prejudice, conciliating opposition, and introducing the Truth to many minds hitherto entirely ignorant of Christian belief. So far there has been, undoubtedly, and there is a blessing for which we cannot be too thankful, full of encouragement as it is for the future. Only let us not mistake the opening of the dawn for the full light of day. Our experiences up to this point only seem to confirm the conviction that, for the full light of day, there is needed a removal of social and political disabilities which now hinder very effectually any open profession of Christianity on the part of the sons of Islam. How and when this removal will take place it is impossible to say. A fierce struggle may be needed. It may be imminent. We know not. But, for the present, let us not confound the first indications of dawn with full daylight. Thankful for the dawn we wait patiently for the further unfolding of God's purposes of mercy.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out during the year consisted of the following:—Miss Bessie Schreiber Brock, of Glenagowry, near Dublin; Miss Helen Jane Dewe, of Reading, trained at "The Olives"; Miss Norah Katharine Fisher, also trained at "The Olives," daughter of the Rev. H. Fisher, Rector of Higham-on-the-Hill, Nuneaton, an Hon. District Secretary of the Society; Miss Elizabeth Mabel Thorne, of Wandsworth, trained at "The Willows"; and Miss Katie Elizabeth Erwood, a trained nurse, of the Victoria C.M. Association. The Rev. J. G. B. Hollins, who joined the Mission in 1894, and was transferred in 1897 to the Egypt Mission on grounds of health, has been transferred back again to the Palestine Mission. Miss E. A. Lawford also has been transferred from the Egypt to the Palestine Mission. The three first-named ladies sailed in October, 1900, together with the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Wilson, returning to the Mission, but Miss Brock unfortunately had to return home again in a few weeks in consequence of her father's serious illness, and soon afterwards resigned her connexion with the Society. Miss

Thorne and Miss Lawford sailed in November, 1900, and Miss Erwood sailed from Melbourne in February, 1901. Dr. G. R. M. Wright sailed to return to the Mission in March, 1900; the Misses M. A. Daniels, R. B. McConaghy (who came home the previous April), E. A. Cooke, A. Cooper, F. E. Newton (who came home in May), E. G. Reeve (who came home in July), and F. L. A. Roberts in November; Miss F. Brownlow in January, 1901; and Miss J. Wenham (who came home in April, 1900) in April. Miss L. W. Lewis (who also came home in April) sailed in October, 1900, to spend the winter in Egypt by doctor's orders, and arrived in Palestine in March, 1901. On the other hand, the Rev. J. H. Sedgwick came home in July, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Wilson in November; Miss E. E. Watney in March, 1901; Miss A. A. M. Bedells in April; and Miss E. Molineux in May. Miss E. G. Western, a daughter of Mr. G. A. Western, a member of the Committee, visited Palestine in the spring of 1900 with the kind purpose of starting classes for Kinder-garten instruction in some of the Society's schools. After doing this at Jerusalem, Gaza, and Bethlehem, she unfortunately met with a serious accident from a fall while at the Lebanon, which necessitated her returning home before completing the circuit of schools which she had planned. In May, 1900, too late for notice in the text of last year's Annual Report, the Committee accepted with regret the resignation of Miss R. E. A. Leishman, who had been since 1898 an honorary missionary in Palestine.

Death of Rev. C. Fallscheer.

One of the oldest of the European workers of this Mission, next only to the Revs. J. Zeller and T. F. Wolters and their respective wives, has been called to his heavenly rest. The Rev. Christian Fallscheer commenced his labours in Palestine in 1864. He was ordained Deacon in 1871 and Priest in 1873 by Bishop Gobat, and when the missionary agencies which that Bishop had inaugurated on his own responsibility were transferred to the Society in 1876, Mr. Fallscheer became a C.M.S. missionary in local connexion. Throughout the whole period of his service, thirty-six years, he was stationed at Nablous. Latterly the infirmities of age—he was seventy-two—increased upon him, and he was unable to visit the out-stations. The following reference to him was made in the quarterly statement of the Palestine Exploration Fund for April, 1901, he having frequently assisted the officers employed by that Fund in their explorations, and by his influence and tact secured photographs of part of the Samaritan Pentateuch: "During his forty years' residence amongst the most unruly people in Palestine he won the respect and esteem of every one, whether Christian, Moslem, or Samaritan." As regards the Mohammedans this was manifested at the funeral by their insisting on carrying Mr.

Fallscheer's coffin from the church to the grave. One of his fellow-missionaries at Nablous wrote:—

"Honoured by Christian, Moslem, and Jew."

Though his name is hardly known out of Palestine, yet in that country, from east to west, from north to south, it is known, and loved, and honoured—by Christian, Moslem, and Jew. How did he, a "plain" man, as he often called himself, acquire such a reputation? I think it was because he was Christ's man, not only in name but in deed. He followed the steps of his Master, and, in following "hard," caught something of his Master's spirit of love and compassion. And love never fails! He seemed to be able, by the grace of God, to identify himself with the people among whom he lived, and in many (lawful) ways to follow their customs. He had been able to fuse his own character with theirs, and (that rare thing) to apprehend the Eastern point of view. He laid aside much of his own personality, and "came down" to the weak and ignorant. He had learned, like St. Paul, to be servant to all. This was, I think, the secret of his popularity. The trial of his faith, as he sojourned in a strange land, wrought in him patience, a great patience; to this he joined love and liberality.

Did he gain the people's affections in the first year? Nay, he fought his way inch by inch, many times casting himself down before the Lord in feverish despair of any success; but he has told me that before he rose from his knees he heard the voice whispering, "I have sent thee! I will give thee a mouth and wisdom! I will be a wall of fire round about!" And so he laboured on, living a life hid with Christ, which bore fruits of love and joy and peace, until the day when "he was not, for God took him." And as the tolling of the church bell made known that Christian Fallscheer was dead, a great sorrow fell upon the people, and Moslems and Christians alike cried with a bitter cry, "Our father is dead and we are orphans!"

"Our father is dead."

The Rev. F. A. S. Bellamy's death.

Another death to be recorded is that of the Rev. Franklin Alexander Strachan Bellamy, who laboured in this Mission from 1873 until 1883 with three intervals of some length spent in this country. He died on August 1st, 1900. He was trained for the ministry at St. Aidan's College, Birkenhead, and after holding several curacies was Incumbent of St. Mary's, Devonport, when he offered to the Society. He retired in consequence of his wife's health, and was subsequently for a time an agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society at Morocco.

Ordinations.

Bishop Blyth admitted Mr. Salah Saba and Mr. Butrus Musa to Deacons' Orders at St. George's Church, Jerusalem, on December 23rd, 1900, and the Revs. Selim Gomri and Hanna Dimishky to Priests' Orders at St. Luke's Church, Haifa, on March 3rd, 1901.

The Rev. J. R. L. Hall is the Secretary of the Mission.

JERUSALEM.

Population of Jerusalem.

An attempt made in the winter of 1899–1900 to ascertain the population of JERUSALEM gave the following results. Omitting pilgrims, the inhabitants probably amount to fifty thousand, of whom thirty thousand are Jews, ten thousand Christians, and ten thousand Mohammedans. About eleven thousand of the Jews are Turkish subjects. Of the Christians about half belong to the Greek Church. The Preparandi Institution, under the Rev. J. Zeller, had seventeen students. Four completed their course, of whom three were engaged as teachers in the Society's schools. The second teacher in the Institution, Mr. Salah Saba, was admitted to Deacons' Orders, as already mentioned, and was placed at Shefamer; Mr. Butrus Musa, the other newly-ordained deacon, was formerly a student in the Institution. Mr. Zeller says of the present students:— Preparandi Institution.

I am glad to say that being in daily contact with my pupils I recognize their earnest struggle with evil habits, and rejoice to see the work of grace and of a new life in many a heart. The love of Christ is manifest in some, and shows itself not only in an earnest desire to hear and understand the Word of God but also to act upon it. They all comprehend the difference between the conversion of the intellect and the conversion of the heart and will, and the great difference between outward profession and an earnest obedience to Him Who alone is able and willing to change the will of man and to sanctify him.

The Bishop Gobat School was also under the supervision of Mr. Zeller. It is the oldest boarding-school in Palestine, and there are few towns or villages of any importance in which one or more of its former pupils are not found. The seventy-eight youths in the school at the beginning of 1901 represented twenty different towns and villages. The school always has its full complement of inmates, indeed many applicants have to be refused every year, and that notwithstanding the fact that new schools are constantly being opened. Mr. F. T. Ellis, the headmaster, mentions, for example, that although the Greek Patriarch opened a school in 1900, with a staff of seventeen masters, yet the Gobat school had twelve Jerusalem boys belonging to that community, and one was the son of the Greek parish priest. All the boys possess a Bible and learn a great deal of its contents. The Girls' School, formerly the boarding-school, has experienced an important change during the year, the boarders having been transferred to Bethlehem. One girl who left the school in the summer of 1900, before the transfer, became a teacher at Haifa. Miss A. Welch writes with thankfulness of the work. Difficulties are many and often recur, but, notwithstanding, the opportunities of influencing the girls and children of the city are never interrupted altogether. Miss Welch keeps in touch with former pupils by means of a weekly Bible and working class which has an average attendance of twenty. Schools.

At Et Zur, on the Mount of Olives, Miss M. M. Jacombs and Miss M. Brown found their labours hampered by the presence of a man stationed at the door of their house to report any Mohammedans who visited them. This man remained on the watch from July till December, 1899. Early in 1900 the children gradually resumed attendance at the school, and were only interrupted by the call of their parents for their help in the autumn olive gathering, and after that by a breaking out of Mount of Olives.

An antidote to small-pox!

small-pox necessitating inoculation and abstinence for forty days from being washed—one of many local vagaries which rendered attendance at school out of the question. The people of the village, and of other villages in the neighbourhood, showed themselves friendly to the ladies when the latter went to their homes, and quite willing to sit and listen to them, though not manifesting a desire for Christian instruction. Quinine and other simple medicines are always welcome. Miss H. J. Dewe has joined Miss Jacombs in lieu of Miss Brown, who has been transferred to Bethlehem.

Bethlehem.

When Miss M. B. McConaghy came home on furlough in the spring of 1900 the work at BETHLEHEM, which consists in conducting a Girls' Boarding-school and a day-school, was in the hands of Miss F. E. Neale and Miss F. Cooper. As already mentioned, the boarders from the Jerusalem girls' school were transferred to the Bethlehem boarding-school in the autumn of 1900, and at the same time Miss A. Welch, of Jerusalem, went to Bethlehem to give temporary help, and Miss M. Brown was transferred from the Mount of Olives to take charge of the housekeeping. The new term after the summer holiday began with twenty-four girls, nine from the Jerusalem school, nine former pupils of the school, and six new pupils. The Sunday ministration to this little flock is a care devolving upon the Society's staff at Jerusalem. One of the Syrian teachers goes out and conducts a service for the children on Sundays, and once a month one of the missionaries administers the Holy Communion. On Sunday afternoons a children's prayer-meeting is held and is much valued, likewise classes for Bible study, which are attended also by some of the day-school children. These numbered about 120 (half of whom were infants) during the winter months. During the summer many of the families remove to the neighbouring hills and live upon their vineyards while the grape season lasts. The parents of most of the day scholars belong to the Greek Church. This day-school provides a practising ground for those of the boarding-school pupils who look forward to becoming teachers.

Ramallah.

As mentioned last year, Miss A. N. Jarvis succeeded Mrs. A. Liggins at RAMALLAH in the spring of 1899. She arrived in April, and was without an English lady companion until January, 1900, when Miss F. Nuttall arrived. The latter treated (simply) a large number of patients, especially emaciated babies, which her remedies preserved from apparently impending death.

Many Christian denominations in a small town.

Ramallah, though only a small town, has congregations of the Greek, Greek Catholic, and the Latin Churches; there is also one of Friends. The C.M.S. day-school is attended by about eighty boys. Fifteen villages were visited by the ladies. Miss Jarvis had a trying experience on returning from one of her visits in February, 1900. She was caught in a storm of wind and rain in a place where there was no shelter, and the donkeys—her own and the Bible-woman's—could with difficulty be made to face the elements, and again and again turned round. Miss Jarvis learned afterwards that the donkey of a man who was travelling in the same storm fell down and died, and the man was saved from a like fate by some villagers who found him; while a few days later another man perished in a storm between Ramallah and Jerusalem, and his body when found was partly eaten by a wolf or a hyena. Miss Jarvis writes with grateful appreciation of the Bible-woman, Im Skander, whose zeal and tact render her help invaluable in the work among Moslems. She pleads earnestly for prayer for the people and the workers:— Caught in a storm.

As I go amongst these people I realize more and more the great gulf there is between ourselves and them as regards our circumstances, powers of mind, and knowledge of Divine things, &c. God's Word is for all, yet truly it is a sealed book to these poor dark souls. Love only can bridge that gulf. God's great wondrous love in Christ, realized in our own souls, and going out through us to them, as we seek to break the Bread of Life by giving them portions of His Word in simplest language, and praying that they may eat, and their eyes be opened to see the Lord Jesus lifted up for them, and, seeing, live. Oh! friends at home to whom the Bread of Life is dispensed so freely, and whose privileges are so great, pray for these dear, dark souls, and for us who go amongst them. "Pray for these dear, dark souls."

Mr. G. Nyland mentions the death of a member of the little congregation at Tayibeh. He was visited during his sickness by both the Greek and Greek Catholic priests, who begged him to leave the Protestant and return to the Greek Church. He replied that his trust was in Christ alone, and he was sure He was sufficient for his salvation. There are eight communicants in the congregation at Jiffna. At Bir Zeit the congregation numbers about a hundred souls, and the boys' and girls' schools have thirty-five and twenty-five pupils respectively. Miss G. F. Tindall and Miss Balfour (an independent lady worker) have opened a small boarding-school for Fellaheen girls.

JAFFA.

The Rev. T. F. Wolters says that nothing calling for remark occurred in connexion with the work at JAFFA. The congregation showed a greater readiness than in former years to recognize the duty of self-support. At Ramleh the always small congregation has gradually dwindled down to a few individuals, and these, with one or two exceptions, do not appear to be a source of strength to the Mission. The return of the ladies, Miss E. A. Cooke and Miss F. L. A. Roberts, at the close of 1900 was welcomed by Mr. Wolters, as in their influence with the Mohammedans (the respectable members of which community are exceedingly friendly) lies the one hope of fruit at this out-station. Jaffa.

GAZA.

The staff at GAZA during the past year were the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. Sterling and the Misses E. E. Brodie, M. Tiffin, and G. Harrison. From none of these have Annual Letters been received.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

Nablous—new Hospital.

The foundation-stone of the long-waited-for new Hospital at NABLOUS was laid on May 24th, 1900, which was Ascension Day. The late Rev. C. Fallscheer laid the stone and conducted the service in the presence of a large number of people. The hospital was opened quietly on February 23rd, 1901. The cost, nearly £5,000, was defrayed by the Medical Mission Auxiliary. Miss E. M. Burnaby and Miss I. M. McCallum while engaged in language study gave some assistance in the hospital, the former singing to the patients and the latter dressing in the dispensary and the wards. Miss Burnaby managed also during Miss Reeve's absence to take a women's meeting, at first by interpretation and then in Arabic. She found the women bright and intelligent, very ready to help her faulty speech and to explain the meaning to one another. She was pleased also with the intelligence of the children in the schools, and especially with their knowledge of the Bible—so much, she says, above that of average English children. Most of the seventy-five pupils in the girls' school are Moslems. The attendances at the services varied between sixty and one hundred. Bible-readings were held twice a week. Miss Reeve returned to Nablous in November.

The boys' and girls' schools at Rafidiah, the little out-station a mile from Nablous, are somewhat irregularly attended, owing to the demands which the wheat, olive, and fig harvests make on the children. There are schools and small congregations of from twelve to twenty people at Bourka, Nusf el Jebel, Toobaz, and Zebabdeh.

NAZARETH DISTRICT.

Nazareth.

The Rev. H. Sykes was in charge of the work at NAZARETH and the extensive district around. His fellow workers at Nazareth itself were the Rev. Chalil Jamal, the pastor of the congregation, and the Misses H. Lee, M. A. E. Newey, M. Hicks, K. Patten, and F. M. Biddington. Miss Newey has been connected with the Orphanage, an institution of the late Female Education Society, for sixteen years. Seventy orphan girls, most of them very poor, are under her care, all from the Nazareth District, and two-thirds from Nazareth itself. Three of the four native teachers and the two monitresses are former pupils. Miss Newey refers to the changed views of the people regarding female education:—

Orphanage.

Changed views as to female education.

A marvellous change has come over the whole of this country during the last few years with regard to education. Formerly it was thought absurd to teach girls. Their people were willing they should learn to read and do a little fancy work, but it has been a fight to get every other subject. Writing must not be taught because wives would be able to read their husbands' secrets; arithmetic was unnecessary because they would never keep shops; grammar for girls was quite out of the question; and geography would never be needed because they were not going to travel. However, we have gone on quietly, adding one subject after another until every prejudice against learning has broken down, and now we cannot give them enough, and the schools where most is taught are most in request.

The girls, even the new comers, seldom give trouble by real naughtiness, though they are untidy, easy-going, and careless, and need constant and strict attention. Of the spiritual side of the work Miss Newey writes:—

A good knowledge of their Bibles.

These girls know the way of salvation very well and they have a good knowledge of their Bibles. The teachers and some of the elder girls are Christians—faulty ones it may be, but still Christians in more than name. We see many changed lives, bad habits given up, rough, rude girls become gentle and obedient, and now and then we get a glimpse that the seed we try to sow so carefully and prayerfully is growing secretly, and we take courage.

Domestic training.

Miss Biddington's special share in the work was to train the girls in household duties, to nurse the sick, and, as she says, to attend to the comfort and well-being of all. Bread-making and baking, cooking, laundry work, &c., are done on the premises, and form an important part of the girls' training. One girl, aged about nine, died in the Orphanage during the year. She was most patient under her sufferings, which were great, and took evident delight in reading or being read to from the New Testament. Shortly before she became unconscious she looked up with a sweet smile and said, "My beloved Lord Jesus," and a few minutes later the Good Shepherd gathered His little tired lamb into His fold. The Day-schools for girls suffered a marked diminution in the number of pupils during the year, the girls having left to join a school opened by the Greek bishop and another worked by Russians. Testimony is borne by these rival schools to the superiority of the teaching and results at the C.M.S. schools, in that many of their teachers were educated at these latter schools while they were under the F.E.S. There were 170 girls on the list at the beginning of 1900, and seventy in a school for Moslem girls which is privately supported and is under Miss Lee's care. Through the children the mothers are reached, and three meetings weekly were held for these in as many different parts of the town. Members of a branch of the Y.W.C.A. meet to work for the poor and for Missions, and £7 was sent to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel during the year. The children of two Sunday-schools worked by the ladies sent 25*s.* to the Children's Scripture Union, and a junior missionary class sent £3 3*s.* for the support of a child in China. Miss M. Hicks and Miss K. Patten visited the homes of the people, and were often encouraged to find the school children had familiarized their parents with Scripture texts and Bible stories and hymns. In almost every house their visits were welcomed. The six village schools have each from twenty-five to forty girls. The teachers of these schools held meetings for the women and elder girls.

Shefamer.

Miss M. Rosenhayn and Miss E. Molineux resided at the prosperous and well-to-do village of SHEFAMER, the former dispensing medical aid and the latter superintending the girls' schools and visiting the people. The Moslems in the neighbouring villages were particularly accessible.

Haifa.

At HAIFA there is a congregation of about sixty on an average under the pastoral care of the Rev. Selim Gomri, who was transferred thither from Nablous in October, 1899. He observes, he says, an increasing reverence for and interest in the Word of God among them. A few Latin, Maronite, and Greek Christians occasionally attend the services.

SALT AND KERAK.

Salt.

The state of the Rev. D. M. Wilson's health obliged him to leave SALT in October, 1900, and return to England. Formerly the Society had a number of small schools in the Hauran and Jebel Druse, but owing to the unsettled condition of the country they were, with the exception of two which are still held, gradually vacated. An encouraging proof that the work of past years was not in vain was furnished at the beginning of 1900. Two men called on Mr. Wilson at Salt, who had lately left a village named Kharaba, to the west of Jebel Druse, in which village was formerly a small C.M.S. congregation and a school. These men reported that after the Society withdrew the adherents had to suffer persecution, not from the Druses, but from their fellow Christians of the Greek Church, but they maintained the simple worship as they had been taught. Some of these people, including the two men who called on Mr. Wilson, had lately left their home in the north and migrated to a village, Yadudeh, to the south of Salt, where, Mr. Wilson learned, they bore an excellent character for honesty and peaceableness and strictly observed the Sabbath as a day of rest. Mr. Wilson was much impressed with the earnestness of the two men, and their eagerness to obtain books and to have a school opened for their children.

Kerak in touch with civilization.

KERAK is on the pilgrim road from Damascus to Mecca, and a telegraph line is in course of construction between the two places, which was completed as far as Kerak in the autumn of 1900. This fact, in addition to the placing of a steam launch on the Dead Sea, referred to above (page 167), brings Kerak, which has hitherto been a hundred miles' tedious journey from Jerusalem, into close touch with civilization. Little opposition was experienced from the Government officials during the past year, but the people, who at one time were very friendly, were much less so, and some were openly opposed.

Dr. Johnson made an itineration at the beginning of 1900 in the Arabah, a flat sandy region south of the Dead Sea, and in the Land of Edom, visiting the Arabs in the wild and romantic regions of Mount Seir. He wrote of the tour:—

The Arabs of these parts are a wild but hospitable people, who despise the multitude of a city and manifest markedly all the characteristic habits of the seed of Ishmael in their wild roving life and simple wants. To these I preached the Word with the help of a native evangelist, amid circumstances forcibly reminding one of patriarchal times. At night particularly, with the sandy desert at our feet, the enclosure formed by some twelve to thirty black goats' hair tents, the inhabitants of the tents all "ground-sitters," the blazing fire, with its circle of rude Arab gossipers, the sheep and goats with their white and black coats respectively made brilliant by the moonlight, lying peacefully with their young in the enclosure, the adjoining rugged mountains casting their sharply-defined shadows, and over all the clear Arabian sky glittering with stars—the whole forms a picture which lives vividly and pleasurably in the memory. It was interesting to meet with Arabs to whom the large ships in their passage through the Suez Canal are a familiar sight—an indication of our proximity to Egypt. Aaron's tomb, on the summit of Mount Hor, is a sacred place, visited by Moslem pilgrims; accordingly, we met with a few pilgrims who, after visiting Mecca, were returning to their homes in North Africa, visiting Aaron's tomb en route. These pilgrims, with ourselves, were the guests of the wild Bedouin of Mount Seir, and formed part of our audience round the camp fire after supper, which is the most favourable time for the delivery of the Gospel message. The pilgrims we found to be rather fanatical and considerably more enlightened in the Moslem faith than their Bedouin hosts, which latter in general listen to the message with a mixture of astonishment and interest, born evidently of its novelty and transparent truth.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION.

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by C.M.S. missionaries in 1882. A hospital was opened in 1897. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission. In 1900, Mosul, near the site of ancient Nineveh, was occupied.

"The Neglected Peninsula."

WITH too good reason, alas! has Arabia been called "the Neglected Peninsula!" More than twice as large as Tibet, and a great deal more populous, yet the greater part of it is absolutely closed to the Christian missionary. The Rev. S. M. Zwemer, of the American Dutch Reformed Church, in Arabia, the Cradle of Islam, writes: "We have better maps of the North Pole and of the moon than we have of south-eastern Arabia!" At the four corners of its irregular oblong figure God's servants stand as sentinels, waiting for the opportunity to step over the threshold: at the north-western corner, as the concluding extract of the last chapter of this Report, on the "Palestine Mission," bears witness, the C.M.S. outpost at Kerak is in close touch with some of the Arabs of the interior desert; at the south-western corner the Scotch United Free Church Mission is at Aden; at the south-eastern corner the American Dutch Reformed Church is at Muscat, where Bishop French laid down his life, and where the Bishop of Lahore consecrated the little cemetery where his grave is on December 8th, 1900; and at the north-eastern corner the C.M.S. is again found at Baghdad. The country lying between the first and the last of these four corners is likely ere long to become an important commercial route between the West and the East, as the Deutsche Bank has obtained from the Sultan of Turkey a concession for the construction of a railway from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf.

Sentinels at the four corners.

Reinforcements.

Two ladies were added during the year to the staff of the Mission: Miss Hester Kelsey, of Holloway, and Miss Nora Caroline Stephens, of Amberley, who were both trained at "The Willows." They sailed together for Baghdad in December, 1900. Miss E. E. Martin left Baghdad in March to take an overland journey to Syria, where she laboured for some years as a missionary, for the benefit of her health; she returned to Baghdad in December. Dr. P. S. Sturrock was married to Miss A. E. Clark of this Mission on March 5th.

BAGHDAD.

Baghdad.

The ancient city of BAGHDAD, which for five hundred years was the capital of the Moslem world, has a population of from 120,000 to 180,000, and contains sixty-eight Mohammedan mosques and twenty-two Jewish synagogues. The River Tigris runs through the city, a bridge of boats connecting the eastern and western portions. Down the river steamers convey mails, cargo, and passengers to Busreh, near the head of the Persian Gulf, taking three days for the journey. Along the banks are gardens of the stately date palms, and here also are pitched the tents of the Bedouin Arabs. Within the city walls, crowding its bazaars and narrow streets, are to be found men speaking not less than twenty different languages—Arabic, Turkish, Persian, Armenian, and Hebrew being the chief; but English, French, and Greek are also increasingly heard.

Both Dr. H. Martyn Sutton, who reached Baghdad after furlough with Mrs. Sutton in January, 1900, and Dr. P. S. Sturrock, remark upon the increased liberty which is enjoyed for evangelistic work as compared with former years. No serious effort to interfere with the work at the Hospital has been made since 1895. During the warm and dry weather last year the patients were exceedingly numerous, more than two doctors could adequately cope with, as at that season Arabs from the desert and many and diverse people from all directions throng into Baghdad. Five additional beds were obtained, and also increased accommodation for out-patients, by the acquisition of another house opposite the existing dispensary. The European residents showed much interest in this enlargement, and assisted in sundry ways to provide some of the necessary wants. The arrival of Miss E. G. Butlin, the hospital nurse, in the spring of 1900, provided a still more important development. Miss Butlin refers to improvements in the internal arrangements :—

Hospital.

Annual Letter written on a raft on the Tigris.

I cannot say how funny the hospital appeared to me on my arrival here. After the order and cleanliness of an English hospital it seemed more like a pigsty than anything else. Some beds spread on the floor, no sheets, few pillow-cases, and, worst of all, several friends with each patient. These last ate, slept, and lived in the wards, and blackened the walls with their dirty backs and dirtier heads. Then we all set to work. The doctors forbade more than one friend to each patient, sent every in-patient to the bath and ordered him to be shaved; and I lived amongst yards of unbleached calico, until thirty sheets, twenty-four pillow-cases, and night-dresses were made, kind friends helping me. Now our hospital, with its blue-painted bedsteads, white sheets, scarlet blankets, and new counterpanes, looks so nice; and nicer than all look the patients in flannel night-dresses, the men with caps, the women with calico handkerchiefs on their heads.

A transformation.

Among the in-patients was a Moslem lad of fifteen, who had been a servant of an American gentleman, Mr. Haynes, while the latter was engaged on excavations at Niffar, a district some four days' journey from Baghdad. This boy was from the first well disposed towards Christianity, and listened with much apparent enjoyment to the reading and explanation of the Scriptures. Owing to the absence for several months of the Rev. J. T. Parfit at Mosul, Dr. Sutton conducted the Arabic Services, sharing the preaching with two of the native workers. There were large congregations towards the close of the year. The Armenian Girls' School, during the absence of Miss E. E. Martin, was carried on by Mrs. Sutton, with help from Mrs. Sturrock (then Miss A. E. Clark) while the latter was engaged in the study of Arabic. Mrs. Sturrock gives the girls an excellent character for diligence and intelligence.

Dr. Sturrock visited most of the larger cities and towns in the neighbourhood of Baghdad, and called upon former patients.

Inquirers at Kerbela.

In the autumn of 1899 he received a letter from three Mohammedans living at Kerbela, stating that after studying the tenets of many religions their faith in Mohammedanism was shaken, and they desired to receive advice. At Dr. Sturrock's request they visited Baghdad, staying four days, and receiving daily instruction. They attended the Arabic service on the Sunday of their stay with perfect boldness, and their conduct throughout impressed Dr. Sturrock with their sincerity. They informed him that they had obtained copies of the Scriptures through colporteurs of the B. & F.B.S. in Kerbela, and that they were acquainted with some forty others in that city who desired instruction in the truths of Christianity.

MOSUL.

Mosul.

The Rev. J. T. Parfit spent five months at Mosul, from April to September, 1900. He paid frequent visits to the houses of leading Mohammedans and Christians in the town, and had excellent opportunities for making the Gospel message known. Still better opportunities, however, were afforded when he himself was visited. He writes :—

Talks on the roof.

> The best opportunities for evangelistic effort were given me through a curious custom which prevails. People gather uninvited at the close of the day in the houses of their leading men, where every sort of subject and the news of the day are freely discussed. Being the only Englishman in the city I was honoured in this way by numbers of people coming to talk with me upon my roof almost every evening. The gossips would repeat all that was said, and an explanation of a Scripture passage or the solution of a difficulty would be handed on to bishops, priests, and laity alike.

The existing Protestant community in Mosul permitted Mr. Parfit to conduct a Church of England service in the church used by them, and this was attended, mainly from curiosity, by very many Christians. Numerous patients applied for medicine, and Mr. Parfit supplied many Government officials and Church dignitaries with spectacles, obtained from the industrial branch of the boys' school at Baghdad. Among others, four bishops, a number of priests, five Turkish Pashas, three Aghas, and the Wali Governor and his wife were indebted to him for improved eyesight, and he obtained entrance by this means into a variety of circles amongst the citizens of Mosul.

Houses opened by means of spectacles.

Mr. Parfit made two itinerations, one among the villages to the east of Mosul and the other into the mountains to the north. In each he had adventures and some providential escapes. The former journey was made on his bicycle, and his unexpected appearance among a number of horsemen, near the ruins of ancient Nineveh, so startled the horses that five of their riders were thrown. A day or two later the bicycle was near to being the cause of a worse disaster to Mr. Parfit himself. He was the guest of the Bishop of the Syrian Jacobite monastery, known as Sheikh Matti, and after explaining the machine to the Bishop, who had never seen one before, he was persuaded to mount it on one of the narrow roofs of the monastery. He did so with the utmost care, but a sudden gust of wind very nearly hurled him headlong into the valley below. In a pleasant village called Basheikah, surrounded by olive groves, quarters were assigned to him in the Jacobite church; his bed was laid upon the chancel steps, and the Bishop's chair was made to serve him as a table. There, in the presence of a large crowd, he engaged in a warm religious discussion. In a neighbouring village, Bahsani, a friendly Mosul merchant recognized him, and a large company gathered in the house of this man to ask questions of a "priest of the great Church of England." Mr. Parfit's second journey was taken in consequence of the receipt of a telegram, saying that an American missionary was lying seriously ill from a sunstroke in a village distant a three days' journey from Mosul. As this was in the month of July much of the travelling had to be done in the night. On the day after starting Mr. Parfit was on the verge of a serious illness in consequence of the great heat. At a Kurdish village the party were in danger of being robbed, but they reached their destination, and were relieved to find the American missionary making a good recovery. On the way back, during a night journey, Mr. Parfit had a providential escape from falling over a precipice. A school was opened, as a result of Mr. Parfit's earlier itineration, in the Christian village of Bartolli. This school is held in the Syrian church, with the permission of the Bishop of the Syrian Jacobites. It had an average daily attendance of thirty-five boys at the close of the year. Dr. and Mrs. Sutton were transferred to Mosul from Baghdad in May, 1901.

PERSIA MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was one of the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. The Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian Mission is also partly within the Persian Kingdom. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and, finding the Mohammedans of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode there, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society formally adopted his work as one of its Missions. A medical missionary was sent out in 1879; and ladies were added to the staff in 1891. Kirman was occupied in 1897, Yezd in 1898, and Shiraz in 1900.

Address to the Shah by Armenians in London.

In anticipation of the Shah of Persia's visit to England in 1900, the Armenian residents in London prepared an address of welcome, which, when the Shah's plans were altered in consequence of the death of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, was presented in Ostend. The address expressed the hope that the Armenians in Persia might enjoy the special protection of the Shah and his Government in their lives, honour, property, and religion, and might receive encouragement in their educational, commercial, and industrial enterprises as Persian subjects. The Times was informed by an Armenian correspondent that one of the first acts of Shah Muzaffer-ed-Din on reaching Tabriz on his return from Europe was to issue orders to the Governors of the Persian provinces commanding them to give every facility to his Armenian subjects for opening and establishing schools, for delivering public addresses and lectures on educational matters, and to form or found national and commercial societies without being obliged on each occasion to make a formal application to the Central Government at Teheran for permission. These instructions constitute an important advance, for which all the Shah's Christian subjects will be duly grateful.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out during the past year to the Persia Mission consisted of the Rev. William Holmes Walker, B.A., University College, Oxford, whose offer of service was accepted in March, 1899, but who continued in his curacy of St. Silas', Lozells, Birmingham, until the summer of 1900; Mr. Herbert William Allinson; Miss Margaret McClure, of Bangor, County Down, who was trained at "The Willows"; Miss Florence Sybella Willmot, of Mowbray, South Africa, who was trained at "The Olives"; and Miss Henrietta McKim, a trained nurse, of the Canada C.M. Association. Mr. Walker sailed in October, 1900; the three lady recruits in February, 1901, in company with Miss P. Braine-Hartnell; and Mr. Allinson in March, in company with Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Carr, returning to the Mission. Mrs. A. R. Blackett came home in June, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Stileman in October; and Mrs. W. A. Rice in May, 1901. The Rev. N. Malcolm was married to Miss Urania Latham, M.B., of this Mission, on February 13th, 1901. The Rev. W. St. Clair Tisdall, who came home in the spring of 1900, has been re-appointed by the Committee James Long Lecturer on Mohammedanism.

Bishop Stuart completed in the course of 1900 his fiftieth year of service since he first sailed for India, in company with Thomas Valpy French, the future first Bishop of Lahore, on September 11th, 1850. The Committee instructed the Secretaries to convey to him their hearty congratulations and the assurance of their earnest prayers that during the years of his life that may yet remain the blessing of God may rest still more abundantly upon him and upon all his work. The Bishop, in making known to the Committee his proposals regarding his approaching furlough, wrote:— Bishop Stuart completes fifty years of service.

> It may seem a little presumptuous to be thus planning for furlough and subsequent return "to the front," when I have already, through God's goodness and lovingkindness, been permitted to complete fifty years of service in the Mission-field, and at my time of life, already in my seventy-fourth year, I know it may not be for long. Still, while health and strength remain, I feel that this is a war from which there is no discharge. And so, if it be the Lord's will that my working days be prolonged, my hope is that they may be in Persia, where there is so much to be done and so few to do it. "A war from which there is no discharge."

The circulation of the Scriptures in Persia through the agency of the British and Foreign Bible Society in 1899 amounted to 11,600 copies, over sixty per cent. of which went into the hands of Mohammedans, more than 4,000 copies in Arabic and 2,000 in Persian. Mr. C. E. Tisdall, brother of the Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall, has been appointed agent of the B. & F.B.S. in Persia and Turkish Arabia. Circulation of the Scriptures in Persia.

JULFA AND ISPAHAN.

The Rev. C. H. Stileman was the senior missionary at JULFA and Secretary of the Mission. When he and Mrs. Stileman left to take furlough in the autumn, the Rev. A. K. Boyland moved into the Mission-house from Ispahan, and undertook the office business of the Secretariat, Bishop Stuart kindly carrying on the official correspondence of the Mission, residing still at Ispahan. The Rev. Minatzakan George is pastor to the Armenian congregation. Dr. A. H. Griffith and Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart were in charge of the men's and women's hospitals, in which Miss G. E. Stuart assisted as nurse and Miss A. Stirling as helper in the evangelistic work. Miss L. Stubbs and Miss L. Buncher were occupied mainly with the work of the Armenian Girls' School, which has 290 children. The four upper classes have Persian twice a week, but the subject is not popular with Girls' School.

either the Armenian teachers or the girls. One class in the school consists entirely of Persian children. Miss Buncher had a Bible-class for the teachers, at first by interpretation, but, after passing the language examination, in Armenian. They appeared to appreciate it, and some of them, Miss Buncher says, are earnest Christians.

In connexion with the pastoral work of the Armenian Congregation, the organizations for uniting the members in edifying and useful work are manifold; they include a Church Council, a branch of the Gleaners' Union, a Y.M.C.A. Auxiliary, and a Missionary Band. At the beginning of the year (1900) services were held in connexion with the Week of Universal Prayer. A prayer-meeting was held each day, and prayers were offered in Persian, Armenian, and English. Mr. Stileman wrote: "It helps us to realize the unity of the Spirit, and our oneness in Christ, when fellow-believers with one heart, but in different tongues, unite in thanksgiving and prayer to our One God in heaven, through the One Mediator, in the One Spirit." The monthly meetings of the Temperance Society are not very successful as to numbers, but they appear to prove useful. Miss Buncher corrects a statement in her Annual Letter for 1899 on which was based a reference in the Annual Report of last year (page 167) to "the drinking habits of the Armenians." Drunkenness is not a sin to which they are addicted. But it is charged against some of them that they sell alcoholic liquors to Persians, and that this is a source of temptation to the latter, whose religion forbids such indulgence. Some of the members of the Sowers' Band are reported to be real workers. Miss Buncher has a Bible-class of eighteen women, some of them Gregorian Christians, on Sunday afternoons.

Prayers in Persian, Armenian, and English.

Several members of the Armenian congregation respond gladly to the call to render help in the Evangelistic Work of the Mission, especially when the staff of European labourers is abnormally weak. For example, a member of the Church Council, whom Mr. Stileman describes as "a prayerful and spiritual-minded man, whole-hearted in Christ's service," undertook to instruct two Mohammedan inquirers who came from a Persian village to Julfa. These men brought their wives, who were sisters, and another sister, the wife of a Mohammedan, who had permitted her to accompany them, the three sisters being daughters of converts. Moreover, most of the preaching at the Persian services after Mr. Stileman's departure was done by three young men of the Armenian congregation, all "well fitted for the work and glad to undertake it." Mr. Stileman bears testimony to an increasing spirit of inquiry among the Persians; indeed, he says that it was no easy matter to find time to instruct the individuals who sought to know the way of salvation, and that such work might well occupy him altogether. A few months before he came home he wrote:—

A Moslem adjures a missionary to teach him.

A few weeks ago a well-to-do tradesman came to see me, and told me that he had been seeking the right way for some twenty years, and had gradually become convinced that Mohammedans had not the true knowledge of God. By degrees he had also come to the conclusion that the followers of Christ had really come to know Him Whom to know is life eternal; and he told me that nothing could satisfy him but this knowledge. In the most earnest manner he besought me to impart to him the knowledge which he believed that I possessed, and adjured me that I would keep back nothing from him of what I myself knew to be the truth. He came again and again to hear the Word of God, and seemed to drink in its truths, expressing himself willing to suffer, if necessary, for Christ's sake and the Gospel's, and earnestly pleading for baptism.

Another man who came some months ago to my house, with a number of others who were anxious to engage in argument and controversy, took an opportunity of asking me privately for a Persian Bible, and told me that he had been much struck with the fact that I had invariably attempted to direct their thoughts to the way of Eternal Life, and the necessity of the New Birth, and had not been content with merely discussing supposed difficulties about the genealogies in the Gospels and suchlike questions upon which they were eager for controversy. This man mentioned that he was anxious to know the Way of Life, but had altogether failed to find it in his Koran. He has since been frequently for further teaching, and he also has now asked to be baptized.

Anxious to know the Way of Life.

Persian Boys' School.

The Persian Boys' School, which was closed in 1897, was resuscitated during the year under Mr. Joseph Aidinyantz, and gives prospect of increasing popularity and usefulness. Fees are now charged and are willingly paid, as the upper-class Persians manifest at the present time a great desire to acquire a knowledge of English.

Printing Press.

The Henry Martyn Memorial Printing Press continues its useful work of putting the Gospel message into type, and its value is borne witness to not only by the Society's missionaries, but also by the American missionaries in Northern and Western Persia. Mr. Stileman was a member of the Committee engaged in the translation of the Prayer-book into Armenian. The Evening Service has been printed in Constantinople, and the Litany and Communion Service have been translated. On Ascension Day, 1900, the Julfa congregation enjoyed for the first time the Communion Service in their own language. Mr. Stileman was encouraged by a proof which came under his notice of the circulation of the Armenian Scriptures in an unexpected quarter. He wrote in December:—

Translation work.

Copies of Scriptures given as prizes by Armenian Bishop.

A few months ago I was present at a large prize-giving connected with the Armenian central schools. The Armenian Bishop, a very enlightened man, himself presided, and he most courteously invited me, amongst others, to give away some of the prizes. I was very thankful to find that many copies of the Armenian Scriptures in the modern dialect were being distributed as prizes. These had been purchased from the Bible Society's depôt in Julfa; and thus the good seed is being sown even among the young Armenians who do not belong to our own congregation.

Hospitals.

The closing of the Men's Hospital on Dr. Carr's leaving to come home in October, 1899, was mentioned last year. It was reopened in May, 1900, when Dr. A. H. Griffith reached Julfa, and during the following six months most of the twenty-three beds were in constant occupation, the patients numbering 125. Dr. Griffith speaks highly of the staff of Armenian assistants, and of another, a Persian convert, the son of a native doctor. A prayer-meeting for all the workers is held every Monday morning. On Sundays there is a Hospital Service for the in-patients and their friends, while every day the Gospel is read and explained in each ward, and is preached on dispensary days to the out-patients. Mr. Griffith says:—

Patients ask for Scriptures.

The men listen well and never interrupt, and many ask for Bibles and Testaments before they leave, that they may take them home and read the life of Jesus Christ for themselves. It is still a time for sowing, but prejudice is breaking down, and many, we believe, are really secret believers. One old man who was operated upon for cataract in both eyes, who before admission had earned a scanty livelihood by reciting the Koran, after two successful operations being now able to see and to read with the aid of spectacles, begged for a copy of the Injil (Gospels), that he might read aloud to the people about the Lord Jesus.

The year was an "increasingly busy one" at the Women's Hospital, but it was also a year of answered prayers. In the extract given in last year's Annual Report (page 171) from Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart's account of a Persian woman, the mother of one of the patients, request was made for prayer in her behalf that she might have courage to confess Christ in baptism. Both the woman and her daughter were baptized in November, 1900, the mother taking the name of Lydia and the daughter that of Martha. Dr. Emmeline Stuart writes of them:—

A mother and daughter independently led to Christ.

"Because we had Jesus in our religion and they had not."

It was in the early spring that S. told me of her wish for baptism, but at that time we had no knowledge of the daughter's state of mind, for, as she was always confined to bed in a large ward full of Mohammedan women, it had hitherto been impossible to have a private talk with her. But from watching her face during the daily reading in the ward, and hearing her ready answers to any general questions, we were not altogether unprepared for what she told us in the first private interview we were able to have with her, which was that she was already a believer in Jesus and longing to be baptized. She did not know then of her mother's faith, as they had had no opportunity of talking together; but when they heard through us of each other's belief in the same Saviour their joy was very great. When we asked the girl what had first induced her to believe, she said that all those months she had been lying there watching us, and had seen how kind and gentle we were to every one, and had at first wondered what made us so different from Mohammedans. Then she came to understand from our teaching that it was because we had Jesus in our religion and they had not, and she believed at once that the "Jesus religion" was the true one. Since then she and her mother have been carefully taught. They have been home to their own dwelling and have there proved the reality of their profession. It is just wonderful to see how God has caused these two dear women to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Himself these last few months. I can hardly believe dear brave Lydia is the timid, shrinking S. of a year ago, when I wondered if she would ever have the courage to confess the faith that was certainly in her heart. The evening after her baptism she was found in the hospital, surrounded by a group of women, and reading to them out of St. Matthew x., where Christ speaks of confessing Him before men, and of a man's foes being those of his own household (how well understood in this land!). There were present at this gathering one or two of whom she had formerly been much afraid, and who had already tried to make mischief for her. But, as she herself said to me, God had now taken all fear of man from her. Pray that they may both continue to be His faithful soldiers and servants unto their lives' end.

Agonies suffered by a child-wife.

In July (1900) a most deeply interesting patient was in the hospital for a few days, and there her spirit left the frail body to pass into the blessed Home above. Bagum, a poor child-wife—married already three years, yet only fourteen years of age—was brought in suffering agonies through the treatment of her heartless husband. After frequently ill-using and beating her, and turning her out of doors, he finally, for no fault of hers, endeavoured to kill her in the most cruel and diabolical manner. Dr. Emmeline Stuart tells the terrible story and its sequel of Divine grace :—

Brought thirty miles to hospital.

He took the poor child and stripped her, and poured two bottles of naphtha over her and set fire to her. Her screams brought in the neighbours, who threw her into a stream in front of the house, but the blazing naphtha was not easily extinguished. At last they put it out and she was taken first to her mother's village, and from that to us. She arrived on Friday in a large basket in which she could lie down, having travelled over thirty miles in this way. I shall never forget the horror of the sight of that poor child's blackened body as I raised the covering to see the extent of her burns. With the exception of her head and face, her hands and her feet, there was hardly a sound part in her whole body. We applied soothing oil to the hard burnt skin, and wrapped her up in cotton wool and bandages as tenderly as we could. Of course there was no hope for her from the first, and we told her mother so, but she asked us to keep her in till she died, which we gladly did. The girl herself said over and over again, "Don't send me away. You won't let me go back to my husband, will you? Oh! this is a happy place." We assured her she would never be sent away again.

"Oh! this is a happy place."

Then, to our great surprise, she began asking for the "Book" to be read to her, and begged us to tell her more about Jesus. I say "to our surprise," for we did not understand how she had come to know anything about the Christian religion, as she had never been to us before and no missionary had been teaching her. Then it all came out how a few months previously, on one of the occasions when she had been turned out by her husband and was living in her mother's village, our Christian woman-servant (who belongs to the same village) had gone home for a holiday and had her two children with her. Little Bagum had on one former occasion heard the story of the Woman of Samaria from a missionary visiting the village, and her little heart had gone out to the gentle Jesus thus described. She longed to know more, and here was her opportunity. Morning, noon, and night she would come to these two Christian children, entreating them to read the "Book" to her and to tell her about Jesus. This they did continually, as her thirst was insatiable. She learnt a few verses by heart too, and then she was taken back to her cruel husband's home, and was seen no more till she was brought back in that terrible condition to her mother's village.

But the seed sown by those childish hands had fallen into good ground, and the Holy Spirit watered it till it sprang up and became the rare flower our hearts have been rejoicing over this week. Ignorant of nearly everything else in the Bible, she yet had grasped in the most wonderfully clear manner the leading truths. Over and over again, both in delirium and when quite conscious, would the little voice recite her simple faith in words like these: "Jesus Christ loves me; He died for me; He has forgiven my sins; I believe in Him; He has got a place for me in heaven." She asked me the first day if she would get better, and I told her gently that she could never be well here on earth again, but that there was a happy home in heaven, where all who loved Jesus and believed in Him would go and stay always, free from pain. She looked up so brightly and said, "Yes, that will be much better, and I believe in Jesus; He loves me, and He will give me a place there." After that she never said, "Am I going to get better?" or "Am I going to die?" as before, but always, "Am I going to heaven?" I used to sing her some simple translations of children's hymns which I had made a few months before, and she did so love them. Her favourites were, "There's a Friend for little children," and "Here we suffer grief and pain," with its "joyful, joyful" chorus, which never failed to bring a happy smile to her face. Seeing how it soothed her to be sung to, the women used to try and sing to her themselves when I was not at hand to do so. A touching thought truly, these Mohammedan women singing Christian hymns to comfort the dying child! She was always saying, "Sing me the hymns about heaven," and finally would herself try and sing the "joyful, joyful" chorus in her weak, childish voice.

"I believe in Jesus."

Mohammedan women sing Christian hymns to comfort a dying patient.

The impression made on the women was wonderful. They vied with each other in caring for her, and she was never left a moment alone. They confessed they had never seen such a thing, and I do not think they will ever forget it. The child was so perfectly sure she was going straight to heaven. Jesus had forgiven her sins. He had a place ready for her. She had no fear, but talked constantly of the joy of heaven. It was so different from the callous indifference of a Mohammedan death-bed that no one could fail to be impressed. The end came on Wednesday night. She had been delirious the earlier part of it, and had asked to be supported up in bed. Then a change came and she said, "It is getting dark, lay me down." They laid her down, and a sweet smile overspread her face, and she repeated several times the words of her favourite hymn, "Joyful, joyful, joyful." Then, as if in answer to an unseen voice, she said, "Yes" distinctly three times, and soon afterwards the spirit left the little suffering body and winged its way to the heavenly mansions, where indeed there was a place prepared for little Bagum.

A few months after her death, in November, Bagum's mother and young sister walked from their village home to Julfa, for the sole purpose of finding out what was the secret of her happiness in her last hours, that they too might die like her. They were miserably poor, earning about a penny a day by spinning, exceedingly ignorant, indeed the woman seemed almost wanting in intelligence, yet they brought an offering of about 3*s.* in value for the hospital as a token of gratitude. Steps were taken to place them both under regular Christian teaching, and Dr. Stuart asks that prayer may go up for them both that they may find out what made Bagum happy. In September a girl who had been an inmate of the hospital for several months returned cured to her home, five days' journey distant from Julfa, and before she left both she and her mother declared themselves convinced of the truth of the Gospel. The mother was a very intelligent woman and a "sayyid," and tried at first to prove that Islam and Christianity were identical. The reading of Sweet Firstfruits satisfied her that Islam is false. Miss G. E. Stuart, the hospital nurse, held a Sunday class consisting of the young children of hospital servants and patients, who learned texts and hymns and Bible stories, and she found one of these, aged four, teaching a child patient to repeat a Scripture text. Miss A. Stirling, who left home in the autumn of 1899 with instructions to proceed to Yezd, was detained at Julfa, on the recommendation of the Missionary Conference, and took up the work of matron, and that of reading to the in-patients in the hospitals.

Ispahan.

The only member of the C.M.S. Mission staff who resided in the great Mohammedan city of ISPAHAN was Bishop Stuart. His daughter, who, though not on the list of the Society's missionaries, does the work of a missionary, lived with the Bishop. The Dispensary for Men, which Dr. Carr had opened at his residence in Ispahan, Dr. Griffith reopened in October, 1900. Bishop Stuart, who was living in the same house, says that it was much appreciated by Persian military and civil officials.

Medical missionary called to treat the Governor and chief mullahs.

Dr. Griffith was summoned from Julfa on several occasions to the palace of the Governor of Ispahan, the Zil-es-Sultan, elder brother of the Shah, to treat him, in conjunction with his usual medical attendant, for gout. Among his private patients also were numbered two of the chief mullahs of Ispahan who had been bitterly opposed to the work of the Mission. One of these, who recovered from a serious illness, became quite friendly towards Dr. Griffith, and invited him to go frequently to his house for religious discussions, saying that he would convince him from the New Testament that the Mohammedan religion was the only true one. The other died through misunderstanding the instructions of his Persian doctor and taking a poison in lieu of medicine. The Jubarah Dispensary, in the Jewish quarter of the city, was opened twice weekly, and had an average attendance of about fifty, chiefly Jews, who listened attentively to the preaching of the Gospel. The Dispensary for Women, opened only on Saturdays, had in the summer an attendance of from 180 to 190, and the successive relays of patients heard Gospel addresses.

British Minister visits women's dispensary.

The British Minister in Persia, Sir H. Mortimer Durand, C.S.I., K.C.I.E., while on a visit to Ispahan from Teheran, called on Bishop Stuart, and accompanied him, attended by a retinue of the Prince-Governor's soldiers and household, to inspect the women's dispensary. In a letter to the Bishop he subsequently wrote:—

> It was very touching to me to see those brave ladies devoting themselves to the relief of suffering in this country. I always feel that it is to unselfish work of this kind that so much of our national greatness is due. It must bring us a blessing, not only to those who devote their lives to it, but to their country.

Bishop Stuart, during part of the year, until the reduced staff called for his help at Julfa, held on alternate Sunday mornings a service for the few Christians living in the quarter of Ispahan, Shamsabad, where he resided; the congregation usually numbered between thirty and forty. A meeting for Persian women, held by Miss Stuart, the Bishop's daughter, usually had about fifty present.

The Bishop's visits to Najifabad, he states, were full of interest, many listening with deep attention to the Word preached. During the hot month of August the Bishop, with his daughter and two nieces, went to Asfarjan, a village distant from Ispahan four days' journey southward. The people were hospitable and friendly, and a large number of patients, as many as seventy on one day, were treated by Dr. Emmeline Stuart.

Visit to Bakhtiaris.

In October, Dr. Griffith received a request to attend two Bakhtiari khans or chiefs who were ill. He was absent from Julfa a fortnight, and rode about 300 miles; he visited most of the chief villages of the tribe, was the guest of several of the khans, and met the six brothers who rule the whole tribe, of whom the eldest is called "Sirdar." These brothers expressed a great desire to have an English doctor resident among their people, and offered to provide his salary and to build a hospital.

YEZD.

Yezd.

The year under review was one of steady progress at YEZD, the circle of influence exercised by the Mission perceptibly widened, and the missionaries came to be regarded in many homes, not merely as ministers of healing to the body, but as personal friends, and in some instances as messengers of salvation. There were, it is true, no baptisms, but the seed was sown in the wards and dispensaries, in church and school, in the homes, and by the wayside, and in due time the harvest will surely appear.

Hospital.

In the Hospital, Dr. H. White was encouraged by a steadily increasing number of in-patients. The number of out-patients at the close of the year was as many as 3,000 monthly, or 100 daily. Afghans and Beluchis were found among them, and not a few others from distances approaching 250 miles. The attitude of the newly-appointed Governor of Yezd towards the Medical Mission work was most friendly, as was that of his predecessor. The present Governor, the Jilal-ud-Dowleh, is a nephew of the Shah, and eldest son of the Zil-es-Sultan, the Governor of Ispahan. He was the Governor of Yezd in 1897, when Dr. Carr went thither at his earnest request and performed an operation, after which the Jilal-ud-Dowleh accompanied him back to Ispahan. Since that time he has cherished friendly feelings towards the missionaries, and he showed this by twice telegraphing complimentary messages to Dr. White from Ispahan before starting to take up his appointment. Soon after his arrival he paid a State visit to the hospital, and expressed himself most pleased with all he saw, and gave a donation of two thousand krans, about £40. The leading mujtahids of the town are remarkable among their class for their tolerant spirit, and consequently the Mussulman community generally are exceptionally accessible, almost all of them being personal friends of Dr. White. A separate Dispensary for Women was secured in August by adapting the hospital stable to that use, and there Dr. Urania Latham (now Mrs. Malcolm) and Miss M. R. S. Bird saw urgent cases and dressed patients, and on two days a week they saw all who came. Both the ladies, and also Mrs. White, addressed the patients, and Dr. Latham says:— his donation to the hospital.

Friendliness of new governor—

> The addresses in the dispensary are so arranged that almost every patient who comes is present at prayers, and some will return to the waiting-room after getting their medicine for a second address. Occasionally women even come in for the address only. They listen very quietly and attentively as a rule, and sometimes ask questions, and we know that some of them repeat at home what they can remember. One day I was telling them of our Lord's prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," and a Jewish woman looked up and said in a tone of surprise, "Did Jesus Christ say that?"

"Did Jesus Christ say that?"

The attendance of Jewish women increased towards the close of the year, their fear gradually diminishing. Some Parsis also were among the patients, but the majority, of course, were Mohammedans. Among these latter was a woman who was on her way to Kerbela. She wished to be healed at once that she might accompany the caravan, and declined to wait for the treatment needed by a bad wound. She died on the way. Her friends, however, had no "weeping service" for her, as being on pilgrimage she was on the sure road to heaven! The number of homes open to the ladies for Visiting, and that not only as doctors but as teachers, increased during the year. Miss Bird was sent for by Agha Baba, the high priest of the whole Jewish community in the land of Persia, to see his dying daughter, and she was permitted on several occasions to pray with and for her to the God of Abraham. These visits led to further intercourse, and Miss Bird writes:—

A Kerbela pilgrim declines to wait for treatment.

Sent for by religious head of Jewish community.

> Calling later, they told me they sorely needed more books for the poorer boys belonging to their school. At first I was afraid if I gave them it might hinder the work of the Bible Society's colporteur, but he was only too glad, as he said the Jews were so poor they could not possibly buy any. When I took them the priest gave the Pentateuchs and Psalms to the boys and put the Hebrew Testaments and Persian Bibles on one side. I said if they would not use them I would rather take them away, as we reverenced them, knowing they were the Everlasting Word of God. The priest dismissed the boys, and then followed an eager talk, a Kirman priest and four Yezd ones begging the high priest's permission to have a Hebrew Testament and Persian Bible, so that they might compare the Scriptures and see if they were the same. Then the high priest asked me to read Gen. iii. and Psalm xxii. aloud in Persian, whilst they followed in their own books. I tried to point out that all the prophecies in both passages were fulfilled by Jesus Christ. This he vehemently denied, but he permitted the others to take the books. Since then I have met most of them several times, and have no doubt, by the way they refer to different passages, that they are reading regularly. The last time I saw Agha Baba, about ten days ago, he permitted his grandchildren as well as several women to remain in the room. After the preliminary courtesies had been exchanged he said, "We are ancient Jews, and you are modern; we all belong to one stock; it is like two fingers of one hand. We have kept to the old, you have gone to something new." I tried to show him how much we have in common—our acceptance of the Books of Moses, the Prophets, and Psalms of David; then very briefly sketched our Lord's life, and was telling of His crucifixion when Agha Baba exclaimed, "Do not say He was killed. If He were killed there is no hope for us." I showed him St. John x. 18 and St. John xix. 30, and he seemed satisfied.

"Do not say He was killed."

A mosque "reader" calls in a missionary to his child.

A reader in the mosque sent for Miss Bird to see his child, who had been dismissed by native doctors as incurable. The child recovered, and the whole household were thereby made willing to be taught, and two relatives sent requests to be visited. Miss Bird mentions other instances:—

Hearts opening to the Gospel.

When visiting a pleurisy case in a house where thirty-five relations of four generations lived, the old grannie at first did not care to listen to the Gospel. Gradually she grew interested. One day I said I did not remember exactly which of our Lord's parables and miracles she had heard; she replied, "But I remember," and described eight. Another time she was entertaining a visitor at the other side of the compound when I began to read to the patient, but at the end of the fifth verse she called, "I did not hear the beginning, and cannot understand the subject"; she then listened to St. Mark xiv. 3–9. When I was trying to explain that Christ wants, and will accept, broken hearts, she said, "Yes, but the woman broke a good box, and offered Him valuable ointment; we have bad hearts, full of the devil—who wants such?" For months a khan's wife has been visited for tuberculosis; now that she is well, she begs to be visited every week or ten days, when she, her mother, and sister are eager listeners. The other day she said, "I should like to sit and listen all day, then I could be good; but now as soon as you go the devil makes me worse than ever." We are praying and hoping that she may soon find salvation from his power. When praying with a very old woman that God would grant her forgiveness and salvation, she said, "Give it quickly, quickly; I am very old."

"Give it quickly."

Mr. Malcolm's chief work was language study, but he gives an interesting account of the Sunday services and classes (and few will agree with him when he says he has "a light Sunday," especially when much of the work is in a new language), of inquirers who visit him in large numbers, and of school work. The Persian Services on Sunday mornings were held in the dining-room of Dr. White's house, Dr. White reading the Lessons and also preaching occasionally. The room is divided by a curtain, which separates the men from the women. The men kneel in the Eastern fashion throughout the service. The congregation includes sayyids, mullahs, merchants, beggars, and nearly always a few Parsis. There was a morning celebration of the Holy Communion once a month in Persian for the Armenians, and one also for Europeans, for whom an English service was held every Sunday evening. The "Sunday-school" had one pupil, the only Christian boy in the town. Mr. Malcolm had a well-attended men's class for Armenians in Persian on Sunday afternoons, and there was a weekly prayer-meeting. Of Mussulman inquirers he refers to four as in advance of the rest, for one of whom he asks prayer, as he is struggling with the opium habit. A former inquirer was beaten and left Yezd, probably to go to India. Another died, Mr. Malcolm believes, in the full faith of Christ crucified; he was under preparation for baptism. An inquirer is also mentioned who is a tradesman and a small mullah, well educated, argumentative, a clear reasoner, and intensely interested in the Gospel. Schools for boys and men were opened in February, 1900. The former was broken up for a time by the mullahs, and the latter dwindled to nearly zero. Both, however, were well established by the close of the year. Sixteen Mohammedan boys were attending regularly in the morning, learning English in two classes. After class the boys read the Bible in Persian. Two of the boys were sons of a prince residing permanently in Yezd, and one was a son of the Deputy-Governor of the city. It is the presence of boys of this class which prevents the mullahs from closing the school. The other boys were sons of merchants, shopkeepers, landowners, and artisans. The Men's School met in the afternoons three times a week. It had nine pupils, all above eighteen years of age.

The Villages in the Yezd district are numerous. The Bible Society's senior colporteur told Miss Bird that in one village, where no one could read, four Scripture portions were bought, the people saying that they would ask any passing mullah to read them for them. In March, 1900, Dr. Latham and Miss M. E. Brighty went to Rahmatabad and dispensed medicine, and the former read and talked to the people. In June they went to Fahraj, twenty miles from Yezd, a village which had not been visited before. On the Saturday of their short stay they told the women that no medicines would be given next day, but a Sunday service in Persian would be held. Miss Brighty describes this service:—

Scriptures bought to be read by passing mullahs.

> At the time appointed we went to the room set apart for a temporary dispensary, and found a number of curious expectant people waiting for us. We placed our books reverently on a clean duster on the floor at one end of the room, and began with prayer. Miss Latham read some of the Church prayers, and prayed specially for a blessing on the service; then I read the Lesson, General Confession, and the Lord's Prayer; then Miss Latham read the story of the Crucifixion, and, finding the people were listening so attentively, she went on to the Resurrection and explained it all. It was a most impressive service. Most, if not all, had never heard the story before, and were struck with wonder. When any new-comer entered the room they made signs to them to sit quiet and listen. Once two small children began to play; a woman threw her shoe at them from the other side of the room, and then returned to her listening attitude. After service some of the people stayed a short time to ask questions, then we dismissed them and had a quiet time to ourselves.

In July the same ladies and Miss Bird went for a month to some mountain villages where Mrs. White and Miss Bird had been the previous year, and found the people had not altogether forgotten what they had then heard, and were much more willing to listen. A Haji's wife invited Miss Bird to tea, and she found over thirty women assembled to meet her; they begged for a Bible lesson, and listened attentively for one hour. When she left one of the women made her heart ache by saying, "Now we shall not hear any more for another year."

"Now we shall hear no more for another year."

In April, 1900, Dr. and Mrs. White made a seven days' itinerating tour to Ardikan, forty miles to the north of Yezd. They saw some 700 patients during the tour, and at Ardikan they were the guests of an Ulema and had excellent opportunities of preaching the Gospel in his house. On the day before they left, which was a Sunday, they were "in a state of siege," the people were so eager to be treated. Later in the year they went to a group of villages called Marees, where, and en route, they held dispensaries and had prayer with an address twice daily. About 800 patients were treated. Again, in the holiday month they visited seven villages, one of them belonging to a Persian friend who had invited them to visit him. Two other journeys were taken by the doctor, one to Aliabad, fifty miles distant, summoned to what proved to be the death-bed of the principal landowner of the place; the other was to Kirman to treat the wife of the Governor. The Governor of Yezd sent him off in his own carriage with four horses and with six armed outriders, and the carriage of the Governor of Kirman met him at Anar. Thus the journey of 250 miles was accomplished in eight days.

Kirman.

KIRMAN is described by Dr. H. White, whose visit to it in October, 1900, has been referred to above, as healthily situated, close to the mountains, and surrounded by gardens. The present city is a comparatively new one, containing a fine bazaar and some imposing buildings. Its predecessor is now a ruin, about a mile distant; in the centre of the site stand the remains of two ancient forts which were destroyed during the Afghan invasion. Dr. White's visit was providentially timed. The Governor, whose opposition was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 174), died in the winter of 1899–1900, and the new Governor seemed at first no more inclined than his predecessor had been to tolerate missionary work. Before he arrived the Mujtahids had made complaints about the work to the authorities at Teheran, and on his arrival he informed the Consul that he was instructed to require the Rev. A. R. Blackett to leave the city. It was arranged that the services should be held for a time in the house of H.B.M's Consul, Major P. M. Sykes, who proved a true friend to the Mission. The Governor's attitude soon changed for the better, and Dr. White's visit in October rendered both the Governor and the authorities decidedly friendly. Dr. and Mrs. White were lodged in a house within the fortified palace of the Governor, the same which the Bishop and Miss Stuart occupied for a month in the spring of 1896 (see Annual Report for 1896–97, page 157), and there every day of their stay dispensary was held, preceded by prayer, and about 1,000 people were treated. The patients belonged to all classes, from the richest and most influential to the poorest and most degraded in the town. There also Dr. White received visits from all the chief mullahs and khans, from members of the Hindu community, and from the Parsi Anjuman. The chief object in the mind of the Governor who invited Dr. White was accomplished—his wife was restored to health. As to still more important results Mr. Blackett says:—

Dispensary held in Governor's palace.

> Friendly relations were established with the leading ecclesiastical functionaries, and amongst the foremost to seek the doctor's help were the very persons who nine months ago assured the Acting Governor that if he did not bring about a cessation of Christian work in Kirman they would take summary measures to do it themselves. The establishment of permanent medical work in this city will not fail to have a very important bearing on the interests of the Mission.

The Consul presented the prizes at the Persian Boys' School at Christmas, 1899, three of them being his own gifts. The number of boys on the list during the year was eleven.

Mr. Blackett made several Itinerations. At Baghin, on the way to Yezd, Christian literature was gladly accepted, and a khan who possessed a New Testament asked Mr. Blackett to reconcile the statements, first, that Herod the king died, and then, later in the Gospel story, that Herod the king killed John the Baptist! Mrs. and Miss Blackett accompanied Mr. Blackett to Khabis, four days' journey distant and on the opposite side of a lofty range of mountains. At Khabis, which is an oasis of palm-groves and orange-gardens, foreign ladies had not been seen before, and they were treated with the utmost courtesy and friendliness. On the day after their arrival, Sunday, fifty-two assembled for Divine service, one man bringing a New Testament which he said had been given him by the late Rev. H. Carless. On the second Sunday the morning and afternoon audiences numbered 200 and 300 respectively. Among the women Mrs. Blackett found some earnest inquirers.

A Bible difficulty.

Dr. A. R. Griffith proceeded to Kirman from Julfa in March, 1901, to commence permanent medical work.

SHIRAZ.

Faristan, of which SHIRAZ is the provincial capital, is, according to Curzon, "the province which both in name, in history, and in population has the best right to be regarded as Persia Proper and as the central hearthstone of Iran," yet nothing is being done for its Christian enlightenment outside Shiraz except the occasional itinerations of the British and Foreign Bible Society's colporteurs and the establishment of an agency of the same Society with a sub-agent at Bushire. As mentioned in last year's Report, the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rice reached Shiraz on January 3rd, 1900, and secured a house a few days later. In this house, which proved to be in a convenient situation, a quarter of a mile from the city on its eastern side, and easy of access for Persian callers and pupils, Mr. Rice conducted a Persian Service on Sunday mornings. The attendants outside the Mission circle consisted of only two. An English Service on Sunday afternoons had an average attendance of eleven, including a few Armenians and one or two Ceylonese burghers. Mr. Rice also opened English Classes, in which at the year's close there were twelve Persian pupils of ages from ten to twenty-five, sons of gentlemen of the professional and official classes and of mullahs and sayyids. Some of these pupils listened readily to the Gospel lesson.

INDIA.

The Plague

For some centuries until recent years Persia was regarded as the Eastern limit of plague prevalence. There are records, indeed, of isolated outbreaks in India early in the nineteenth century, and the districts of Gurhwal and Kumaon, on the southern slopes of the Himalayas, have been recognized as containing an endemic plague area since 1823, but the disease has shown no tendency to travel to the plains. In the autumn of 1896, however, the plague was identified with certainty in Bombay, and its ravages in the large cities of the Bombay Presidency were terrible in that and the three succeeding years, and again in the spring of 1901. During the year 1900 the disease appeared for the first time in a virulent form in Bengal. In one week, that ending March 17th, there were 4,725 deaths in that province, of which 2,044 were in Patna and 744 in Calcutta. From what quarter and under what circumstances the disease was introduced into India will probably be for some time a matter of controversy. It is argued by some that it was carried to Bombay by sea from Hong Kong, and that it reached that port down the West River from the mountain villages of Yun-Nan, which have for over thirty years been subject to annual visitations of plague. It is of more consequence to notice that some substantial success has been achieved in searching for an antidote. A report published by the Government of India in February, 1900, deals with a system of anti-plague inoculation discovered by M. Haffkine, a Russian gentleman, who was deputed by the Indian Government to study at Bombay the question of the possibility of curative or preventive inoculation for plague. Inoculation by his vaccine, while it does not give absolute immunity from attack, adds materially to the chance of immunity of those submitting to it and invariably diminishes the death-rate.

Famine

The suggestions as to preventive measures with regard to famines in India are many and various—sanitary, social, educational, and political—and will doubtless receive the consideration they deserve from the Government and its officials, upon whom, in the past five years, famines of almost unprecedented severity have brought a crushing burden of anxiety and responsibility. Tremendous as were the figures dealing with the area and the population affected by the famine of 1896–97, that of 1900 was even more widespread and affected a larger population. The number in receipt of relief when the former famine was at its height, in June, 1897, was four and a half millions; while in May, 1900, the number was five millions—more than the entire population of either Ireland or Scotland. The aggregate famine area was 300,000 square miles, or nearly six times that of England, with a population of forty millions; and a further population of twenty-one millions suffered from general scarcity though not amounting to famine. In Bombay the distress attacked classes and strata of society that had been previously exempt; in the Punjab the loss of crops was the greatest on record; in the Central Provinces, so dark a spot in the famines of 1896–97, some two millions were at one time in receipt of relief; while in Rajputana, one state, Jodhpur, lost ninety per cent. of its stock of cattle. The organization and expenditure necessary to cope with an evil of such gigantic proportions taxed the resources in respect both of men and means of the Indian Government. The "districts," into which all the provinces of India are divided, were in the affected area subdivided into "charges," to each of which a famine officer was appointed. These "charges" contained from 400 to 500 villages. Under the famine officer worked three or four assistants, each having his own "circle," the villages of which he was instructed to visit twice a month for the purpose of distributing money doles, &c. "Kitchens"—namely, an erection with mud walls and thatched roof, provided with a few cooking and water pots—were put up at convenient centres, so that few villages in the more populous districts would be over two miles distant from one of them, and at these relief was administered in the form of cooked food. One of the Government famine officers, in the course of two instructive articles in the Times (of September 20th and 21st, 1900), referred to one of the greater difficulties which he had to encounter in carrying out his beneficent work, and it was one which lays bare India's chief need, more widespread and more prevalent and more radical than the scarcity of material food, namely, the soul-converting grace of God the Holy Ghost. That difficulty was the unreliability of a large proportion of the Natives. This was felt at every turn: in the services of native subordinate assistants, in dealing with native merchants, and in relieving the poor sufferers themselves. Doubtless much money expended by Government was wasted because an adequate number of trustworthy officers were not forthcoming, and doubtless also much suffering and many deaths which were preventable were endured through the same cause. The writer in the Times referred to above says:—

One state lost 90 per cent. of its cattle.

Relief organization.

Unreliability of native subordinates.

> Even in kitchen management the native official can show a callous heartlessness. On one occasion I asked an assistant to see whether at a certain kitchen, where a large increase in attendance had taken place, there were not people being admitted who ought not to be. Thinking that I desired a decrease in the attendance, he sent for the village registers and without any personal inquiry into their condition struck off fifty names. Happily a sudden change in my touring programme brought me that way shortly after. My tent was surrounded in the evening by a number of weeping children who asked to be re-entered on the kitchen books, and after inquiry I found that they had been struck off as stated above, and I was able to send them all back to the kitchen again. This is a pretty fair example of how the average native subordinate official interprets the responsibilities of his position. He does not ask himself what ought to be done; he only thinks of what is likely to please his superior.

Dishonesty of native merchants.

The native banias or merchants, moreover, did not scruple to demand unreasonable terms for the grain supplied, or to throw up their contracts and suspend the supply, entailing the starving of the famine sufferers for at least a few days, in the hope of extracting more liberal rates. Then constant watchfulness was necessary to prevent being imposed upon by the people applying for relief; members of well-to-do families would not be deterred by a sense of pride from appealing for a pauper's dole, and they would bribe the native assistant, with the promise of a commission if he could induce the "Sahib" to bestow the asked-for help. "The amount of lying that a famine officer has to listen to in a day's journey is marvellous," wrote one of them; and he added, "In one's bitterer moments one is inclined to ask if the labour and money spent in endeavouring to save such people is not wasted." In assisting the farmers with loans to renew their stock of cattle or provide seed for sowing their fields it was the same. "The main difficulty in these inquiries is the unlimited mendacity of the Hindu farmer. 'Honesty is the best policy' is a maxim utterly unknown."

Unlimited mendacity.

C.M.S. Famine Relief Fund.

The Committee of the C.M.S. sent out £5,000 from the Famine Relief Fund in their hands as soon in 1900 as they received news of the pressing need for help, and in April they authorized the remittance of the balance of that fund, about £7,000, placing it at the disposal of the Corresponding Committees in India to distribute as required to the districts chiefly affected. In the districts covered by the Society's Missions it was chiefly among the Bhîls of Rajputana and at Aurungabad, in the Nizam's Territory, that the suffering was most acute, and in the former district the life of one of the Society's missionaries, the Rev. C. S. Thompson, was sacrificed to his arduous and self-forgetful labours to meet the emergency of need and distress; while others ran great risks of succumbing in the same way. Particulars will be given below (see pages 265–270) of the sufferings of the people and the devoted labours of the missionaries, and of the generous forwardness of other Missions, both of the C.M.S. and of the S.P.G., to lend men for the occasion.

The services rendered during the prevalence of the famine by voluntary helpers, Europeans and Natives, and especially by missionaries, were cordially recognized by the Government of India. The Viceroy (Lord Curzon), in a speech before the Legislative Council at Simla on October 10th, said:—

Numerous cases of devotion, amounting to the loftiest heroism, have been brought under my notice. I have heard of Englishmen dying at their posts without a murmur. I have seen cases where the entire organization of a vast area and the lives of thousands of beings rested upon the shoulders of a single individual labouring on in silence and solitude, while his bodily strength was fast ebbing away. I have known of Natives who, inspired by this example, have thrown themselves with equal ardour into the struggle, and have unmurmuringly laid down their lives for their countrymen. Particularly must I mention the noble efforts of the missionary agencies of various Christian denominations. If ever there was an occasion in which their local knowledge and influence were likely to be of value, and in which it was open to them to vindicate the highest standards of their beneficent calling, it was here, and strenuously and faithfully have they performed the task.

The sympathetic and active co-operation of the Indian Bishops, especially that of the Metropolitan, and the Bishops of Lucknow, Lahore, and Bombay, in whose dioceses the chief distress prevailed, was a source of great encouragement to the workers. Bishop Welldon wrote the following Circular Letter "to the missionaries and other Christian workers in the famine-stricken regions of India":—

Circular Letter of Bishop Welldon.

MY FRIENDS AND FELLOW-LABOURERS,—I do not think that any one can justly find fault with me if I try in this dark hour by some few words to strengthen your hands and encourage your hearts in your sacred ministry after the long months of unceasing warfare against poverty, hunger, disease, and all the sorrows of India. And I would address my words, if you permit me, not to any one religious body only, although it be my own, but to all the ministers and members of Christ's Church who have "spent and been spent" in many different parts of India for the saving of human life and the solace and relief of human suffering. It may be that words of sympathy, even from a stranger, will prove helpful, where other help can seldom come, to some poor lonely servant of Christ, who has well-nigh lost heart in his or her daily contact with misery. Many missionaries, as I know, have endured much deprivation for their suffering people's sake in the recent grave distress; some have even laid down their lives. Such lives and such deaths become rich treasures in the moral and spiritual sanctuary of India. The Government of India has not been slow to recognize the service of the missionaries, as well as of its own accredited agents and representatives, to the cause of humanity. But it is another thought that I would respectfully offer you. For to Christian hearts there is not, nor can there be, any motive so potent as the promise which the Saviour of the world held out before all who should realize His Divine law of charity, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." Great and terrible then as has been the tragedy of life in India during the famine, yet it has not been altogether without its blessing. It has drawn Christians nearer to each other. It has made us think little for the time of our speculative differences. It has made us think much of our common faith and duty. We have almost forgotten that we belong to this or that denomination. We have remembered that we are "all one in Christ Jesus." Half the money which I have been permitted to collect for distribution through the missionaries in the famine-stricken regions has come to me from persons who are not members of the Church of England. May the "love of the brethren" which has been thus quickened by mutual charity grow deeper and holier year by year! Yet again the suffering in India has, I think, drawn non-Christians nearer to Christ. While we have watched with admiring sympathy the patient endurance of the people of India, in their long and painful affliction, they too have learnt something that they knew not before of the beauty and sanctity of our faith as inspiring Christian men and women in the love of Christ to make great sacrifices, and, if need be, to lay down their lives for those who in race and religion and in moral

"The famine has drawn Christians nearer to each other,"

"and non-Christians nearer to Christ."

ideas and social custom are widely separated from themselves. When the famine is past the tie of sympathy will remain. The ministers and recipients of philanthropic aid cannot be strangers, still less can they be enemies any more. Let us then one and all take heart again. We know that our "labour is not in vain in the Lord." We are impelled by the highest of all motives to the surest and most sublime of all duties. The issue is in God's hand, it cannot fail. But we will go on our way in faith and charity, with the earnest prayer that God may reveal to the people of India the Gospel of His Son our Lord in its saving power, but if it be not so, at least in our day, with the strong resolve that we will at all costs claim the privilege of bearing, as far as we may, the heavy burden of the people, and so of fulfilling Christ's law.

Fulfilling the law of Christ.

Such a letter from the Metropolitan of India could not fail to comfort and strengthen the worn-out workers, and its publication must have done something to impress on the minds of non-Christians the lessons which the self-denying labours of missionaries for their countrymen were calculated to teach them. There is evidence, happily, that these lessons were not overlooked. The organ of the Brahmo Somaj, the Indian Messenger, made the following reference to the subject:—

Organ of the Brahmo Somaj on the services of missionaries.

Famine work must not close without a word of recognition of the valuable services rendered by Christian missionaries towards mitigating its horrors. All honour to these ambassadors of Christ! They have proved themselves to be worthy followers of Him Whose heart bled for the sorrows of men. For the last six months every Mission station in the Central Provinces, in Central India, in Gujerat, and in many parts of the Western Presidency, was converted into a relief camp. The missionary workers did not know rest, but were out day and night relieving distress and saving lives. The strain was so severe that one of these workers writes: "Every Mission in these parts has lost at least one European worker by death, and ours one each month for the last four months." Not only did these workers offer themselves as a sacrifice, but money also flowed freely for the relief of distress from Christian centres in this country and abroad. Verily at this threshold of the twentieth century Christian philanthropy comes to us with healing balm for the many afflictions of mankind. This humanity of Jesus' followers, and not their dogmas, will surely establish the throne of their Master on the love and reverence of civilized humanity. Let all classes of Indian society accord their admiration to these worthy servants of Christ in unstinted measure.

"This humanity of Jesus' followers will establish the throne of their Master."

The Viceroy's tour.

In the course of an extended tour made by Lord Curzon in the closing months of 1900 he did much by his wise, candid, and sympathetic speeches to establish and cement good relations between the Government and the people. He visited parts of India which have never before been included in the routes of Viceregal progresses, and wherever he went he succeeded in inspiring the people of the Provinces and Native States with the conviction that he was anxious to hear their voices and, as far as possible, to respond to their desires. The comments of the native press showed that the educated section of the public was satisfied that his professions of sympathy were sincere. That the people are in the main profoundly loyal to British rule, and sensible in some degree of the blessings it confers upon their country, was manifested at the time of Queen Victoria's illness. Countless telegrams of inquiry were received at Calcutta from all parts of India, and in numberless mosques and temples, as well as in churches, prayers were offered for her recovery. A like indication of loyalty was afforded by Mohammedans in London in April, 1900, when the Council of the Moslem Patriotic League met at the Oriental Academy under the chairmanship of Moulvie Rafi-ud-din Ahmad. Special prayers were offered on that occasion for the success of British arms in South Africa, and the Secretary of the League read a poem in Persian on "Patriotism." The President remarked that the princes and people of India were never more devoted to the British Crown than they are at the present time.

Prayers in mosques and temples for the Queen's recovery.

Reform parties.

One natural effect of the growth of a spirit of acquiescence in and appreciation of British rule on the part of leading Hindus and Mohammedans shows itself in a disposition to reconcile the teachings of their respective sacred books with the enlightened policy of the Government's administration. Hindu reformers profess themselves able to read Christian morality into the Vedas; and in like manner the reforming party among the Mohammedans endeavours to see in the Koran what they have learned to appreciate through their contact with Christians.

Mohammedan Colleges at Aligarh

The Mohammedan College at Aligarh has done more, probably, than any other institution to promote these opinions among the followers of Islam. The present Principal of that College, Mr. Theodore Morison, wrote in the Spectator of December 29th, 1900, that these reformers "believe that in their faith are enshrined the great truths of religion and morality, but that in the past they have misread the Word of God, and that narrow-minded mullahs have expounded it amiss." It is asserted, for example, that "in the Koran are the clearest directions to marry but one wife and to free the slave, and that God, through His prophet, most emphatically forbade coercion in religion." On the other hand, such principles as the above openly advanced are a direct challenge to the Conservative Party, between whom and the new interpreters of the old Rule of Faith a conflict inevitably results. What the College at Aligarh is to the new rationalistic school of Moslems, the Arabic College, the Madrassa Ilm i Arbi, at Deoband, in the Saharanpur District of the North-West Provinces, is to the old orthodox party. An interesting account of the latter College was contributed by Dr. Martyn Clark, of the Punjab Mission, to the C.M. Intelligencer of August, 1900. It had at the close of 1898 a staff of ten Professors and a Mufti, or authoritative exponent of Mohammedan law; and the students numbered 239, from all parts of India and from Central Asia. The course extends over eight years, and every student goes through the whole course, at the end of which he is presented with a turban and a diploma, in which he is certified to be a Moulvie, or Moslem Doctor of Divinity. Since its institution in 1866 the College has turned out 383 Moulvies. Of the general tone and character of these men Dr. Martyn Clark says:—

> The men turned out are intensely prejudiced. They are bitter enemies of all infidels, Christians, Shiahs, of all who differ from them in religion, be they outsiders or belonging to one of the many sects differing from theirs in the fold of Islam. The hate and bitterness are intensified by the fact that they are powerless under British rule to wreak their will. They are ever ready to persecute. In addition to their bigotry and intolerance they are full of conceit and false pride—in a word, are thoroughly imbued with the spirit of Islam.

Proposed Hindu College at Benares.

Hindus have been more ready than Mohammedans to avail themselves of the education offered in Government colleges. Some of their theosophical sympathizers, however, in America and England, in their anxiety to provide an institution under Hindu auspices, have promoted an effort to supply a Central Hindu college, to be erected at Benares, and to be affiliated to the Allahabad University, at which Hinduism will be taught, and a passage from the Bhagavad Gita will be daily recited in Sanscrit and in English.

India "throbbing with new life."

The import of such facts as the above is simply this, that, as one of India's own sons has said, "The country is throbbing, as it were, with new life. Great Britain has thrown open the flood-gates of Western knowledge, and activity and progress are visible everywhere. Even the most conservative sections of the Indian communities are being carried along the current of progress." And in the ferment caused by the introduction of the forces of civilization, is there evidence that the Gospel leaven introduced by missionaries is operative? The same Indian writer just quoted, Professor Samuel Satthianadhan, after naming a number of high-caste converts of conspicuous mental gifts and social influence, says:—

Transformation of depressed classes effected by the Gospel.

> We can multiply instances, but it would not do to attach undue value to the mere number and position of high-caste converts. We admit that those classes of the Indian population least influenced by the subtle, stereotyping influence of Hindu culture and Hindu religion have become most accessible to Christianity. But what is the result? It is these very classes—despised, trampled down and looked upon as utterly incapable of improvement of any kind—that now, with the enlightening influence of Christianity, compete successfully with the highest castes and classes of Indian society in every direction, morally, socially, and intellectually. In our opinion, even if there had not been a single convert from the higher classes of Hindu society, the transformation which Christianity has wrought among the lower classes that it has won over to its fold is a clear evidence of its unique triumph and Divine origin.

Sir Charles Elliott, late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in a paper on "Missionary Work in India in the Nineteenth Century," which he read at the Newcastle Church Congress in September, 1900, gave an illustration of the success of this work which had not been suggested before. He compared the number of conversions to Christianity in Bengal with the number of Natives who have learned to speak the English language. He referred to the many inducements which encourage the latter, High Schools and Colleges established with a liberal hand, the natural aptitude of the Bengali for the study and his ready success in it, the doors such knowledge opens to offices under Government and to remunerative employment in commerce, on the railways, under European planters and great landowners. Contrast with these considerations the consequences to a Native who embraces Christianity; the separation from family, the social ostracism, the persecution. Yet what are the facts? The census of 1891 showed that, out of the seventy-one millions of people in the Province of Bengal, only 150,000 returned themselves as able to speak English, while the number of Native Christians was returned as 168,000. Sir Charles Elliott added:—

> It is well sometimes to make comparisons of this kind in order to keep the balance true, and when discouraged at our own progress to contrast it with what has been done by other and, in a human sense, more powerful agencies to affect the immobility of the great mass of the population of India.

Organization of Missions.

In the same paper Sir Charles Elliott dwelt on the organization of Missions, and remarked on the fact that one great step, a crowning step in the work of organization, to which the supporters of Missions have long looked forward, has not yet been taken—the appointment of Native Bishops. He said:—

> The hesitation and reluctance to make such an appointment are natural and intelligible, but I think the authorities of the Church would do well to learn by the experience of the Civil Administration. When I first went to India it would have been thought incredible that any Native should become a High Court judge, or a member of the Viceroy's Legislative Council, unless he were an independent Rajah, used politically as a figure-head. It is not twenty years ago since I was met with astonishment and incredulity for saying that before long we should have English civilians acting as assistants to native district magistrates. Yet all these changes have occurred, and no convulsion of nature has followed, nor has the tone and ability of the Government service been lowered thereby. The Natives appointed have almost without exception earned the respect and confidence of their fellows. I was the first Governor of a province who appointed a Native to be a commissioner of a division with English district magistrates under him, but no one cavilled at the justice and wisdom of the selection. On the contrary, the men thus promoted have risen to the height of their position, their self-respect has been aroused, and with it the self-respect of the community to which they belong, and new qualities have been evolved in them. I believe that if our Bishops would take their courage in both hands and imitate the example of the Civil Government it would be a great stimulus to the native clergy and converts, and the result would not be disappointing.

The subject to which Sir Charles Elliott thus refers has occupied much of the Committee's time and consideration during the past few years. The Memorandum which they issued in March, 1901, and which has already been referred to (see supra, page 18), will be found as an Appendix to this Annual Report.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in South India in the last century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the deaths of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813 no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist missionary, and his companions had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Bishops Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898).

Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work was begun among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, in 1860.

Staff reduced through illness, &c.

THE Society's work in the Province of Bengal was greatly straitened during the past year through the absence, due to illness in many cases, of a large proportion of its European staff. In June, the Acting Secretary, the Rev. E. T. Sandys, wrote home:—

> Out of a staff of forty men (European) we have at present only twenty-five men at work (including the Rev. A. H. Bowman, who is with us only for a time). Of these, seven are not ordained or not in full orders; so it leaves only eighteen men in full orders for the whole of Bengal, Santalia, and Behar. Eighteen clergy for a country as large as France! Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He will thrust forth labourers into this portion of the harvest field.

Reinforcements.

The Committee sent out the following reinforcements to the Mission:—The Rev. Stuart Harrington Clark, M.A., Clare College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Christ Church, Gypsy Hill; the Rev. Arthur Fawsit Ealand, M.A., St. John's College, and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Holy Trinity, Marylebone; Mr. Alfred Henry Phillips, of London, who received a short course of training at Islington College; Miss Ethel May Brown, trained at "The Willows;" and Miss Vida Macfarlane, trained at "The Olives." Mr. Clark is a son of the late Rev. Robert Clark, of the Punjab Mission, and he was a Secretary of the C.M.S. Younger Clergy Union for London. He possesses the Royal Humane Society's medal for twice saving lives from drowning. Miss Brown is a daughter of the Rev. J. Brown, of this Mission. The two ladies sailed in October, 1900; Messrs. Clark and Ealand in November, and Mr. Phillips in January, 1901. On the other hand, to the Committee's regret, the Rev. H. Gouldsmith, the Rev. L. A. McC. Newbery, and Miss I. F. Young have been compelled to retire from the work on grounds of health, while the Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Kennedy have been transferred to the North-West Provinces Mission.

Deaths of Mrs. H. M. Moore,

It was mentioned in a footnote in last year's Annual Report (page 195) that Mrs. H. M. Moore, wife of the Rev. H. M. Moore, of this Mission, died on May 17th, 1900. Mrs. Moore went to India in 1891 as Miss Florence Amy Smith in connexion with the Church of England Zenana Society, of which Society she was an honorary missionary. Their marriage took place at Barrackpore in February, 1900, and almost immediately afterwards Mr. Moore was obliged to bring his wife to England in a most precarious state of health. On reaching home it was found that medical skill would be unavailing, and after a few weeks of patient suffering Mrs. Moore was called to higher service above.

Mrs. E. Droese,

The widow of the late Rev. Ernest Droese, who laboured at Bhagalpur for thirty-five years, between 1849 and 1884, and was the first to carry the Gospel to the Santals and Paharis of the Rajmahal Hills, died on January 8th, 1901. Mrs. Droese, whose maiden name was Joanna Schubert, was married to her husband in 1844 while he was an agent of the Berlin Evangelical Missionary Society, in connexion with which he went out to India. She thus shared his labours throughout the period he was at Bhagalpur, and subsequently at Annfield, Dehra Dun.

the Rev. M. Biswas,

A few days before Mrs. Droese, on December 27th, 1900, the senior native pastor in this Mission, the Rev. Molam Biswas, passed away. He was ordained in 1870 and was in charge at different times of the pastorates of Thakurpukur, Kapasdanga, Sholua, and Bohirgachi, all in the Nadiya district.

and a missionary of C.E.Z.M.S.

One of the missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S. was also called to her rest—Miss G. Simpson, of Kapasdanga, who went out in 1895.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Calcutta admitted Mr. Nimbai Hansda to Deacons' Orders, and the Revs. J. W. Knight and Kanto Lal Biswas to Priests' Orders in the Cathedral on December 23rd, 1900.

The Bishop has appointed the Revs. W. H. Ball and F. T. Cole to Honorary Canonries in St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta. The Rev. A. H. Bowman, formerly in charge of the Old Church, Calcutta, has been appointed by the Bishop to be Diocesan Mission Preacher for the Calcutta Diocese during the year 1901.

Missionary Conference.

The Conference of the missionaries of the Bengal Mission was held on March 6th, 1900. On the first day the following subjects were discussed: (1) "The reasons for the scarcity of permanent fruit in evangelistic work"; (2) "The reasons for the absence of a strong spiritual life and missionary zeal in the Christian churches, and the remedy for the same"; (3) "Have our hopes been fulfilled with regard to the results of evangelistic schools?" Papers on these subjects were read by the Revs. A. G. Lockett, G. H. Parsons, and E. T. Butler respectively, and a general discussion followed.

The Calcutta Corresponding Committee consists of the following:—The Bishop of Calcutta, the Revs. A. G. Lockett, E. T. Butler, and A. H. Bowman; Mr. A. F. Cox, Mr. R. M. Gurney, the Hon. J. A. Bourdillon, the Hon. R. T. Greer, Mr. F. E. Pargiter, Lieut.-Col. B. Scott, R.E., Dr. P. B. Bose, Major W. Mosse, and the Acting Secretary, the Rev. E. T. Sandys.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

The Rev. C. Grant came home in July, 1900; Mrs. G. H. Parsons in December; and the Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Olsen, Mr. A. E. W. Gwyn, and Miss H. J. Neele in April, 1901. The Rev. A. Le Feuvre returned to the Mission in August, 1900, and the Rev. H. M. Moore in September. The Rev. J. W. Knight was married to Miss Edith H. Platten in December at Bombay, on her arrival there from England.

CALCUTTA.

Calcutta in mourning for the Queen.

Calcutta was in deep mourning on February 2nd, 1901, the day of the funeral of Queen Victoria. One of the lady missionaries wrote the following account of what came under her own notice:—

> On the afternoon of February 2nd there was a tremendous gathering of Hindus collected on the Maidan, our large open space in the south of the city; men, drawn from the highest castes of Indian society, paced backwards and forwards, with bare feet and clothed entirely in white (the Hindu mourning colour). There seemed a constant stream of these little processions, and all the time there was an accompaniment of drums and cymbals and strange weird Eastern melodies. The central point of this vast crowd was a large monument, and on this was placed a portrait of the Queen draped in white. In the morning, Memorial services were held at all the churches and a State service at the Cathedral. Perhaps one of the most striking features of the day was the fact of all the shops being closed and all trade prohibited. Our missionaries, as they visited the zenanas, found the women just full of the one absorbing topic—the death of our "Maharani" (Great Queen); for out here, in the Indian zenanas, and even in distant villages, the name of the "Maharani" was loved and reverenced. One woman was puzzled at the accession of the King—"How can you have a king?" she asked, "I thought it was a woman's kingdom."

"I thought it was a woman's kingdom."

Calcutta and the surrounding district suffered from an extraordinary and almost unprecedented fall of rain between September 18th and 25th, 1900. Thirty-eight inches were registered in the city as having fallen in five days. The compound of the Society's Mission-house in Amherst Street was "a lake with about four feet of water." Much damage was done to property, and the crops over a considerable area were completely destroyed.

Old Church.

The Rev. A. H. Bowman, as mentioned in last year's Report, took the pastoral charge of the Old Church upon the Rev. H. Gouldsmith's returning home in consequence of Mrs. Gouldsmith's state of health. Mr. Bowman—a former incumbent of Old Church, and, later, of Girgaum Church, Bombay—went to India in the autumn of 1899 for the purpose of conducting special services for soldiers and others, and giving evangelistic addresses to educated Natives. He had, however, a serious attack of typhoid fever while at Bombay in December of that year, which interfered with his plans. On recovering convalescence, instead of returning home as he had planned to do, he offered to take up again his old work at Calcutta for six months from April to September, and this he carried out. He was assisted in the work by the Rev. C. L. Olsen (now at home). The congregation sent a special donation of Rs. 415 to the C.M.S. towards averting a deficit in the Society's accounts for 1900–1901. Mr. Olsen renders an encouraging account of some of the pastoral agencies—the weekly temperance meetings, with occasionally as many as seventy, mostly men, present; Band of Hope and Scripture Union meetings; services in the Sailors' Home, much appreciated by some of them in a city so rife with temptations; parochial visitation and cottage meetings; Boys' Brigade meetings, one of the earnest voluntary workers connected wherewith joined Lumsden's Horse for service in South Africa, and subsequently received a commission from Lord Roberts.

Divinity School.

The departure of the Rev. C. Grant on sick leave in the summer of 1900 left the Rev. A. G. Lockett without a European colleague at the Divinity School for several months, until he was joined in November by the Rev. H. M. Moore. There were eighteen students during the latter part of the year under review —nine were reading in the Vernacular (Bengali), seven in their first and two in their second year; one, a graduate of Calcutta University, was reading for the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination for Orders; and eight were members of two First Arts classes which were opened in 1899. Mr. Lockett refers in grateful terms to a Bengali fellow-worker, the Rev. Kanto Lal Biswas, tutor in the school, who received Priests' Orders at Christmas. His addresses at the College Chapel, which he took on alternate days with the Principal, were particularly valued. He taught the Old Testament, Church History, Pearson on the Creed, &c.

Boys' Boarding-school.

The Christian Boys' Boarding-school, under the Rev. C. B. Clarke, distinguished itself in the eyes of Bengali youths by winning the football challenge shield which Sir Charles Elliott gave in 1894, when he was Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to be contested for annually by native colleges and schools in the Presidency. The victory of the school is all the more creditable because the other competing colleges have a much larger number of boys from which to select their teams, and can put much older players in the field. In connexion with the same subject, the following extract from a letter of one of the missionaries deserves quoting, as showing what Native Society in Calcutta thinks of Christians:—

Here in Calcutta the premier Association football team in public estimation, if not in skill, is Shobha Bazaar. It is very exclusive, only admitting as members recognized gentlemen, and only playing European teams. It was a great surprise and pleasure to find that they were ready to play the C.M.S. High School, and we were proud to be one of the first native teams that they had ever consented to play. The boys acquitted themselves right well, playing as the school custom is without masters, and winning by a goal, our opponents very courteously putting a moderate team in the field. Talking to their captain, a thorough gentleman, before the game, I asked whether they had abandoned their old rule of playing only European teams. "Oh no," he said, "we do not play native teams." "What about the boys?" said I. "Oh," said he, "we know how your boys play and do not mind playing with them." In other words he said, "We are anxious only to play gentlemen, and regard Christians as such." Perhaps this was the most pleasing undesigned testimony to the ever-increasing influence of the Christian community in Calcutta that I have come across.

'We only play gentlemen, and regard Christians as such.'

The number of boys continues to increase, and has reached 115, while the school fees exceeded by Rs. 200 those of the previous year. As to the tone of the school Mr. Clarke is evidently not satisfied, and he asks for prayer that both masters and boys may receive a double measure of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit.

The Girls' Boarding-school, under Miss H. J. Neele (now at home), assisted by Miss A. M. Sampson and Miss M. K. Wolley, obtained good examination results at the end of 1899. Those of the Calcutta University Entrance Examination were exceptionally and beyond expectation satisfactory, as all the seven girls who were sent up passed, one in the first division, five in the second, and one in the third. Except one class, all did well. In the fourth standard all the thirteen sent up passed well; of the eighteen in the fifth standard all but two passed, and in the sixth standard there was only one failure out of fourteen who appeared. One result of these successes was that the Government grant was larger than usual, a very welcome result in view of the enhanced price of provisions consequent on famine and floods, &c. Six old pupils resided in the school while attending the Arts classes at Bethune College. The teachers had a poetry reading together one evening each week. Most of the teachers are old pupils, and they heartily enjoyed Tennyson, which they were reading in the autumn term. The Gleaners'

Union branch connected with the school has a large proportion of its members among the former pupils. A students' branch of the Y.W.C.A. was started in the school during the year, the weekly meetings of which were managed by the native teachers and the girls themselves. Once a week also the girls had a "charity work meeting," and they had the pleasure of sending some parcels of clothes to the Agarpara and Allahabad Orphanages, and to the Bhīls. Miss M. K. Wolley was mainly occupied with the language, but she had the unanticipated privilege of teaching a Bible-class of elder girls in English from the first Sunday after her arrival at the end of 1899. She says:—

> We do long and pray that our girls may go out into the world Christians, not only in name, but in heart and life, converted women who will by the beauty of their consecrated lives attract the Heathen to the Saviour. It is very cheering to hear from our old girls, who are either engaged in direct Mission work or working—none the less truly—for God in their homes.

Lieut.-Governor presides at prize-giving.

The Garden Reach High School had a very successful year from the educational point of view, passing four boys in the University Entrance Examination, two in the first, one in the second, and one in the third division. The Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Woodburn, presided at the prize-giving in February, 1900, and expressed his satisfaction and pleasure at all he saw. The pupils now number 325, about one-fourth of whom are Mohammedans. The school is under the Rev. A. Stark, who reminds the Committee that he has completed forty years "in this blessed service," and admits that as he approaches his threescore and tenth year he sometimes feels the continuous strain. Continuous it has indeed been, for during the past forty years Mr. Stark has only had one furlough, and that for no more than six months. The Mohammedan Mission, over which he has the charge, includes two other schools besides the Garden Reach High School, namely, one at Muttiaburj with over seventy boys, all of Moslem families except four, and one at Burtola with sixty Mohammedan boys. Preaching is carried on at Muttiaburj, Sonai Bazaar, the Docks, Hastings, and occasionally at Wellington Square. One of the native helpers is able to speak Arabic, which is a great recommendation with those whom he seeks to affect. A little Hindustani congregation of about eighteen souls to whom Mr. Stark ministers, meets for worship in the Old Church. Several are from Bhagalpur and the North-West Provinces, who are engaged in connexion with the railways. They lodge some distance from the church, but the long walk, whether in sun or rain, does not deter them.

Only one furlough in forty years.

Unfortunately Mr. A. E. W. Gwyn, who reached Calcutta at the beginning of 1900 with a view to working among the Educated Natives, was obliged by ill health to spend some months of the year at the Hills, and has since had to come home. While in Calcutta he had his quarters at the College branch of the Y.M.C.A., in the centre of student life, and had the joy of taking part in Bible-classes, evangelistic meetings, lectures, social gatherings, recreation, &c. One student, a stranger to him, spontaneously asked Mr. Gwyn for Bible tuition, and for five weeks until he (the student) left Calcutta spent an hour daily with him studying the Scriptures. Work among students in Government colleges.

The Rev. G. H. Parsons, on his return to the Mission after furlough at the close of 1899, took charge of the Bengali Evangelistic Work. After February, 1900, when the Rev. W. P. Parker came home on furlough, he had no European fellow-workers, and of his four Bengali catechists one was ill for several months These catechists engaged in house-to-house visitation each morning, and in the evenings Mr. Parsons and they occupied one or other of the city preaching places. There were no baptisms, but a good number of inquirers. Two of these are referred to as typical of a large number. One was a young and well-to-do married man who strolled into the preaching chapel one evening, heard a text which arrested his attention, got into touch with Mr. A. C. Kestin (before the latter came home), and became a diligent student of God's Word, which he read with Mr. Parsons with an eagerness the latter had seldom seen equalled. He wished to be baptized, but asked that it might be done privately, without the cognizance of his wife or father-in-law. He was urged to tell his friends how great things the Lord had done for him, which he hesitated to do, and finally left, giving no trace of his whereabouts. The second case was that of a young man of whose true conversion Mr. Parsons feels no doubt. He had been convinced of sin and of the sufficiency of Christ. The date was fixed for his baptism, but when the time arrived he could nowhere be found. Mr. Parsons had reasons for suspecting that his Mohammedan associates had removed him. As Secretary of the Calcutta Missionary Conference Mr. Parsons had undertaken the onerous duty of revising and enlarging the decennial statistical tables for India, Burmah, and Ceylon, which were last published in 1891. He was, moreover, on the Committees of the Calcutta Bible and Tract Societies. On Sundays, having no pastoral charge, he held a Bible-class for English-speaking Bengalis, and twelve of these joined a class for the study of Greek with a view to understanding better the New Testament. Two typical inquirers.

The Rev. J. A. Cullen, who, on his return from furlough at the end of 1899, succeeded Mr. A. C. Kestin in the charge of the Work among Hindis, had a serious attack of typhoid fever in February, and as soon as he recovered sufficient strength was ordered a long sea voyage. He went to Australia, returning in October, 1900. The evangelistic part of the work is carried on in that quarter of Calcutta known as Bara Bazaar, and along the Work among Hindis.

banks of the Hooghly, where the majority of the Hindi-speaking population of the city reside. A small Mission-room in the centre and busiest part of the Bazaar is open six days in the week. From a platform outside the room the Gospel is preached for about two hours every afternoon to large crowds of people, among whom may often be descried Afghans from Ghazni and Cabul, Punjabis, Mohammedans, Sikhs, Hindu merchants from the North-West and Central India, Gurkas from Nepal, and religious mendicants without number. Rarely does an afternoon pass without some measure of opposition, usually from a member of the Arya Samaj, who, after tiring of preaching in rivalry, will mingle with the crowd and jeer and scoff at the story of the crucified Saviour. Such opponents will often attempt to draw the preacher into controversy, but the rule is to decline to answer objections in the open air and to invite questioners to enter the room, where one of the preachers attends to explain difficulties or meet reasonable objections. "Inquirers" were many, but they belonged chiefly to the ranks of the unemployed, who, on finding that a profession of Christianity brought no pecuniary advantages, quickly disappeared. An attempt is made to reach the Hindi-speaking curriers engaged by the Municipality, and among these are met Santals and Mundaris who go to Calcutta for a few months' work and then return home. One woman was baptized, the wife of a man baptized some time ago, who sent her all the way from Ghaziabad to be instructed and baptized at Calcutta. After baptism she was sent to Miss Fallon's (Z.B.M.M.) Converts' Home at Allahabad for further instruction. The Chamar Schools, of which there are six for Hindi and two for Bengali children, are recruited from the lowest castes in the city. They read up to the Lower Primary, and a fair proportion of those sent up last year were successful. Nearly all the children attend a central Sunday-school held for them in the Mission compound. The Hindi Congregation meets in the chapel of the Divinity School. It consists for the most part of Mission agents and their families. The workers met every morning at Mr. Cullen's house for a short service, which included the exposition of a passage of Scripture. In this way Mr. Cullen gave them the substance of Professor Moule's Colossian Studies. In the Leper Asylum, which is a Government Institution, a catechist conducts Sunday services for the Christian lepers, but the rules do not give much scope for evangelistic work among the non-Christians. The inmates number 120.

the Christians in the proceedings. He is encouraged by some signs, though he yearns for more, of distinct spiritual progress on the part of the congregations. He says: "There is a strong tendency to look upon the Atonement of Christ as possessing some quality by virtue of which God can excuse and overlook sin in the Christian, a readiness to look upon sinning as the inevitable accompaniment of human nature 'until death us do part,' and to look upon Christianity as a substitute for, rather than the effectual cause of, personal holiness of life." For this reason the burden of the preacher's message has constantly to be, "Let every man that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity." Special meetings for the congregation worshipping at Trinity Church were held by interpretation just after Christmas, 1899, by the Rev. C. Inwood; and the Rev. F. Paynter, of Guildford, gave some most helpful afternoon Bible-readings. The Rev. S. B. Biswas, the pastor, is the treasurer of the Bengal Missionary Union, the formation of which was referred to in last year's Annual Report. The members met every Wednesday evening for prayer, and went out preaching in Cornwallis Square on Saturdays and Sundays. The Secretary of the Union, a clerk in the Government Military Department, was sent with the Indian troops to China. The Rev. P. T. Biswas is the pastor of Christ Church, the congregation of which — from 200 to 250 — consists mainly of the teachers and girls of Mission schools. A little hostel for Christian boys was opened during the year at Thakurpukur. Most of the villages in the district being separated from each other by marshes, it is difficult for the children to attend school at any central station, and they were consequently growing up wild and untaught. About fifteen boys were received, experimentally, under the care of a housefather. To this place, and also to Diamond Harbour, Kolagachi, Andul, and Akra, the Rev. D. Biswas paid a monthly visit to administer Holy Communion and instruct the people.

The Agarpara Orphanage had thirty-seven inmates old enough to take their places in the school classes, and eight who are practically babies. One poor girl of twelve, from Amritsar, is almost an idiot, and is an occasion of not a little trouble; but, on the reflection of what the children have been rescued from, the troubles are counted joys. Miss E. M. Hall writes:—

Agarpara Orphanage.

> I have, indeed, much to rejoice over, having so many poor children brought from sorrows and trials such as most know little of, and they have been spared and their number a little increased during the last year. As far as is possible they have been shielded from sorrow and hardships. Much remains for us to do for them by prayer, lest, far from being grateful and blessing their Creator and Redeemer, they should take the comforts they receive here as the all they need, and make no preparation for the world to come.

Six of the girls were baptized during the year and then confirmed. Two girls passed the Fourth Standard, which is the highest attempted by the school. Miss Macfarlane will, it is proposed, after qualifying in the language, take part in the work of the Orphanage.

Barnagore.

The Rev. A. Le Feuvre, on his return to the Mission in the autumn of 1900, was appointed to BARNAGORE, to supervise evangelistic work among a population of some 45,000, residing in six adjoining villages, which occupy, he says, an area not exceeding nine square miles. Most of them are Hindi-speaking Chamars or Beharis, who work in the mills and foundries which lie on the river bank between Calcutta and Barrackpore. They live, Mr. Le Feuvre says, "in dirty, miserable, overcrowded busties, in which one would not like to house a decent pig." But he is attracted by their apparent frankness, and their language—which he has yet to learn, as Bengali has been his working medium in the past—strikes him as "short and sharp and to the point." Many of the gentry and shopkeepers, and also many of the mill hands, are Bengalis, and among these Mr. Le Feuvre felt at home at once. The Mission-house having been taken for a married man, and he being single, he turned one of the rooms into a preaching hall, and had a very encouraging meeting, with lantern views on our Lord's Life, for educated Bengalis, which was also attended by nearly all the Entrance boys of a neighbouring High School. Mr. Le Feuvre held a Confirmation Class for several Bengali lads working on the railway. These lads were educated at the Chupra Boarding-school, and were sent to Barnagore by the Rev. C. H. Bradburn. The English foreman spoke to Mr. Le Feuvre of two of them as "the best boys on the works." True heart decision for Christ, Mr. Le Feuvre says, is the only hope for boys placed as these are, as their surroundings are full of temptation. They walk to church, a distance of two and a-half miles, every Sunday morning. Mr. Le Feuvre opened a service for the Europeans employed on these works, the traffic superintendent allowing for the purpose the use of a shed lighted with electric light.

Mr. Lockett paid a monthly visit to Barrackpore to conduct services and administer the Holy Communion to the workers and others connected with the C.E.Z.M.S., and the Rev. P. T. Biswas baptized six adult converts there and two at Barnagore, the fruits of their work.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

When the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Bourdillon were invalided home from BURDWAN in the autumn of 1899, the Rev. E. Cannon was left there alone, after only one year's experience of work in India; and he continued without a European fellow-labourer except for two months at the beginning of 1900, when he had the help of the Rev. H. M. Moore. The sense of loneliness was increased by the withdrawal of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies from the town and the closing of four girls' schools at which 150 girls were under instruction. Mr. Cannon says some of the Babus of the town expressed a willingness to pay liberal fees for their girls' tuition if the ladies would remain. One remarked to him, "I cannot give a lump sum, but I will gladly give Rs. 5 a month if the school is re-opened, as the girls are taught Christian morality by the ladies, but in the non-Christian schools this is entirely omitted." Female education is greatly neglected among the Bengalis. In Burdwan, while some 1,500 boys and youths are being educated at the Raj College and other schools, Mr. Cannon doubts whether a hundred girls are receiving education. The Bengali Congregation suffered numerically and otherwise by the withdrawal of the teachers and Bible-women of the C.E.Z.M.S. The standard of Christian life among them is not a high one.

A Babu's appreciation of Christian female education

The Bishop of Worcester and his two brothers, the Master of Corpus, Cambridge, and the Archdeacon of Norwich, who, in 1893, presented a pulpit to the church at Burdwan in memory of their father, who was a missionary at this station from 1820 to 1827, have during the past year added to their gift by presenting a brass reading-stand to be placed on the pulpit. Mr. Cannon baptized a Hindu woman whom the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies had prepared. Preaching was carried on twice a week in the Burra Bazaar, always to large crowds, while inside the little chapel educated Babus frequently engaged in animated discussion. Among many inquirers who appeared to be actuated by interested motives, one, a young Mussulman, gave evidence of sincerity. He had first heard the Gospel at Hooghly, and on going to Burdwan, in spite of much opposition from his relatives, he visited Mr. Cannon repeatedly for instruction. He was transferred to Kulna just when he was about to be baptized, but he would there be under Christian influence.

A gift from three distinguished sons of an old Burdwan missionary.

At the request of the Bishop of Calcutta, Mr. Cannon paid a quarterly visit to Puri, in the Birbhum District, and held services for the European and Bengali Christians. A catechist should be placed there, but none so far has been available, and all that could be done was to send one to pay a monthly visit. At Mankar several young men appeared to be very promising inquirers.

In June, 1900, Mr. Cannon and some native fellow-workers attended a religious fair at Kanchranugur, a village two miles from Burdwan, where two large Juggernaut cars were the special attraction. One of them was quite new and was some fifty feet high. It is supposed to have cost the Maharajah of Burdwan Rs. 10,000. About 220 Gospels, hymn-books, and portions were sold in the five hours that the mela lasted, and there were good attendances at the preaching. While Mr. Moore was at Burdwan Mr. Cannon took the opportunity to itinerate in the western part of his district. By means of his bicycle he was enabled to reach villages at some distance from the camping places. The bicycle also proved a great source of attraction and increased his audiences. In some of the villages the leading Babus and Zemindars made earnest requests for teachers. Some 700 books were sold on this journey. In the summer he made a tour up the River Bhagirathi, which divides the Burdwan district from Nadiya. In some of the villages visited the Gospel had not been heard before. In four weeks 1,000 Gospels and portions were sold.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

THE Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Bradburn and Miss K. Farler came home in March, 1901.

KRISHNAGAR.

Krishnagar. Normal School.

The Normal School at KRISHNAGAR, under the Rev. J. F. Hewitt, prepares young men to occupy posts as teachers not only in the Nadiya District but throughout Bengal. Mr. Hewitt mentions that no less than fifty native workers now on the active staff of the C.M.S as pastors, catechists, readers, and teachers passed through the school, while some are also working in other Missions. The standard up to which the men are carried is somewhat higher as to subjects than the First Arts, but it is all in the vernacular. In Algebra the third year men read up to the Binomial Theorem. During the past year the school was raised to the standard of a First Grade Training School. It had fifteen students in residence, and five others Mr. Hewitt taught by correspondence. Five candidates presented for the Government Examination in March, 1900, were all successful, one second year student coming out fourth in the whole Presidency. A Middle English School, with eighty-five boys, the majority of them Mohammedans, serves as a practising school. Mrs. Hewitt also superintended a small Girls' School with thirty-five pupils, nearly all Christians. The indifference of the people to female education, and early marriages (at the age of twelve or thirteen) constitute great difficulties to efforts of this nature. Miss K. Farler was relieved at the close of 1900 from the charge of the Girls' Boarding-school by the return from England of Miss E. Bristow, of the C.E.Z.M.S., and she has since come home on furlough. Eleven girls were sent in for the Girls' Scholarship Examination, of whom eight passed; three in Standard VI., three in Standard V., and two in Standard IV., one being in the first division. Of ten girls who entered for the upper division of a Bible Examination—which was open to boys and girls throughout the Nadiya District, the Rev. E. T. Butler setting the questions—five obtained over eighty-four per cent. of the maximum marks and secured the first (a tie), second, fourth, fifth, and sixth places in the district. Miss Farler says:— Proficiency in Bible knowledge.

> This was very cheering to us. The lack of Bible knowledge among many of our Christian village women is deplorable, and we do long that our girls should leave school with an accurate and practical knowledge of the leading truths of God's Word. We have been much encouraged too by the eagerness of a few of the older ones to learn and understand more. Often, after the others have all gone to bed, they have brought their Bibles, asking me to explain some difficult passage or verse; and amid the much sowing, and oft-times long waiting for the reaping, it is indeed a great joy to watch the growth in grace of even a few earnest young Christians "whose hearts the Lord has touched."

CHUPRA.

The Rev. C. H. Bradburn, before leaving CHUPRA to come home on furlough, wrote an interesting and encouraging report of the Boys' Boarding-school under his charge. The number of pupils rose during the year from 142 to 229. The chief increase was of Mohammedan lads, of whom there were only eight in 1899, but fifty-two in 1900. Mr. Bradburn adduces this fact as an evidence of the value of Mission schools as a means of overcoming prejudices. He says:— Chupra. Mohammedan lads in Mission Boarding-school.

> During the four or more years that these boys are usually with us they receive instruction and discipline, and in turn discipline others. Unconsciously they are being directed into righteousness of life, for every boy in the school has some responsibility, which he holds directly from me. I govern and discipline the school through the boys, irrespective of creed, except in those matters in which anything directly Christian is involved, such as reading the Lessons at prayers. There are a few financial privileges which are exclusively for Christian boys, but beyond this we have all things in common, and all boys in common share the duties of the school, such as pumping water, trimming lamps, dusting class rooms, and general preservation of the school buildings. Thus are these boys being knit together in one body by common interests, so that we have now come to understand that the honour of the individual is the honour of the whole, and vice-versâ. Gradually a strong public opinion is being formed, so that it will be impossible for boys to be in this school and not be affected by it. Thus on our part we are breaking down the middle wall of partition, and I find I get as patient a hearing from Mohammedan boys, in such a dogmatic subject as the Church Catechism, as from Christians.

Three boys entered for the Middle Standard and two obtained a first class and one a second, standing seventh and fifteenth in order of merit; thirteen who entered for the Upper Primary all passed, eleven in the first class and two in the second. All took high places, the first class boys standing first, second, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, twentieth, twenty-first, and twenty-third. The Officiating Inspector of Schools wrote in the High places in Public Examination.

"The school is doing a good work."

school book, "The school is doing a good work. This is shown by the results of the public examinations, but still more by the evidences of the sound moral and intellectual training the boys are receiving. The boys are taught to use their hands, and every opportunity is taken to rouse in them an interest not only in their books but in their surroundings." Mr. Bradburn dwells on the condition of the homes of the people—consisting usually of only one room and a verandah—which renders refinement of thought and sense of delicacy wellnigh impossible; a state of things which enhances the importance of boarding-schools under Christian supervision. A moral test was proposed to the boys of the upper half of the school, whose average age is thirteen years. The test and results were as follows:—

A moral test.

The following question was given: "If you, together with two friends, were going to Krishnagar, and on the way you found a rupee, what would you do with it?" The boys were then isolated and wrote their answers, which were as follows:—Out of fifty-seven who answered, nine said they would keep the money (i.e. the boy who found it); fourteen said they would share it with the two companions; ten said they would deliver it to parents, teachers, or some responsible person; nineteen would give it to the poor; and five would seek the owner.

The Infant School was under Mrs. Bradburn's care, and had 130 children.

DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL.

Pastorates.

The Nadiya DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL met at Ratnapur on May 16th and 17th. On the former day a meeting of the Executive Committee was held, followed by an evening service, at which an address was given by the Rev. E. T. Butler, Chairman of the Council and Superintendent of the Pastorates. On the 17th the members united in receiving the Holy Communion, and the Rev. Kailash Chunder Dey preached. The subjects discussed during the Council sessions were, "The Independence and Self-support of the Church" and "Sunday Observance," on which subjects the Revs. Solomon Biswas, Gopal Biswas, and Dukhlal Biswas read papers. Mr. Butler writes:—

Hindrances and needs of the Native Christians.

The Christian Church in Nadiya has much to contend with. Amongst the many sources of weakness in our midst I would mention only three:—(1) The Roman Church, with its lax discipline and its willingness to receive our people when under punishment, and its attempts to entice them from their allegiance when in trouble. (2) The association of our people in all kinds of transactions with non-Christians. The caste feelings, superstitions, and low morality of the latter work much harm to the former. (3) In spite of all the efforts of day-schools and night-schools in the past, the number of adult Christians who can neither read nor write is distressing. Our great needs, in consequence, are:—(1) Good Examples. Natives are ever great imitators. We need in the Church numbers of living examples of the purity and power of our holy religion. (2) The baptism of God the Holy Spirit upon all alike. (3) A strong Christian education is required. It is for us to provide the means. May the day come when ignorance amongst Christians may be considered a crime. (4) The Church must be taught independence. The cringing spirit must give place to self-respect, conscious independence, personal worth and power.

The Rev. J. F. Hewitt is the Treasurer of the Council, an office which is by no means a sinecure, as it involves the payment of all the pastoral and educational agents in the district. Mr. Hewitt is also responsible for the supervision of the Krishnagar Pastorate, as the Rev. D. N. Sircar is in Deacons' Orders. This has some 300 baptized Christians, but these include about 100 who are only in the district as students in the Normal School or pupils in the Girls' Boarding-school. The resident Christians are poor and illiterate people, most of whom earn their livelihood by working on the land, the rest being clerks, servants, carpenters, and dealers in poultry. The Rev. D. N. Sircar says there are some earnest and prayerful men amongst his congregation who are a great help to him. Every day, as is usual throughout the district, morning and evening services are held in the church; twice in the week prayer-meetings are conducted in the people's houses, and once a week there is open-air preaching. Two Hindu women with their children, wives of Christian husbands, were baptized. The Roman Catholic Bishop, with a staff of clergy and nuns, lives at Krishnagar. In the Chupra Pastorate the church at Chupra, which suffered greatly in the earthquake of 1897, has been restored, largely through the efforts of the Rev. C. H. Bradburn. It is now the largest church in the district, and would be a credit, Mr. Butler says, to any home parish. The Rev. I. W. Charlton, of Calcutta, held a ten days' Mission at Chupra in May and June, 1900. The congregations were good, but there was not much apparent fruit. Some ten men, however, were stirred up to seek more earnestly to know and do God's will. Writing seven months after the Mission, the Rev. G. C. Biswas said these men continued to meet together every evening for the study of Scripture, prayer, and singing. On the other hand, there were some glaring instances of transgression against the fourth and seventh Commandments. The Bohirgachi Pastorate was formed in the summer of 1900 by taking portions from Ranabanda and Krishnagar Pastorates. The late Rev. Molam Biswas, who died in December, as already mentioned, was placed in charge. This pastorate is the only one in the district which does not possess a brick church. In the Ranabanda Pastorate the Romanists are strong, with a resident priest, and their lax discipline constitutes a great difficulty. Mr. Butler laments over the indifference of the people to the proper observance of the Lord's Day. There are six day-schools in the pastorate. It was here that Bishop Wilson sixty years ago was present at the baptism of 300 people at one time in the lake between Ranabanda and Sigri. The fulfilment of the visions which he doubtless cherished seems to be still remote. A Mission conducted by Mr. Charlton in the spring of 1900 in Kapasdanga Pastorate was attended with manifest blessing. Some thirty men were led to confess Christ more openly and to live more watchfully for God's glory. Miss Adams, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who superintended the Widows' Class and Industrial Home, conducted Bible-classes for women and for converts. The Rev. T. C. Tarafdar, of the Ratnapur Pastorate, writes in grateful terms of God's protecting care over His people during a visitation of cholera. Night after night, while the disease was in the neighbourhood, prayer-meetings were held, and the Christians walked through the village streets singing hymns. The Bollobhpur Pastorate also suffered from a severe visitation of cholera, which wrought great ravages, especially in the village of Bollobhpur, in November, 1900. One hundred of the people were attacked, and in forty cases it proved fatal, of which fourteen were of adults. One of the children in the Orphanage was among the earliest victims. This Orphanage, with thirty inmates, is superintended by Mrs. Butler, whose ambition is to train them to become good Christian wives for the simple ordinary villagers, such as the majority of the Christians of the district are. Every care is therefore taken not to raise the girls' ideas above their position, while they have the advantages of supervision, discipline, and teaching. The Rev. J. C. Mallik was transferred from Joginda to Sholua Pastorate during the past year, and was stationed at Meliapota. The effect of his location there was immediately marked by improved attendances at the services and meetings. The Romanists have about 160 adherents in the village, formerly members of the Church of England. Meliapota has its disadvantages as the place of residence of the pastor. It is separated by a ditch from the other villages, and Mr. Mallik had to pass through water up to his neck in order to visit many of his people during the rainy months, while boats had to be engaged to convey the people to church. The Rev. M. D. Biswas was placed over the Joginda Pastorate in April, 1900.

THE NADIYA ITINERANCIES.

The evangelistic work of the Nadiya district divides naturally into three sections. First, the Northern Itinerancy, worked by the Associated Evangelists' Band, under Mr. S. W. Donne, with headquarters at Santirajpur and Kushtia; secondly, the Central Itinerancy, worked from Meherpur as a centre, where Mr. P. H. Shaul resides during the rains in a small rest-house; and third, the Southern Itinerancy, superintended by the Rev. J. W. Knight, with his headquarters at Krishnagar. Between the last of these districts and Calcutta is located, at Ranaghat, the Medical Mission, worked independently by Mr. James Monro and his family.

The Associated Band of Evangelists, who work the Northern Itinerancy, have their chief centre at SANTIRAJPUR. The Band was bereft of two of its members by the departure of Mr. E. T. Noakes at the beginning of 1900 on furlough, and by the retirement of the Rev. J. W. Knight from the Band. Mr. S. W. Donne, the leader of the Band, reports on the work. At Tetulberia three Mohammedan women and two children were baptized: one of the women had been deserted by her husband; the second was her mother, an aged widow, who contracted fever while under instruction, and was baptized privately shortly before her death; and the third, the mother of the two children, was the young widow of a man who had been baptized some years before, but had relapsed to Mohammedanism. The public baptism took place in a large sheet of water before many of the villagers, and was performed by the Rev. M. Dukhlal Biswas, pastor of Joginda. Santirajpur now contains seven Christian families, comprising sixteen souls. The rest-house at Murutia, Hope Cottage, as it was named, was destroyed by lightning in April, 1900. Three schoolmasters were sleeping in the house the previous night, but had providentially left it in order to attend some special services at Santirajpur before the storm began. Their books, clothes, &c., were, however, burnt. Mr. J. H. Hickinbotham reports one or two hopeful inquirers at Alladurga; one, named Kadar, is only hindered from being baptized by the distress the proposal gives to his widowed mother, a staunch follower of Mohammed.

Providential escape from lightning.

The bulk of the people in the neighbourhood of KUSHTIA, where Mr. W. V. R. Kamcke resides, are Mussulmans, descendants of low-caste Hindus, illiterate for the most part and retaining many Hindu notions. Many of them are provided with a book controverting Christianity, the title of which Mr. Kamcke translates Christianity Exposed. Mr. Kamcke, however, finds it wiser to avoid argument, as it rarely bears good fruit, and quotes Bengel's advice to "enter upon no controversy without knowledge, without love, and without necessity." A young Mohammedan, a tinsmith, named Meher Ali, and two orphan lads, waifs of the 1897 famine, were baptized in May by the Rev. Kailash Chunder Dey, of Bollobhpur.

Kushtia.

A Mohammedan book controverting Christianity.

From the rest-house at MEHERPUR Mr. P. H. Shaul started in the cold season of 1899–1900 on an itineration through the villages of the Choadanga sub-division. The most encouraging feature of the tour was the readiness with which books were bought and read. Scarcely was a house visited, or a school inspected, or a place preached at without some Scripture portions and other Christian books being in demand. Mr. Shaul mentions the following incidents bearing on this important branch of the work:—

Meherpur.

> A brother missionary who had occasion several times to pass through the bazaar at Meherpur remarked that he had never journeyed that way without observing that our Christian books were being read at some shop or other; and often I was able joyfully to confirm his statement as I wheeled on my bicycle through the principal street. Another instance I met with while cycling from Meherpur to Choadanga. Calling on an honorary magistrate who resides at a village not far from the latter town, I found him at the hour of the afternoon "siesta" immersed in a volume treating of "fulfilled prophecy," which, together with several other books, he had purchased from us last cold weather. This led to a most interesting conversation on the subject, and I found that the book had not only been read but the meaning grasped. I remember well showing the magic-lantern and preaching several times at his house. The ladies of his household would listen behind the purdah to our singing, and would often send out a servant requesting us to sing this or that hymn. They had purchased our hymn-books, and learnt in this way many Gospel songs. Another incident which cheered and gladdened us was met with during our hot-weather work, at Meherpur itself. In front of a group of tawdry idols decked and dressed for special worship sat a Hindu fakir clothed in ashes, with matted hair and shrivelled limbs. On seeing me sit down to preach to the assembled worshippers, he asked aloud for a life of the true Saviour. I handed him the "Story of Jesus," told in homely language and simple phrase for children. A Brahman standing near volunteered to read it to him, and there for two long hours the reader in clear and measured tones read chapter after chapter while the fakir and his friends listened to the life and teaching of Him Who spake and taught as no other man. Tracts were widely distributed, and often read aloud to many hearers.

Christian books bought and read.

A Brahman reads the "Story of Jesus" to a fakir.

Two other incidents must be quoted from Mr. Shaul's Annual Letter which illustrate both the need and the value of school work:—

At Meherpur I had been asked to visit and examine a school for the education of the daughters of native gentlemen, which was held in the private rooms of the residence of a wealthy landowner. Miss Dawe (C.E.Z.M.S.) kindly accompanied me and spoke to the girls of "Heaven and the way to get there." She paused in the course of her address and asked the children, "Did they know of a place where there was no trouble or sorrow, but where all was happiness and joy?" For a brief moment there was silence, and then a little Brahman girl, who had been recently married, asked, "Was it not England?" They had never heard of the "happy land" before. I visited another school, accompanied by some of the leading residents of the Brahman quarter. Just as we were leaving, two little girls asked leave to recite a poem that they had learnt at "Jesus School" (as they prettily put it) at Hazaribagh. Receiving permission, most sweetly they gave us a simple action song about the lovely world and its Creator, and then clearly recited before the rapidly growing audience a little poem telling of "the old, old story of Jesus and His love." Truly "out of the mouths of babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected praise."

"Was it not England?"

A poem learnt at the "Jesus School."

Among his valued auxiliaries in the work Mr. Shaul attaches great importance to the bicycle, the medicine-chest, and the magic-lantern. Of the last-named he says:—

Value of lantern slides.

My lantern still aids me in striving to break down the evils of custom, caste, and creed: e.g. custom, as when a Brahman invited me to show it to the women of his household and their friends and relations, and gave as a place to address them in the strictly private inner quarter of his house. Caste, as when at a magic-lantern preaching so great was the crowd that two Brahmans sat at my feet, while others shared the same bench with my native fellow-workers. Creed, as when we showed the lantern before a heathen temple, all gazing fixedly at the screen and none at the idols close by, although sitting on the very spot where worship was wont to be made. That the teaching accompanying the pictures remains was brought home to me by a schoolboy who, reminding me of the preaching at his school, said, "Don't you remember you showed us the picture of a lost sheep and told us that the Lord Jesus came to seek and save the lost?"

III. SANTALIA.

The Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Brown and the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Jackson sailed in September, 1900, to return to the Mission. The Rev. Canon F. T. Cole and Mrs. Cole came home in December to take furlough, which was due in 1899, but was deferred in consequence of the exigencies of the work and the smallness of the staff; and the Rev. J. Blaich came to Europe in April, 1901.

Pastorates supporting evangelists.

Before coming home Canon Cole wrote the report for the past year of the Santal Native Church Council, of which he was chairman. The district is divided into ten pastorates, each under a native chairman and elders, and the Christians are being gradually trained to manage their own affairs. One very hopeful and encouraging fact is that each of the pastorates is supporting a missionary or catechist who is working among the Heathen.

Loan from a Famine Fund.

During the famine of 1897 the missionaries, fearful of pauperizing the Native Christians by helping them too freely, borrowed from the Society's Famine Fund Rs. 300 and distributed the money among the pastorates as a loan. Of this sum Rs. 295 has been paid back to the fund. During the past year the Chairman sent a letter round to the pastorates telling of the sufferings of the Bhīls and asking them to make a collection in their behalf. The response was very cheering, and Rs. 200, not including European offerings, was sent to help the work of famine relief among the Bhīls. In the Hiranpur Pastorate Canon Cole had the joy on one Sunday of baptizing fourteen persons, three families, among them being six adults. One of these was a man who was led to seek salvation through the death of his wife and child from cholera. Two others were a man and his wife who live some distance from other Christians and will have in consequence to bear the reproach of Christ without much support from fellow-believers, but they seemed to have counted the cost.

A village headman baptized.

Another case was interesting. It was that of the headman of a village, whose grandfather, thirty-four years ago, while headman of the same village embraced the Truth but died soon afterwards, and during the long interval the light seemed to have died out in the place, but now it has shone forth once more. This man was baptized together with his wife and children, the wife having learned to read while under instruction, an uncommon thing for a Santal woman of middle age to do.

Santalpur colony.

The Santalpur Pastorate is about 250 miles distant from the others, at the foot of the Himalayas. A scheme has been sanctioned during the past year by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal which it is hoped will be for the material benefit of these Santal colonists, and which will help in maintaining discipline among them. The colony contains 880 Christians and 150 Heathen. The year was a very trying one, as thirty-three succumbed during a severe epidemic of cholera. The Mechs and other races living in the vicinity of the colony were decimated by this disease. Notwithstanding these home troubles, the colonists responded nobly to the above-mentioned effort in behalf of the Bhīls and contributed Rs. 115 of the Rs. 200 sent by the pastorates. The Rev. N. Hansda, who was ordained in December, has been stationed at Santalpur. He was one of the Rev. J. Brown's Divinity class at Taljhari in 1899. Canon Cole refers to the murder of a Pahari Christian named Rupa, in the Rajmahal Hills. The man was the headman of his village, and after his baptism, twenty years ago, was employed for a time as a schoolmaster. A few years ago he fell into a course of sin and became the leader of a band who practised illicit distilling in the hill forests, neglecting his wife, who died in consequence, and resisting all efforts to reclaim him. A few months before his murder took place he showed a resolute purpose to amend his doings and forbade his ryots to engage in distilling spirits or to indulge in drinking bouts. He began regularly to attend the services, and when his body was discovered his hymn-book was found in his coat pocket. Canon Cole calls him "the Manasseh of the Paharis," having caused many to sin and yet found mercy. He suspects that his death was brought about by some of those who resented his endeavours to stem the flood of sin which he had before promoted.

Generous help sent to the Bhīls.

Taljhari.

The Rev. J. Brown found the Divinity Class at TALJHARI, consisting of four students, whom he instructed for the space of nine months, an interesting sphere of work. Two of the students were Santals, one was of Hindu origin and belonged to the Voishtob sect of Brahmans, and one was of the Mahli tribe, who are cultivators and bamboo wicker-workers. They all proved to be diligent and intelligent students and good evangelists among the villages round Taljhari. Mr. Brown wrote and published a pamphlet in Santali as a memorial of the Society's Centenary. It first epitomizes the events and prophecies of the Old Testament which point to Christ's first Advent; then briefly dwells on His incarnation, death, resurrection, and ascension, the coming of the Holy Ghost, and the spread of the Gospel as described in the New Testament; then it reviews the progress of Christianity up to the end of the eighteenth century, and finally relates the story of the origin and growth of the C.M.S. and particularly the history of the Santal Mission.

The Rev. J. Blaich has superintended the Boys' Boarding-school since 1886, in which year two other schools, at Hiranpur and Bhagaya, were united with the Taljhari one; and on the eve of taking furlough, at the close of 1900, he looked back with thankfulness over the progress which has rewarded his labours. About two-fifths of the boarders, who have generally been over 140 in number, have on the average been Heathen, and not one year has passed without some of these, in some years more than twelve, being baptized. Eight were baptized in November, 1900, and one satisfactory feature about them is that one-half of them belonged to the western side of the C.M.S. Santal Mission. The great majority of the converts have hitherto been from the eastern side of the Rajmahal Hills, and Godda and Bhagaya, on the western side, have had a difficulty in obtaining educated agents. Mr. Blaich hopes that a better day is dawning for the western division of the Mission. The Boarding-school obtained good results in the Government examinations. All the Middle Vernacular candidates passed successfully, and only three of the Upper Primary failed. Boys' Boarding-school.

BARHAWA.

The Rev. Canon and Mrs. F. T. Cole came home, as already mentioned, in December, and were succeeded at BARHAWA by the Rev. J. Brown, transferred from Taljhari, and his daughter, Miss E. M. Brown, one of the year's recruits, appointed to the charge of the Girls' Boarding-school. Three girls of the school, and also a Santal and his two children, were baptized at Barhawa in September, 1900. The man was a pupil in the Hiranpur Boys' Boarding-school before it was transferred to Taljhari in 1886, and it was there that he received his first religious impressions. Barhawa. Found "after many days."

BHAGAYA.

Upon the Rev. C. Hughesdon's return home on sick leave in the spring of 1900, Mr. S. J. Jessop was transferred from the Godda district to take charge of the work in and around BHAGAYA. In consequence of the dilapidations wrought by a cyclone at the close of 1899 Mr. Jessop found himself confronted with a great deal of what he calls "contractors' work," one school teacher's house being entirely washed away and other buildings much damaged. The members of the congregation showed some missionary fervour, visiting the neighbouring heathen villages on Sunday evenings to preach the Gospel, the hymn-singing being accompanied by a violin. Bhagaya.

Six converts were baptized, a family of five and a man from a village three miles distant. Mrs. Jessop held sewing classes for the Christians, each taking her own needlework. A Bible-reading, singing, and prayer rendered these occasions both pleasant and profitable. Telgawa, Mr. Jessop says, is "plodding along," but he would like to see the pace accelerated. A family of six were baptized in the tank of a neighbouring village, and in another village an old woman was baptized on her death-bed, in the presence of her heathen relatives. The village schoolboys, who are all Heathen, repaired the roof of the church at Haripur.

Godda.

The Rev. F. Etheridge writes thankfully of a year of unbroken health and of encouragement in the work at GODDA and the district around, work which he found very congenial. The lads of the Pahari Boys' Boarding-school are not docile like the Santal boys; they are difficult to manage. They appear to be intelligent and industrious, however, as nearly all passed in the Government examination, and all but one were placed in the first division. One of the boys, James Sarja, was baptized in December, 1900. The little Dispensary is primarily for the boarding-school boys, but during the year several thousand out-patients were treated and a number of minor operations performed. Evangelistic services were held weekly in Godda, and several men of the Gwala caste showed some interest in the Gospel message. The influence of a Brahman priest appeared to deter them from coming out.

In the winter of 1899–1900 Mr. Etheridge itinerated, directing his course to the parts of the district where Christians were known to be; besides preaching to the Heathen, he visited isolated Christians at their homes, held services for their edification, sought out backsliders, inspected schools, &c. Open-air meetings, with the attraction of lantern slides, were often attended by as many as 300, who listened with great attention. Owing to exceptionally favourable weather, Mr. Etheridge was able to visit the out-stations more frequently than usual. At Ratnapur he baptized a Santal named Lutra in March, 1900. This man had succeeded when a boy in passing the Upper Primary with only a village school education, a thing which few boys have done. He then had some training at Taljhari. Mr. Etheridge writes of him as "clever and capable, with a cheery, honest face." Several catechumens are under instruction at Bhowani, where a small church has been built. A Santal woman, who had been an inquirer some years ago at Mohonpur, and had grown cold, was induced to come forward again for instruction, and was baptized in April. A backslider, too, was persuaded to forsake his sin and return in penitence to the Saviour. Telgoda is a new out-station to the east of the district on the Rajmahal Hills. Sixteen baptized persons reside in the village. A young Christian, Samson Chandy, who was baptized several years ago, and has in the meantime been trained at the Taljhari Normal School, has been placed there as teacher. Of this man Mr. Etheridge says:—

A convert's efforts for his mother's salvation.

No sooner was he a Christian than he set himself to earnestly pray for the conversion of his widowed mother. At vacation times he seems to have lost no opportunity of explaining the Gospel to her. Early in January last she passed away, and after the Christmas holidays Samson came with tears in his eyes to tell me of her death; but his face grew positively radiant as he went on to describe her dying prayer, in which she had confessed her faith in Jesus, and had asked her Heavenly Father to forgive her, and to receive her for His sake.

IV. BEHAR.

BHAGALPUR.

Bhagalpur.

No changes took place in the European staff at BHAGALPUR during the past year; it consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Mylrea and the Rev. S. R. Morse. The High School did well in the examinations. The two candidates for the Entrance both passed, one in the second and the other in the third division; while only one failed out of five sent up for the Lower Primary, two being placed in the first divisiod—of whom one gained 397 out of a maximum of 400 marks, and obtained a Government Scholarship—and two in the second division. Seventy-five per cent. of the boys passed in the annual school examination—a much better result than in any previous year. Encouraged by these successes, Mr. Morse made the prize-giving in March, 1900, a more impressive occasion than usual, inviting the parents of all the boys and the English and native gentry of the town. The wife of the Collector distributed the prizes. The boys gave recitations and hymns in the six different languages used in Bhagalpur. The High School (English) Department has 101 pupils, and the Vernacular Department fifty-one. In the athletic sports the Christian boys carried off all the chief events, notwithstanding that they form only a third part of the number in the school. Some of the Orphanage boys attend the High School, but an elementary school was started within the Orphanage for dull boys. A start was also made in industrial training, five boys taking lessons in weaving. The Dispensary was visited by 3,500 patients, and 177 operations were performed. Those treated consisted of 19 Eurasians, 927 Mohammedans, 1,971 Hindus, and 583 Native Christians. Private subscriptions more than covered the amount of expenditure. Three Hindus were baptized by Mr. Morse in the Leper Asylum. The Evangelistic Work among students, referred to in last year's Annual Report, proved disappointing. The agent was dismissed and a successor was not found. A young Mohammedan from Patna was baptized by immersion in a small tank in the Mission compound, the convert receiving the name of Paulus. At the beginning of 1900 an itineration was made by Mr. and Mrs. Mylrea, in a southerly direction, to the great Bansi mela. An old man who had been markedly attentive a year before they found to be now labouring under a suspicion of being demented, because he had given up idolatry. They found in many places that the message delivered twelve months before was remembered. The sale of books was also good. In the autumn Mr. and Mrs. Mylrea went westward, in the direction of Monghyr. Fear of the plague, which was very bad at that time in Monghyr, made the people suspicious, and they took the missionaries for Government agents sent to sprinkle them with red water (Condy's fluid) in order to give them the plague. After they were all killed the Government would possess themselves of their property!

Suspected of madness because idols abolished.

Ignorant fears.

A distant out-station.

Forbesganj, where there are fifty Christians, is an out-station, which is as far distant from Bhagalpur as Bristol is from London. It was visited seven times by Mr. Morse during the year.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the North-West Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Jabalpur, 1854; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad, 1859; Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Muttra, 1878; Mandla, 1879, and Marpha, 1892 (both Gónd Mission); and Kherwara (Bhîl Mission), 1880. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened by T. V. French (subsequently Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (subsequently Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the North-West Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the whole of the North-West Provinces.

The Bishop of Lucknow has interview with the Committee.

THE Bishop of Lucknow, who came home in June, 1900, had an interview with the Committee of Correspondence on July 3rd. He spoke hopefully of some aspects of the missionary work in his diocese, and urged once more his earnest plea for the sending out of specially qualified men to take up work amongst Mohammedans in the city of Lucknow. He also expressed his thankfulness for the Committee's decision to organize work amongst native students in the city of Allahabad, referring to the going out of the Rev. W. E. S. Holland in the autumn of 1899, and to their purpose of sending two other graduates in the following autumn to join him in evangelistic work among the students and other educated Natives.

Reinforcements.

The two graduates referred to above duly sailed in October, 1900. They were the Rev. Philip Armitage, M.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, whose offer of service was accepted in April, 1899, when he was Curate of Holy Trinity, Cambridge, and who subsequently engaged in work among undergraduates at Cambridge; and the Rev. George Thomas Manley, M.A., Senior Wrangler in 1893, and Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge. The other reinforcements of the year were the Revs. Rudolph Simon Bennertz and William Hodgkinson, Islington men, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders by the late Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 6th, 1900; Mr. Griffin Charles Vyse, who had a short course of training at Islington College; Miss Violet Constance Saunders, of South Kensington, trained at "The Olives"; and Miss Theodora Grace Stratton, of Newport, Isle of Wight, also trained at "The Olives," sister of the Rev. A. C. Stratton, Assistant-Secretary of the Society, and of the Misses M. and W. W. Stratton, of this Mission and of the Sierra Leone Mission respectively. Miss Mabel Susie Landon and Miss Eva Rebecca Hall were accepted in the Mission as missionaries in local connexion; the former is a Matriculate of the London University, and the latter is a Eurasian lady, who was educated at the Calcutta Girls' Boarding-school. The Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Kennedy were transferred from the Bengal Mission to the North-West Provinces; and Miss M. Cadman-Jones was transferred from the C.E.Z.M.S., which she joined in 1896, to the C.M.S. at the time when the women's work at Meerut passed from the former Society to the latter. Miss Cadman-Jones' name appeared in the list of missionaries in last year's Annual Report, but it was not included in the enumeration of reinforcements on page 209. Mr. Bennertz was married on June 12th, 1900, to Miss Elinor Lydia Proby, and they sailed together for the Mission in the following month. Mr. Kennedy (returning after furlough), Messrs. Armitage, Manley, Hodgkinson, and Vyse, and Miss Stratton sailed in October; and Miss Saunders in November.

Death of the Rev. C. S. Thompson.

The Mission experienced, on the other hand, heavy losses. The Rev. Charles Stewart Thompson died on May 19th under peculiarly affecting circumstances. He was trained at Islington, and went out in 1880 to open a Mission among the Bhils of Rajputana, in response to an urgent invitation from Bishop Bickersteth, then Vicar of Christ Church, Hampstead. Until 1896 he laboured, for the most part alone, among those wild and timid people without coming home, gradually winning their confidence and drawing a few of them to confess Christ in baptism. He returned to India after his first and only furlough in the autumn of 1899, and he was called upon almost immediately to face the anxiety and strain of the severe famine of 1900, from which Rajputana suffered more seriously than any other district. It was amidst his unwearied efforts to relieve the sufferings of the famine-stricken people that he laid down his life. On Easter Day, April 15th, he wrote to a brother missionary, "This terrible famine has taken up all my time, and now is wearing out my strength." The first week of May he spent at Kherwara, and left that place on May 7th, travelling alone to visit the relief centres on the Gujerat side of the district, and there he contracted cholera. The Rev. C. H. Gill, the Secretary of the Mission, wrote the following account of his last hours, and of the place of his decease:—

"The famine is wearing out my strength."

> It seems that he was taken ill at Baulia, one of his out-stations, where there is a school, between Bilaria and Lusaria. At 3 a.m. on May 19th he seems to have left Baulia, being carried on a charpai (native bedstead) with the intention of making for Kherwara, about thirty or thirty-five miles distant, to obtain medical relief. Runners were also dispatched from there to Kherwara.

He apparently travelled a few miles, and then, overcome by weakness and the collapse attendant on the fatal disease, he was obliged to halt under the shade of a tree in the Bhīl jungle. There he quietly commended his spirit to his Heavenly Father and passed away at noon. It would be difficult to have selected a more appropriate resting-place for him than Kalbáy (or Kanbai), where Mr. Outram met the sad procession at midnight and buried, just as the dawn was breaking, the beloved burden they bore. It is in the centre of the Bhīl Mission-field, a place where three or four roads meet, and where one of the best of his schools is situated. On a hillside just opposite the school his grave will now be a prominent feature, a silent invitation to the Bhīls to come to the Saviour, and a challenge-cry to the Church and her missionaries to carry on the work which he began. For Thompson himself we can but praise and bless God's Holy Name. His life was an inspiration; the manner of his death was ideal. "Man is immortal till his work is done." His work on earth was no doubt complete, and now he has rest in the service of Paradise.

Died in the Bhīl jungle.

"His life was an inspiration."

The Rev. W. Seetal also was called away from his labours in the prime of life during the year. He was a son of one of the Society's native catechists, and was educated at Bishop's College, Calcutta University, and subsequently was for many years head-master of the High School at Lucknow. In December, 1881, he was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of Calcutta, and in 1884 to Priests' Orders, remaining still for a time at the High School. After 1887 he was pastor of St. John's Church, Agra. In 1899 he visited England with three other Indian pastors to represent the Indian Church at the Society's Centenary celebrations. He died on the fifty-third anniversary of his birthday, January 28th, 1901. The Bishop of Lucknow conducted the funeral service, and a large gathering of Indian Christians followed the body to the grave in the Muir Road cemetery, Allahabad. The Rev. C. H. Gill wrote: "The loss is greater than words can express. He was the pillar and leader of the Church in the North-West Provinces and Oudh."

Death of Rev. W. Seetal.

"The pillar and leader of the Church in the N.-W.P."

Miss Emma Maud Beyts, who joined the Mission in 1896, died at Meerut on August 21st, 1900, after an illness of eleven days. She was most patient during her sufferings, and full of the peace of God. Two Indian clergymen and some catechists felt it an honour to carry her mortal remains to the Meerut cemetery, and many Hindustani Christians whom she had taught and who had learned to love her gathered round her grave.

Decease of Miss E. M. Beyts,

Two ladies of the Church of England Zenana Society were also taken to their rest. Miss Eleanor T. Buchanan, who originally offered her services to the C.M.S., but since her offer was for India at a time when the Society was sending out very few ladies to that country, relying mainly on those sent out by the C.E.Z.M.S. and the Z.B.M.M., she was recommended to make her offer to the former of these Societies. She went out as an honorary missionary in 1897. While in temporary charge of the C.E.Z.M.S. Famine Orphanage at Murwara she succumbed to an attack of cholera on June 26th, 1900. The other lady was Miss M. C. Rainsford-Hannay, who was killed through the falling upon her head of the beam from the roof of a village school at Sehora, an out-station of Jabalpur. She went out to India in 1886.

Missionary Conference.

The Annual Conference of the Society's missionaries in the North-West and Central Provinces was held at Allahabad from October 30th to November 2nd. The first day was observed as a Quiet Day, the addresses being given by the Rev. T. Bomford, of the Punjab Mission. The Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. A. I. Birkett, of Lucknow. Addresses at the morning services were also delivered by the Rev. H. J. Molony, of the Gond Mission, and the Rev. Cyril Mayhew, Chaplain of Umballa; the latter address being delivered in the Cathedral at a special celebration of the Holy Communion, kindly arranged by the senior chaplain. The Conference had three sessions, and a great deal of useful business was transacted. Perhaps the most interesting and important discussion was that which took place upon a Memorandum on the Constitution of Native Churches sent out by the Committee for the purpose of eliciting the views of the missionaries. The Rev. A. H. Wright, of Gorakhpur, acted as president, and the Rev. E. A. Hensley, of Jabalpur, was secretary. A Women's Conference was also held at the same time, of which Miss Bland, of Agra, was elected president. The Conference decided to open a fund and to invite its members to contribute to it such savings from their allowances as by the exercise of self-denial they could lay aside for the purpose of averting a deficit in the Society's accounts.

A Convention for Indian Christian women.

In October, 1900, a Convention was held at Agra for the deepening of the spiritual life among Indian Christian women. Two experienced lady missionaries and two Indian ladies were the selected speakers, and the audience numbered over a hundred, gathered together from Agra and a few neighbouring stations. At the Women's Conference which followed shortly afterwards it was agreed that meetings of this kind should be held annually at four centres of the Mission, viz., at Benares, Gorakhpur, Allahabad, and Agra.

Church Council meetings.

The annual meetings of the District Church Council and the Central Council were held at Muirabad in the week preceding that in which the Conference took place, from October 23rd to 25th. The Rev. A. W. Baumann presided, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Knox, the honorary treasurer, was also present. The late Rev. W. Seetal discharged the duties of secretary. At the meeting of the Central Council the Archdeacon of Lucknow, commissary of the Bishop of the diocese, presided, and gave an address on St. Paul's ideal of what the Church should be.

On the same days as the meetings of the Church Council a proposal made by the Rev. A. I. Birkett (of Lucknow), to hold a Conference of such of the head-masters and teachers as understand English was carried into effect. About sixty Indian Christian schoolmasters and eight or ten European missionaries met accordingly at Chunar, and listened to devotional addresses given by the Rev. I. W. Charlton (of Calcutta), and practical addresses on technical aspects of their work given by the Revs. J. P. Haythornthwaite (of Agra), A. I. Birkett, and G. H. Parsons (of Calcutta). Conference of school teachers.

The following are the members of the Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Lucknow; the Revs. P. H. Chapman, A. H. Wright, A. W. Baumann, and J. P. Haythornthwaite; the Hon. Justice Knox; Mr. F. E. Elliott, Mr. E. B. Alexander, and the Secretary, the Rev. C. H. Gill.

I. NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

Mrs. E. H. M. Waller came home on medical certificate in May, 1900, returning to the Mission in October; Mrs. J. W. Goodwin came home in October; the Rev. and Mrs. H. W. V. Birney and Mr. H. Blackwood in December; Mrs. J. P. Haythornthwaite, Miss A. M. Tottenham, and Miss J. E. Puckle in March, 1901; the Rev. and Mrs. T. [illegible]ssell, the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Hall, the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. [illegible]wlby, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harrison, Mrs. J. J. Johnson, and Miss C. E. Fry in April; and the Rev. A. W. Baumann in May. The Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis sailed to return to the Mission in October, 1900; Miss K. C. Wright, whose transfer from the Punjab Mission to the North-West Provinces was mentioned in last year's Report, sailed in November. Mr. J. C. Harrison was married on October 27th, 1900, to Miss Ferguson, L.R.C.P. & S. The Rev. H. B. Durrant was married to Miss Eveline Frances Ellwood, daughter of the Rev. J. P. Ellwood, of this Mission, at Aligarh on December 27th, 1900. Miss Ellwood was a missionary of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission from 1894 until her marriage. The Rev. P. Webber was married at Allahabad by the Bishop of Lucknow to Miss Catherine Elizabeth Rogers, of this Mission, on February 19th, 1901.

The Bishop of Lucknow admitted the Revs. R. Baker and Timothy Noah to Priests' Orders at Allahabad on March 3rd, 1901. Ordinations.

ALLAHABAD.

The staff of the Divinity School at Allahabad remained unchanged during the year under review, except that the Vice-Principal, the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, was absent for four months Allahabad Divinity School.

supplying a vacancy in the Gond Mission occasioned by the temporary transfer of the Rev. E. P. Herbert to meet the emergency among the Bhīls. Pandit Balmukand, another of the Divinity School staff, and two of the senior students, on learning of the pressing need of catechists in Rajputana, generously volunteered to give up their well-earned holidays to spend them in helping the famine sufferers. It was judged, however, that their unacquaintance with the Bhīl language would militate against their usefulness, and their self-denying offer, though much appreciated, was declined. One of the students, Emmanuel, was ordained in March, 1900, and three others went out to work as senior catechists at Sultanpur, Dehra Dun, and Benares. The new Senior Class, formed after these men had left, had six students, while the lower class, preparing to be readers, had five. The Rev. J. N. Carpenter, the Principal, writes:—

Self-denying offers to help in famine relief.

> The Bible is the principal book for study, but they have also to learn how to speak with convincing force to either Hindus or Mohammedans, and how to hold their own against the subtle arguments of learned pandits and Moulvies. One of the most important things is the art of turning every philosophical abstraction or eager digression back again to the simple testimony of Christ, the risen Saviour. They must also learn about the true nature of sin, for it is sad that centuries of darkness have hardened the conscience to sin. The daily routine commences with service in the chapel, at which all students and their wives are, as far as possible, present. At Divine service as well as lectures both languages, Hindi and Urdu, are used. Hindi is used by Hindus, and principally in the country; Urdu is the language of Mohammedans, and is chiefly spoken in the towns. Besides lectures, the students have practical training in preaching in two ways. For exercise in preaching in the crowded bazaars of the city the students are divided into groups, each headed by an experienced preacher, and go each Tuesday to various parts of the city, while on Fridays they go out two and two to visit districts. During the cold weather we itinerate in the villages, so that the men may learn how to gather groups of people and to rouse their interest in their soul's salvation.

Things to be learned.

A Missionary Association was formed by the students in 1899. A sum of Rs. 39.12 (equal to £2 13*s.*), which was given to the Association for a Christmas fête, was sent instead to the Society as a contribution towards averting a deficit. The congregation of Holy Trinity Church consists of Eurasians, and the work is in English. In the winter the attendance is from 150 to 200, and in the summer from fifty to seventy-five. The Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Causton find ample scope for their energies in the parish assigned to the church. A service is held weekly for English prisoners in the Central Gaol at Naini; the Civil Hospital is regularly visited; so is the Government workhouse, which is in the parish. Mr. Causton is Secretary of the Allahabad Strangers' Home, and the interviewing of vagrants absorbs much time. Then there is a flourishing day-school and a Sunday-school, which Mrs. Causton superintends, and a branch of the Gleaners' Union for the whole of Allahabad, &c.

A Students' Mission was opened in Allahabad during the past year. The Committee have long been desirous of establishing definite Mission work amongst the many hundreds of students attending the University and the educated Indian gentlemen living in the city and Civil Lines and in the suburbs, and they had much satisfaction in appointing the Revs. W. E. S. Holland and P. Armitage for this work. The Rev. G. T. Manley also has his headquarters at the Students' Mission, but his instructions are to engage, as opportunities offer, in work among students in other large centres, such as Calcutta, Lahore, and Bombay, as well as Allahabad. Mr. Holland reached Allahabad in February, 1900. He at once got into touch with a number of Christian students, and started weekly Bible Circles on the British College Christian Union system for some thirty-five of them, including the Divinity Class students. He writes of these educated young Christians:—

A great disappointment.

> Such bright fellows they are, several of them now close friends of mine. One, a Brahman, baptized two years ago, has just thrown up Government service for missionary work. But it has been, perhaps, my greatest disappointment to find how, with this exception, almost all look forward, not to missionary but to Government employment as the natural thing, and quote the better terms and pay as the amply sufficient reason. Few, if any, seem to feel the burden of India's evangelization as resting upon them. Yet where, if not to these, is the little Church of India to look for the men to inspire and lead her out to the new enterprise? India will never be evangelized if not by Indian Christians. Yet the Indian Church seems grievously lacking in the missionary spirit. Is it that we missionaries quite fail by our example to inspire them to sacrifice?

Three thousand English-speaking Natives in Allahabad.

But it is not for Christian students only that this effort has been inaugurated, but for English-speaking Natives generally, of whom Mr. Holland estimates there are some 3,000 in and around Allahabad. In Muir College, the seat of the Allahabad University, there are some 260 men; a Training College for Schoolmasters has 100; five High schools have some 400 in their upper classes; and the pleaders, doctors, Government clerks, &c., Mr. Holland roughly estimates at about 2,200. In July suitable premises were rented as a temporary Hostel, and its eleven available rooms were at once crowded with fifteen students, and many other applicants were refused. Most of the students in the city live in lodgings in the bazaar, away from home restraints, amid surroundings of gravest peril and continuous temptation, and it is to their credit that the value of such accommodation and of the social and moral protection under constant Christian influence which it affords is thus appreciated. As the men are of various castes—most of them are Brahmans, but no less than five castes of Brahmans were represented among the fifteen inmates of the Hostel—separate kitchens had to be provided. Government rates fix the terms at one rupee per month, for which they each receive a room, kitchen, bed, table, chair, and share of the common servant. There is no prospect, therefore, until the rates are raised, of the institution being self-supporting. During the summer, while Mr. Holland was at the Hills, the Rev. S. Nihal Singh resided in the Hostel and spent the time very happily. The young men, he says, were "thorough gentlemen and very amiable in their manners." For the benefit of the general body of students, one large room in the rented bungalow is devoted to the purposes of a reading and lecture room, and is called the "Oxford and Cambridge Institute"; it is supplied with English papers, magazines, and games, while in the compound there are tennis courts. Over seventy students joined the Institute, and many others visited it in the evenings. A course of lectures was arranged for the winter session of 1900–1901. Three of these by Mr. Manley, on "Science and Religion," evoked great interest, and brought forward some hopeful inquirers. Later, in February, 1901, the Bishop of Lahore delivered a lecture in the Mayo Hall on "The Reasonableness of a Divine Incarnation," when the Bishop of Lucknow presided. There was a good attendance of some of the most influential of the English-speaking non-Christians. Mr. Holland says of the opportunities thus presented:—

"Oxford and Cambridge Institute."

Lectures.

> Already several of the men come to us for regular Bible-reading, and one gets talks almost every day with one or other of those in the Hostel or coming to the Institute. The men are getting to know and trust, and, I believe, to love us. Most of the men have utterly lost faith in Hinduism, and only observe caste—which they ridicule—to avoid social ostracism. They are agnostics for the most part. Some are members of the Arya Somaj, and these are the most difficult to reach. But even those who profess to have forsaken popular errors for Vedantism have read little or nothing of the Vedas. Hinduism is apparently a vague license to think or hold anything which is the offspring of pure fancy and speculation. It only becomes definite in its rejection of authoritative creeds like Islam or Christianity. Our contact with these men is so perpetual that openings for work are endless. But it needs the prayers of those at home that these talks and all our life may be in demonstration of the Spirit, so that the men may be effectually drawn to Jesus Christ. The Hostel seems to me to afford unique opportunities for winning these men. They get to know us intimately, are under our constant influence, and can come to us at any odd moment for a talk. For this it is requisite that the missionary in charge be free from other work, so as to be constantly accessible to the men. Once let the student find "darwaza band" (the door shut) and he will not come again. But our accommodation is miserably inadequate. We could take in forty men had we the rooms—forty men brought under steady Christian influence at the most formative period of their lives. The Hindus realize this and have taken alarm. In the few months we have been preparing they have raised Rs. 110,000, including a Government grant of 10 per cent., for a Hostel for 200 men under regular (Hindu) religious instruction, to tempt the men away from us and to save them from Christianity. One is tempted to think that the Church's apathy in giving has lost a great opportunity.

Most of the students agnostics.

Muirabad. The Christian village of Muirabad was so called after Sir William Muir, who, while he was Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces, took a deep and active interest in the temporal and spiritual benefit of the Native Christians, and that interest has never abated. During the past year Sir William has placed Rs. 70,000 in the Society's hands for the purpose of building an institution in Muirabad in memory of the late Lady Muir. This is in course of erection, and will be known as the "Lady Muir Institute of Christian Women Workers." The Bishop of Calcutta visited Muirabad in February, 1900, and received a hearty and respectful welcome from the Indian Christians of the village and of Allahabad. The congregation numbers about 500, of whom 150 are communicants. The Rev. J. B. Ventura, the native pastor, has in operation all the usual agencies of a well-worked parish at home. Besides the Sunday services and Sunday-school there is daily morning service in the church, and an evening service on Wednesdays; there is also a Young Men's Debating Institute, a Women's Voluntary Helpers' Association, women's and boys' Bible-classes, Band of Hope, &c. There are, moreover, a reading room—open every evening, and supplied with books, pamphlets, newspapers, and magazines—and a village dispensary. The people subscribed to a Pastors' Fund, Evangelization Fund, Dispensary Fund, Cemetery Fund, Poor Fund, Trust Fund, &c. The Bishop of Lucknow confirmed twenty-six candidates. The women of the village contributed the salary of a Bible-woman, who visited the villages near the Naini railway station. An evangelist is also engaged. Six adults were baptized.

"Lady Muir Institute."

The Evangelistic Work in the city and district around continues to be supervised by the Revs. S. Nihal Singh and W. G. Proctor. Both, with their respective parties of evangelists, were present at the great mela at the junction of the Ganges and the Jumna rivers in January, 1900, and the Divinity School students joined them. Owing to the breaking out of plague in the district the attendance of pilgrims was unusually small, but the audiences at the Mission tents were larger and steadier than ever. Mr. Singh reports four adults baptized, one of whom was a Brahman youth reading in St. John's College, Agra, for the Entrance Examination; one was a teacher in a Chamar school; and the other two were cultivators. Mr. Singh also refers to the opening of an Anglo-Vernacular school at Kutwa, for the benefit of the children of the Thakoors, the warrior caste. The headman, Thakoor Anant Bahadur Singh, gave a considerable piece of ground for a school, houses for teachers, and a church, and thirty-five pupils were under instruction at the close of the year. The teacher also preaches in the bazaar and visits the people. In the villages around Jhoonsi, another out-station, Mr. Singh had attentive audiences. In two villages he found that the idols had been discarded—cast away into the village ponds—and the only deterrent from professing Christianity was fear of neighbouring villages. Partabgarh was visited monthly by Mr. Proctor, and he was proposing to remove thither and make it his headquarters. An Indian Christian told Mr. Proctor that he had observed two successive changes in the line commonly adopted by missionaries in their evangelistic addresses. At first they attacked Mohammedanism and Hinduism, a course which often led to excited and angry controversy; then, at a later period, they entered upon a comparison between Christianity and other religions, sometimes making the latter to appear ridiculous; but now, he said, "missionaries are anxious to preach in the spirit of love, Christ as Saviour of sinners, and to avoid as far as possible all controversy." Mr. Proctor thinks that all three kinds may yet be met with, but he rejoices, if the testimony of the native brother may be accepted, to believe that the evolution of missionary preaching has been on right lines.

A fact came to Mr. Proctor's knowledge which modified greatly his sense of the value of lantern pictures as a means of making the Gospel known. He says:—

Lantern pictures worshipped.

> At a place where I had shown the lantern last year, the Life of our Lord being the subject of the slides exhibited, I was asked by a man if I was going to show the picture or representation of God (Ishwar Ká Rup). In correcting his wrong impression, it transpired that large numbers of the people had been doing puja to the pictures, i.e. worshipping them in the same way and with the same intent as they do their idols. Further inquiry brought to light the painful fact that this is a common practice at such exhibitions.

Mr. Proctor refers to a young Brahman who with his father's consent is under preparation for baptism. Two other inquirers proved disappointing, one being a sadhu, or religious mendicant, whose old habits proved too strong for the discipline of the Gospel. The young Hindu referred to in last year's Annual Report (page 215) as hoping to go to England to study for the law became mentally affected and, under the delusion that his relatives wished to kill him, left home, and made his way as a travelling mendicant to Madras. His brother told Mr. Proctor that after he was discovered and brought home, one of the first things he asked for was the English Bible Mr. Proctor had sent him. He also himself told Mr. Proctor that he continued to read the Bible and pray to God.

BENARES.

Benares.

Jay Narayan's School.

The Rev. J. M. Challis, who took a short furlough in 1900, returned to BENARES in November and resumed charge of Jay Narayan's School, which the Revs. A. W. Baumann and R. S. Bennertz had superintended during his absence. The number of pupils is 340, of whom only fourteen are Christians. In a place so bigoted as Benares Mr. Challis thinks it is a surprising fact that so many are to be found willing to attend a Christian Mission school. Some of the pupils in the Oriental Department are studying Sanskrit with the view of holding positions as priests in the temples, yet they willingly learn the Scriptures with the other lads. The Christian masters at the school meet once a week for united prayer, while about 100 of the pupils attend a voluntary Sunday-school, and a few English-speaking Indians from outside join an English class in this school, which Mr. Challis takes himself. The Maharajah of Benares, the high officials in whose palace were educated at Jay Narayan's, has promised to renew an annual gift of Rs. 50 for prizes, which has lately been intermitted. The Girls' Normal School was worked by Mrs. Barr and Miss Sturges, of the Z.B.M.M., and by Miss E. Bedford. It had 100 pupils. While these ladies do not claim that the girls are clever or brilliant, the school obtained last year, as it has done before, the highest Government grant awarded to girls' schools in the North-West Provinces. All the girls sent up for the Middle School Examination passed. Out of ninety-three pupils examined in the Scriptures seventy-four passed, and some of the answers were particularly good. Miss Sturges conducted the teachers' training class, and her labours were rewarded by the Education Department recognizing the school as a training school for women teachers. Excellent specimens of needlework, done by the elder girls, were sent to England for sale, the profits of which were devoted to helping Mission work at other stations.

Girls' Normal School.

The highest Government grant.

The Rev. D. Solomon sends an account of his pastoral labours for the Native Congregation in the Christian village of Sigra. He says he devotes much of his time to visiting the people, believing that words spoken in friendly conversation are often more fruitful than public appeals.

The Rev. A. Butterworth engaged in Evangelistic Work. During the summer months preaching was carried on daily, morning and evening, in the bazaars at eight different centres, but there was little visible fruit. Mr. Butterworth quotes an old missionary as saying that preaching in Benares is "like pouring water into the Ganges," producing no apparent effect; but he rests on the promise of God, Who has said that His Word shall not return to Him void. From November, 1899, till the following March, Mr. Butterworth was in camp. He and his party visited 158 villages, some of them twice. Lantern slides illustrating the Life of Christ and Pilgrim's Progress were exhibited to large crowds—at one place to nearly 1,000 people, and 1,500 books were sold. The Zemindars were most friendly, listening to the preaching and buying Gospels. At one village they were visited by a high official of the Maharajah of Benares, a former pupil of Jay Narayan's School. He conversed about Christ for three hours, admitting the superiority of His claims over those of all other teachers, but the inconsistencies of nominal Christians were a stumbling-block to him. In another village, where the people were indisposed to listen, a Zemindar bought a Gospel for his son, who promised to read it to the villagers. Mr. Butterworth adds the sequel:—

"Has it got that story in?"

Two days later an old man came through pouring rain, with a pice clasped in his hand, to buy the book containing the story of Christ touching the leper. The boy had read this story to them, and the old man could scarcely believe it. I had no Gospels left, so offered him some Gospel story-books. "Has it got that story in?" was his constant inquiry, and tears filled his eyes when I said, "No." Meanwhile I had sent to the catechists and obtained a Gospel from them with "that story" in. It was a sight never to be forgotten to see the joy in his face when he received it. He walked off very happily, saying, "What a wonderful thing!" How we prayed for this sin-stricken soul, that the touch of Christ might reach him and make him whole.

Visiting melas.

At one of their camping places a mela was held in honour of Siva's birthday, and 50,000 men assembled. The screaming and beating of drums, however, made it almost impossible to obtain a hearing for the Gospel message, while the sinful excesses tolerated and encouraged at the mela were a most distressing spectacle. Yet even here twenty-one books were sold. At another mela near Jaunpur 113 books were sold in two days, and the Word was preached to thirty groups of people. Miss A. H. R. Bull and Miss A. B. Davis, with some Indian helpers, crossed the Ganges at the beginning of 1900, and spent several weeks in camp. They visited seventy villages and delivered the Gospel message to about 1,800 adult people besides children. Mr. Butterworth asks for prayer in behalf of the scattered and lonely Christians in the out-stations of Charwah, Fathepur, and Ahraurah. At the last-named place he stayed for three weeks and sold 500 books. Jaunpur, thirty-six miles by rail distant from Benares, was visited monthly by Mr. Baumann. The High School there is flourishing in spite of much rivalry, but the congregation makes little, if any, progress.

Azimgarh.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins were transferred from Meerut to AZIMGARH at the close of 1899. The station had not had a resident European male missionary for upwards of twenty years, since the Rev. B. H. Skelton left it in the spring of 1878. The district of Azimgarh is one of the most populous in the North-West and Central Provinces, having one million and a half of people, the adjoining district of Gorakhpur being the only one of those occupied by the C.M.S. which can claim a larger population. The High School has been the means of educating most of the principal men and many of the shopkeepers in the town of Azimgarh and its neighbourhood, and these are in consequence more or less friendly to the Mission. This fact has opened the doors of not a few houses to the ladies. Misses E. A. Luce, A. M. Tottenham (now at home), and E. A. Yate were joined by Miss R. Carter in November, 1900. Their staff of native helpers, Bible-women, and teachers increased from six to fifteen, the support of two only being charged to the Society's funds. Miss Luce thinks she observes an increased interest in the Truth on the part of the zenana pupils visited, though the fear of expulsion from their homes deters them from openly confessing Christ. The Sidhari School, the closing of which was mentioned last year, was re-opened, and three new ones were opened, two in the city and one in a village, about a hundred girls being under instruction. All the teachers are Christians. One of these schools had been commenced by a Mohammedan Moulvie in his own house; at his request the ladies took charge of it and its twenty Mohammedan girls and placed it under a Christian teacher. Another of the schools is for Brahman children, who show great interest in the Bible stories, and learn the "Hundred Texts" of the Irish Church Missions. In the villages the ladies rarely experienced difficulty in collecting audiences of women, sometimes as many as sixty or seventy gathering together to listen to the story of Christ's love. Miss Luce, after four years in the field, writes:—

A school in a Mohammedan Moulvie's house.

Brahman children learn the "Hundred Texts."

> I was told by missionaries before I came out that the joy of the Master's service would more than make up for all one could have to give up in leaving home, and now, after four years out here, I can only say, "The half was not told me;" the joy of His service and the intense reality of His presence far exceed anything I ever knew in the homeland.

The joy of missionary service.

A school was opened by Mr. Collins at Mau, a railway junction twenty-eight miles distant from Azimgarh. While camping in the district during the winter of 1900–1901 Mr. Collins was sometimes listened to with attention, but more frequently with indifference or with decided opposition. One hindrance to speedy evangelization is the fact that the villages are divided into groups of from two to thirty houses, so that it is rare to have an audience of over six or seven people.

Smallness of villages.

GORAKHPUR.

When the Rev. J. P. Ellwood left GORAKHPUR in the spring of 1900 the Rev. A. H. Wright, who returned from furlough the previous December, succeeded him in the charge of the station. In some respects the work is unique. Large and populous as the civil district is, the C.M.S. is alone in occupying it. Almost every department of missionary work is represented—evangelistic, educational, industrial, pastoral, &c. There are orphanages and an agricultural colony. The senior missionary is honorary chaplain, and has charge of two English congregations, and these contributed Rs. 700 to Mission funds during the past year, from a European and Eurasian community not exceeding 250. St. Andrew's College owes its inception and start to the Rev. T. F. Robathan, who, unfortunately, was invalided home in October, 1899, a few months after the College Classes were opened. Twenty-five students were under instruction, and fifteen were sent up for the Intermediate Examination. The Rev. R. J. Kennedy, transferred from the Bengal Mission, has been appointed Principal of the College and superintendent of all the educational work at the station. He took up his duties in November, 1900. The Rev. R. Baker, who removed to Gorakhpur from Benares early in 1900, supervised the work of the School Department until November, when he was transferred to Lucknow. He bears testimony to the earnest work and harmonious co-operation of the teaching staff. Mr. Baker did much to develop an appreciation of athletics among the boys. A gymnastic display was given in August before the English residents and about 2,000 Natives, and was pronounced a great success. In the course of the daily Scripture talk Christ's Divinity was sometimes strongly contested, and it was pleasing to notice one feature of the discussions—i.e., the general dissent on the part of both Hindus and Mohammedans to many of the arguments and objections of the champions of these creeds. The Girls' Orphanage has one hundred inmates. Miss H. M. Forbes, transferred from Agra in the spring of 1900, has charge of the education of the orphan girls, with whom some forty day girls are associated, in a school which Mr. Ellwood's exertions raised to the dignity of an Anglo-Vernacular School. On some of the more delicate girls the famine of 1897 left an indelible mark, and the teachers observe with sadness their quiet, patient endurance as they gradually decline, while they themselves are powerless to help them. Thirty-eight of the girls are members of the Y.W.C.A. There are two Boys' Orphanages. Three of the boys were being taught carpentry, two shoemaking, one tailoring, six were being trained as servants, eight were learning printing, while the thirty-five orphans at Basharatpur engaged in field work. About 1,000 Native Christians are in the combined pastorates of Gorakhpur and the Christian villages of Basharatpur, Dharmpur, and Sternpur, whose contributions amounted to Rs. 595. These last were under the pastoral charge of the Rev. J. Qalandar. Most of the people cultivate the soil, and the rest are engaged on the Bengal and North Western Railway as guards, telegraphists, signal-men, and clerks. The Bishop of Lucknow confirmed forty-eight persons in February, 1900, twenty-one of whom were baptized as adults three years previously. A communicants' class was held monthly, and Non-Christian pupils dissent from anti-Christian arguments.

Orphanages.

Mr. Qalandar prepared two tracts in Roman Urdu on the Service of Holy Communion for the instruction of its members. Some of the young men who met in a weekly class took up voluntary evangelistic work in and around Basharatpur. In August, 1900, when the prolonged drought excited a fear of another famine, a whole week was set apart for special prayer for rain. Mr. Qalandar writes of this:—

Prayer for rain.

The brethren assembled every evening in an open place and humbled themselves before God, confessing their sins and shortcomings. It was a time of eager expectation. We prayed for rain. We prayed for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Will God answer our prayer? Will He send us rain? That was the burning question of the week. Some doubted and a few scoffed at us. On the third day I spoke to them of Elijah and the ravens, and asked them to join me in the Litany. As soon as the first four invocations were finished we felt the drizzling of the rain. We took shelter in the Mission bungalow near by and spent that hour and the remaining days of the week in praise and thanksgiving, with a special thanksgiving offertory. Thus ended a week spent with God, which was quite refreshing to my own soul. The people are still thankful for the fine harvest they had.

The Society is indebted to the Z.B.M.M. for the loan for five years of Miss L. M. Hayward's services. Very zealously and faithfully was the Work among Women done by her during that period, both among the Christian women in Basharatpur, where she lived, and the Heathen in the neighbouring villages. Upon her leaving in the autumn of 1900, Miss A. B. Davis was appointed to succeed to her work.

The Rev. C. C. Petch engaged in Evangelistic Work in and near Gorakhpur during the hot weather and rains and in the district in the cold season. In the city he made many friends among the upper class people, calling on them and inviting them to call on him. At a large dharmsala, or travellers' rest-house in the city, where people from the district who have cases in the courts are accommodated, he frequently had audiences of sixty or seventy, sometimes even twice as many. On three evenings in the week the Gospel was preached at certain fixed stations in the city, the prevailing attitude of the people being that of lukewarmness. The itineration taken in November and December, 1900, was towards Nepal and the lower ranges of the Himalayas. Mr. Petch says of the catechists and readers who work under him that they always make Jesus Christ the subject of their sermons and talks, so much so that objectors have been heard to remark, "These fellows only talk about Jesus Christ, nothing else; why should we listen? we know that old story."

"These fellows only talk about Jesus Christ

LUCKNOW AND FAIZABAD.

Lucknow.

Lucknow was one of the many stations that were called upon to suffer changes in their missionaries in consequence of the urgent need of supplying workers among the famine-stricken Bhils. Mr. J. C. Harrison, leader of the Band of Associated Evangelists, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett were transferred in May and November respectively from Lucknow to Rajputana. Mr. Birkett was succeeded in the charge of the work at the station by the Rev. R. Baker. The Normal School for training teachers develops slowly. It is designed for men of sufficient ability to be teachers in high schools, and these must have passed either the University Entrance or the Middle Class Examination. The number of Christian boys who do this is at present small, hence the supply is very limited. The numbers in the High School increased from 140 to 200. Six boys joined the Bible Readers' Union, and made notes on their daily readings, which they compared when they met on Sundays. Nearly all the elder boys have classes in the Sunday-schools for their non-Christian schoolfellows. There were 160 heathen and Mohammedan pupils in the Lucknow Sunday-schools, most of them attending C.M.S. day-schools, and no less than twenty-one earned prizes for attending on fifty or more Sundays in the year. In the summer of 1900 the care of the Hindustani Congregation was added to Mr. Birkett's other responsibilities, for the Rev. T. Noah went to study for Priests' Orders in the Allahabad Divinity School. He was ordained, as already mentioned, in March, 1901. Mr. Birkett points out how unreasonably heavy his charge was thus made to be :—

Non-Christians at Sunday-schools taught by their Christian schoolfellows.

> No man in England with a school preparing for the Universities, even if he had only sixty or seventy boys, would take charge of a parish as well, and here, where most of the boys are non-Christians and the congregation is surrounded by Heathenism, they both need more care than they would in England.

A heavy charge.

Mr. J. C. Harrison, the leader of the Band of Associated Evangelists (as already mentioned), was absent helping in the Bhīl Mission from May until the autumn of 1900, during which time the leadership devolved on Mr. H. Blackwood, who has since come home. The other members of the Band were Mr. J. McIntosh and the Rev. W. Walton. The cold weather itineration of 1899–1900 was in a part of the district nearer to Lucknow than had been the case in recent years, and the people seemed more indifferent; nevertheless, the sale of books was larger than for several years past. As the cold season advanced the method was so far varied that, instead of remaining only a few days in one village and then moving on, the Band encamped near a large village for some time and preached there morning, noon, and night, visited individuals, and exhibited Scripture lantern slides in the market-place or in the houses of Zemindars. Mr. McIntosh says of the work of the Band :—

Associated Evangelists.

> We have visited and preached in bazaars, melas, sacred ghats, temple precincts, fields, houses, shops, dispensaries, wedding assemblies, cowsheds, sarais, schools—in fact, anywhere where a living soul was willing to listen. There is no romance and fine-spun poetry about it. Those who intend to take up this work must be prepared to face day by day hard, grinding, humdrum, stone-breaking labour in expectation of Christ's coming. There is much to rejoice one's heart, even though we do not see immediate results. It is a great joy to go forth time after time with our native agents, who, notwithstanding their drawbacks, show much zeal and patience in well-doing. The way they adapt themselves is remarkable. Sometimes our listeners are Mohammedans. They at once address them in beautiful Urdu. Then we are confronted by Hindus, and they immediately use the best Hindi. Then the audience changes, and they make known Christ to the ignorant low-caste in the simple village idioms, almost beyond my comprehension.

"No romance" about the work.

Zeal, patience and skill of native evangelists.

Mr. Walton and Mr. McIntosh resided at Nigohan at different periods during the year, as they did also at Gosainganj. John Cecil, a faithful native worker at Fatehganj for more than twenty years, died during the past year.

No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. A. E. Bowlby (now at home), of FAIZABAD. Mr. Harrison went to the annual mela at Adjudhya, and was greatly encouraged by the willingness of the people to listen and to purchase Gospels.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

On the return of the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite to AGRA at the end of 1899, after an absence of nearly two years, the Rev. J. M. Challis was transferred to Benares, and the European staff of St. John's College consisted of the Principal and the Revs. H. W. V. Birney and H. B. Durrant. Mr. Birney has since come home. Mr. Durrant has been elected a Fellow of Allahabad University. A college chapel was dedicated by the Bishop of Lucknow on January 22nd, 1900, built at a cost of over Rs. 2,000 derived chiefly from private donations. The teak benches, neatly carved and arranged in tiers facing each other as in college chapels at home, were the workmanship of the S.P.G. Industrial Mission at Cawnpore. The college hall, which comfortably seats 400 and is the largest in Agra available for meetings, was provided with American seats having a hand desk attached. This hall is in constant use during the winter months. The average attendance of students in the College department during the year was ninety-seven, in the collegiate school 330, and in the branch schools 232, a total of 659. The fees in the College department were raised, and a sum of Rs. 350 in excess of the previous year's receipts from this source was the result. The two candidates for the M.A. examination both passed, and were placed fifth and sixth in order of merit in English literature. In the B.A. six and in the F.A. nine men passed. In the Collegiate School a Christian youth secured a high place in the first class in the school final examination; four passed the Government Entrance, of whom one was in the first class; and six succeeded in the Anglo-Vernacular Middle Examination. The three branch schools are in populous centres in the city of Agra. The fees amount to more than one-third of the total cost, but the Government gives no help, and their maintenance is a matter of difficulty. They are useful as feeders to the Collegiate School, and are valuable centres of Bible teaching. The College reading-room is appreciated, an encouraging change from the indifference to anything outside school text-books which was prevalent among students a few years ago. At certain periods of the South African War the English papers were eagerly read and intelligently discussed. College lectures and Haileybury lectures were given in English and in Urdu, the object of which is thus explained by Mr. Haythornthwaite :—

Lectures.

> The object aimed at is to lead students to recognize, not simply the claims of Christ for their acceptance as the World-Saviour—this being done during the week in the daily Bible lessons—but, if possible, to fix upon them a sense of moral responsibility, and the duty of making a decision, to counteract the tendency, so prevalent in India, to look upon Christianity simply as a philosophy, to be studied, criticised, and compared, without involving a moral claim to obedience. Missionaries, English and American visitors, are all invited when they pass through to address the students and to make an evangelistic appeal.

Mr. Durrant says of the opportunities and the fascination of the work :—

Opportunities of an educational missionary.

> Even as a novice in the work I cannot help seeing the enormous possibilities in this wonderful relationship of teacher and pupil: the long hours spent daily in the most intimate talk of things as they touch the taste, the imagination, the mind, and the spirit. It was very interesting to find that the oldest educationalist in these provinces, an earnest Christian and in deep sympathy with missionary work, feels just the same. He told me that forty years' work as a teacher in India had convinced him that nothing gives so strong a hold over these young men as the being associated with them in the intimacy of the class-room. We do need the prayers of the Church at home that these hours of secular teaching may be hours of the truest missionary work, so that these students' characters may be built up day by day by contact with us. It is so easy to forget this higher work in the absorbing intellectual interest of teaching; but where we fail it is the fault not of the work but of the workman. I find that one grows very fond of these students with their quick, eager young minds and their intense interest in their work; and, coming as they constantly do to my rooms to consult me about "difficulties," there are many opportunities for direct talk about the things of God.

Girls' High School.

The Girls' High School was quite full throughout the year, having thirty boarders. Nineteen of these paid full fees, seven held scholarships, which partly covered expenses, and four were to a large extent supported by missionaries. Miss A. F. Wright, transferred from the Punjab Mission, and Miss A. M. Cox, a recruit from home, joined the school in the autumn of 1899. They were the only Europeans on the staff until joined by Miss K. C. Wright at the close of 1900. There was an almost entire change of the native staff in the autumn of 1899, the four Hindustani teachers leaving; happily Punjabi teachers were procured by Miss A. F. Wright, and these rendered temporary help until two teachers who had volunteered from the Alexandra School, Amritsar, Miss Wright's former sphere of service, could be spared. These changes may be mainly accountable for the fact that the May (1900) examinations were somewhat disappointing, notwithstanding which a much better Government grant was obtained than in the previous year, Rs. 64 in lieu of Rs. 37. The present school-house is too far from the Mission church for the girls to go there oftener than once a month, when they go in hired garis, consequently a service is conducted on Sunday mornings in the schoolroom by a catechist. In the evening the girls attend St. Paul's English Church, where they form the chief part of the choir at that service. Mr. Haythornthwaite is the honorary chaplain of this church, the offertories of which amounted to Rs. 2,034. A collection taken on Advent Sunday was sent to avert a deficit in the Society's funds. The Hindustani Congregation in like manner had a collection for the same object on New Year's Day, 1901, and it was the largest collection on the records of the church, about Rs. 340. A few weeks later, on January 28th, the congregation had the sorrow of losing their devoted pastor, the Rev. W. Seetal, as has been already recorded (see supra, page 231).

Contributions to avert a deficit.

Miss S. Bland, who has charge of the Women's Work in Agra, was absent during the summer months in Australia. Her fellow-workers are Mrs. Rait, Miss M. E. Schneider, Miss C. E. Fry (now at home), and Miss L. Sheldon. The last-named was engaged in language study, and was transferred at the year's close to Meerut, when Miss V. C. Saunders, one of the year's recruits, was assigned to study Urdu at Agra. Several interesting zenana pupils are referred to. A Mohammedan woman, the widow of a Nawab whose knowledge of and interest in the Bible have influenced his family, has begun to pray in the name of the Saviour. Her two daughters read Peep of Day and Barth's Bible Stories. A Hindu woman prays daily to the Lord Jesus Christ, and has given up all idol worship. She showed Miss Bland her copy-book, beautifully written in Roman Urdu, the sentences all being texts from the Sermon on the Mount which she had persuaded a Hindu boy to set her as copies. Miss Bland superintends twelve Hindu and Mohammedan schools. One was handed over to her by Mrs. McLean, which had been opened under somewhat remarkable circumstances, which Mrs. McLean thus relates:—

Women's Work.

Women inquirers.

Shortly after my return a Hindu priest in Agra sent for me and asked if I would teach his five daughters to read and write. I said, "Yes, if I may teach them of Jesus too." He said, "You may, and must come every day." I said, "I cannot come more than once a week unless you give me a room in your house for a school and call other girls." To this he consented; so now we have between twenty and thirty high-caste Brahman girls, learning day by day of the true God, under the very wall of an idol temple.

School in house of a Brahman priest.

At the prize-giving held in the Ram Bagh, an attractive garden near the city, some 400 girls were present, and Miss Bland describes the delight of the girls to receive Hindi and Urdu Testaments as prizes :—

Delight of children to receive New Testament as prizes.

> We gave several Testaments in Hindi and Urdu to those girls who could read them, and it was delightful to hear their exclamations of surprise and pleasure on receiving them, more than one clasped hers with both arms, saying, "Now I have a holy book of my own." Later on, when I went to a school where ten girls had received them, they were so eager to tell me of all they had found in their books. Each miracle or parable they had learnt, or been taught by picture, or in Peep of Day, had been looked out by them, and they were so eager to tell me: "Jairus's daughter is in my book"; "I have found the Sower," or "the Ten Virgins," or "the Prodigal Son."

The Rev. W. McLean resumed charge of the Evangelistic Work on his return from furlough at the end of 1899. The Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Paterson left the following spring to take their furlough, and the Rev. J. W. Goodwin was temporarily transferred to Rajputana in August. Seven catechists, five teachers, and two colporteurs were at work in Agra city during the year.

Opposition rarely met with.

In the bazaar preaching opposition or abuse was rarely met with. A former bitter opponent commenced to read the Bible with an apparently genuine desire to know the Truth. Mr. McLean and his fellow evangelists frequently questioned the people after concluding their addresses, in order to elicit how far their meaning had been apprehended, and this often led to interesting and useful conversations.

Brahman and Mohammedan converts.

Eighteen adults were baptized during the year, of whom two were Brahmans, two Mohammedans, six Thakoors, and eight belonged to other castes. One of the two Mohammedans changed his name from Qamar-Ussalam (the Moon of Islam) to Qamar-ul-Masih (the Moon of Christ). His father, who is dead, had been a gaoler at Agra, and his brother occupies a high position in one of the Native States. More recently, in March, 1901, a Brahman pandit who studied Sanskrit for six years at Benares was baptized, and also a man of the Kahar caste. One of the native workers wrote to Mr. McLean as follows regarding an inquirer whom he went to instruct :—

A studious inquirer.

> We found him sitting on his charpai, with a Bible and a heap of tracts by his side; he was poring over a tract called Krishna pariksha (i.e. Examination of Krishna) so attentively that we could not attract his notice till we arrived at his side. Without the help of any human being he has read the Old Testament from Genesis to Psalms, and the New to the Revelation of St. John. He likes the Psalms best, and seems to appreciate the spiritual side of the Scriptures. . . . He repeated before me the Lord's Prayer, which he learnt from the Gospels. He is not far from the Kingdom of God, and only needs a Philip to explain to him what he reads.

Zemindars assisting the work.

At Khandouli, nine miles distant, a dispensary was built, on a piece of ground rented from a neighbouring Zemindar, at a nominal rent, to replace a much smaller one that had been there for some years. Another Zemindar, at Bharanpur, offered a house and compound, together with a monthly grant from his Zemindari, on condition that a teacher was sent. Tundla, sixteen miles from Agra, is an important railway centre, and the congregation, consisting mainly of railway servants who are liable to be transferred, fluctuates considerably. Ferozabad, thirty miles from Agra, is a place of some 16,000 people, and is increasing in importance in consequence of the erection there of some large mills. Mr. McLean found some pandits to whom Mr. Paterson had given books the year before. They had evidently read them and thought over them, and one had even been teaching his boys from them. The Marchioness of Northampton supports the catechist at Taj Ganj, four miles from Agra, where the famous Taj is, a place of about 12,000 people, most of them Mohammedans and very bitter. Jabsar, in the Etah district, was occupied as an out-station in 1899. Many Gospels and portions were sold there during the year. An excellent site has been granted to the Mission in the Native State of Bharatpore. Both the town itself and the State are populous, the "Jats" being the most numerous among the higher castes. Jalesar, about forty miles distant from Agra, was occupied by a young Bible-woman in 1898. Miss H. M. Forbes, who camped in this neighbourhood with Mrs. Paterson in January, 1900, and visited some twenty-three villages, writes:—

Congregation of railway servants.

Mohammedans bitter at the famous Taj.

> At a village they visited the year before we went to about eight houses and had over a hundred listeners altogether. Some listened eagerly, others I am afraid came only from curiosity. In one house, where we had just a few women, they seemed really interested and touched to hear this wonderful story of One Who loved them so much that He came down to die for them; and when we stood up to go one dear woman put her hand on my shoulder and said, "Have you only just heard this news and come to tell us?" Have we "only just heard"? How can we face this question?

"Have you only just heard this news?"

No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. E. T. Pegg, of SECUNDRA. He wrote, however, at the beginning of 1901 enclosing a cheque for Rs. 270 towards averting a deficit. This sum was given by some twenty poor families, and by the orphan boys and girls, who by self-denial contributed Rs. 54 of the sum.

Orphan boys contribute to avert a deficit.

MUTTRA.

At the beginning of 1900, besides the Rev. P. M. Zenker, who is in general charge as senior missionary, there were four ladies at MUTTRA, namely, the Misses M. Stratton, E. M. F. Major, E. Worthington, and A. M. Tottenham. The last-named returned to her former station, Azimgarh, in February, and has since come home; and in May Miss Major went, on health grounds, to Simla, whence she returned in October. The following month Miss T. G. Stratton, one of the year's recruits, joined the party. The Rev. F. E. Markby and Mr. J. McIntosh were at Muttra, receiving help from Mr. Zenker in their language (Urdu) studies for part of the year. In the Annual Report for 1896-97 (page 208) the visit to Muttra on a pilgrimage of the Rajah of Shirpur, Baroda, and the fact that he called frequently on Mr. Zenker and allowed the Mission ladies to call on his mother and wives, were mentioned. Mr. Zenker says of this Rajah:—

A Rajah visits a missionary.

It is quite remarkable how this king has, as it were, attached himself to me. Formerly he came in intervals of three and four years, and I recollect how, in 1886, when Mr. Bowlby happened to stay with us, he brought his bodyguard—a rabble of marvellous appearance—along with him, and, as a mark of respect, made them march past us. Afterwards he used to visit Muttra in shorter intervals, and quite lately he has been here more than once in a year. But I believe, whenever it may have been, he would never leave Muttra without seeing me or, if I happened to be away, my dear sister. The latter naturally talked to him about his wives and his mother, an old lady for whom he entertains a wholesome respect.

A delicate hint promptly taken.

On one visit, accompanied by his son, the Rajah said to the latter, "The Padri Sahib is praying for you," probably in allusion to the young prince's suffering from epileptic fits. On another occasion Mr. Zenker delicately intimated to a confidential servant of the Rajah that the enormous expenditure of his visits to Muttra with so large a body of attendants at a time when famine was raging was not desirable, and on his next visit the Rajah appeared with only a few attendants. Mr. Markby refers to the visits to him of a Mahratta Brahman:—

A Brahman delights in the New Testament.

I lent him my Hindi Bible and asked him to read the Gospels. He came back in two days to ask about the Sermon on the Mount. He burst out with, "This is wonderful! Can it be true? I have never read such words," and then with a sigh, "But no one can live like this! Do you Christians?" I was obliged to confess that the Christians failed to reach that standard; but that our Lord did, and pointed out the instances in our Lord's life where He carried out His precepts. He came to me several times; he not only reads the Bible but thinks about it. He says they are the "sweetest words" he has seen. But what will it cost this man to become a Christian? He is studying to be an engineer and is just about to enter Roorkee. This will all have to be given up. He loses his home, his wife, and everything. Even now he comes to me secretly; he would be prevented if they knew he came to a missionary. This is just one (but there are not many) who are seeking after God. It is all a mistake to think that the young men of India are seeking after God, they are looking out for posts under Government, and that is all.

The man above referred to made application for instruction in the first instance to the ladies, who at once passed him on to Mr. Zenker. The Women's Work among Christians and non-Christians was pursued diligently, but without striking incidents.

High caste girls' schools.

The four high-caste girls' schools in Muttra and Brindaban obtained a good report from the Government Inspectors. Nine native women render help as Bible-women and teachers, two of them commenced work during the year, after completing their training at the Benares Normal School. Miss M. Stratton and Miss Worthington camped out for a fortnight in November, 1900, at Aring, a large village nine miles from Muttra and four miles from Govardhan, a famous place of Hindu pilgrimage. The latter writes:—

There are only two or three purdah families in the whole place, so we can easily get hold of the women in the gullies of their own houses, or on their way to the cotton-fields or wells. We have put up two large Bible pictures on the trunks of two big trees in front of our tent, and also St. John iii. 16 in Hindi for the men who can read, to read as they pass along the road, and then we have books and tracts on a table for them too . . . The first night we slept here I heard our bullock-carts that had brought the tents, &c., leaving before dawn to go back to the city. Quietly they went away in the darkness, only the bullocks' bells tinkling as they went. It seemed to me a parable. We must plod steadily on like the patient bullocks, and that sometimes in the dark; but we must be sure that all the time we are ringing the "Gospel bells" wherever we go.

A parable.

Brindaban, eight miles from Muttra, has proved a hard place to work in, the people, while willing to send their children to the Mission school, refusing the missionaries access to their houses. Miss Major states, however, that the Bible-woman, Jane, is gradually winning her way among them, and when sickness or trouble visits them the mothers send for her. A high-class Brahman woman is reading the Bible with much interest, and even goes daily to the school that she may hear and learn more. A Brahman pandit is also reading the Bible with Nabi Bakhsh, Jane's husband. Miss Major tells of a remarkable opportunity that was afforded of teaching in a Hindu temple:—

A Bible-woman overcoming prejudice.

When the great mela was held at Brindaban in March we went over one day to go out with Jane and try and get amongst the women. We got a good gathering outside one of the large temples, but some Brahmans made the women disperse. We then went across to the temple from and to which the idol is carried every day during the mela. The courtyard outside the temple was just like a fair, with vendors of idols, "malas" (strings of beads used in prayer like a rosary), jewellery, sweetmeats, drinking vessels—anything in fact the pilgrims might require. As we stopped just below the great gateway leading to a second court (within which, again, are the temple precincts), we heard voices calling to us from above, and, looking up, saw some beautifully dressed women looking down from a kind of chamber in the gateway and asking us to go up. We had to gain permission for this from the person in charge of this pilgrim party, but it was granted, and we were taken up the stairs within the gateway to the room where the women were assembled. They were very high-caste women and girls from the Punjab (I suppose about a dozen or more), so fair, dressed in most beautiful silk attire, and loaded with valuable jewels; they were very careful not to come near or touch us, but most friendly and eager to talk and to listen. We sat down on the stone floor—it was none too clean, but one felt one minded nothing with such an opportunity of preaching the Gospel of Christ to souls who had never heard the name of Jesus; and there for almost an hour, I think, we sat over the gateway of that great heathen temple, singing of and telling of Jesus, the Saviour of the world. Though, of course, it was a drawback that we could not talk Punjabi—not even Jane knowing much of it—yet the women listened with eager interest, and showed by the questions they asked that they were following and understanding what she told them in simple language. At last the noise of the procession returning reached us, and as it halted immediately below us everyone rushed to see it, and we too had a good view of the idol and all. Then, when it had passed into the temple, our pilgrim friends left too, and we went away feeling that God had indeed given us an opportunity such as we had never even imagined when we started out in the morning, and feeling sure that He did not give it without a purpose.

Sympathy of non-Christians with a catechist.

At Karaila, an out-station about twenty-three miles from Muttra, the evangelist, Aziz Masih, lost one of his children, and was much cheered and encouraged by the sympathy manifested by the non-Christian population of the place. They presented him with a convenient spot for a grave, this they prepared, and then four men with torches lighted reverently carried the body on a bedstead, and the people stood and listened respectfully to the burial service. Inasmuch as both Hindus and Mohammedans usually abhor touching the dead body of one who professed another creed, these attentions must be regarded as symptomatic as well as considerate. The fact that the village of Karaila belongs to one of the temples of Brindaban, and that the chief agent of this temple took an active part in the arrangements, makes the above conduct apparently the more remarkable, but the further fact that this agent was educated at a Mission school probably provides the explanation. On one occasion the chief agent catechized one of Aziz Masih's children on the Scriptures, and on another he concluded a long discussion with the evangelist, in the presence of a number of other men, with the remark, "There must be a wonderful power in Christianity. Where have we got men who, like Christ and Stephen, prayed for their enemies?"

"There must be a wonderful power in Christianity."

ALIGARH.

Aligarh.

The European staff at ALIGARH was the same as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, with the addition of Miss E. B. Durrant, who returned, after a year's detention in England, caused by malarial fever, in November, 1899. The Rev. J. F. Pemberton refers gratefully to a graceful act of the European judge at Aligarh in sending a special invitation to some of the Native Christians to join in the public celebrations over the entry into Pretoria. The Christians themselves greatly appreciated the thoughtfulness and sympathy which this recognition of them manifested. Miss J. E. Puckle gives some particulars of the work of the Bible-women in the city. The number of visits paid was 3,624 and 2,671 reading lessons were given. These visits were chiefly among the upper classes, and were welcomed as a rule most warmly by both Hindus and Mohammedans. A well-educated and intelligent lady, the wife of a barrister, wrote as follows in English, which she is learning: "I believe Jesus, and He is my helper in all states, and saves me from evil deeds. I read the Bible every day and have a full belief in it; it teaches of God Himself, and He by His kindness teaches me, and comforts me every day." Another high-caste Hindu lady, who is reading the Gospel and shows much hearty interest in it, and whose husband holds a high position in the city, said to Miss Puckle, "I am beginning to think your religion is the true one, for it is all love." Another case she mentions:— "Your religion is all love."

A fortnight ago I was conversing with a woman belonging to the Kayasth caste when she suddenly broke in with the remark, "I have quite given up puja since you had a talk with me about it, now more than a year ago." Hearing these words the whole past scene came vividly before me, for on entering the inner courtyard there was the woman kneeling doing puja with the sacred tulsi flower and water from the Ganges. On leaving the house I inquired of the Bible-woman if she knew whether this were true or not; she replied, "Yes, I fully believe it is so," and as a witness the sacred tulsi tree was standing in the corner dried up and withered, which formerly used to be tended with so much care. "I have quite given up puja."

Mrs. E. Durrant had the great joy of seeing the Gospel light dawn on the soul of an ayah in her service, who soon afterwards died; and she heard that the child-wife (who had also died) of a former cook in her employ found comfort from her teaching in her last illness. Mrs. Durrant spent much of her time when at Aligarh in visiting the Girls' Schools. In one of them are twenty better class Bengali children. Many of the girls in the schools, Mrs. Durrant says, "come to us scarcely knowing more than wild animals, they leave us having learned to be clean and orderly, and able to read, write, sum, and sew, to an extent I hope they may never wholly forget." Miss E. B. Durrant opened a Women's Dispensary in the centre of the city in December, 1899. The number of attendances was 804. Several zenanas were opened to Miss Durrant through the desire of the women to obtain medical treatment, and she writes:— "Scarcely knowing more than wild animals."

Some of the women are very intelligent and seem quite hungry for the Word of Life. In one zenana, after I had explained to a Mohammedan woman a picture of the Good Shepherd, she said, "I want to meet the Lord Jesus, Miss Sahib; how can I see Him?" I told her she would see Him by faith, in her heart—she must ask Him for faith to see Him. She answered, "Read to me out of your book, Miss Sahib, then I shall get faith and see Him; I too will ask Him for faith." Another woman in the same house said, "Read to us out of your book, Miss Sahib; it is God's book—a wonderful book; we can't let you go till you have read to us." "How can I see Him?"

Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton spent some three months in camp and visited about 250 villages. The nature of the reception accorded generally depended on the disposition of the headmen of the several villages. At Sikandrabad there are a Middle School and a Chamar School. Drill was introduced into the curriculum, and effected a decided improvement in the boys' carriage and sprightliness of manner; a cricket club also was started. The head-master of the Middle School opened a weekly Bible-class for Mohammedans, which was attended by ten men and youths, some of whom appeared to be sincere inquirers. The dispensary at Bilaspur was visited by 7,369 patients during the year. The medical catechist, David, gained the confidence of the village people, and his wife found ready access to the zenanas. At Soron one of the native readers, Joab Joram, died, and at his funeral the Hindus and Mohammedans assisted in carrying his remains to their last resting-place, and bore testimony to his conscientious and consistent life, saying, "He was indeed a man of God." A Bible-woman commenced zenana work at Soron in March, 1900, and by the end of the year she had the entrance into twenty houses, where the ladies received systematic instruction weekly, and in many other houses her visits were warmly welcomed. Mr. Pemberton mentions a curious use of one of the Gospels which came under his notice:—

Non-Christians assist in burying a Christian worker.

> I took the catechists last year to Gharmukhteswar, a great mela place on the Ganges, where the Hindus assemble by thousands to bathe in the sacred river. By the roadside I saw a great idol representing the goddess Ganga, who presides over the destinies of men. Going near to this idol, I found the figure of a woman clothed in gorgeous dress and swaying the sceptre of power. Before her lay a book, which she was supposed to be reading, showing her wisdom and ability to teach. But this book, what was it? Not the Vedas, not the sacred Koran, but St. John's Gospel in Hindi, published by the North India Bible Society. Surely we may see here a sign of advance. The idol will give way before the Gospel, and will be forgotten in the fulness of Christian light.

MEERUT.

Meerut.

After seven years' continuous work at MEERUT, the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Hall came home on furlough in March, 1901. The occasion naturally suggests a review and a comparison, and although last year's Annual Report drew attention to the growth which has encouraged Mr. Hall since 1894, the striking facts and figures deserve to be re-stated in the light of another year's experience of continued prosperity. The 256 baptized Christians in 1894 in the Meerut district are now 640, and there are about 150 catechumens. Six adults were baptized in the former year, 104 in 1900. The native contributions in 1894 amounted to Rs. 679, in 1900 they were Rs. 934. The workers have increased from one Indian clergyman, ten catechists and readers, and three Bible-women, to two Indian clergymen, twenty catechists and readers, and nine Bible-women. Considerable additions have been made to the buildings existing at the former date, and new buildings have been erected, all involving care and anxiety to the superintending missionary. The High School did well educationally, passing twelve boys in the Matriculation Examination out of twenty sent up. The higher classes were fuller than at any previous time, and very promising. Over a hundred pupils of the school regularly attended a Sunday-school for their benefit. One of the Entrance Class students died during the year, and during his last illness he asked the head-master to pray and read with him day by day, and declared his faith in Christ and desire for baptism. His parents, however, from fear of social consequences, refused consent to his baptism. Mr. T. A. Carmichael took a large share in the management of the Christian Hostel, with nineteen student inmates. They attended daily service in the Mission Church, and some of the elder youths spontaneously started fortnightly meetings for prayer and Bible study. The Christian Girls' School had twenty-seven pupils. The Rev. M. Drummond was for part of the year the pastor of the Native Congregation. Mr. Hall notices some slackness as to Sabbath observance and church attendance, but believes there is a perceptible advance in spiritual life. Bazaar preaching was carried on about nine times a week by the catechists, and the people listened well as a rule. Mrs. Hall, Miss E. M. Beyts (until her lamented death in August), and Miss M. Cadman-Jones superintended the Work among Women. A Brahman girl who had been a pupil in one of the Mission schools in the city, of which there are five for Hindus and one for Mohammedans, was visited after her marriage by a Bible-woman, and declared herself a Christian. Miss Cadman-Jones visited nearly a hundred villages during the cold season of 1899–1900, in many of which an Englishwoman had never been seen before. At first the women fled away in fear, but their curiosity led them to return, and in some places they manifested quite a keen interest in the message.

Work among Women.

An interesting movement has been taking place during the past few years among a group of villages to the east of Meerut. The first conversion took place at Jeyi in 1898 (see Annual Report for 1897–98, page 216), from the adherents of a Hindu sect called the Lal Begis, followers of Lal Beg, a reformer, who lived early in the nineteenth century. The baptized converts in these villages now number 360. The Annual Reports for 1898–99 (page 204) and 1899–1900 (page 233) referred to the persecutions these Christians have suffered from their non-Christian neighbours. Early in January, 1900, Mr. Hall baptized forty-six converts in Laliana, a village about twenty miles to the east of Meerut. At the time the Zemindars seemed somewhat friendly, but they began to persecute the newly baptized as soon as Mr. Hall left, seizing their fields, stopping their work, cutting their wages, and bringing against them false accusations. In April a number of Mahesharas (Rajput Mussulmans), men of well-known criminal tendencies, first instigated the burning down of two houses and then attacked and beat and bound a number of Christians and charged them with the acts of incendiarism. The native sub-inspector, after inquiry, ordered their release. Five months later the charge was renewed before a native magistrate, who sent the case up to the judge, also a Native, and the Government pleader prosecuted. Mr. Hall writes :—

"A strange situation."

It was a strange situation. The judge was a Hindu, all the smaller officials were non-Christians, the prosecuting Government pleader was a Hindu whose bias came out in the following phrase : "I want to demonstrate to the court that Christians tell lies as well as Hindus," and then proceeded to put them through a severe cross-examination. Our own pleader, too, was a Hindu, who had been trained in a Mission school. The only Christians present were the accused and myself. The sub-inspector declared on oath that the Rev. G. Emmanuel and other catechists were not present at the time of the occurrence, his purpose doubtless being to throw as much discredit as possible on the simple story of the Christians.

Judgment was given on September 19th, 1900, and a few days after the scene of trouble was transferred to a neighbouring village. In February Mr. Hall had baptized twenty-six converts at Asilpur, about two miles from Laliana, and in the same month eighteen were baptized at Khejuri. Mr. Hall proceeds :—

Native police assault a congregation.

On September 23rd the very same sub-inspector broke into the church at Khejuri during the service on Sunday morning, seized the church Prayer-book out of the reader's hand, tore it in half and threw it from him, kicked over the reading-desk, and then, seizing the reader, with the help of two native policemen, tore his clothes and knocked him down. The congregation speedily dispersed, leaving the police and the reader alone. The latter cried out for help, and several young Christians rescued him, pulling him out of the church. The door was quickly closed and the chain outside fastened, leaving the three policemen within. Three hours later they were released on the appearance of the assistant sub-inspector with a number of policemen and many others, carrying swords and guns. Before long eighteen mounted policemen were quartered in the village, helping themselves freely to the crops belonging to the Christians. At least Rs. 50 worth were destroyed. By the orders of the English magistrate the police were finally withdrawn, and a deputy-collector (Hindu) sent out to make inquiry. The corruption that was going on privately came to our ears, and the sub-inspector in defence declared that he had entered the building to secure two dacoits, whom the Christians had concealed ! He denied that there was any service going on, and even brought witnesses to prove that it was not a church. Four pleaders were secured by the sub-inspector, and amongst them the Government pleader. No one could have sat from day to day in the courts and listened to the perjury of witnesses and native officials without coming to the conclusion that the most urgent need for India to-day is moral training to go hand-in-hand with Western education. There is only one cure for the corruption and bribery which is manifest in almost every department of life, and that is the life and power and teaching of Jesus Christ. The pleader who defended the Christians was trained, as I have stated, in a Mission school, and during the trial the Hindu pleaders did not mind twitting him in my presence with having become a Christian because he ventured to espouse the cause of truth. When finally the Government pleader was called in to try and confuse the Christian witnesses, old Patras, of Khejuri, was called, and I trembled for the result, for, although he is a man for whom the grace of God has done much, he is a simple-minded man and no match for a wily pleader. I asked God to give him the right answers, and for over an hour he stood the fire like an old hero.

We cannot thank the joint magistrate sufficiently for the great care he bestowed upon the case, and for the kindness and consideration with which he has treated us all through.

A confirmation in a marquee.

The Bishop of Lucknow confirmed thirty-seven candidates in a marquee prepared under a grove of mango trees between Jeyi and Khejuri on January 25th, 1901. The Rev. G. Emmanuel, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in the spring of 1900, was engaged in village work.

The ladies residing at GHAZIABAD, Miss G. L. West and Miss E. M. Doyle, had the satisfaction of entering into occupation of a new Mission-house in November in lieu of being the tenants of an unaccommodating and somewhat grasping native landlord. The zenana work was very encouraging, but had the drawback that many of the women visited, being the wives of railway clerks, seldom stayed long in the place. The good seed it may well be hoped will spring up and bear fruit in other places. Nevertheless in Ghaziabad itself the number of pupils gradually increased and the interest in the Scripture lessons also seemed to grow. The past year was one of much sickness, and some of the Bible-women and teachers were among the sufferers. Miss West testifies gratefully to the readiness of those whose health remained good to undertake additional work in order to meet the strain. The city dispensary did good work, and its native qualified hospital assistant, Miss Ventura, succeeded in winning the esteem and confidence of the people. The dispensary opened at Mosuri in 1899 was closed, as it proved not to be a good centre for the work. At Dhum Dadu, a village eight miles from Ghaziabad but in the Bulandshahr district, the headman, named Narain Singh, wrote to the Rev. J. F. Pemberton, of Aligarh, a letter of which the following were the opening sentences :—

Letter from a village headman.

DEAR SIR,—For a long time I have desired that a girls' school should be opened in my village of Dhum, and to carry out this my wish I beg to ask you to be good enough to appoint a capable zenana teacher for our village, who in addition to Hindi teaching may also be able to teach stitching, &c., and who as a rule, as in all the Mission girls' schools for the improvement of good manners and godly life, may freely give religious instruction and teach our girls the Bible. For this work, as far as it is possible, I shall always be prepared to assist you.

The letter proceeded to offer a temporary house for the teacher and to build a better one, and promised if the teacher were sent to give some land "for the good of the school." Miss West offered to respond to the request, and Mr. Pemberton gladly consented to her doing so. She writes :—

A village school.

In July, Miss Jonathan (who was at home for the long vacation from the Lahore Medical College, and was helping me during Miss Doyle's four months' absence) and I paid our first visit; we were most warmly received. A little school had been started; there were ten children present, four of whom could read fairly well, the rest were beginners, but Narain Singh's great desire was to have the Scriptures taught both in the school and in the village. His wife, who had opened the school, is quite a native lady. I was much pleased with my visit, and promised to commence work there in October. On October 2nd I had a letter from him, reminding me of my promise. Since then I have, as far as possible, gone there once a week, and each succeeding visit gives me more pleasure. Now Narain Singh is anxious that a dispensary should be opened there one day a week, and also that the boys' school should be taken over by the Mission. I have just returned from there, and I am sure our friends at home would have been delighted to have heard the answers given by some of the children to the Bible questions, from the Creation to the Flood. I was much pleased to hear that they do not have school on Sunday, as they know that "God has commanded them to rest." As I was leaving all the children came as far as the public road to see me start. Narain Singh brought out a bedstead for me to sit upon, and he commenced catechizing the children as far as they had learnt, showing that they must talk over in their own homes what they were taught in school.

ANNFIELD, MUSSOURIE, AND DEHRA.

Annfield.

A prosperous Christian village.

The past year was an exceptionally prosperous one as regards temporal things for the Native Christians of ANNFIELD. Magnificent crops rewarded their labours, and the Rev. T. Carmichael says he has never seen them so well fed and clothed during the twelve years of his sojourn in their midst. They are as a body sober and industrious, and scarcely a family amongst them is encumbered with debt—a complete and most salutary change since the days Mr. Carmichael is able so sadly to recall. The manager of the Annfield Tea Estate, belonging to the Rajah of Nahan, who is the landlord of Annfield, complained to Mr. Carmichael that he could not get sufficient Chamar (i.e. low-caste heathen) labourers for his land, as so many of them are now engaged as servants by the Native Christians. Mr. Carmichael dates the temporal improvement from the time when prayer-meetings were regularly established in the village. Mrs. Carmichael instructs the women and girls. The church services are attended by some of the babus on neighbouring tea estates, and to those who could speak English Mr. Carmichael presented copies of Lord Northbrook's recently published book, The Teaching of Jesus Christ in His Own Words, which was gratefully acknowledged by some of them.

Chakrata.

Mr. T. Law was stationed at Chakrata. A pandit and a munshi and several men of the servant class asked for baptism. Mr. Law visited Jaunsari villages, and in one of them, at a mela, he had a large audience through the friendly intervention of the headman who had invited him to go. In the summer Mr. Law walked from Chakrata to Simla, a distance of 115 miles, and had opportunities of preaching to large numbers of villagers, where, so far as he could ascertain, the Gospel had not been heard before.

Mussourie.

The Rev. T. Russell (now at home) succeeded the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper in the pastoral charge of All Saints' Church, MUSSOURIE, in March, 1900, and was much encouraged by the good attendances at the services. A Sunday-school was commenced with a roll of fifty scholars; and weekly Bible-readings had an average attendance of twenty-five. The offertories amounted to Rs. 1,258, an increase of Rs. 416 on those of the previous year. The Rev. H. Bennett, who resided at Mussourie during the hot months of 1900, experienced some discomfort in June through a cyclone removing the iron roofing from his house in the middle of the night. His suffering no bodily injury he counts as another of his "wonderful escapes as a foreign missionary." He sought shelter with a friendly neighbour. His goods, of course, were considerably damaged. The little Native Congregation consists mainly of those belonging to the class of household servants, and Mr. Bennett is encouraged to think that, in the neighbourhood of Mussourie at all events, the feeling against Christian servants is diminishing, as applications for servants made to him by Europeans were more in number than he found it possible to respond to. While he held a Bible-class for the men of the congrégation, the ladies of the Z.B.M.M., to whose excellent work at Mussourie and Landour Mr. Bennett bears warm testimony, held one for the women. The Gospel was preached at various centres to the hill-men, and on one occasion Mr. Bennett saw a group of these men listening while one of their number read to them from a Hindi New Testament. He also refers to a Mohammedan shopkeeper in the main bazaar who gave proof that he had been carefully reading St. John's Gospel. While they were conversing a moulvie joined in the discussion, and produced from his pocket a sheet of paper on which he had copied passages from the same Gospel relating to the Holy Spirit, which he applied to Mohammed. One woman was baptized who had been two years under instruction, and after her baptism some other members of her family became catechumens.

"Wonderful escapes."

Demand for Christian servants.

The New Testament widely read.

Dehra had a resident European missionary during the cold months only of 1899–1900, when the Rev. H. Bennett lived there. The Sunday services were held under the verandah of a Christian's house until the congregation outgrew the accommodation, and a large room was then rented. The neighbouring villages accord a hearty welcome to the evangelists who visit them, and listen with apparent interest to the Gospel. In Arcadia, six miles distant, there are about a hundred Christians.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA.

The death of the Rev. C. S. Thompson has been referred to above (see page 230). The Rev. and Mrs. A. Outram came home in October, 1900, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Fryer in February, 1901. Miss A. H. R. Bull, on her return to the Mission after furlough, was assigned by the Committee to Kherwara; and she sailed in January, 1901.

Ordinations. The Bishop of Lucknow admitted Babu Phailbus, of the Gond Mission, to Deacons' Orders at Allahabad on March 3rd, 1901. Babu Phailbus is the first Gond to be admitted to the sacred ministry.

Proposed Mission in Rewah. The Committee are hopeful at an early date to be able to open a Medical Mission in the Native State of Rewah, which lies to the east of the railway line between Allahabad and Jabalpur. A large contribution by an anonymous friend in connexion with the Centenary is available for this purpose, and Dr. W. H. Lowman, who was accepted for training in 1895, and who obtained one of the Worsley Scholarships on condition that he agreed to work as a medical missionary in India, has been assigned to commence this work.

JABALPUR.

Jabalpur. Upon the Rev. J. A. F. Warren coming home at the beginning of 1900 he was succeeded in the charge of the work at JABALPUR by the Rev. E. A. Hensley, just returned from furlough. The city has a population of 80,000. Mr. Hensley gives his impression of the people as compared with those in Lucknow, where he laboured before taking furlough :—

People of North-West and Central Provinces compared. The people strike one as being less educated and civilized than those in the N.-W. Provinces. There is more foolish behaviour in the crowds which attend our public preaching, a less number seem capable of reading, and there seems little thirst for knowledge. It is not an uncommon thing to find the street boys clapping their hands in derision and shouting when we leave our preaching-place, conduct which I rarely or never saw in Lucknow when stationed there. The class of people that one meets with in the streets seems lower than the corresponding class in Lucknow.

The Congregation, numbering 170, is still without a native pastor, and Mr. Hensley had perforce to do his best to supply the place of one. St. Luke's Church—a "beautiful little edifice" Mr. Hensley calls it—is in the centre of the city. The pulpit, a recent gift from a member of the Friends' Mission in memory of his sister early called to her rest, was dedicated and used for the first time on Christmas Day, 1900. Mrs. Hensley superintends the Sunday-school for the children of the congregation, which has a roll of 34; she also conducts a women's Bible-class and a Mothers' Meeting, while the senior catechist has a class for men. A weekly Bible-reading is varied once a month by a missionary meeting. A day-school for Christian children was opened during the year. But the strongest feature of the work at Jabalpur is the Mission Schools, those, namely, for non-Christians. These are nine in number, with 1,300 boys. Mr. Hensley well says :—

Mission Schools.

Most of the Government officers old Mission school pupils.

Think of what this means! By far the majority of all the men in Government offices have passed through our schools, and if you were to go into the district you would meet many in district offices who have done the same; and this means that all these men have been taught the Word of God and are quite conversant with the truths of Christianity.

The High School has 550 boys, and is very popular for the education it bestows. Mr. Hensley speaks highly of the staff of masters, but regrets that there are not more Christians among them. In athletics this school far outrivals all other schools and colleges in the district, and has for three years in succession carried off the challenge shield for inter-school athletic sports. The Bible is daily taught in the school, and a Sunday-school of some 300 boys is conducted by a staff of seven voluntary workers. Mr. Hensley has also a Sunday Bible-class of non-Christian students, with an average attendance of forty. The Middle School has 200 boys, and the remaining 550 (out of the 1,300) are divided among the seven branch schools. The baptism of two adults rewarded the Evangelistic Work. They were both widows, one apparently being an inmate of a Women's Home which Mrs. Hensley opened in the Mission compound for widows and deserted wives, of whom the famine produced a good number. The other convert was the sister of a catechist, a Brahman before his conversion. Through her brother's influence she had long wished to become a Christian, and her husband's death from a snake bite made it possible for her to avow publicly her convictions. Mr. Hensley started duster weaving on a small scale as a means of providing work for converts.

Women's Home.

The Rev. R. Hack was out itinerating from November, 1899, till the following March in the Native States of Maihar and Nagode, about halfway between Jabalpur and Allahabad. He and his four Hindustani brethren visited some 300 villages, and about 16,500 people heard the Gospel. In the town of Maihar they had a respectful hearing. Europeans are rarely seen in these States, and Mr. Hensley had often as many as 300 listening to his preaching. A very bitter spirit was prevalent among the more ignorant of the people against their own gods on account of the scarcity, while the educated were disposed to throw the blame on Government. Mr. Hack quotes some of the remarks that were made to him :—

Itinerating in Native States.

"We have passed our lives in worshipping these gods," said one, "and now we are allowed to die of hunger; such gods are only fit to be thrown into the fire." "Since when have you left off worshipping your gods?" is a very frequent question we ask; the reply mostly is, "Since last famine, when our gods did nothing to help us." A Brahman seemed to be in this dilemma: "We believe in the one true God," said he; "but see how He is troubling us, and if we do as you bid us our relations and neighbours will trouble us, so why increase our sorrows?"

"Our gods did nothing to help us."

Instances of the superstition and ignorance of both the people and their religious teachers were met with on all sides. Mr. Hack mentions the following:—

Ignorant Brahman priests.

Near to the city (Maihar) is a curious steep, conical hill about 1,600 feet high, surmounted by a very holy temple. To approach this a massive stone staircase has been built. This was certainly the first time I have climbed stairs 1,600 feet high, and next day I was so stiff that I could scarcely walk, which caused some good-natured jokes from the people. This temple seemed a perfect nest of Brahmans and idols. Goats are sacrificed daily; a large stone trough catches the blood and conducts it into the earth. Two innocent little kids were contentedly eating grass and awaiting someone with enough sins and money to require them. The Brahmans were very uncouth and ignorant men. They wanted to decorate me with a garland of flowers, offered cocoanut and sweetmeats, all of which had been offered to the idols, and to show great honour (I am told) offered some sacred oil in a tiny spoon for me to swallow. All these were, of course, respectfully declined and reasons given which seemed to surprise them. All accepted Gospels and tracts, which I trust have been read. On the outskirts of the city are the graves of two Europeans who died in the Rajah's service. Tombs of Hindi pattern have been erected over them, but in the place where the egg-shaped symbol of the god Siva is usually placed are marble crosses. In front of these crosses were tiny incense bowls, showing that incense had been offered to the cross, possibly under the impression that it was some new or unknown god.

Incense offered before a cross.

Preaching from a temple platform.

At Unchehra, the old capital of Nagode State, the people crowded round them as they preached and sang, and the Brahman priest invited them to sit on the stone platform of his temple, where their words were occasionally interrupted by the clanging of the temple bell. All their books were quickly sold. A Brahman guru, or religious teacher, was met with on this tour to whom Mr. Hack had given some Gospels and tracts three years before. He told him that the Gospels had been read by many a travelling pilgrim, and that some of them had begged so hard for the books that he had gradually given them all away. Mr. Hack says:—

Gospels read by pilgrims.

How to worship the true God.

After our preaching we are often asked how the worship of the true God is to be performed. The answer is usually based upon our Lord's directions—"When ye pray, say, Our Father," &c., and "They that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." One hearer was so anxious to remember this that he ran off to his house to fetch pen and paper in order to write down our words. Pointing to the idols outside his house, he said before all his neighbours, "Henceforth I shall not worship these, but only the one true God."

Katni-Murwara.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Holloway (of the Victoria C.M. Association), as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, went in the autumn of 1899 to reside at Katni-Murwara, the one out-station of Jabalpur. The town has about 5,000 inhabitants, and the district about 500,000, on an area of 800 square miles. It is at the junction of three important railway lines. There are about twenty Native Christians in Katni. Mr. and Mrs. Holloway spent three months of the winter 1899–1900 in camp, visiting eighty-one villages, most of which had never before heard the Gospel. Mrs. Holloway was the first European lady that many of the villagers had ever seen, and she was specially welcomed and invited to go again. A Hindu devotee, hearing about Jesus as the only Saviour, said that was what he was seeking for. He was on pilgrimage to a noted shrine, but he agreed to give up his ascetic life and to work for his living. Mr. Holloway soon afterwards engaged him as his servant, and he proved faithful and an earnest follower of Christ.

A devotee becomes a follower of Christ.

MANDLA, MARPHA, AND PATPARA (GOND MISSION).

Considerable scarcity was experienced in the Gond country during the past year, and much effort was called for on the part of the Government and the missionaries to relieve distress. Huge granaries were built, grain was imported from Bengal, and work was found for men, women, and children who were in need.

Mandla.

MANDLA was visited from time to time, but no European missionary was resident there during the year under review. The catechist, Mr. John Moses, conducted Hindi services when not itinerating. The Rev. E. P. Herbert was transferred in the spring of 1900 from MARPHA to Kherwara, on the death of the Rev. C. S. Thompson. Mr. E. Walker suffered from a dangerous attack of ptomaine poisoning, which necessitated first his removal to Jabalpur, and then his being sent to Australia. The Rev. H. J. Molony succeeded Mr. Herbert in the charge of the work. He spent about one-third of the year at Marpha, and for three months he had the companionship and help of the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, of Allahabad. About forty adults were under instruction in catechumens' classes, and Mr. Molony baptized twelve men and five women in August. For six months from 350 to 400 people were on relief work, road and tank making being the chief occupations. The Government "kitchen" at Marpha, in which from 100 to 200 children were fed daily, was managed by the Mission. About 300 families also were aided with grants of cloth and blankets; while about 700 families in thirty villages were helped from a liberal gift of maize sent from America.

Marpha.

Patpara.

For part of the year Mr. Molony was at PATPARA, where Mr. and Mrs. J. Fryer (now at home) and Messrs. L. Ashby and E. Peters were for the greater part of the year. Here also relief work and children's "kitchens" were opened, some 300 adults being employed and about 200 adults and children fed twice daily. In the Orphanage there were ninety-one boys and sixty-two girls. Twenty-eight boys and seventeen girls were baptized after careful preparation; over two-thirds of the boys and practically all the girls are now Christians. Mr. Fryer says of these children, who were received into the Orphanage at the beginning of the 1896–97 famine :—

Orphanage.

Industrial training.

In 1896 they were dirty, starving, and ignorant, to-day many of them can read, they take pride in keeping themselves clean, and they do try to be truthful, and I am sure many of them will, by God's blessing, become bright men and women, serving the Lord. Two of our orphans have been set up as farmers for themselves. Cattle and seed have been given them, and they sowed their own fields this year, and have reaped an excellent crop. All our orphans will not be farmers. Some, we trust, will in time be catechists and schoolmasters, others are learning carpentry, some are at the forge making agricultural implements, others are learning brickmaking, whilst our lame or deformed orphans are learning tailoring; so you see we have developed into quite an Industrial Mission.

Leper Asylum.

The Leper Asylum was transferred to new and more commodious and substantial buildings, provided by the Jubilee contributions of the Missionary Pence Association. Four lepers were baptized in the autumn, while one woman was excommunicated for a time. At the Hospital 1,237 patients were treated. The general tone of the little Christian Congregation at Patpara is, Mr. Molony says, most healthy. The Bishop of Lucknow confirmed nineteen male and twenty-six female candidates on March 3rd, 1900. Sixty received the Holy Communion on the following Sunday. At Khajri and Muria Rachka there are rest-houses to assist the journey to and from Marpha, and also schools, and a man with his wife and child were baptized from a village about a mile distant from the former place, the first fruits of that immediate neighbourhood. There are some earnest inquirers also at Muria Rachka. The best boys in the school at Diuari, which has hitherto been the chief school in the Gond Mission, were removed to Patpara, where they could enjoy European supervision. Mr. Molony made three visits to that part of the district which approaches the Rewah border, about thirty miles from Marpha.

Fifteen baptized in a stream.

His first visit was in March, 1900, in company with Mr. Herbert, when the latter baptized fifteen persons in a stream near Singpur, most of them relatives of Pachlu, the solitary Christian there since 1895. This man is the kotwal, or village constable, and he had instructed the converts. It was from this neighbourhood also that many of the converts baptized at Marpha in August came.

New station near Rewah border.

Messrs. Ashby and Peters occupied Singpur in November, and they found great willingness to hear the Gospel, but less readiness to abandon sinful habits. Mr. Ashby expresses a fear that motives of worldly gain may have something to do with the spirit of inquiry which manifests itself. He and his companion are on their guard against lending any encouragement to the supposition that the profession of Christianity is a secure step towards Mission service. The famine relief work has served to make the people friendly, and the fact that very few Hindus and Mohammedans are found in the neighbourhood is doubtless an additional reason why prejudice is absent.

Mr. Molony makes the following general remarks on the work among the Gonds :—

The progress is solid.

On my return to the Mission a year ago the growth of the Christian Church (there were 150 converts on the register in 1897, now there are 500) was manifest, but I doubted the solidity of the work. A year's moving about among the people has dispelled my apprehensions. The Christians are still simple and self-reliant, the standard of intelligence is decidedly higher, Sunday is better observed, social opinion is more healthy and formed, and the year has been passed almost without any cases of drunkenness or immorality. I rejoice with all my heart at the grace of God which is manifested. Especially do I delight to record that our native assistants have worked well and conscientiously through the year. Of the 119 baptisms only one man (besides children at Patpara) has been a Gond; the converts have been almost entirely from two low castes of Hindus—Pankas and Dholiyas (weavers and basket-makers). These people have not the natural simplicity and robustness of the Gond, but they have much more intelligence. They are following the lead set, and the Gonds for the time seem to be less inclined to accompany them. I see, however, no inclination to separation within the Church. The increase of intelligence is very welcome, the new classes, though not naturally so simple, are very amenable under correction, and show much more power of spreading the Truth among their neighbours. They are progressive, the Gonds are conservative; they are active, the Gonds are dull, very dull and very obstinate, though very dear.

Converts nearly all Hindus.

KHERWARA (BHĪL MISSION).

Last year's Annual Report made reference to the severe famine among the Bhīls in the winter of 1899–1900, and to the relief measures which the missionaries at Kherwara, the Rev. C. S. Thompson and the Rev. and Mrs. A. Outram, commenced. A footnote on page 245 also mentioned the death from cholera of Mr. Thompson. The Society's Mission covers, roughly speaking, a triangular area, the sides of which are about fifty miles in length. It is in the Native States of Udaipur, Idar, and Vijenagar. At the time when the famine commenced, the Mission had, in addition to the head station at Kherwara, ten out-stations, at each of which was a school; three of these were in the State of Udaipur, and seven in the states of Idar and Vijenagar, on the Gujerat side of the district. It was decided in February, in conference with the Rev. C. H. Gill, who then visited the Mission, to divide the district into two divisions, Mr. Thompson taking the Gujerat and Mr. Outram the Kherwara side. It will be convenient to review the year's work, which was mainly a work of famine relief, in these districts separately.

Kherwara.

In the northern division of the district, of which KHERWARA was the chief centre, the difficulties of transport were enormous. The animals had to be obtained from other districts to bring the grain from the railway station at Udaipur, a distance of fifty miles, and when obtained many of them died through lack of water and fodder en route. Moreover, every bag of grain had to be escorted all the way by armed Sepoys, to prevent its being looted by the many bands of Bhīls who infested the country.

Orphanage. At Kherwara the Orphanage was partly occupied by the orphans sent from the district, and the rest was used by the political superintendent, Colonel Bignell, as a poor-house, where he daily fed a large number of Bhīls from the immediate neighbourhood. Of the orphans Mr. Outram says :—

Mortality among children. In most cases the poor children were too weak to walk, and so were carried in large baskets on men's heads. Bhīls invariably walk in single file, and as they approached they formed a semicircle in front of the bungalow, and each one deposited his basket at his feet; then gradually a little Bhīl uncurled and sat up in each basket. Poor little things, they were generally too neglected and too emaciated to be saved; many revived for a time, and appeared to be getting on well, but had too little stamina to resist small-pox, cholera, or scurvy, which successively ravaged the country—dysentery was always with us. But more fatal than even these was the advent of the rains. Up to July our average was about 130, but after the arrival of the rains, between July 15th and August 15th, of 170 orphans whose names were on our roll only 29 remained at the latter date; from four to six died in a night, and 30 ran back to the villages. Since then the average has been about 50. Perhaps I may state here that I have not allowed a single Bhīl child to be sent out of the Bhīl country, though we received many kind offers of support in distant orphanages for our children. The Bhīl population has been so appallingly reduced during the past year that all can readily understand the absolute necessity of keeping the few children who remain in their own country.

Mrs. Outram attended to these orphans and also to the Dispensary, devoting two hours daily in the early morning to dispensing medicine. Upon her, moreover, devolved the arrangements for the dispatch and the escort of grain to the out-stations, as it would not have been prudent to send more than a few days' supply at one time. Mr. Outram's time was occupied in daily visits to the out-stations and directing the work of distributing the food. The three out-stations were at Kagdar, Ubri, and Mandwa. The schools were converted into "kitchens," and three other similar out-stations were opened early in the spring, the distances being from three miles and a-half to sixteen miles distant from Kherwara. At Kagdar the distress was appalling, 1,000 starving men, women, and children presenting themselves on the occasions of Mr. Outram's visits, when the grain available was insufficient to feed one-third of them. Through the kind co-operation of the Maharajah of Idar with Mr. Outram grain was procured, and he shortly had 3,500 in daily receipt of relief. The arrangements for distribution were also attended with no little difficulty where the distress was universal.

Cholera outbreak. In May, a terrible outbreak of cholera added gravely to the difficulties. It was this visitation which proved fatal to the late

Mr. Thompson, and Mr. Outram refers to the terrible strain upon his own strength and nerves at this time :—

Cholera appeared at our Kagdar centre on the afternoon of May 18th. The following morning at 4.30 I rode there, and spent the whole day till 4 p.m. trying to alleviate the agonies of over seventy cholera-stricken Bhils, nine of whom died in my presence. Then back to Kherwara, only in time to receive an urgent message by runners from Mr. Thompson to say that he was dangerously ill from cholera, and was being carried in to Kherwara on a bed. After dinner I rode off, and at 1.30 in the early morning met the bearers carrying poor Mr. Thompson's body, and then learned that he had passed away before noon, lying on the bed under the shade of a tree. At once a grave was prepared, and as day broke I laid the worn-out, weary body to rest. He died, as he probably would have wished, with and for the Bhils. Then back to Kherwara, only to learn that cholera had broken out in our own compound among the orphans and servants. This wave of cholera raged with terrible severity during the last fortnight in May (at Kagdar alone eighty children died of it in four days), and then abated as suddenly as it had appeared.

Burial of Mr. Thompson.

Before hearing of Mr. Thompson's death, the Rev. Foss Westcott, of the S.P.G. Mission at Cawnpore, one of the sons of the Bishop of Durham, wrote offering his personal help during his six weeks' holidays, and he arrived at Kherwara on June 6th. His arrival was most opportune, and was most gratefully appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Outram. He relieved the latter of the dispensary and helped greatly in the necessary correspondence and keeping accounts, while he took entire charge of two of the out-stations, Kagdar and Ubri. His unfailing cheerfulness was an unspeakable strength and comfort to the overstrained workers. Mr. Westcott wrote, after returning to Cawnpore :—

The Rev. Foss Westcott offers personal help.

One thing the people have learnt, and constantly repeat, that the Mission has cared for and is caring for them in their distress. Their goodwill has been gained, and when, with more workers and the present distress past, evangelistic work is carried on with renewed vigour, I believe, in God's goodness, the turning-point in the Mission history may come. Meanwhile our duty is clear, to help to the uttermost those who are engaged in the work of relief, remembering that the function of the missionaries among the Bhils is not merely, as with those in British territory, to "supplement the work of Government," but largely to do the very initial work of saving life.

The people's goodwill gained.

When the rains, three weeks overdue, at last came, as the cattle were dead, the people could only dig up the ground with bamboo sticks. Then the work of distributing the seed-grain (maize) occupied the missionaries' time. Mr. Outram says of this :—

Distributing seed-grain.

My wife and I had to distribute with our own hands nearly thirty tons of seed and about twelve tons of eating grain with it, for we could trust no Native to honestly and equally distribute the seed, which to the Bhils was more valuable than gold, as there was no other maize seed-grain in the country.

In August the number in receipt of relief had fallen from 3,500 to about 2,000. Then the prolonged strain took effect, and Mr. and Mrs. Outram broke down; as he says, they were "only just carried out of the country in time." They left Kherwara hurriedly on August 17th, handing over charge of the work to the Rev. J. W. Goodwin, who had arrived the previous afternoon, sent by the Allahabad Corresponding Committee. Mr. George Tyndale-Biscoe, brother of the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, arrived at the same time as a volunteer helper. Mrs. Hutton Dawson, wife of Major Hutton Dawson, in command of the Meywar Bhīl Corps, took over the charge of the Orphanage for several weeks until relieved by Miss Davies and Miss Richardson, of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission. These were in turn relieved in February, 1901, by Miss A. H. R. Bull.

Baulia.

In the southern portion of the district, that falling within the States of Idar and Vijenagar, BAULIA is the chief centre. The late Mr. Thompson wrote in April:—

The jungle deserted.

> The people have been carried off in such large numbers that one can go for miles through the jungles without meeting a single soul. Corpses and skeletons are lying about in all directions. The mortality has been very great among the little children and old people. The Bhils have suffered so much that the starving crowds who come to our relief centres seem to have lost every bit of feeling, except the intense craving for food.

After Mr. Thompson's death the Allahabad Corresponding Committee invited the Rev. E. P. Herbert to resume for a time the leadership of the Bhīl Mission, which he had held for three years during Mr. Thompson's furlough; and they also accepted an offer of Mr. J. C. Harrison, the acting leader of the Lucknow Associated Evangelists, to render assistance among the Bhīls for four months. Mr. Herbert reached Baulia, the place where Mr. Thompson contracted cholera, on June 9th, and Mr. Harrison joined him soon after. On July 22nd two other helpers were welcomed, volunteers from the Punjab Mission, namely, Dr. A. H. Browne, of Amritsar, and the Rev. E. Rhodes, of Kangra. Dr. Browne wrote a fortnight later that 6,400 were being fed daily: 700 at Lusaria, 1,100 at Baulia, 1,800 at Bilaria, 1,300 at Chitaria, 1,000 at Ghoradar, and 500 at Sarsan, involving with the native workers the provision of 14,200 meals daily. The rain had then begun to fall, but the immediate effect of this long-desired blessing was to quadruple the death-rate, the poor sufferers having no clothes for the most part to protect them from the cold and damp. Even at Bilaria, where the European missionaries resided, from eighteen to twenty-five persons were at that time dying every day. Regarding his little extemporized hospital at the place Dr. Browne wrote:—

An extemporized hospital.

> My hospital is a little shed (bought from a Native) with a tile roof, three sides partially closed with bamboo matting covered with a layer of mud to lessen the draughts, and one side is quite open. The place is large enough for about twelve or fourteen adults, and I rarely have less than seventy in it, although of these perhaps thirty are children. Very many others ought to be in it, but are not, for want of accommodation; and, added to other diseases, I have now lung complaints to treat, but there is no place in which to shelter the patients. The hospital patients are like the other people as regards paucity of clothing, &c., but we have managed to put empty grain-sacks under the children, and some of them are also partially covered with old sacks. The rest lie on the bare ground with what clothes or rags they possess.

Collapse of the workers.

Dr. Browne, on his arrival, found Mr. Harrison in a state of collapse from "overwork and the lack of proper food" in the midst of the awful surroundings above faintly depicted. A month later he was sent to Agra and thence to the hills. Mr. Herbert stuck manfully to his post though suffering from persistent illness and with nerves greatly shattered, until the autumn, when he went for a short sea voyage. Dr. Browne had an attack of dysentery within a month of his arrival, and Mrs. Browne, who accompanied her husband from the Punjab, reached no further than Ahmedabad, where she had an attack of malarial fever. But other helpers were led in God's providence to volunteer their services in this time of need. The Rev. A. E. Day, of Peshawar, who had offered to assist at an earlier date but was hindered; Dr. Orbison, a "chance" visitor from Lahore; Mr. Wilson, an Indian medical assistant at the Amritsar Medical Mission; and a Christian soldier, Sergeant J. S. McArthur, of the King's Own Borderers, Cawnpore, obtained leave from his regiment and came to take part in the conflict with hunger and disease. A little later, assistance from the Mansion House Fund enabled the workers to supply about 250 head of plough cattle to cultivators, and seed-grain was distributed.

In November, the Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett, of Lucknow, arrived, their offer of service having been made when the famine was at its height. They were appointed to this field for one year by the Allahabad Corresponding Committee. Mr. Birkett wrote a few months after reaching Baulia that the people were exceedingly grateful for the help given them, and the shyness of former days had quite disappeared. But not one of the Christian workers, who included several Natives from the Central Provinces, could speak their language. Prema, one of Mr. Thompson's converts, was the only Christian who could speak to them. Consequently, the only teachers available for the schools at Baulia, Lusaria, Chitaria, Ghoradar, Sarsan, and Patia were Heathen. Mr. Birkett writes:—

Only one Christian acquainted with the Bhil language.

> The Christian teaching consists of a simple primary catechism, the first question in which is "Who made you?" and the answer, "God," and also of the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, which are all learnt by heart. The teachers are all Heathen, but there is so little bigotry or prejudice that on our first Sunday, when Prema conducted the service, the Bhili teachers and monitors all joined in the prayers and Creed, while we Christians had to remain silent, not knowing Gujerati. The schools are all taught in Gujerati, of which Bhili is a dialect.

"Non-Christians join in prayers and Creed, and we Christians had to remain silent"

A number of boy orphans were drafted to Clarkabad in the Punjab; and Miss Hewlett, of the C.E.Z.M.S., Amritsar, undertook the care of a number of orphan girls. Seventeen children were in an Orphanage at Baulia in January, 1901.

Help from many quarters.

Much grateful help was rendered from many quarters, in addition to the voluntary services, without which no temporal relief could have been made effectual. Funds and other supplies came from all directions, England and India, America and Australia. The Indian Famine Fund in the hands of the Committee gave considerable help to meet the need. A Famine Relief Committee, connected with the New York Christian Herald, sent 100 tons of American maize and 1,000 blankets. Another Indian Famine Relief Committee in America sent Rs. 3,000. The Baptist Missionary Society sent Rs. 1,300. The Treasurer of the Friends' Foreign Mission Association gave Rs. 1,000, though there was famine in the district worked by that Association. The Rev. J. M. Alexander, of Fatehpur, sent Rs. 1,000 from famine funds at his disposal. The readers of the Christian and of the Indian Witness, the Church Army, and the Indian Sunday-school Union, all gave substantial help. And so did numerous individual donors: the Metropolitan of India, the Bishops of Lucknow and Bombay, Dr. Valentine, of Agra, and many others, including friends of the Rev. A. Outram, sent contributions.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Multan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Kashmir, 1863; Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Pind Dadan Khan, 1876; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; Abbotabad and Simla, 1899. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the late Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. The Rev. G. M. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where a Mission to the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a Medical Mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880, and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. Macleod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hydrabad (1856), and more recently (1887) at Sukkur, on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by Dr. H. J. Matthew; and he in 1899 by the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission.

The new Trans-Indus Province.

THE Indian Government has passed two important measures affecting the Punjab during the past year. One relates to the Administrative control of the Trans-Indus region, the other effects a change in the law regarding the alienation of land. The all-important question of the frontier policy has in the past been dealt with through the intermediary of the Punjab. It has now been resolved to create a separate province, to include the Trans-Indus districts as far south as Dera Ismail Khan, that is, the districts of Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu, Dera Ismail Khan, Dir, Swat, Chitral, Khaibar, Kurram, Tochi, and Wana. This province is to be placed under a Chief Commissioner, resident at Peshawar, aided by a Revenue Commissioner and a Judicial Commissioner. The Punjab will be reduced by this separation by only one-fourteenth of its area, one-fifteenth of its revenue, and one-eighteenth of its population.

Bill affecting alienation of land.

The Bill affecting the alienation of land was passed by the Legislative Council in October, 1900. Its object was to prevent, so far as possible, the expropriation by the money-lenders of the small landowners of the Punjab, the class which furnishes the best material to the native army, and thus to save it from becoming landless and discontented and a source of political and economical danger. Experience proves that the people, owing to their improvidence and extravagance, part too readily with their ancestral holdings, and the Bill accordingly provides that permanent alienation of land shall only take place among the members of the agricultural tribes, while temporary alienations and leases shall be limited to a period of twenty years. Lord Curzon, in closing the discussion in the Council, expressed his view as to the effects of the Bill in the following words:—

In the interests of the agricultural classes.

> The monied classes and the nouveaux riches will still have their opportunity of obtaining land, but not on such easy terms as in the past. The agricultural tribesmen will not all in a moment be converted to frugal and provident habits, but opportunities and temptations to borrowing will, it is hoped, be less. The weakling and the spendthrift will still go under and his possessions pass to his stronger brethren; but the transfer will be more frequently to men of his own tribe or tribal groups, and less frequently to outsiders who are not connected either with the traditions or traditional occupation of the province. The transition will not be abrupt or sensational. It will be enough if, though gradual, it is sure. I shall myself watch the venture with the warmest sympathy and interest, not merely because I was the head of the Government at the time the Bill passed, nor because I know it has been framed with the most conscientious regard to the public interest, but because it is the first serious step in a movement which is designed to free the agricultural classes of this country, the bone and sinew of our strength, from the incubus which is slowly but steadily wearing them down.

Diocesan Conference.

The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir W. Mackworth Young, opened the proceedings of the Lahore Diocesan Conference, which commenced its sessions on November 7th, 1900. He proposed a Resolution in memory of Bishop Matthew, which the Conference adopted standing. Bishop Lefroy's visitation preceded the Conference, on the 6th; his primary charge dealt largely with the question of the Church's organic unity, comprising both Natives and foreigners within one fold.

Bishop Lefroy engages in public discussion in Urdu language.

Somewhat earlier in the year the Bishop engaged at Lahore in several public discussions with learned Mohammedans in the Urdu language, the first instance, probably, of a Christian bishop entering such an arena. Bishop French often did so before he accepted the care and responsibilities of the episcopate, but it is doubtful whether any other bishops than he and Dr. Lefroy have possessed the double qualification of knowing both Urdu and the Koran well enough to engage successfully in this branch of the missionary warfare. The title of one of Bishop Lefroy's addresses was "Zinda Rasûl," or "the Living Prophet," and it created a deep impression. The Bishop held weekly Bible-readings on the Epistle to the Hebrews while on his summer visit to Simla, which were very greatly valued. So also was an "At Home," to which he invited all missionaries staying at Simla, and which some fifty of all denominations attended. But his hearty sympathy with every good work making for the promotion of spirituality and the extension of Christ's Kingdom is not only expressed on special occasions, it is always in evidence. To missionaries needing rest his house is ever open, and not a few of the Society's missionaries have availed themselves in the past year of his kindness and returned to their work stimulated and refreshed.

Help rendered to Bhīl famine sufferers.

Nor were the Bishop's interest and sympathies limited by the boundaries of his diocese. The reports of the sufferings of the Bhīls of Rajputana and Gujerat from famine and cholera (see supra, pages 265 to 270) prompted him to take active steps to provide help. He wrote to the Lieutenant-Governor on the question of a fund being raised, and he took the chair at a meeting at Amritsar on May 30th, when a committee of missionaries was formed to receive and transmit gifts of money, to make inquiries regarding the reception of Bhīl orphans into Punjab institutions, and to receive offers of personal service. This committee did excellent work in disseminating information and raising supplies. The Punjab Mission rendered still more valuable assistance by lending the services of three of its missionaries—the Revs. A. E. Day and E. Rhodes, and Dr. A. H. Browne—from among several who volunteered.

Memoir of Irene Petrie.

A saying of Bishop French has been often quoted, that "one death in the Mission-field is worth six lives at home"; and if the death and the antecedent devotion be suitably and inspiringly recorded, and the measure of worth be the degree of influence exercised directly upon Christians and through them indirectly on the world, there is no doubt as to the truth of the saying, and Bishop French's death was a striking example of it. The hope may be confidently entertained that it will prove true also in the case of that much younger aspirant to the Master's "Well done," Miss Irene Petrie, through the striking volume in which her sister, Mrs. Ashley Carus Wilson, B.A., has enshrined her memory—Irene Petrie, Missionary to Kashmir, published in 1900 by Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton. Her death occurred in 1897.

Death of Rev. Robert Clark.

But the past year has been peculiarly one of inspiring deaths in the Punjab. Robert Clark, the veteran of fifty years and the father of the Mission, died on May 16th, as mentioned in a footnote in last year's Annual Report (page 252). He was born at Harmston, in Lincolnshire, of which place his father, the Rev. Henry Clark, was Vicar. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduated 28th Wrangler in 1850. That same year he offered to, and was accepted by, the Society, and in 1851, August 29th, he sailed viâ the Cape for India and reached Amritsar on February 14th, 1852. With the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick, who had preceded him by a few weeks, he commenced Mission work in the newly-conquered land of the Punjab, and for only a few months short of half a century he was spared to labour in the same field and to witness the fruits of his own and others' toils. He was the pioneer, with Dr. Pfander, at Peshawar, and he commenced the work in Kashmir, so that to Punjabis, Afghans, and Kashmiris alike he was the first missionary of the Gospel. The Lahore Divinity College had him as one of its founders with Dr. French. Education, both higher and primary, and women's work in schools, zenanas, hospitals, and Punjab villages found in him their firmest friend, organizer, and helper. Medical Missions in the Punjab in like manner owe their inception to his efforts. He was the first Chairman of the Punjab Native Church Council. He was the first Secretary of the Punjab Corresponding Committee formed in 1878, and he was also Secretary in the Mission for the I.F.N.S. and subsequently the C.E.Z.M.S. He took the keenest interest in unevangelized Central Asia, and he rejoiced to see the doors to those closed lands occupied in succession by medical missionaries.

His history of the Punjab and Sindh Missions.

He retired from active work in 1897, and in the quiet of his last months he revised and partly re-wrote his book, The Punjab and Sindh Missions of the C.M.S. Dr. Henry Martyn Clark, of this Mission, was his adopted son, whose companionship during the last eighteen years of his life was a source of much consolation and strength. He had the joy also of hearing of his youngest son's acceptance as a C.M.S. missionary a few weeks before his death (see supra, page 205). His decease took place at Kasauli, a hill station, and his remains were conveyed to Amritsar and interred on May 17th in the Native Christian cemetery, in accordance with a wish he had himself expressed. One of his own converts who passed within the veil soon after him, the Rev. Imad-ud-din, thus beautifully and truthfully summed up his character :—

"A lion-hearted, valiant man."

He was a lion-hearted, valiant man, and the reason I discovered was this, that his faith was large and he trusted God and His promises with his whole heart. In his sermons and in his talks in the quiet of his own study the teaching that he gave was ever this: Trust God more and more. He loved and helped all, and never from his mouth did I hear disparagement of another, and if any ever complained to him concerning another he used to say, "Walk thou thyself in love." His patience was marvellous. In the midst of opposition, distress, and strife, his eye was ever fixed on God, and with one or two quiet words he would at once quench the fire, which had leaped into a flame. He loved us Native Christians with a very great love, and he spent all his life for our welfare, and the things that I write are well known to all and are as I have written them. Nay, there be more which my pen has not recorded. Often did he say to me, "I greatly love the people of this country, and so I always go to their church, and I desire that after death my bones may be laid by theirs, that at the coming of the Lord Christ I and the Native Christians may rise together."

"He loved us Native Christians."

The contrast between the Punjab in 1852 and in 1900 in relation to Christ's Kingdom was well expressed by an anonymous writer in the Punjab Mission News :—

As we looked on the hundreds upon hundreds of Christians who, on May 17th, 1900, helped to lay the beloved leader to rest, representatives of thousands more, we saw how the little one had indeed become a thousand, and the weak a strong nation. The solitary, unknown man of 1852, the cautious, sagacious worker, the master mind, and the honoured head of a strong people and many organizations which now possess the land for Christ, and the great deliverance God has wrought by him, passed before us. As we sorrowed with a great sorrow, our sorrow was turned into joy, for were not the sorrowers but the earnest of mighty victory, the glory which ushers in the dawning of the morn?

Death of Rev. Imad-ud-din.

The Rev. Imad-ud-din died only three months after his spiritual father; indeed, the tribute to his beloved leader and friend, from a translation of which a brief extract is quoted above, was the final labour of his pen. He was born in the city of Panipat, of which place his father was an honoured citizen. He was a lineal descendant of a famous saint, Qutab Jamal of Hansi, through whom the family line goes in direct ascent to Mushzad, one of the sons of the Sassanian King Nausherwan of Persia, celebrated as "Nausherwan the Just." This Mushzad was a Christian, and it was a favourite reply of Imad-ud-din, when reproached for abandoning the faith of his fathers, to say, "Nay, verily, we have but returned from wandering in error to the faith of our father, for at the head of our family there stands a Christian, and by God's grace a good Christian too." He became, when a young man, a disciple of the famous Moulvie Rahmat Ullah of Agra, a consistently bitter enemy of the British Government, by whom a price was placed on his head about the time of the Mutiny. He fled to Constantinople, where he died. Before the Mutiny this Moulvie and three other champions of Islam, including his disciples, Sufdar Ali and Imad-ud-din, engaged at Agra in controversy with Dr. Pfander and Mr. French. They were unconvinced then, but three of the four became eventually followers of Christ. Imad-ud-din was baptized by Robert Clark on April 29th, 1866. One of the missionaries wrote of him:—

Descended from a Christian ancestor.

When he was specially chosen to be an Extra Assistant Commissioner, and honour and affluence lay within his grasp, he gratefully, yet none the less decisively, made it quite clear that he wished to be free to work to the fullest for Christ. In the succeeding years his life centres round Amritsar. In the church in which he was baptized he was ordained Deacon and then Priest, and to it he ministered till the close of life. It is difficult to give an adequate account of the man or his work, for he was cast in no common mould. Full of shrewd common sense, witty, and sympathetic, it was a pleasure and privilege to be with him. He had seen much and observed much, and his courteous grace and winning smile enhanced the value of the things, new and old, which he brought forth from the full treasury of a great and good heart. One of the privileges of the writer's missionary apprenticeship has been to learn from him. He was frank, vigorous, and far-sighted, and possessed a degree of independence in judgment and character which would in any walk of life have made him a master-mind. His intellectual gifts were great, and all he had and was he unreservedly poured out for Christ. "Had Dr. Imad-ud-din done nothing else," said Mr. Clark one day, "but preach to this congregation, as he has done for over thirty years, he would have done a great work." Quiet, forceful, thoughtful, his sermons were wonderful, and showed deep insight into the things of God and the heart of man. The sterling common sense which characterized his life also characterized his preaching. The writer thankfully remembers sermons he heard years ago from him. His final sermon in the Mission church was a masterly treatment of India's sorrow in the light of the Word of God. Year after year there was no falling off or lack of freshness in his preaching. His holy genius seemed but to go the deeper and draw more fully from the wells of salvation. Great as a preacher, as a writer he was greater still. It is his rare privilege not only to have served Christ in his day and generation, but to have left a mass of material which will be more and more valuable as time goes on. The mere enumeration of his books would fill some pages. His first work was the Hidayat-ul-Musalmin, or "Guidance to Mohammedans," written in reply to the Ijaz-Iswi, which was the result of the joint authorship of Moulvie Rahmat Ullah and Dr. Wazir Khan, and was supposed to have demolished Christianity for ever. After this a long series of volumes dealing with every type and phase of Mohammedan controversy came in rapid succession from his pen. They culminated in his choicest gift to Mohammedans. The Koran in Urdu, which has since been published in Roman-Urdu, is a book which ought to be in the hands of all who seek to influence Mohammedans. The effect of his controversial works has been great. It is but an index of what the ultimate effect will be. The books have found their way to all Mohammedan lands, and letters of appreciation and thankfulness have been received from places as far apart as Java and Montenegro. But Moulvie Imad-ud-din was no mere controversialist. His writings were constructive as well as destructive. His works for the upbuilding and edification of Christians are almost as numerous and effective as his works for the enlightenment of Islam. His style is always simple, terse, and chaste. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him from Lambeth, honoris causa, as a unique tribute and recognition of his great services and attainments.

His writings.

A unique tribute.

He died in the house of Mr. Wade at Amritsar, in the very room where thirty-four years previously he had visited Mr. Clark to arrange for his baptism. Miss Wauton, of the C.E.Z.M.S., wrote the following touching reference to his last hours:—

"I want to have my face looking upward."

> He said to his attendants when they were trying to place him in a position where he would be able to rest, "Don't lay me on this side or that side. I want to have my face looking upward toward the gate of the city, so that when the call comes I may go straight in." And so we saw him on Monday evening with a calm expectancy on his face as if he were just listening for the call to come. When it did come they say he opened his eyes and looked with a glance of happy recognition as if seeing someone he knew, and then passed peacefully away.

He had said some years before that his hope was that Mr. Clark and he might be laid to rest side by side, and this hope was realized. The Rev. Rowland Bateman conducted the funeral service on August 29th, and the Rev. Qasim Khan Nehemiah preached a memorial sermon in the Amritsar Church on the following Sunday.

Mr. Robert Clark and Dr. Imad-ud-din had both well passed the age of threescore and ten years, and the summons to the service of the heavenly sanctuary was in no sense a surprise. It was otherwise, however, with Dr. Horace Allenby Smit. He had laboured for a few months in Tinnevelly in connexion with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel before he offered to the C.M.S. and was sent to the Punjab in 1897. His death took place while bathing in the lake at Fort Munro on August 2nd.

Dr. H. A. Smit drowned at Fort Munro.

The first convert from Sikhism, and indeed the first-fruits of the Punjab so far as is known, was baptized by a missionary of the S.P.G. before Robert Clark or the American Presbyterian missionaries who were his contemporaries entered the land. The convert's name was Daud Singh, and the missionary was the Rev. W. H. Perkins, of Cawnpore. Mr. Perkins' son, Henry Edmund Perkins, born at his father's Mission station, had a distinguished career in the Indian Civil Service, serving in Oudh and the Punjab under Sir R. Montgomery, and attaining the rank of Commissioner. In 1886, on giving up the Commissionership of Rawal Pindi, instead of returning to England and enjoying a well-earned rest, he offered his services as an honorary missionary to the C.M.S. He was subsequently admitted to holy orders in 1888 and 1890 by Bishop Matthew, of Lahore, and his house at Bahrwal, some three miles from Atari, halfway between Lahore and Amritsar, became the centre of manifold missionary activities. For several years he laboured as a missionary among the people over whom he had been a ruler. In 1894, ill-health compelled his return to England, and from that time until his death on September 5th, 1900, he rendered valuable assistance as a member of the Committee, on two occasions giving temporary help in the Secretariat. He was appointed an Honorary Life Governor of the Society in 1896.

Death of Rev. H. E. Perkins.

Evangelizing the people over whom he had been a ruler.

Two Societies which were founded in the same year, 1863, as practical results of the second General Conference of India Missionaries in 1862, which was held at Lahore, and which have proved invaluable helpers of all Christian Missions in the Punjab—the Punjab Auxiliary Bible Society (B.&F.B.S.) and the Punjab Religious Book Society—owe very much to the three veterans whose death has just been recorded. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht is the Secretary of both of them. The thirty-third Report of the former refers to Mr. Perkins' knowledge of Urdu and Persian as very extensive and accurate, and to his having also a good knowledge of Hindi and Punjabi; and it acknowledges that it was he who formulated the plan for a revision of the Urdu New Testament and started the work in 1893. It was Henry Martyn who made the first translation of the New Testament into Urdu in the early years of the century, and the revision was published, after seven years of labour spent upon it, in the last years of the century. The Roman character edition was published by the B.&F.B.S. while Dr. Weitbrecht was in England, in February, 1900, and the Persian character edition at Lahore in August, after Dr. Weitbrecht had returned to India. The Auxiliary Bible Society also published during the past year the four Gospels, the Acts, several of the Epistles, and the First Book of the Psalter, in Beluchi, translated by the Rev. T. J. L. Mayer, formerly of the C.M.S. A specially bound copy of the Beluchi and Kashmiri translations.

Old Testament in Kashmiri, translated by the Rev. J. H. Knowles, was presented by the translator to the Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir in full Durbar in March, 1900, and was received with many expressions of appreciation. The issue of Vernacular Bibles during 1900 was 1,284, of New Testaments 4,583, and of portions 45,577. The circulation of the Vernacular publications of the Punjab Religious Book Society in 1900 exceeded half a million—666,780—and showed an advance of 237,540 over the issues of the previous year. Among the new publications of the year was a translation in Urdu, printed in Persian character, of Lord Northbrook's booklet, The Teaching of Jesus Christ.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out during the year were:—The Rev. Alfred Herbert Abigail, brother of the Rev. W. J. Abigail, of this Mission, an Islington College man, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900; Mr. Sidney Gaster, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., for a time house-surgeon at the Royal Free Hospital, a son of the Rev. T. J. Gaster, Vicar of All Saints', Camberwell, a former missionary of the Society in North India; Mrs. Ellen Inglis, who had already lived and worked in India and had subsequently been trained at "The Willows"; and Miss Ada Robinson, of Castle Pollard, also trained at "The Willows." Mr. Abigail and Mrs. Inglis sailed in October, 1900, Dr. Gaster in December, and Miss Robinson in February, 1901. The Rev. Theophilus Holden, who laboured in this Mission from 1883 to 1895, in response to an invitation from the Committee, returned to the Punjab in November, 1900. On the other hand, the Rev. F. Lawrence (owing to ill-health) and Dr. M. J. Eustace have retired from the work.

I. PUNJAB.

Church Council Meeting.

THE Annual Meeting of the Central Punjab District Church Council was held at Amritsar on April 18th to 20th, 1900. The 18th was observed as a "Quiet Day," commencing with Holy Communion. Three addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, who spoke of the different effects of Christ's resurrection upon His followers. The late Rev. Robert Clark, the first Chairman of the Council, attended and spoke some earnest words to the members. The voluntary services were accepted of Dr. D. N. P. Datta as Secretary, and of M. Rahmat Masih as an evangelist. The three pastors connected with the Council are at Ajnala, Bahrwal, and Clarkabad. The contributions of the Native Christians for religious purposes amounted to Rs. 1,210. The Native Missionary Society connected with the Council had a catechist and a reader working for the greater part of the previous year at Chunian, the principal town of the tehsil of that name, with a population of over 10,000.

A conference of Indian students from different Punjab centres was held at Gujerat in October. The Rev. W. E. S. Holland, of Allahabad, who, before he went out as a missionary to students, was the Travelling Secretary of the S.V.M.U. and British College Christian Union, was present, and wrote :— Conference of Indian students.

> The meetings have been just on the line of Students' Conferences at home—all in order. Last night Chandu Lal conducted an after-meeting (finding out how many had kept the Morning Watch, &c.) with the utmost tact. None of us could have done it as well or as earnestly. Then the patient, unselfish, quiet, thoughtful way the orderlies did their work is a most bright testimony to the reality of their Christianity. In these Natives is the hope of the Punjab. The Conference seemed to draw the Indians marvellously together, to give them quite a new idea, and to be the beginning of a new life in the Spirit to many.

On Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900, the Bishop of Lahore admitted Mr. E. Rhodes to Deacons' Orders, and on St. Thomas's Day, December 21st, he admitted Moulvie Aziz-ud-din to Deacons' Orders, and the Rev. Wadhawa Mull to Priests' Orders. Mr. Aziz-ud-din is the first Pathan, so far as is known, who has been received into the ministry of Christ's Church, certainly the first in connexion with the Anglican Communion. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, who assisted at the service as Bishop's Examining Chaplain, wrote :— Ordinations. First Pathan to be ordained

> It was a cheering and hopeful omen to see these representatives of the Hindu and the Pathan nationalities, once the most deadly hereditary foes, kneeling side by side after receiving the imposition of hands and authority for the ministry of the Gospel of peace.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. H. A. Field and Mrs. T. R. Wade sailed to return to the Mission in November, 1900, and Dr. A. Jukes in January, 1901. On the other hand, Mrs. Grime and Miss M. J. Taylor came home in February, 1901; Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams in April; and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Claxton, Mrs. T. E. Coverdale, and Mrs. A. H. Storrs in May.

The following are the members of the Lahore Corresponding Committee :—The Bishop of Lahore; the Ven. Archdeacon H. W. Griffith; the Revs. T. R. Wade, R. Bateman, Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht; Col. J. E. Broadbent, R.E., Col. J. A. L. Montgomery, Col. J. B. Hutchinson, Col. C. F. Scott-Moncrieff, and the Acting Secretary, the Rev. P. Ireland Jones.

LAHORE.

Most of the little staff of missionaries stationed at LAHORE are not strictly "Lahore missionaries," as the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram reminds the Committee. The Rev. P. Ireland Jones, the Acting Secretary of the Mission, resides there during the winter months, but is fully engaged in the heavy correspondence and other administrative duties of the Mission at large, and is frequently visiting other stations. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weit- Lahore.

brecht is engaged in literary and translation work. And Mr. Wigram himself and his colleagues at the Divinity School are mainly engaged in work which is not for the special benefit of the provincial capital, but for the province generally. Indeed, Mr. Wigram has to lament that there is no male missionary either of the C.M.S. or the American Presbyterian Mission (which was the first to occupy the station) whose precise duty is direct evangelization in Lahore. There is, however, daily preaching to non-Christians, and it is not without fruit. Of the two adults baptized during the year, one was a clerk in the railway police office, a Sikh by race, who received his first impulse towards Christianity through one of Bishop Lefroy's remarkable lectures to Mohammedans (referred to above on page 272), in the summer of 1900, on "The Sinless Prophet" and "The Living Apostle." The other was a Hindu medical student, who had been educated in a Scotch Mission school, but was under the influence of the Arya Samajists when Christ's call confronted him. A former teacher in his old school, who is now a C.M.S. catechist, was spending his holiday in Lahore; they met and recognized each other; for nearly a month they read together, and quietly discussed the truths of the Gospel, and "the Aryan cobwebs were soon brushed away," Mr. Wigram says; the youth had a loving welcome into the Hostel; and on Whit Sunday, 1900, he was baptized and subsequently witnessed a good confession in the Agra Medical School.

Two converts—a Sikh and a Hindu.

Divinity School.

The staff of the Divinity School and Hostel was affected by the transfer of the Rev. J. A. Wood to Batala at the beginning of 1900. He was succeeded temporarily by the Rev. C. E. McQuaide. Two students, the same as in the previous year, read in the English class, and one in the Vernacular, throughout the year, the latter being joined for one term by two catechists. Mr. E. Rhodes spent some time for quiet reading in the school before presenting himself for Deacons' Orders, and Moulvie Aziz-ud-din was there throughout the summer term for a similar purpose. An S.P.G. candidate for Priests' Orders also joined for a time. The enlarged Hostel was opened in the spring of 1900 and was quickly filled. In the summer term its bachelors' quarters contained five divinity students, five medical (four at least hoping to become missionaries) and four educational students, two law students, twelve Arts course men, two Art School students (technical training), five press apprentices, three clerks, and one railway coolie: total thirty-nine. These contributed Rs. 250 towards famine relief, and they rejoiced to know that an old student, a son of a former professor at the Divinity School, was engaged as a Christian doctor among the famine sufferers, taking up the standard that had fallen from the hands of a young Irish Presbyterian doctor at Sant Rampur, in the southern Bhīl country. A course of lectures on preaching was given to the students by Students' contribution towards famine relief.

Dr. Weitbrecht, who found time for these and other religious lectures both at Lahore and at Simla in addition to his Literary Work, and to the charge of the Auxiliary Bible Society and Religious Book Society, which has already been referred to (see supra, pages 277, 278). He assisted the Bishop of Lahore in making preliminary arrangements for providing a complete set of Commentaries on the New Testament, a comprehensive scheme for which was set on foot by the Synod of Indian Bishops in January, 1900. Dr. Weitbrecht says that evidences are continually coming under his notice of the extent to which Christian ideas and principles are spreading in India through the circulation of the Scriptures and Christian books. His words are :— Literary Work.

Again and again I have been asked for the Bible, either in English or in the Vernacular, to be placed in lending libraries which students or others are forming. A Hindu official applies to me to get our Society to publish a set of tracts controverting Hindu superstitions, in order that purer ideas may be implanted. And in a late admission of candidates into the Brahmo Samaj at Lahore the officiating minister concluded by presenting them with three books, first the New Testament, next the Imitation of Christ, and last a book on the Brahmo faith. A New Testament presented by the Brahmo Samaj.

The Rev. J. Ali Bakhsh reports that the Congregation nearly fills the church on Sunday mornings, while on festivals many have to sit on the floor or stand throughout the service, as the sitting accommodation is on those occasions inadequate. The year was remarkable for the prevalence of sickness, and the mortality among the congregation was very much above the normal experience.

AMRITSAR.

The Rev. T. R. Wade, who resided in AMRITSAR during the first few months of the year as a centre for supervising the pastorates of the District Church Council, of which he is Chairman, in deference to the exigencies of the work, removed in the summer to Batala. The High School, under the Rev. A. C. Clarke, obtained recognition as a College in May, 1900, and opened a First Arts Class, for which an addition to the building had been made. The class had seven students, four of them old pupils in the High School, at the close of the year. The year was an encouraging one : the examination results were good, all the ten candidates sent up for the Entrance Examination of the Punjab University being successful ; the numbers on the registers of the High School and its branches rose to 552 ; the boarding-house had nearly its full complement of inmates ; and, best of all, Mr. Clarke believes there was a deepening of earnestness in the pupils. He says :— Amritsar. College. Encouragements.

As to the influence of our teaching upon the lads one hesitates to speak. I can thank God for what He has permitted me to see this year. If anyone is passing through a time of doubt or losing faith in the quickening, regenerating power of the Gospel, would that he could come to our school and college and see how marvellously, if but gradually, the word, "I have come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," is being fulfilled.

"A Christian gentleman, and an earnest missionary."

Two of the native masters were removed by death; one of them, Isaac Ghulam Qadir, Mr. Clarke refers to as "a Christian gentleman and an earnest missionary." No report has been received of the Alexandra Girls' School, which is worked for the Society by ladies of the Church of England Zenana Society. Miss A. J. Edgley is the Lady Principal. The school is recognized as the best in the province. Neither have Annual Letters been received from Mrs. Grime (now at home) or Miss B. H. Nevill, of the Middle Class Girls' School. There are eighty girls in the school, and a number of Bhīl famine orphans were received for instruction. Miss A. E. Bunn mentions the death of one of the teachers and of three of the pupils. The joyful death-bed of one of the children in Ajnala Hospital made a deep impression on the heathen women who were patients in the same ward.

Girls' Schools.

A joyful death-bed.

No Annual Letters have been received from Dr. H. Martyn Clark or Dr. A. H. Browne, so that no report of the work of the large Hospital and its branches can be presented. Dr. Martyn Clark has sent home the following account of the baptism of a family which took place at Amritsar on December 30th:—

Hospital.

Baptism of a Moslem family.

W—— was a Mohammedan gentleman of good family, the hereditary reader (Imām) for many generations of public prayers in the chief mosque in a great city which I shall call L——. For many years he lived in Bengal, filling positions of great trust. As age came on he returned to his own land, and some seven years ago settled in an old royal city near to his own. Here he had many family connexions and property, and, needless to say, a leading position amongst Moslems. The quiet flow of the stream of life was rudely disturbed by the awful disaster of the baptism of his second son. Full of rage and grief, he found his life embittered by this terrible disgrace. The young man was cast off and his name was never mentioned. After months of separation he came one day to his mother. "Blood is, after all, blood," said the gentleman to me as he told me of it; "and while I would have none of him, and would not even look at him, I would not wound the mother's heart who loved him fondly by shutting the door in his face." So the young man gradually got into the habit of going to see his people, though the father held aloof; but "after all, a child is a child, though he may play the fool," said W—— to me, "and so one day I did speak to him to ask him what could have induced him to work all this disgrace and desolation. My son asked my leave to tell me a little about his new faith. I thought I might as well hear what he had to say, and as he talked I was astonished, for it was nothing like what I had supposed Christianity to be. I was now in a quandary; with my white beard I could not learn from my own son, and yet I felt the matter was one into which I must inquire." The upshot of it all was he made friends with one of our missionaries, who, after some time, sent him to me. The late Rev. Dr. Moulvie Imad-ud-din was a schoolfellow of W——'s. He was in the final class when W—— entered the school. The meeting of the two, who had much in common, was a pleasant one, and the weeks of teaching and intercourse were a happy time, brought to a close by Dr. Imad-ud-din's call home. On December 30th W—— and his family—eight souls in all, ranging in age from sixty-six to one and a-half years—were baptized. It was a glad-some sight for us all, but most of all for the son who had preceded his family into the faith of Christ. So the last Sabbath of the year and of the century passed from us in the golden light of the joy of these souls garnered into the harvest home of the Lord of Glory. Last Sabbath of the century.

The Rev. D. J. McKenzie has the pastoral care of the Congregation, in which he is assisted by the native deacon, the Rev. N. C. Dass, transferred from Batala in the summer of 1900. A small day-school was opened for the children of Christians who cannot afford to send them to the boarding-schools. It had twenty-five pupils. Mr. McKenzie is deeply impressed with the importance of pastoral work in respect to its bearing upon the Evangelistic Work in the city. He says:— Congregation.

Over and over again, when I have sat in the bazaars talking with little groups of people about newness of life, many have said to me that they know that the New Birth is the Christian truth, but that what they want to see is an evidence of it in those who have accepted Christ. These people set a high standard for their fellow-countrymen who are Christians, and will make little allowance for that "infection of nature that remaineth even in the regenerate," but surely it shows the importance of missionaries not throwing a cloak over some of the serious sins sometimes found among us, as well as the need of regular and systematic teaching to lead our people to a fuller realization of all their faith calls them to. No one can overestimate the importance in these days of work amongst those who have believed the faith. Bearing of pastoral on evangelistic work.

He refers to the difficulty the catechists and readers find as they pursue their work of preaching day by day in maintaining any degree of freshness. They are tempted, he says, to preach at the people instead of presenting definite Christian truth. He urges them to discard controversy and to insist on Christ's gift of life and power to men and on the need of a change of heart. He is assured that there are many both in the city and district who are reading God's Word in search of the Truth.

The Rev. Qasim Khan Nehemiah, of Majitha, reports the death of Sirdar Hira Singh, of the neighbouring village of Gosal. He was a well-to-do Sikh farmer living on his own land, and was baptized in 1895, together with his family of four sons, the eldest of them at that time nineteen years of age. (For account of his baptism, see Annual Report for 1895–96, page 212.) Mr. Nehemiah says that Hira Singh was much respected by his fellow-cultivators. Many of the low-caste villagers of Supari Pind have placed themselves under instruction. The Rev. Diwan Sahib Dyal, of Jandiala, is assured the conviction is spreading that there is no salvation but through Christ's atoning death and intercession. He mentions a religious leader, named Bawa Mangal Singh, who has many followers, and who, he says, though not a professing Christian, preaches the Gospel, while two of his followers have resigned Government posts in order to be free to preach, which they do from the sacred Scriptures, telling the people they must be born again. The Rev. Wadhawa Mull, of Bahrwal-Atari, naturally dwells in Death of a Christian Sikh farmer. A non-Christian religious leader preaches from the Scriptures.

his Annual Letter on the late Rev. H. E. Perkins, who resided at the station and commenced the work there, and who, Mr. Mull says, baptized 260 of the 400 who have been admitted into the visible Church at Bahrwal. Ten adults were baptized during the past year, possibly including six whom Mr. Wade baptized at Kasel, where a catechist, Mr. Ghulam Masih, is stationed. The Rev. Mian Sadiq Masih reports that there are 305 baptized Christians and 110 other adherents under his pastoral care at Ajnala, and that thirteen adults were baptized during the year.

BATALA.

Batala.

On the Rev. E. Corfield coming home from BATALA on furlough in March, 1900, he was succeeded in the principalship of the Baring High School by the Rev. J. A. Wood—"a terrible witness to our short-handed state," Mr. Wood justly writes, "that a man who had only been fifteen months in the country should be placed in charge of the most important Indian school in the diocese." Mr. Wood's stay at Batala was, however, a short one. In the summer his skull was fractured by his being thrown from a horse at Amritsar. Mr. Wade, to whose house he was taken after the accident, was absent at Ajnala attending the Bishop on a visit for confirmation. He wrote :—

An answered prayer.

"On our return in the evening we found him lying unconscious on my bed. Most fortunately Dr. H. M. Clark was at home, and he had been called at once by Mr. Qadir Khan, who had come in with Mr. Wood from Batala; he came over immediately, stayed the night, and did all that medical skill could do. The Christian friends who were present retired into a quiet room, and our Bishop led us in earnest prayer that God would spare the life of His servant, and we cannot be too thankful that prayer has been heard and answered.

Mr. Wood was mercifully raised up, and, after lying several weeks in Mr. Wade's house, became the Bishop's guest at Simla and then went to Tarn Taran. Mr. Wade took charge of the school, with its forty pupils. He dwells sadly on the paucity of the reinforcements in view of this most encouraging sphere of service inviting the Christian worker :—

An unanswered cry.

Is there any other C.M.S. school in Punjab and Sindh capable of doing more towards the evangelization of the country and the building up of the Christian Church in it? Were I thirty years younger I should esteem it a privilege to be allowed to undertake this interesting sphere of labour. Never before in my thirty-eight years of missionary experience have I seen more open doors and more glorious opportunities for preaching the Gospel, and, I may add, more encouragements for doing so, than there are now, and yet the long loud cries for help remain unanswered.

The A.L.O.E. High School (formerly, in its Anglo-Vernacular days, known as the "Mission Plough") is, from a scholastic point of view, the Rev. T. E. Coverdale testifies, one of the most promising in the province. He mentions especially two excellent young Christian masters, Messrs. L. M. and B. M. Sircar.

Regarding the Pastoral and Evangelistic Work in the district, however, Mr. Coverdale is unable to give an encouraging report. The history, he says, of the Batala Mission may be summed up as follows: "a great revival, many converts, a falling-off of workers, little or no permanent result." Nearly all the baptized Christians are in the position of serfs to non-Christians, and they are suffering the disappointment of hopes once entertained of obtaining land and becoming free through embracing Christianity. Many of them will not send their children to school, as education has not proved a royal road to money and ease. Others aver that as they have been baptized they are saved and need not learn anything more. The teachers in the district are not an element of strength—some of them apparently the contrary. "They come of a race of slaves, and can never be trusted to do a day's work without constant supervision."

Christians serfs to non-Christians.

NAROWAL.

The Rev. C. M. Gough mourns over the serious decrease in the number of workers during the past year in NAROWAL and its district. The health of the Rev. H. F. Rowlands, seriously affected by the strain of being left alone during Mr. Gough's visit to England in the summer of 1899, obliged him to go to Dharmsala for the hot months of 1900, and several of the native workers were also lost to the district. On the other hand, a visit from the Rev. R. Bateman (now labouring in the Jhang Bar) in September, when he took charge during Mr. Gough's holiday absence, was a very material help. The Anglo-Vernacular School has quite recovered the position it held before the opening of a rival school (see Annual Report for 1897–98, page 234) by the Arya Samajists. Its numbers rose to 120, but were reduced to 90 through sickness, which was very prevalent in the autumn of 1900, while its rival drags on a very feeble existence. The Christian Boys' Boarding-school received six Bhīl famine orphans. The contrast in conduct and character between these heathen lads and their Christian schoolfellows was an encouraging object lesson to Mr. Gough, proving that in spite of many difficulties and discouragements met with in the work the people were being lifted to a better life.

Narowal.

Schools

The Christians scattered in the villages of the district cause much anxiety. It has constantly to be remembered in what a low level of degradation, sin, and ignorance the Gospel found them. Mr. Gough says:—

> The common object of worship of the low-caste villagers of the Punjab is a mound or pillar of mud with two or three hollows or niches in it, in which they place small native lamps in the evening. A few days ago, when visiting a village where the low-caste inhabitants are just beginning to learn a little about the true God, I saw a woman come up to one of these mud pillars and place the forehead of a tiny baby which she had in her arms against it in token of adoration. These poor people are great believers in the efficacy of charms to protect them against sickness and other evils. It is difficult for those who become Christians to get free all at once from the bondage of these superstitions, and it is not at all an uncommon thing, when holding service with one of our village congregations, to see one or more of these charms round the neck of some member of the congregation. On such occasions I usually insist on the charm being given to me, and I then destroy it in the presence of the congregation.

Difficulties in observing the Sabbath.

The difficulties the people encounter in observing the Sabbath, dependent as most of them are on Mohammedan and Hindu landlords, present a serious hindrance; and it is very intelligible that some of them should come to acquiesce in the impediments to regular attendance on the means of grace, losing not only the direct blessing which God gives to those who honour His day, but the opportunity for the instruction which they so greatly need. In their itinerations through the district Mr. and Mrs. Gough have imported a Western invention. In lieu of the usual tent, a van like those in use at home by the Church Association, the Church Army, and the C.M.S., constructed at Narowal, but with wheels and springs made in England, and drawn by three bullocks, has proved very convenient. One of Mr. Gough's chief aims is to improve the efficiency and influence of the catechists and their families. For the sake of the latter he has brought many of them to live in Narowal, where the women and children have the advantage of regular Gospel ministrations and schools, and the agents themselves get more instruction and supervision. The statistics of the district, Mr. Gough explains, are unusually uncertain owing to the migration of many of the people during the spring of 1900 to the Jhang Bar, to escape the danger of starvation. Heavy rains and abundant harvests brought some of them back again later on.

TARN TARAN.

Tarn Taran.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. Guilford received a warm welcome on their return to TARN TARAN after furlough in December, 1899. Even at Amritsar, which they reached just after midnight, they found a goodly band of Sikh Christians and Mohammedans awaiting them at the station, while Tarn Taran itself was gay with banners and arches to show its pleasure to have them again in its midst. The number of Christians in the district is 207, of whom nearly half are children; the communicants number fifty-two. The Rev. Qutb-ud-din is the native pastor.

Missionaries welcomed back to their station.

Night-school.

In connexion with the Institute, which was opened in 1897, a night-school for men and youths was started during the past year, and a good grant-in-aid from Government was confidently looked for as a result of the examination. The pupils represent compounders, blacksmiths, builders, masons, shopkeepers, and, indeed, nearly all the trades and callings followed in the town.

A Scripture lesson forms, of course, part of the instruction given. The lending library was increased by the purchase of sixty additional books in the Vernacular, and the reading-room, which has weekly and daily papers, both religious and secular, was much frequented. A catechist is in charge, and finds it an excellent sphere of work. Six adults were baptized in the Leper Asylum, which is about a mile from the city; the Christian inmates number now thirty-six out of a total of 247. The boarding-school for the sons of lepers was enlarged by the addition of a new dormitory, through the help of the Mission to Lepers. Three of these lads were placed out as servants or apprentices, and all are reported of as doing well. The girls are looked after by the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S.

Leper Asylum.

The district contains 370 towns and villages. During harvest-time (in May, 1900), Mr. Guilford had all the catechists and readers of the district with him for three weeks for Bible study, followed by examination. The pupils of the five village boys' schools also presented themselves (with flags and banners, in great form, dressed in their best and accompanied by many proud parents) for examination; those who acquitted themselves well received prizes, and all were regaled with sweets and fruits. At Zunar, through the kind gift of a lady in England to Mr. Guilford, a flour mill has been erected, which it is hoped will both prove a boon to the village and the means of supporting a teacher. A very simple church was in course of erection by the people when Mr. Guilford wrote his Annual Letter, of which he says:—

> It is all of mud, open to the skies, with a low 3-foot wall round a raised platform, 40 feet by 20 feet. This wall is higher at one end, and somewhat ornamented with clay ecclesiastical decorations, and surmounted by a cross, the sign, pre-eminently in this country, of the Christian faith. The Communion-table and font are consistently primitive, and have been made all in clay by the deft hands of these Punjabi women, and the result of their work would excite the envy of the Superintendent of the Art Section of the Church Congress. The cost of this wondrous tabernacle in the wilderness, when finished, plus furniture, will be about £7, and it seems impossible, at the end of the nineteenth century, when prices are so high, to build a commodious church under this figure!

Cost of a church when finished about £7.

Before its completion this church was the scene of the baptism of eighteen persons on December 16th, 1900. In the whole district twenty-six adults were baptized and twenty three children. Of one of his native fellow-workers, a convert from Mohammedanism, Mr. Guilford writes:—

> He is a remarkable character, with a remarkable power of presenting the Gospel in just the way that these rough, homely villagers can understand. His illustrations are sometimes most striking. For instance, to-day, whilst speaking of Christ's humility and love as shown when He hung on the cross, he said, "And how did Christ meet the insults heaped upon Him by His murderers? Why, in the same way as the sandalwood tree, when the axe is driven into its roots, and it sends forth a sweet odour. So Christ poured forth the sweet odour of prayer, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.'" I thank God for this dear brother, for the Spirit has been given him in no small measure, and he has a fervent love for souls. He is not possessed of much learning as regards book-lore, but he is well taught in the Word. He was a gunner in the Indian army for six years, which he left for the life of a fakir, and in the garb of the latter he wandered for twenty-four years from one end of India to the other. For twelve of these years he was seeking Christ, and in the end found Him, and I had the joy of instructing him when he was but a babe in Christ.

A former fakir now an evangelist.

Clarkabad.

The Christian village of CLARKABAD—called after the late Rev. Robert Clark, by whom it was founded (in 1869) and piloted through many dangers—was during the past year under the superintendence of Mr. H. B. Claxton (now at home). It is thirty-nine miles from Lahore and nine miles from Raiwind railway station. It is situated by the side of the Government canal from Mardaipur to Patoki, and owes its existence to it, for when the canal was cut the Government granted to the Society 2,000 acres of the land on which to place Christian village converts, many of whom were through their conversion deprived of their means of livelihood. It has a population of about 1,056, and the increase led a few years ago to the formation of a new village, called Chhota (Little) Clarkabad, at the other end of the village estate, three miles distant from the older village. Some thirty Christian families are now settled there. The Rev. J. A. Wood, who visited Clarkabad before his accident, sent home a graphic picture of the simple village life of its people :—

A Christian village.

Before I left I had the opportunity of comparing the clean, straight, wide, airy streets of Clarkabad with the filthy, crooked, narrow lanes of the average Punjab village. I was struck with the simple life of the people. A few pots and pans, a corn-mill turned by hand, a spinning-wheel, and a few beds, constituted the whole of their furniture, and when you add the few simple farm implements and a few head of cattle you have enumerated all their worldly goods. The land produces grain, sugar-cane, and cotton. The housewife grinds the corn and bakes the thin flat cakes used instead of bread, and cooks the food and spins the cotton. A weaver, a blacksmith, a carpenter, and a bunya, or shopkeeper—there you have all the village trades. The Sunday services are in the hands of a fully-ordained native clergyman, for the missionary in charge is a layman. The men sit in the nave of the church, the women folk in the north aisle, the boys in the chancel, while the south aisle, which is just being added, stands open to the sky. There are no pews, or benches, or chairs. All squat on the floor, curling up their feet in a most wonderful way. Mr. Claxton and I sit on tiny stools, and, like every one else, take off our shoes as well as our hats. At the morning service English tunes are used to the Hindustani hymns, but in the afternoon it is native music and Punjabi bhajans. A bhajan is a cross between a cathedral anthem in its many repetitions and a negro minstrel ditty in its quaint music. I can see the church now when I close my eyes. In front sit the musicians.

Sunday services.

The instruments are a sort of mandoline with a very long handle and many pegs, an accordion, and a pair of drums. Some 260 were present in the morning, sixty staying to the Communion Service.

Orphanages.

The Orphanages for boys and girls are placed in Clarkabad in order that the children may grow up in the atmosphere of a Christian village, so much healthier than that which is found in heathen towns. The boys are taught trades, and become gardeners, coachmen, tailors, shoemakers, &c. The girls learn to cook, spin, wash, and make their own clothes from the cotton they gather in the Orphanage garden. The Girls' Orphanage was under the care of Miss M. S. Worsfold, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who succeeded Miss Edgley, of the same Society, in March, 1900. Misses M. E. and M. J. Farthing engaged in Work among the Women, a work needing much patience and steady perseverance. They also visited some of the neighbouring villages. Of these there are many hundreds, and in none of them is there a single resident Christian. The Rev. Fath Masih, who succeeded the Rev. T. Howell in the charge of the Congregation in July, 1900, when the latter was transferred to Montgomerywala in the Jhang Bar, mentions that some of his Mohammedan relatives residing in one of the villages invited him to a wedding. They treated him at first with a certain amount of contempt, but this gave place to respect, and he had the satisfaction of hearing the bridegroom, his nephew, say that he was convinced of the truth of Christianity, and requested him to send him books.

A native pastor at a Mohammedan wedding.

The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir W. Mackworth Young—whose arguments had much influence with the Committee in 1895 when the question of applying for a renewal of the lease of the land on which Clarkabad is built was under consideration—paid a visit to the village in the spring of 1901, and placed a memorial stone there to the memory of the late Miss Tucker ("A.L.O.E.") of Batala. Replying to an address from the inhabitants the Lieutenant-Governor said:—

The Lieut.-Governor at Clarkabad.

Clarkabad is a signal instance of what a Christian village can be, with its finances sound; its institutions of a church, school, and dispensary, all self-supporting; and its agriculture flourishing. In these respects it affords a valuable example for the Native Christian community, whose principal need is self-help and self-support. It is in this aspect that the history of Clarkabad possesses such a deep interest for Government, as well as for all friends of Missions. The number of Native Christians is rapidly increasing, and, as we firmly believe, is bound to increase and prevail; and one thoroughly successful instance of self-support at the early stage of Christian development is of incalculable value. Such progress on the part of a section of the community is of supreme importance to Government, which is deeply concerned in the welfare of all, and certainly of Native Christians not less than of others. Speaking purely as Lieutenant-Governor, I should conclude by wishing Clarkabad nothing more than that it should fulfil the mission of a pioneer village, and show Native Christians how to be self-reliant, thrifty, and successful. But I am speaking also as a Christian man to Christian men, and as such I cannot refrain from pointing out to you what a splendid opportunity is offered to this community of showing by their conduct the beauty of the religion they profess. Clarkabad will always have the credit of showing to the rest of the Punjab how successful Native Christians can be.

In the town of Chunian M. Rahmat Masih, M. Roshan Khan, and Gyan Masih are working under the Native Missionary Society of the Church Council. When the Rev. T. R. Wade visited this place he found that one of the principal merchants had been educated at a Mission school. This man possessed a harmonium, and was delighted to receive a copy of Sankey's hymns.

THE JHANG BAR.

Jhang Bar.

The JHANG BAR is a huge stretch of country—roughly about 180 miles long by 60 broad—lying between the rivers Ravi and Chenáb. The great Chenáb canal has been dug to irrigate this tract, and the new headquarters station necessitated for the district work has been named Lyallpur, after the Lieutenant-Governor in whose time (from 1887–1892) the scheme was carried out. The canal was originally intended to be an "inundation canal," that is, to run only for part of the year, and to irrigate about 144,000 acres. It was, however, found desirable and possible to enlarge the scheme by putting a weir across the Chenáb and making the canal a perennial one. In 1900 the area irrigated was 1,353,000 acres, and hopes are confidently entertained that when the distributaries are fully developed the great total of two million acres will be reached, with a discharge of over 11,000 cubic feet per second. Already there are 429 miles of main and branch canals and 1,922 miles of Government distributaries, besides an enormous length of small channels dug by the villagers themselves. The expenditure has been twenty-five millions of rupees, but crops of twice this value are said to have been reaped during the past year from the lands. While other parts of India were suffering grievously from famine the people of this district reaped abundant crops, and the surplus produce was exported, by the new railway made to assist the colonization, to the famine districts.

A vast and successful irrigation work.

In this district the Rev. Rowland Bateman finds a happy but an arduous sphere of labour. He has no headquarters. A go-down hired at Gojra for Rs. 2 per month holds his boxes. A house at Samandri has been provided for the brethren, who have joined him, but for himself, he says, "I personally can get on without it so long as I have so much country to cover as prevents my sitting down anywhere." Neither are there in the districtany missionary institutions; no churches even, except at Montgomerywala (see below, page 293), up to the present, nor schools, but some of these last are in course of being supplied. The Christians, many of them emigrants from the Sialkot, Gurdaspur and Amritsar districts, are widely scattered in units and families over the vast area, and it is a matter of no small labour and difficulty to find them. Apart from Montgomerywala and Isapura, its offshoot, Mr. Bateman counts 1,446 baptized Christians and 923 unbaptized adherents residing in eighty villages scattered over a district containing 1,000, and which is as large as Yorkshire, with practically no means of locomotion other than those supplied by nature, and all these Christians without a pastor or teacher of any sort. Mr. Bateman says:—

District as large as Yorkshire.

> Though very happy in my work here, I am conscious of much to make me sad and ashamed. Where are my schools—week-days or Sundays? Where are my communicants? Where are my confirmation candidates? Who marries? Who buries? Who tends the sick? There is an awful arrear of work to get through. I have done little more than "hunt up" a part of my flock during the last twelve months.

"An awful arrear of work."

Fifty-two adults and 107 children were baptized during the year. The incidents met with in Mr. Bateman's unceasing itinerations, when they are occasionally recorded by his graphic pen—meetings with old friends from the Narowal and other districts where he has long been so well known, encounters of wit with disputatious opponents, dangers and privations seldom related without a spice of humour—afford most delightful reading, and will assuredly win for the veteran and hardy labourer and his scattered flock the prayers of many and ere long, it may be hoped, the practical co-operation of fellow-labourers enough to compass the needs. In the spring of 1900, the Rev. E. Guilford, of Tarn Taran, accompanied Mr. Bateman on one of his journeys, starting from Clarkabad and ending at Montgomerywala, where he left him. At the close of their first day's trudge of twenty-four miles they lost their way in the dark, and were within ten yards of a precipice, when they stumbled on two men keeping watch over their crops, who directed them to their tents, which they reached at 10 p.m. From 11 p.m. till 1.30 a.m. they were kept up talking with three native visitors, one of whom Mr. Bateman had previously discovered in his wanderings, and to meet him again had directed his course on this occasion. Of this man and another of the three Mr. Guilford wrote:—

Near a precipice in the dark.

> One of these was the man we had come to see, who lived in the little mud hut by the river, and whom Mr. Bateman had before discovered in his wanderings. One had but to look at him to see he was full of spiritual power. It was a wonderful figure and face, and one could but think of the Prophet Amos as we gazed at him, for like him this man too is a cowherd, clothed in the rough, ragged shirt or kurta of the country. The second man was the son of the famous Chet Ram, whose village and hermitage were close by us here. The cowherd was the chief disciple of this Chet Ram, and upon him has fallen the mantle of his late master. And who is this Chet Ram? He was a Hindu Sadhu, i.e. a religious ascetic of considerable note, who when a young man fell in with a Mohammedan fakir who possessed a copy of the Gospels, and was convinced of the Divinity of Christ and of salvation in and through Him alone. This teaching Chet Ram eagerly drank in, and from that time to his death he preached Jesus Christ the Son of God, the Saviour of the world.

A son and disciple of Chet Ram.

Unfortunately the fakir had a curious idea common to many of the religious mendicants of this country, that it was impossible to receive the Divine inspiration to preach without taking spirituous drink first, and Chet Ram persisted in doing this, not from personal pleasure so much as a religious act before preaching to the end of his life. Truly the ways of Orientals are strange to the Western mind. Chet Ram refused to see the necessity of baptism, but he established a sect which now numbers thousands, and upon each it is incumbent to have the New Testament, always carried about with them, whether they can read it or not, generally somewhere near their breast. He taught them by heart a simple creed as their rule of faith, of which the following is a free translation:—"I believe in Jesus Christ as the Son of Mary, and in the Holy Ghost, and in God to Whom prayer should be made, and in reading the Bible and Gospels for salvation." Among his followers are all classes—lawyers, tradesmen, farmers, labourers, and beggars. The son of Chet Ram himself is a tradesman in the city some distance from his own house; associated with him there are four other followers of his father, all tradesmen. Each of these men has a cross and a flag over his shop, and has also written on the front of his shop the above creed. This man informed me that he and his brother workmen made a rule that each one of them would preach once daily at each of the four gates of the city. This is a truly wonderful movement, and there seems in it much ground prepared by the Holy Spirit for us to work upon. Alas! many of the first followers imbibed Chet Ram's views as to strong drink, but of late years there has been a movement against this, and the best of the disciples are endeavouring to put a stop to it.

New Testament always carried about with them.

A wonderful movement.

Later in the year Mr. Bateman sent home the journal of a week's travelling in his district in the month of October. The welcome he received at one village from a family of Christians who had recently migrated thither must be described by himself:—

"Here comes grandfather!"

Approaching C—— we heard the cry, "Baba aya, Baba aya" (pretty near, "Here comes grandfather!"), repeated again and again, and half-a-dozen little lads rushed out to meet us, very lightly clad indeed. They seized a finger apiece and led me to their homes, where beds and quilts were quickly spread, babies' cheeks were patted, mothers' heads were stroked, everybody was saluted, or rather made his or her salute half-a-dozen times or more, and the sacred carpet was spread. I sat down on a bed, and had no sooner done so than a swarm of youngsters began to shampoo my legs, catching hold wherever they could find hand-room. Very soon they got my boots off in order to extend the field of operation. One is almost obliged to submit to this, for it is the only form of attention to a weary guest that it is in the children's power to offer. Very often their dirty little hands disfigure the (presumably) snowy whiteness of one's apparel; and as often the gathering round one's knees can be turned to good account. You may issue an edict that those only shall shampoo you who can answer a chance question in the Catechism or who can say the Creed, or you may turn the whole assembly of juveniles into a Sunday-school, regardless of the day of the week, which is seldom known.

"How far-reaching are the Bible Society's operations!"

Mr. Bateman had a happy surprise in a Christian's house in one of these remote villages. As he was conducting worship he asked for an Urdu New Testament, and there was put into his hand the new edition published only a few months before (see supra, page 277). "How far-reaching," he reflected, "are the Bible Society's operations!" Mr. Bateman concludes his journal of a week's experiences as follows:—

The notes of such an octave need no musical arrangement. However clumsily played, they will produce every week in the year a melody in which the Name of the Lord Jesus is magnified, and which will keep you (if you will let it do so) in touch of sympathy with those holy intelligences who in their high estate hear music in the cry of the lowliest penitent. And more, you will be kept in touch with their Lord and ours, Who, expecting till all enemies be made His footstool, invites the loving co-operation of all those that have already found refuge at His feet.

Notes of an octave needing no musical arrangement.

The Rev. T. Holden and the Rev. Ihsan Ullah joined Mr. Bateman in November.

The Christians of Montgomerywala (called after Colonel Montgomery, now Commissioner of Rawal Pindi, through whose efforts this and other village areas have been allotted to Christian cultivators) have built themselves a church capable of holding 1,000 people. The baptized number 500, and the communicants fifty-eight. Forty-five adults and fifty-six children were baptized. The sum of Rs. 508 was contributed for religious purposes. The Rev. T. Howell, transferred from Clarkabad, is in charge of the pastoral work. At Isapura there are 200 baptized Christians.

MULTAN.

Multan.

Multan is one of the very few stations in the Punjab of which it can be written that its staff of workers was somewhat larger than usual during the past year. The Rev. W. F. Cobb, the senior missionary, reports that the year was the most encouraging he has experienced. One of the encouragements was the visit of the Bishop of Lahore in February, 1900; his intense interest in the work, his eloquence in Urdu, and his kindness in carrying out the full programme which had been arranged, much impressed both the missionaries and the Native Christians. The Bishop held a confirmation, gave an address to the workers, and preached to the Sunday evening congregation. And the Bishop himself also was greatly encouraged by an incident which he thus described in the Mission Report-book:—

The Bishop's visit.

> In the evening I went to call at the houses of one or two of the Mission workers, including that of the Rev. Talib Masih, and here I had the opportunity of meeting and talking for a few minutes about our Faith with several of his female relatives who are Mohammedans. It is the first time in my experience in India that such an opportunity has been given, and I was greatly astonished at it. I thank God for it as a sign of the gradual breaking down of the distrust and enmity which hitherto have separated them from us, and I trust that in His own good time many of the members of this family may join Talib Masih in the profession and service of the Lord.

A new and astonishing opportunity.

One youth, Mohamed Din, fourteen years old, the son of a woman who apostatized to Mohammedanism, was welcomed back into the Church, and was sent to Clarkabad to learn to maintain himself. A Mohammedan from the district, Saif-ud-din, whom Mr. Cobb has known and watched for several years, was baptized by immersion on Whit Sunday, 1900, after spending some months with Mr. Cobb in camp. He is engaged as a compounder at Dera Ghazi Khan. The Rev. Talib Masih has been temporarily transferred to Batala. The High School had good examination results, especially in the University Entrance, at which ten out of twelve boys presented passed. The Rev. E. Johnson-Smyth, who assisted in the Scripture and English classes during the year, has been appointed Principal.

New Women's Hospital.

A new Women's Hospital was opened near the cantonment bazaar. It consists of three blocks, one for wards, one for assistants, and the third for out-patients, with operation-rooms and special ward for surgical cases. A qualified native assistant, trained at the Ludhiana Christian Medical College, joined Dr. Annie W. Eger at the close of 1900. There were 10,647 out-patients during the year and thirty-one in-patients, of whom some were only in the hospital for one or two days. The women are very unwilling to sleep away from home, and Dr. Eger suspects that the Mohammedan dais (assistants) may have encouraged their fears in order to lessen their own work. One of the in-patients was a girl of ten years, whose mother stayed in the hospital to nurse her. This woman was bright and intelligent, and though at first greatly opposed to Christian teaching, she gradually softened, and declared at length her intention to become a follower of Christ. The fact being known caused a considerable amount of agitation and of opposition to the hospital, and the woman was sent away from Multan to prepare for baptism. Miss L. Eger read to the patients and visited the women among the large native population connected with the cantonment. Women's Work in the city was under Miss F. L. Wadsworth. On her return from furlough at the close of 1899 she learned of the death of an old Hindu lady whom she and Miss Wylie, her native assistant, had regularly visited, and who had seemed to appreciate greatly the Scripture instruction. She was told by the old lady's daughter-in-law that she had "died very happy, longing to go because she would meet Jesus Christ." Forty zenanas in and near the city were regularly visited. Female education is not in request among either Mohammedans or Hindus in Multan, but Miss Wadsworth has a small girls' school with nine pupils. Miss M. J. Taylor's health unfortunately failed, and necessitated her absence in the hills for several months, and eventually her return home.

An old Hindu lady dies trusting in Christ.

Miss Wadsworth accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Cobb in February and March, 1900, in an Itineration in the south part of the Mozaffargarh district. The ladies had an entrance into many zenanas in the small towns they visited. At Jatoi, sixty miles from Multan, they camped for ten days. On two occasions in this town they were permitted to give lantern exhibitions for the zenanas of two headmen, some fifty purdah women being present on each occasion. The male missionaries stood behind the lantern and Miss Wadsworth stood amongst the women and explained the pictures. Dr. W. F. Adams, of Dera Ghazi Khan, joined the party at this place, and was visited by some 750 patients and performed over seventy operations. Much interest was manifested, but none have as yet expressed a desire to follow Christ. At Garh Maharaja, some sixty miles from Multan, in North Mozaffargarh, there is a little native congregation of seven souls, the servants of a European landowner and honorary magistrate, Mr. A. Broadway, whose influence and example, Mr. Cobb says, are doing more than a missionary could do.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

Dera Ghazi Khan.

The threatening encroachments of the River Indus on the town of DERA GHAZI KHAN have been frequently mentioned in the Society's Annual Reports. During 1900 the last strong defences erected to protect the town were demolished, and the water was only kept from flooding the cantonment by a newly-constructed retired embankment. Hope is not yet abandoned of saving the place from destruction. This source of anxiety the missionaries shared with the whole community, European and Native. One special grief, peculiarly their own, was the death of Dr. H. A. Smit by drowning (see supra, p. 276) in August. The Rev. W. F. Cobb, of Multan, visited the station for the administration of the Holy Communion and for baptisms; he baptized one adult and nine children. The Native Christians at Dera Ghazi Khan and at Fort Munro contributed Rs. 115 towards the Punjab Famine Relief Fund. Dr. W. F. Adams (now at home) and the late Dr. Smit prepared nine candidates for confirmation, and these were confirmed during a visit of the Bishop in February, 1900. Drs. Adams and Smit also, with the Rev. Malik Hamid Izhaq, preached regularly in the bazaar, meeting sometimes with organized opposition, but on other occasions finding or making opportunities for quiet serious talks. In the hospitals much indifference was met with on the part both of in- and out-patients. The fear of spreading cholera diminished the number of Beluchis who gathered at Fort Munro. An example of the views which prevail regarding preventive measures in cases of epidemics is given by Dr. Adams:—

Mohammedan views regarding preventive measures against cholera.

> Two or three cases of cholera occurred at a Beluch police post fifteen miles from Fort Munro. Our assistant, Khair-ud-din, was sent to see what could be done to keep it from spreading. He found the people had not taken the slightest precautions, and were eating and sleeping in the very places where the sick had been. When Khair-ud-din told them what to do, and tried to disinfect the places where the patients had lain, &c., they accused him of want of faith in God. If they caught it, it was His will, and what could they do?

The Government has built a very convenient dispensary at Sakhi Sarwar, where the work is increasing.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN.

Dera Ismail Khan.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. Papprill were transferred to Simla in April, 1900, and the charge of the station and district work at DERA ISMAIL KHAN devolved on the Rev. A. H. Storrs. The examination results obtained by the High School were not considered very good, but the inspectors seemed satisfied with the efficiency of the school. Medical Mission Work was begun during the year by Dr. W. B. Heywood, using as a hospital the dispensary which the C.E.Z.M.S. had occupied for the past few years, and seeing the out-patients in a hired house. Operations had to be performed in the verandah of the hospital or in an adjoining tent. The foundations of a new hospital were laid in the spring. About 100 in-patients and 10,000 out-patients were treated, and daily preaching was carried on in Urdu, Derewal, and Pushtu.

At the branch hospital at Tank the daily preaching is in Pushtu only; there are usually over a hundred patients under treatment. The native doctor proved disappointing, and was succeeded temporarily in the autumn of 1900 by Dr. Nazir Ullah, a Pathan Christian, whose services were lent by the Medical Mission in Kashmir.

BANNU.

Bannu.

Dr. T. L. Pennell in his Annual Letter dwells on the encouragements and privileges of the work at BANNU, though it is a work of sowing and ploughing rather than of reaping. There was, however, one sheaf, and that he speaks of as the fruit of seed sown over thirty years before by the Rev. Dr. Bruce. This was an old man of about sixty, named Mir Baz, whom Bishop Lefroy baptized on February 18th, 1900, the day set apart for Bannu, as Dr. Pennell notes, in the paper for prayer sent out to members of the "Order of the Red Cross." A few months later the one sheaf was gathered into the heavenly garner. Dr. Pennell says:—

> The hopes engendered by such cases make it a daily pleasure to expound Holy Writ to some thirty bright lads in the higher classes of the school, boys who will be shortly holding the best and most influential positions in the district, and are now daily imbibing the example and teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ. Further, when we turn to the dispensary at out-patient hours, or to the wards, we find tribesmen from far-off towns in Afghanistan, where no knee bows but at the call of the False Prophet, mingling with the various clans of the Bannu district and of the Indus Valley. Here they are all brought together by a common need, and then they separate with, let us hope, not only that bodily need in most cases satisfied, but with news, altogether new and strange to most of them, which will be retailed in many a distant village where the itinerant preacher has never gone. Again, as the sinking sun is gilding the barren hills of Waziristan to the west, we get a fresh encouragement in a fairly large and usually attentive audience in either bazaar or preaching-hall—Sikh and Pathan soldiers from the regiments, shopkeepers and munshis from the city, and others who have been touched neither by school nor by hospital. Finally, if we can get a few days off from our pressure of school or hospital work, we have the delight of being able to carry the same good news to numberless villages and towns in the district, where, though our message may not be always well received, there is nearly always one or more in every place we visit who shows that he takes more than a superficial interest in the message by coming after the day's work is over and the audience has dispersed to obtain a deeper knowledge of the truths enounced. Truly we are led to exclaim with the Psalmist, "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage."

A happy sphere of service.

The High School had a daily attendance of nearly 300. Eleven out of nineteen sent up passed the Entrance, and thirteen out of seventeen the Middle School Examination. The Bishop, on the occasion of his visit referred to above, laid the foundation-stone of a new preaching-room and confirmed four candidates.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar.

"Quiet work and no results" is the sententious summary given by the Rev. A. E. Day of his year's labours at PESHAWAR, with the addition, however, of the not unimportant qualification, "so far as human eyes can see." Human eyes are very short-sighted at the best as to Divine results, and not least so are those of Christian workers, especially in a place of so much fanaticism as is this great Afghan city at the entrance to the Khyber Pass. The Congregation, under the Rev. Imám Shah—whose blameless life and unwavering devotion are a sermon in themselves, Mr. Day says—consists of 104 baptized Christians and forty-three communicants. The Bishop of Lahore made his first visitation to Peshawar in March, 1900, and confirmed nine Armenian Christians, one Afghan convert, and one other. These Armenians had been expelled from Cabul by the Emir four years before. Their attitude at the service impressed the Bishop by its devoutness and reverence. He remarked, "God grant that this characteristic may more and more be reproduced as time goes on in our Hindustani congregations. It is often sorely needed." Mr. Day made a translation of "Lumen ad Revelationem Gentium," a part of Beacon of Truth, and of pamphlets on the "Integrity of the Gospel," the "Death and Resurrection of Christ," and the "Nature of Sin and its Remedy."

Mohammedan communities respectively, exist in the town, and notwithstanding that the number of pupils in the college is over a hundred less than it was in 1893. In the past two years there has been an increase from 140 to 230. The discipline and instruction also have improved, and six boys passed the Matriculation out of seven who entered. At the close of the year eight students were reading in the Arts Class. Of the Scripture teaching Mr. Hoare says:—

"Most attentive" to the Scripture lesson.

> The Scripture lesson is something more than tolerated, the boys are most attentive, especially in the higher classes. They buy their Bibles without exception, and they are taught by men of whom we are convinced that "Christ is in them, the hope of glory."

In this Bible teaching Mr. Day, the Hon. M. Waldegrave, and the Rev. Aziz-ud-din gave help. The boys showed genuine sympathy with the Bhīls in their sufferings from famine. They read the reports, talked about the famine, and gave cheerfully from their pocket-money; and when Mr. Day went to Rajputana as one of a band of volunteers they were proud to have, as they felt, a representative of their own labouring among the sufferers, and when he returned they accorded him a very cordial welcome.

Hospital.

The Hospital Work, under Drs. Arthur and Cecil Lankester—the former of whom, with Mrs. Lankester, was obliged to take a sea journey to Ceylon for his health in the autumn—continues to afford opportunities for the regular and systematic promulgation of the Gospel. Regarding the care taken to improve to the utmost the opportunities for giving instruction in Divine Truth, Dr. Arthur Lankester writes:—

Systematic teaching in the wards.

> Through the winter months we made the development of the evangelistic work in the hospital a matter of very earnest and prayerful consideration. In order that the teaching might be more systematic and useful, a course of successive outline lessons or addresses was drawn up, by which a connected view of Gospel truth might be presented to those who, as out-patients or in-patients, might be brought under our teaching for many days in succession, and for some weeks we made the suggested outline for the spiritual work of the following day—varied in detail often in successive courses—the subject of teaching at the daily Bible-class for the Christian helpers.

Fame of the hospital widely spread.

The workers were encouraged by hearing that the fame of the hospital, as a place "where the treatment is kind and careful and free, where no bribes are taken, and poverty makes no difference," was talked of in Jalalabad and in Cabul. A young Pathan from near Kandahar brought his son to the hospital, and seemed from the first to be interested in the daily teaching in the wards. After a month or so he said definitely that he wished to become a Christian, and he was enrolled as a catechumen. His little son, who recovered, was baptized.

The work at the branch dispensary at Lundi Kotal, at the northern end of the Khyber Pass, has to be done with the utmost care lest the religious opposition of the people should be needlessly excited, and the Government feel called upon in consequence to require the abandonment of the position. The villagers of the neighbourhood are not in the least fanatical; they are rather irreligious, and laugh at the mention of the mullahs, whom, they say, they only see at Ramazan, when they come in great numbers from distant parts to conduct services and collect offerings. Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Lankester and Mr. Waldegrave visited the dispensary in May, 1900. They visited some villages on the mountain side and saw numerous patients, the inhabitants showing the utmost friendliness. The out-station at Nowshera was worked by an earnest Afghan evangelist, who shepherded the few Native Christians in the regimental lines and preached the Gospel in the city and surrounding villages. The branch dispensary at this place was closed in the summer of 1900.

ABBOTABAD.

No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. T. Bomford. He was joined by Dr. A. Jukes in February, 1901.

KANGRA, KOTGUR, AND SIMLA.

Kangra.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Tunbridge left KANGRA in April, 1900, to take furlough, and the Rev. E. Rhodes was absent from the station for six months of the year, first studying for Deacons' Orders at the Lahore Divinity School, and then assisting for three months in famine relief work among the Bhīls. The Rev. B. L. Datt conducted the services and took part in the evangelistic work. In the four Schools of the district there were some 200 boys (sixty of whom are boarders) and about fifty girls. The Government Inspector, a Sikh, wrote in the Visitors' Book of the Kangra Girls' School, which is managed by Mrs. Rhodes: "It is much to the credit of all concerned that a school for girls exists in a place like Kangra, where the people are so prejudiced against all education, especially that of females." Fourteen lads were in the Christian Boys' Home, two of whom were apprenticed to tailoring and two learning shoemaking, while the rest were pupils at the school. Three left during the year and made a hopeful start in life as tailors. The Bazaar Preaching is frequently addressed to people from a distance, from Kulu, Ladakh, and Tibet, and to pilgrims from the Central Punjab and the North-West Provinces. Mr. Datt mentions that the chief citizens of Kangra do not attend the open-air preaching, but they cheerfully welcome evangelists who visit them at their houses. A Hindu judge, after an illness of some months, sent in the night for the Christian headmaster of the Mission school to pray for his recovery, which he did in the presence of many Hindus. The judge afterwards openly attributed his recovery to the Christian's prayer. Mr. Datt also states that a Brahman pleader in Kangra has lately published a work of fiction in which numerous quotations from the Scriptures occur, incidentally proving the increasing familiarity of native society with the Word of God. No long tours were taken, but the villages within a radius of ten miles of Kangra and its out-stations, Sidhpur, Palampur, and Nurpur, were visited. In one of these villages the Baba, or religious teacher, became a diligent reader of the Scriptures, and began to teach them to his people.

A fakir's reason for desiring to be a Christian.

At Nurpur Mr. Rhodes was overtaken by a fakir who had followed him from Kangra to Palampur, back to Kangra, then on to Nurpur, a distance altogether of eighty miles. He wished to be baptized, and the reason he assigned for the wish was that "Hindus are losing faith in their old customs and religions, and will not support fakirs as formerly; therefore he desired to be a Christian that he might earn his bread as a preacher." The motive so candidly acknowledged was not satisfactory, but the reasoning is worth notice.

Mrs. Däuble, who has spent thirty-two years in India, was during a considerable portion of the year away from Dharmsala itinerating among the villages.

Kotgur.

KOTGUR is on the Sutlej River, about twenty-five miles north-east of Simla. For some weeks in mid-winter it is shut off by snow from communication with the rest of the world, and the Rev. H. F. T. Beutel utilizes that time by having the evangelists and teachers around him for study and prayer. The people here contributed Rs. 236 to the Bhīl Famine Relief Fund. Mr. Beutel, together with the Rev. J. Singh and two other evangelists, visited Rampur at the time of the annual fair, and preached for three days in the bazaar. Every night also they preached, by invitation, near the Durbar, with lantern-slide illustrations, in the presence of the Maharajah of Bashahar and his staff. Two pandits opened a discussion at the instigation of the Maharajah, but the latter openly sided with the Christians. A school was opened at Khuni, in the Bashahar State. At Tutu, in Delat, another Hill State, where also there is a Mission school, the Rana Sahib and Tikka Sahib attended the preaching every evening. After this visit, the Rana visited Kotgur in July, 1900, and remained three days, joining in the daily services at the church, and distributing the prizes to the school children. Kumharsen and Shangei States were also visited by the native evangelists. Here they found comfort in remembering that John the Baptist lived in the wilderness, and that our Lord lay in a manger, for they too had to make their beds on the open ground, or sometimes found accommodation in mangers.

II. KASHMIR.

DR. ARTHUR NEVE came home on special leave in September, 1900, and returned to the Mission in November. A very noteworthy recognition of the services Dr. Neve has rendered to Kashmir by his medical labours, and by his valuable clinical papers on various exotic diseases, was accorded by the Government of India at the beginning of 1901, in awarding to him the Kaisar-i-Hind gold medal for public service in India. This order of decoration was only instituted in 1899. Dr. Neve and the Rev. R. A. Hume, of the American Board Mission at Ahmedabad, are the only two missionaries to whom the gold medal has been awarded, though eight other missionaries received the silver medal in 1900.

The Kaisar-i-Hind gold medal conferred on a medical missionary.

The year 1900 was one of unusual plenty in Kashmir, and, notwithstanding famine in neighbouring territories, food was cheap. This may be said to be due to the mountain ranges. They not only condense the great reservoirs of snow which in the summer supply the rice fields with ample irrigation, but they also prevent the export of the superabundant grain. Notwithstanding the plentiful provision of bread there was, as always in Kashmir, a vast amount of disease. In August a severe outbreak of cholera occurred in the valley, derived from the Punjab. There were altogether 7,600 cases with 4,256 deaths, a mortality of 56 per cent. The Medical Mission staff at SRINAGAR accepted the charge of six villages and succeeded in reducing the mortality there to 30 per cent. Only one European died, but that was the Rev. J. Williams, a veteran missionary of the S.P.G., who was in Kashmir for his holiday. Thirty-five thousand visits were registered at the dispensary and hospital during the year, the in-patients numbering 1,328. They came from the picturesque balconied houses by the riverside where the merchants and tradespeople dwell; from the secluded courtyards adjoining mosque or shrine, the home of mullahs and religious teachers; but chiefly from the narrow, crowded alleys where the sun scarcely penetrates, and courts where the air is poisoned by the festering heaps of filth, where disease is ever rampant and epidemics are bred. The attitude usually exhibited by the Mohammedan patients is not one of fanatical opposition to the Gospel, but rather one of accommodation. Frequently the words are heard, "Your religion, Sahib, is the same as ours. You have the law and the Gospel, which we also acknowledge, and we read the creed of the Holy Jesus." If prevalent superstitions of popular Mohammedanism are pointed out, one will say: "That is quite true; our people are very ignorant, Christians are more just and kind. Since the days of the famine we have known this. We eat the Sahib's charity." Even when doctrine is referred to many will acknowledge that Christ is both sinless and Divine. Indeed, as Dr. Arthur Neve says, if the patients only believed all they tell the doctors they believe many would be Christians, and he gives examples :—

For instance, a pandit to whom I was speaking of Christ's resurrection, saying I had myself visited His grave, and that it was empty, said, "Of course Jesus Christ is living"; and a few days later he said, "Christ will come again as a King. How His enemies will then fear Him!" In an adjoining ward was a Gosain, from a hill district eight or ten days' journey away; he had been in on a previous occasion, and says that he and all his people believe our doctrine, and invited me to go and visit them. Another hill-man, who came back for further surgical treatment after an interval of two years, said that he remembered the teaching and prays to Christ. Another patient, suffering from a hopeless malady, was going to be removed home. I asked him if he feared death. "No," he said, "for I know that the Holy Jesus has gone to prepare a place for me." We usually find more encouragement in dealing with educated men. They are glad to receive copies of the Gospels. During recent months especially Mr. Knowles has constantly found purchasers among the out-patients for tracts, booklets, or Gospel portions, often selling ten or fifteen to a single audience. Mullahs, or "Akhuns," are often interesting. There is one just now, a man who has lived in Mecca and wandered about the world; he says none are so kind as Christians, and speaks of the help they gave in the great famine. He has read through St. Mark and St. Luke, and is now perusing St. John's Gospel.

"None are so kind as Christians."

New Molyneux wing.

A new and spacious block of buildings for out-patients was opened in April, 1900, to be called the Molyneux wing, after Miss Molyneux, of Chester, to whose generosity it is largely due. The hospital report thus describes it :—

The building is most substantial, and is better finished than would a few years ago have been possible in this country. Cedar has been used for floors and ceilings, except in the operation rooms, which are floored with solid polished walnut. The inner walls are covered with plaster of Paris, rendered impermeable and glazed by petrifying fluid; with rounded angles everywhere. Where possible all projections which might catch dust have been avoided; and most of the fixtures are of polished metal or plate glass. The arrangements for drainage of fluids, washing, &c., have been specially thought out, and ensure absolute safety. The pipes are all thoroughly accessible, and are readily cleansed. The accommodation includes special rooms for female out-patients, and there are two operation rooms, of which one will be kept for aseptic work only. The general appearance of the building is very satisfactory, and we believe that the arrangements will prove adequate for the growing work. It strikes the key-note of the higher standard of cleanliness and general efficiency to which we must now gradually raise the rest of the hospital.

Visit of Lieut.-Governor of the Punjab.

A private visit was paid by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and Lady Mackworth Young in the autumn of 1899, and they expressed their interest in the work, with which they had been acquainted almost from its initiation by Dr. Elmslie. In the Women's Wards there were usually from twenty to thirty patients. Miss M. N. Neve and Miss C. A. Newnham, besides numerous other duties, share the privilege of reading to the women patients. Their labours are not attended with much outward encouragement. Not that there is opposition, that would be almost welcome in lieu of the unintelligent and meaningless acquiescence with all that is said. The older women especially seem incapable of applying their thoughts to higher things. Miss Newnham says:—

Inert mindedness of the women.

I do not think many people at home understand in the least the difficulty, almost impossibility, of teaching these poor Kashmiri women. They have never had to learn anything at all; they have never had to use their minds at all, or concentrate their thoughts on anything; husking rice and boiling it, and cooking greens and lentils, or spinning wool or cotton, do not require great powers of mind. Infants' minds are awake and keen, ready to receive impressions; but these poor women's minds, through long disuse, are generally incapable at first of taking hold of a single idea. Their memories, too, are useless, and when I ask what we talked about on the previous day, very often not one of my audience can remember in the least.

State Leper Hospital under Mission control.

The State Leper Hospital aims at withdrawing those suffering from this terrible disease from the population and placing them under medical observation and treatment. There are usually between seventy and ninety patients. Although entirely supported by the State of Kashmir, it is altogether under the administrative control of the Mission.

Congregation.

The Rev. C. E. Barton had the pastoral charge of the Congregation, which worships in St. Luke's Church, adjoining the hospital. Besides the Mission staff, between forty and fifty people attend the services. Some of these are engaged in work for the State, a few as servants in the palace, one is the electrical engineer who superintends the lighting of the palace, &c. Mr. Barton rendered voluntary assistance in the English Church, and makes grateful mention of the help given to Mission work by several European residents. One is treasurer of the Medical Mission; another is treasurer of the Mission schools; a retired colonel gave Bible addresses regularly in English to the senior boys and masters in the school; the State Accountant-General also visited the school and addressed the boys. Moreover, the offertories contributed to the different branches of the Mission amounted to no less than Rs. 700, besides private donations from many members of the congregation. Two Book-shops in the city are worked by a colporteur, and the sale of Christian literature is being pushed with moderate success; the people generally are disinclined to pay for books.

Book-shops.

High School.

The most promising of the inquirers of the past year were two young Brahmans, former pupils in the Mission High School, in which Mr. Barton gave help by taking classes in Scripture. The report of this school by the Principal, the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, is characteristically headed "Steering in Kashmir," and, as Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe was "cox" in the Cambridge boat of 1886, the figure is ably utilized to illustrate the chief features of the year's work. The importance of a clear head and presence of mind is manifested by such incidents as that of a boy during a Scripture lesson presenting a philosophical question — which he has carefully arranged beforehand with the help of a wily Brahman priest. The school works up to the Punjab University Entrance Examination, "equal to Smalls at Oxford," and the four boys presented in 1900 were all successful. It has been ascertained that out of about 1,440 former pupils, 447 are in the employ of the Kashmir State, 191 are working for private persons, 43 have left the country, 61 have died; of the remainder (many of whom were only at school for a single term) nothing is known. Efforts are made to interest the boys in matters outside Kashmir. Huge war maps made in the school enabled them to follow the Relief of Ladysmith and Mafeking and to share the Empire's joy, while masters and boys entered fully also into the Empire's great sorrow, one of them remarking, "We have not only lost our Queen, but we have lost a dear mother." Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe says: "We try to transform, build up, renovate, or create, as the case may be, qualities and virtues which shall help the boys to be worthy of the pure life which we believe some, at any rate, will one day accept." Every boy has to bathe daily with his class, the swimmers being told off to help the non-swimmers. Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe says:—

"We have lost a dear mother."

"Plucky work in the water."

> We did not do any great swims this year, or teach every single boy in the school to swim—a task we had set ourselves to do—as our special time for putting on the screw was taken up with the cholera. So aquatics had to give way to doctoring and nursing. Yet, nevertheless, I witnessed some plucky work in the water. Many a time did I see a teacher sink with his pupil, but never for one instant did I see one let go his man until he was safely landed in a boat or on the bank; and once or twice I witnessed a teacher dive in and keep up two struggling boys at one time till help came. One case should be recorded of a boy who had only just managed to pass the swimming test—fifty yards—and was leaving the water, when a non-swimmer sank close to him, having got into a hole under a bridge; this boy at once went to the rescue, and seized the other by the hair, and, although he himself was pulled under the water several times, he held on until help came. His name goes on the school honour board for bravery, and he, be it known, is one of the class of despised pandits.

A dispenser was engaged to treat the boys' ailments, and Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe notes, as an indication of the "turning of the tide" that it was possible to keep all the schools open throughout the cholera epidemic in August, referred to above. Out of twenty masters and boys attacked only five were lost. "The masters behaved most splendidly all through a really trying time, and put their backs into the work of saving life, not merely giving medicine and then departing, but sitting up with the sick and nursing those attacked."

"The masters behaved most splendidly."

Grant from the Maharajah.

The school and its branch schools receive a monthly grant from the Maharajah and the State Council. Rajah Sir Amar Singh visited the schools and spoke words of encouragement to the boys, and gave Rs. 100, and Sir Adelbert

Talbot, the British Resident, presided at the prize distribution, as he did also in 1899. A Technical Department was opened in the spring of 1899. Only a few boys have joined as yet, the pandit class not being, as a rule, eager for manual work, but some of those who joined have become expert carpenters and two or three gained good situations. Besides making and repairing camp furniture, painting, varnishing, wood-carving, and turning, two rowing-boats were built during the past year, in the construction of which the boys assisted. The school has 346 names on its roll. The branch schools are at Habba Kadal, with 170 scholars; Renawari, with 110; Amira Kadal, with 124; Ali Kadal, with 143, and Soottoo, with 70.

Technical Department.

The State Council has undertaken to build a hospital at Islamabad, a town about thirty miles to the east of Srinagar, and to allow the use of it to the Mission rent free. For this Dr. Minnie Gomery and Miss A. Robinson are waiting, and are meantime engaged in the study of Urdu and Kashmiri.

III. BELUCHISTAN.

Dr. H. T. Holland came home in March, 1901, and Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Summerhayes in April.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Ball, on returning to India after furlough in the spring of 1900, were assigned to Quetta. Mr. Ball bears testimony to the successful pastoral labours of Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Summerhayes, who, with occasional help from the Rev. A. E. Redman, of Sukkur, kept the congregation together, taught inquirers, and helped many in the Christian life. The Sunday Congregation when Mr. Ball arrived averaged about 120. The services were hearty, and the singing of the chants and hymns particularly good. Indeed, the Bishop of Lahore, when he visited Quetta in October, wrote in the record-book that the singing struck him as "better, I think, than I have ever heard at a native service." This was mainly due to Mrs. Summerhayes. The congregation largely consists of low caste converts, who were baptized in connexion with American Presbyterian and Methodist Missions, and Mr. Ball found many of them, especially those who came from one (American) Methodist station in the Punjab, exceedingly unsatisfactory. One was very uncertain whether he had been baptized at all. Another could not answer such questions as "What is the Saviour's name?" "How many gods are there?" Many of these were Chuhras, who are not as such allowed to work in regimental cook-houses—the cooks must be Christians or Mohammedans. Consequently many Chuhras become Mohammedans and others become Christians in order to qualify for posts as regimental cooks. A Government order to the effect that in hill stations English soldiers should do their own cooking deprived many of these men of their work and they left Quetta. Mr. and Mrs. Ball formed classes for the instruction of men and women candidates for confirmation, and others for Bible teaching. The Christians contributed Rs. 100 to the Bhīl Famine Relief Fund. The foundation of a new church was laid by the Bishop during his visit in October. The sales in the Book-shop realized Rs. 743. The depôt affords a useful place for meeting inquirers, and a young and well-educated Mohammedan from the North-West Provinces, a Government clerk, who was first met with in the book-shop, subsequently visited Mr. Ball daily to study the New Testament. Another was found there who had apostatized from Christianity to Mohammedanism twenty years ago, and who said he had known no real happiness since. After satisfying himself as to the truthfulness of his story and the reality of his repentance, Mr. Ball received this man back into the Church. As a consequence of this step, the man's wife repudiated him. Eight adults were baptized, one of whom was formerly a village mullah in the Punjab. Dr. J. O. Summerhayes expresses his conviction that the book-shop is doing a splendid work. He wrote :—

"No real happiness since."

> The thing that struck me is this, that the Word of God is slowly "leavening the mass." It was reported to me that an Arab who came and heard the preaching said, when he was tackled about his faith, that he had "the Tauret and Injil" (the Old and New Testament), and knew that they showed the right way even better than the Koran, but feared to let this be known, or he would be called a "Wahabee." Many other listeners from many diverse places have told us again and again, "Yes, we know that; we have your book."

"We have your book."

Dr. Summerhayes was joined by Dr. H. T. Holland in May, and was hopeful that he would be able to leave the Hospital under the latter's care when he and Mrs. Summerhayes left in the spring of 1901 to take furlough. But an attack of enteric fever, for which Quetta is noted, obliged Dr. Holland to come home about the same time as Dr. and Mrs. Summerhayes. The in-patients numbered 623 and the out-patients 19,947. A young Afghan patient was convinced of Christ's divinity by the Pathan convert of 1899—the old soldier of the Ameer's bodyguard, of whom Dr. Holland says, "he is as gentle as a lamb in nursing"—and desired to be baptized. Up to the time when Dr. Summerhayes wrote his Annual Letter the younger man had lived consistently for nine months as a Christian, notwithstanding many temptations and inducements held out to him. There were many applicants for baptism whose motives were worldly, some women wishing to leave their husbands, or women slaves their masters, and some wanting employment. Such got no further encouragement than a cordial invitation to join a class and learn what Christianity is.

IV. SINDH.

THE Sindh Church Council held its annual meeting at Karachi on October 24th, 1900, under the chairmanship of the Rev. J. Redman. Subsequently, the native agents connected directly with the Society gathered with the members of the Council to hear special addresses from Dr. Martyn Clark, of Amritsar, on several successive days. Annual meeting of Church Council.

The Rev. A. E. Redman sailed to return to the Mission in November, 1900.

KARACHI.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Redman and the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Abigail were at KARACHI throughout the year under review. They shared with the catechists the duties connected with the Congregation, the Rev. B. N. Ghose having retired, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, and taken up his abode at Lahore. The church roll has ninety-nine names, of whom forty-seven are communicants. Eighteen candidates were confirmed in November. A band of three voluntary evangelists—two of them Sindhis—went forth tc preach in several towns of Sindh, the expenses of their tour being borne by the Century Evangelistic Fund raised by the congregation. One of them, an employé in a merchant's office, took a month's leave for the purpose. They were encouraged by their experience. The High School recovered its numbers with surprising rapidity after the plague abated—it did not altogether disappear, some 2,500 victims were claimed in the summer of 1900. A lecture was delivered by the Bishop of Lahore in the Max Denso Hall on "Is a Divine Incarnation possible?" Sir H. E. M. James, the Commissioner, presided, and a large number of Indian and European gentlemen were present. The Book-shop was the means of circulating 11,028 books and booklets during the year, of which 836 consisted of Scripture portions. Literature in Gujerathi, Sindhi, Urdu, Marathi, Punjabi, and English found its way among the people. Karachi. High School. Book-shop.

HYDRABAD.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. Sinker and the Rev. J. R. Fellows were the missionaries resident at HYDRABAD throughout the year under review. Mr. Sinker had to be the pastor of the little Congregation, which contains twenty-eight baptized Christians and a few unbaptized adherents, who meet for worship under the verandah of the High School. A large proportion of the Christians, seventeen, are communicants; they are all, however, with one exception, imported from other parts of India. One woman, unhappily, on the death of her husband apostatized to Hydra-bad.

A Bhīl Bhagat dies confessing Christ.

Mohammedanism. The Bhīl Bhagat (religious teacher) mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 273) died suddenly in November, 1900. He had asked for baptism, but the facts that he had no certain means of subsistence, and that he was unable to read and too far removed from any Mission worker to have the opportunity of learning, occasioned the postponement of his application. He died confessing Christ, and commending his wife and four children to the care of the Christians. The widow appeared to be in earnest in desiring to be a follower of Christ.

High School.

The High School showed some improvement in numbers and the amount of fees, results all the more encouraging because all the Mission schools were the objects of considerable opposition in consequence of a Sindhi woman at Sukkur having asked for baptism. The Educational Inspector noticed also an improvement in the tone and discipline. Mr. Samuel Lucas Joshi, B.A., the son of the Rev. Lucas Maloba Joshi, and brother of the Rev. David Lucas Joshi, both of the Western India Mission, has been appointed the headmaster.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junir was occupied in 1843; Malegam, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; and Poona, 1882. Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans and Parsis. The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), MacArthur (1898).

Reinforcements.

THE following reinforcements joined the staff of the Western India Mission during the year under review:—The Rev. Hector McNeile, M.A., St. John's College, Oxford, Vicar of Bredbury, near Stockport, a son of the late Dean Hugh McNeile; the Rev. Henry John Smith, who was educated at Queen's College, Birmingham, and graduated in Arts at Durham University, Curate of St. George's, Newcastle-under-Lyme; and the Rev. Arthur Dimble Henwood, of Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the late Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900. Messrs. McNeile and Henwood sailed in October, 1900, the former going out for twelve months only in the first instance to test whether his health will stand the climate; Mr. Smith sailed in November. Mr. and Mrs. J. Jackson came home in April, 1900, and sailed again in February, 1901; Mrs. F. G. Macartney came home in October, 1900, the Rev. E. J. Jones in November, and the Rev. C. W. Thorne in March, 1901.

Missionary Conference.

The Conference of missionaries of the Western India Mission was held on April 3rd, 1900. At the Communion service the Bishop of Bombay gave an address based on St. Luke xii. 49, and the Rev. F. G. Macartney preached the Conference sermon from St. Luke vi. 20–23. A largely attended missionary meeting was held in the Mission Church Hall, Girgaum, at which Major C. B. Mayne, R.E., presided.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Bombay admitted to Priests' Orders the Rev. L. B. Butcher on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900, and the Rev. Gnamuttu Yesudian on January 29th, 1901.

The Bishop has conferred an honorary canonry, one of six which the Government has sanctioned, on the Rev. W. A. Roberts, the Secretary of the Mission.

The following are the members of the Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Bombay, the Rev. F. G. Macartney, Sir Andrew Wingate, K.C.I.E., Mr. R. G. Currie, Mr. H. E. E. Proctor, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Cahusac, and the Secretary, the Rev. Canon Roberts.

BOMBAY.

Bombay.

The plague epidemic of 1899–1900 in the city of Bombay proved even more fatal than its predecessors. A chart was prepared in May, 1900, by Mr. C. Carkut James, which showed the different phases of the disease—when the epidemic form appeared, the week and day when the highest point was reached, and the gradual decline. The first epidemic, that of 1896–97, lasted through a period of 139 days, and the mortality during that period reached 28,418, with a maximum death-rate of 226 per thousand. The second commenced in January, 1898, and had a duration of 115 days, with a total mortality of 28,869, and a maximum death-rate of 165 per thousand. The third commenced in January, 1899, and ended in May, having a duration of 131 days, and a total mortality of 31,260, the maximum death-rate being 160 per thousand. The fourth plague epidemic commenced in November, 1899, and up to April 30th, 1900, the mortality had reached 50,383, with a maximum death-rate of 209·5 per thousand. Even up to March, 1901, the mortality continued very high, but it was hoped the worst had been experienced.

Successive plague epidemics.

Death of Miss H. E. Boyland.

The death of Miss H. E. Boyland, of the Missionary Settlement for University Women in Bombay, was felt to be a severe loss. Her work was specially among the Parsis, and she also had a school for English-speaking girls. She was a sister of the Rev. A. Knox Boyland, of the Persia Mission.

The Secretary of the Mission, the Rev. Canon W. A. Roberts, had the pastoral charge of Girgaum Church, receiving assistance from the Rev. C. W. Thorne and Mr. G. H. Hodgson, and after his arrival, at the close of 1900, from the Rev. H. McNeile. Mr. Hodgson was transferred in December to Nasik, in order that he might be more free for the study of the language. Canon Roberts baptized by immersion a Parsi girl, Jilubai Maneckjee Mehta, in February, 1900; and in January, 1901, he admitted a Parsi and his wife and one of his sons to the catechumenate. A "Form for Admission of Catechumens" which the Bishop has sanctioned was used then for the first time in Bombay. The Marathi Congregation has about doubled during the past twenty years. In 1880 the baptized Christians numbered 87, in 1900 they were 179; the communicants trebled, from 44 to 122; and the contributions increased ten-fold, from Rs. 49 to Rs. 502. Twelve members of the congregation were confirmed, and eight adults baptized, some of them being members of the Beni-Israel community, the fruits of the zealous labours of Miss Trott and Miss Campbell, of the Z.B.M.M. Mr. Joshi gave assistance in the revision of the Marathi Prayer-book. The Urdu Congregation has 191 members on its roll, of whom 112 are communicants. Their contributions amounted to Rs. 224. In March, 1900, twenty-five were confirmed by the Bishop, who conducted the service in Urdu and gave two addresses in that language. As the Bhendy Bazaar Hall, where bi-weekly discussions were conducted for some years, had to be vacated, the outdoor preaching stations were increased in number, and twice daily throughout the greater part of the year preaching was regularly carried on. Three adults were baptized.

On Mr. and Mrs. J. Jackson coming home in the spring of 1900 the Rev. C. W. Thorne took charge of the Robert Money School, which had 208 on its roll in the autumn, over a hundred having entered after the summer vacation. Mr. Thorne made it his prayerful aim to store the minds and memories of the pupils with Scripture texts; and Mr. Frank Anderson, of the Y.M.C.A., and the Rev. D. L. Joshi visited the school in alternate weeks and gave the boys a straight Gospel talk. The daily attendance was good; even during the height of the monsoon, when the rain descends like a deluge, few boys were absent, though many live at a distance. Thirteen boys are in the Junior Hostel, who all attend Sunday-school. Miss E. J. Granger, of the Z.B.M.M., succeeded Miss Harris in November, 1900, in the charge of the Girls' School. In consequence of a case of plague and also because the school was closed for three months after Miss Harris's departure there were only nineteen boarders. Miss Granger says they are a particularly nice set of girls, bright, intelligent, and well-behaved, and she adds :—

> It is a pretty sight to see the little ones gathered around an elder girl in the dormitory at night whilst she reads the Bible to them and directs their prayers. They are all able to express their thoughts and desires very readily in prayer, and as one listens to them one prays that the little hearts may as heartily serve the Master as the little lips offer Him prayer and praise.

A pretty sight.

The elder girls among the boarders attend the Anglo-Vernacular school, the rest go to the Vernacular school, which has 150 day pupils.

NASIK.

Famine work occupied much of the time of the missionaries at NASIK, as at most of the other stations of the Mission, during 1900. At one time over 100,000 people were under employment or receiving help at the various relief camps opened by the Government in the Nasik district. The Rev. A. Manwaring gave work at Sharanpur to village people living within a radius of six miles, and as many as 500 were employed in effecting useful improvements in the orphanage buildings, church compound, and the village houses. Much pecuniary and other help was afforded by private friends, by the American Committees, the Z.B.M.M.,

Nasik

the Friends' Mission, &c. A number of famine waifs were received into the orphanage. The ordinary work of the station went on as usual—the Marathi and English services; the Normal School, which sent out seven students to be schoolmasters; and the two day-schools. The Rev. E. J. Jones succeeded the Rev. C. W. Thorne in the Itinerancy at the beginning of 1900, and he was succeeded in July by the Rev. L. B. Butcher. There are nine out-stations in the district, and at each of them there is a Vernacular school. Some of the schools were closed for part of the year in consequence of the famine, but Mr. Butcher considers that on the whole the famine proved a handmaid to the work, as the relief measures tended not a little to open the people's hearts towards the Mission workers. A grain shop was kept open at Yeola, where the distress was exceptionally severe, and a hundred bags of maize were sold there weekly. Mr. Butcher says of the opportunities thus afforded:—

Peoples' hearts softened by kindness to famine sufferers.

> While one agent sold the other was occupied in preaching to the waiting crowd, and as people flocked to the shop from villages twelve and fifteen miles distant the Gospel message was by this means carried to a large number of villages. The hearts of these poor people were opened to us by this practical exhibition of Christian love, and now the prospect is most hopeful in that district, and if only we can take the tide at the flow and adequately follow up the work done I trust that many will come forward later on and become Christians.

The wells thus constructed will prove most useful to the Christians, who are often debarred the use of the caste-wells in the villages. All the evangelistic agents of the district were invited to spend Christmas at Nasik, and the new year was commenced with three "Quiet Days," conducted by Mr. Butcher.

POONA AND JUNIR.

Poona.

Poona lost a warm and generous friend through the death of Miss Ashlin, on February 13th, 1901. Her state of health obliging her to reside in a warm climate, she chose Poona as her home, and she took delight in promoting the interests of Christ's work which she saw going on around her. The buildings of the little church and the Divinity School at Poona were greatly indebted to her generosity. The last service at which she was present was on January 29th, when the Bishop of Bombay dedicated two new aisles and a porch added to the church, which were her gifts. The five students in residence during 1899 in the Divinity School were examined by the Rev. W. C. Whiteside at the close of that year. Three failed in Christian Evidences, but one only by a single mark, and on a second examination they all passed successfully. Eight students joined the new classes in the summer of 1900, four of them studying for Deacons' Orders, under an arrangement which the Bishop has sanctioned by which they will be exempted from Latin and Greek, and will be examined in their own vernacular and not in English. In other respects they will be submitted to the same tests and the same standard as other candidates. Three of these four were senior students in the years 1897, 1898, and 1899 respectively, and the fourth is a well-tried schoolmaster.

The English Services are much appreciated by those who prefer a quiet Evangelical service. Over four hundred, most of whom were soldiers, attended a Watch Night service on the last night of the old century. The moon was nearly at full, and the service was held out of doors, in the tennis court connected with the Divinity School, the hymns being shown on a sheet by the magic-lantern. An active branch of the Gleaners' Union is connected with the congregation. Mr. Heywood is Secretary of the United Missionary Conference and of the local branch of the Bible Society, in both of which the Bishop manifested an interest, giving an address to the former. Indeed, the Bishop's cordial help encouraged every branch of the work before his state of health obliged him to visit England. The Tamil Congregation is a fluctuating one. It consisted of 150 baptized Christians at the close of 1900, under the pastoral care of the Rev. G. Yesudian. Mothers' Meetings were held at all the houses of the congregation in rotation, and a missionary prayer-meeting was held once a month. Cottage services and occasional missionary meetings were features also of the work of the Rev. D. K. Shindé, pastor of the Marathi Congregation. Both the congregations worship in St. Matthew's Church, the same in which the English services are held, and the additional accommodation referred to above will be very welcome when the two congregations unite, as they occasionally do. The Rev. D. K. Shindé lost one of his flock through the plague, but he says the comparative immunity of the Christians throughout the successive epidemics struck non-Christians with wonder. Three adults were baptized. One of them, Jat Singh, was a Native of the Punjab, a soldier in the 17th Bombay Infantry, who was first impressed by some books given him by Mrs. Sorabji, of the Z.B.M.M. His father, also a soldier, was killed in one of the Afghan campaigns. A catechist is engaged in visiting and teaching the servants of European residents in Poona and Kirkee. The Rev. C. W. Thorne succeeded the Rev. W. C. Whiteside in the charge of the Evangelistic Work, but the exigencies of the Mission called for his transfer to Bombay a few weeks later. The Rev. E. J. Jones resided at Poona and superintended the district work from July till October, when his furlough became due. In November the Rev. A. D. Henwood arrived, one of the year's recruits, but for some time his main work will be language study. Relief centres were opened at Khed and at Junir, twenty-six and fifty-six miles respectively from Poona, where grain to the value of Rs. 50 was distributed freely on one day of each week while the scarcity was acute, and a cheap grain shop was opened weekly on another day. Several Mission schools were erected by way of giving occupation to the people. The out-stations were visited by Mr. Heywood and Mr. Shindé.

MALEGAM.

Malegam.

The Annual Letter of the Rev. F. G. Macartney, of MALEGAM, is mainly occupied with the subject which engrossed his anxious care through the greater part of the year—the famine and efforts made to relieve the sufferers. Contributions received from England, Ireland, America, New Zealand, Australia, Mauritius, Fuh-chow, Kashmir, and other parts of India, amounting to over Rs. 17,000, were disbursed. Grain shops were opened at the out-stations, wells were excavated, buildings constructed, clothing was given, bullocks, seed, field implements, &c., were supplied. It is Mr. Macartney's belief that no Christian died of want in the district. In Western Khandesh, which is chiefly inhabited by Bhīls and other jungle tribes, the distress was appalling and the mortality very terrible. Mr. Macartney says:—

"No Christian died of want."

Half Bhīl population wiped out.

> Some authorities consider that half the population has been wiped out. The genuine Bhīl is by no means a professional beggar, so that when a calamity such as we had last year overtakes the community everything has to be done by outsiders to save life. Pressure had to be continuously put upon those simple children of the forest to get them to attend the relief works and take advantage of the arrangements made by Government for their welfare. Cholera followed on the heels of famine. This scared the people; the famine camps were deserted, and in places heaps of dead bodies were left unburied for days. I know of one town across the Tapti where in one week 1,470 bodies were burnt. The fires were kept going night and day.

Orphans were gathered together and cared for at each of the out-stations, especially at Dhulia and Nandurbar. Over one thousand children were clothed and fed for long or short periods. Some were sent to the C.E.Z.M.S. Mission at Masulipatam, others to the American Lutheran Mission at Guntur, the Z.B.M. Mission at Manmar, the Society's Orphanage at Nasik, &c. Mr. Macartney expresses very much gratitude, as many others have done, for the help supplied from America.

Help from United States.

During the time when cholera was raging, in the spring of 1900, the Rev. L. M. Joshi was attacked by it, but was mercifully raised up. Several of the Christians of the district fell victims to the disease, among them one of the catechists and the wife of a reader. At Sawkarwadi there is a congregation of fifty, whose clean clothes and habits, Mr. Joshi says, contrast very favourably with those of their neighbours. At Manmar the annual meetings of the District Church Council were held at Christmas, 1900, and some 330 partook of Christmas fare. During the week three special baptismal services were held, and Baptisms at Manmar.

141 men, women, and children were received into the Christian Church. Of these seventy-two were orphan girls from the Z.B.M.M. Paton Memorial Institution at Manmar, and the rest were adults with their children, half of whom were the fruits of C.M.S. work and the other half the fruit of painstaking and prayerful efforts of the Z.B.M.M. ladies.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad.

AURUNGABAD is in the Nizam's Dominions, where the famine was only less sorely felt than in Gujerat. The Christians, being servants to the farmers, were the first to feel the strain, and many of them were admitted at an early date to the relief works opened by the Nizam's Government. Some 500 Christians were on the largest of these works, and an experienced catechist with a reader and a schoolmaster were told off to minister to their spiritual needs. Daily services were held, a gong being sounded to summon them to the place for prayer, and the services were attended by many non-Christians as well as by those for whom they were primarily intended. A "hedge school" was opened beneath the shade of a convenient tree, and some fifty children were taught daily, and catechumens' classes were held. The same was done at one of the other camps. The Rev. W. C. Whiteside opened relief work at thirteen villages. He writes :—

Daily services at relief camps.

> It has been a year one hopes never to see the like of again. By the roadside, on the road itself, in corners of streets, in the midst of busy traffic, and in the fields the dying were found, and, where possible, helped back to life and hope. Everywhere was death and dumb despairing woe. Many a Hindu and Mohammedan to-day thanks God for life and hope restored through the pity of Christ, by His people who lovingly gave for His sake. Our spiritual efforts, it is true, were lessened through the famine, but the spiritual work accomplished by that messenger of God is, I verily believe, greater than if ten missionaries had been filling the district with the Story of Christ. Caste has received a wound which cannot easily, if ever, be healed, and the mercy which is in Christ has been revealed to many.

"Caste has received a wound."

Many asked for baptism, but it was thought best to defer them for the present. Some sixteen hundred were placed under instruction. Mr. Whiteside says :—

Sixteen hundred under instruction.

> The larger portion of these are found in villages where there have been no baptisms as yet. So far as our limited staff permits we are endeavouring to instruct this multitude. "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few." In a tour taken a few weeks ago I was greatly surprised at the gracious opportunity of preaching presented. In all my missionary experience I have known nothing in any way approaching it. Village after village presented the same picture—Christians seated in the foreground, some fifty to a hundred inquirers among and behind them, and in the outskirts of the large audience higher-caste villagers seated listening for over an hour with apparent sympathy, while I sat on a box covered with a blanket speaking of the manifold grace of God in Christ Jesus. Would that such a scene could be flashed on the walls of home churches as a vision during the missionary sermon as an evidence of the reality of the work going on in the heart of a great nation. There would be little fear of retrenchment. To me the scene was greatly inspiring.

An inspiring scene.

The Rev. S. Umap testifies to the same effect:—

"Christians now received everywhere as friends."

The result of the famine on the whole was favourable to the Gospel. Hindus and Mohammedans, seeing the philanthropic efforts of the Christians, openly acknowledged that the religion which prompted its followers to show such disinterested love for the sufferers must be from God. The Christian missionaries and preachers are now everywhere received as friends. Those who first opposed us are now among the most attentive listeners to our preaching. The higher classes of Hindus, who once despised the Christians as low-castes, have become friendly in many places. About 2,000 persons applied for baptism and are now under Christian instruction.

Mr. Whiteside is face to face with an anxious problem vitally affecting the Christians. He writes:—

An anxious problem.

They are by heredity the hewers of wood and drawers of water to the community, and that not for wage, but for a precarious dole in kind. The constant begging for this dole destroys independence of character, and the necessity to stand well with the villagers to obtain it is inimical to matters of principle and religion. One section of these Christian village servants, and that the larger, obtain their perquisites for the performance of service to idolatry—they continue to play musical instruments in processions and before the idols, and share in other heathen rites as before they were Christian. They have no industry by the means of which they can support themselves apart from these duties. In response to urgent appeals for help to remove these people from God-dishonouring practices, I have gratefully to acknowledge help from many kind friends by means of which I have been able to make a beginning. Twenty-one farms have been secured for that number of families, whereby nearly a hundred persons have been, I trust, for ever withdrawn from their hereditary practices. An industrial school has been established for rough textile manufactures, in which there are at present twenty boys happily learning useful village industries.

Five village schools, making eleven altogether, giving instruction to 260 children, were opened during the year, and three new pastorates were added to the six already existing in connexion with the District Council. The Rev. J. P. Butlin assisted in various branches of the work while studying the language. Soon after Christmas, 1900, the native agents of the district met at Aurungabad and were addressed on two or three successive days by the Rev. L. B. Butcher, of Nasik. The church was crowded daily, and there were signs of the Spirit's work in the hearts of those present.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the eighteenth century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861), and Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several native clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Telugu Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; and Khammamett, 1888. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavari, was founded at Dummagudem by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Native Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others (not to mention workers of the S.P.G., which has a fruitful Mission contiguous to that of the C.M.S.), the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant-Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction (consensual) extending over Tinnevelly and Madura.

The Viceroy at Madras.

When the Viceroy of India in the course of the tour to visit the principal cities of India, to which reference has been made (see supra, page 201), was in Madras in December, 1900, the Native Christians, Protestant and Roman Catholic, presented a united address to him, setting forth some facts and figures relating to the Christian community in South India. Lord Curzon, in the course of his reply, made the following reference to missionary work:—

"The Indian Christian community has pushed its way like a wedge."

> The list of addresses that have been presented to me this morning would have been incomplete had it not included some representation from a community so numerous and, to one who belongs to the same faith, so necessarily interesting, as the Native Christian community of Southern India. . . . There has been devoted to the creation, and there is even now expended upon the development, of this striking factor in Indian life an immense amount of pious effort, of practical philanthropy, and of unassuming work. . . . What impression is made upon the ethnological formation into which, like a wedge, this stratum of rival thought and belief, represented by the Indian Christian community, has pushed its way, it is not for me to determine. It is sufficient for me to recognize its existence, to admit its claims to consideration, and to admire the practical work it has already done.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out during the past year consisted of one ordained missionary and one lady, both for Tinnevelly.

They were the Rev. Herbert Edward Lightfoot Newbery, B.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Emmanuel Church, Everton, Liverpool, a brother of the Rev. L. A. McC. Newbery, whose retirement has been mentioned above (page 206) under the Bengal Mission; and Miss Mildred Louise Pawson, of Cleethorpes, Lincolnshire, B.A., Royal University of Ireland. Miss Pawson sailed in October, 1900, and Mr. Newbery in January, 1901.

Death of Rev. F. B. Maule.

The Telugu section of the Mission suffered a great loss by the death of the Rev. Frederick Bright Maule, a promising young missionary who went out in 1898. Mr. Maule was an Islington College man, and read the Gospel when he was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of London. He was acting temporarily as leader of the Itinerating Band during the absence on furlough of the Rev. R. W. Peachey, and he started on November 12th from Bezwada to accompany the band on a long tour in the Raghavapuram district. He felt unwell the day after they set forth, but continued his journey in a palanquin, arriving at the Raghavapuram Mission-house on Saturday, the 18th, when he was tended by the Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Eales until the following Tuesday, when he passed away. A brother missionary wrote of him:—"I have seldom, if ever, found such ability, earnestness, spirituality, adaptability to circumstances, and thoroughness so happily combined in any one as in him since I first went out to the field."

Retirement of the Rev. James Stone.

The writer of the words just quoted, the Rev. James Stone, has himself been obliged most reluctantly to retire from the work, after twenty-four years of service in the Telugu Country. He went out from the curacy of Archdeacon Hone of Halesowen, in Worcestershire, in 1876, the same year as George Shergold Smith, Alexander Mackay, Robert Stewart, Joseph Sidney Hill, and others besides, some of whom are privileged yet to continue their labours. Since 1890, when Mrs. Stone was invalided home, it has been impossible for her to return to the tropics, but he has responded to the appeals of his brethren and the Committee to return once and again when the staff has been abnormally weak. It was understood when he went back to India in 1896 that it was to be only for three years. He has accepted the Vicarage of Hildenborough in succession to the late Rev. R. L. G. Pidcock, who was his fellow curate at Halesowen. The Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick has also retired from the work; his sphere was at Madras.

The Corresponding Committee.

In last year's Report (page 292) the name of the Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura was inadvertently omitted from the list of members of the Madras Corresponding Committee. Bishop Morley is one of the oldest members, having been on the Committee for upwards of twenty years. It has been a source of pleasure to the Committee that a native gentleman has during the past year responded to their invitation to join the Corresponding Committee; this was Mr. S. Satthianadhan, M.A., LL.M. (Cantab.), Professor of Logic and Moral Philosophy at the Presidency College, Madras. Professor Satthianadhan is a son of the late Rev. W. T. Satthianadhan, for many years pastor of Zion Church, Madras. His joining the Madras Corresponding Committee was very heartily welcomed by the other members, and afforded very sincere pleasure to his Indian fellow Christians in Madras. The following are the members of the Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Madras, the Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura, Bishop Gell; the Revs. W. Scott and H. D. Goldsmith; Mr. A. W. B. Higgens, Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot, Mr. W. B. de Winton; Professor S. Satthianadhan, and the Secretary, the Rev. E. Sell.

Appointment of Professor Satthianadhan.

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

Mrs. H. D. Goldsmith sailed from home in October, 1900, to join her husband, the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith, at Madras.

On December 23rd, at Madras, the Bishop of Madras admitted Mr. Satthianadhan Vedanayagam to Deacons' Orders.

Ordination.

MADRAS.

A large proportion of the work connected with the Society in the city of Madras and the neighbourhood is not only done by Natives—that might be said of most of the Society's stations all over the world—but is also directed and supervised by Natives and supported by funds contributed by Native Christians. This is the case with all the extensive operations, both pastoral and evangelistic, of the Madras District Church Council, of which the Rev. W. D. Clarke, the esteemed native clergyman who is in charge of the most important of the pastorates, is the chairman. Mr. Clarke, in reporting on the work of the Southern Pastorate, takes pleasure in looking back to the time when his late father-in-law and predecessor, the Rev. W. T. Satthianadhan, was appointed to the charge. Then, in 1863, there were 166 baptized Christians, and the contributions amounted to Rs. 120. Twenty years later, at the close of Mr. Satthianadhan's ministry, the membership was 724, and the contributions Rs. 1,676. Now the number of baptized Christians is 864, and their contributions Rs. 2,725, a five-fold increase in the one case, and sixteen-fold in the other. The pastorate contains two large churches, Zion Church and Trinity Chapel; nine large schools, one of them being a High School for boys, and another a Lower Secondary School for Hindu girls; and numerous organizations for instructing and stirring up the gifts and graces of the people. Among these last are a Juvenile Association, of which Mrs. Clarke is the Honorary Secretary; the Chintadrepetta Christian Association, of which the Bishop of Madras is the patron; a branch of the Gleaners' Union, of which most of the educated young men of the two congregations are members; and a Preachers' Association, which is an organized band of volunteer preachers. Mr. Clarke is able to bear a good testimony to his people on the whole. He says:—

A deepening of spiritual life.

Let me say a few words about the spiritual tone of the Indian Christian members, of which my congregation is entirely composed. Except in the case of a small minority, I have nothing to complain of in the members of my congregation, and I am thankful to add that there is a deepening of spiritual life amongst them—men and women. The number is large of whom I may say that they have tasted the love of Christ, and who lead consistent Christian lives. Because they love their God, they love His House, His Services, His Day, His Book, and everything connected with Him. As a result of this the spirit of voluntary missionary enterprise is steadily increasing. There are men and women, and a fairly good number of young men, and even children, who are really moved by the Spirit of God, and whose burning desire is to bring their own countrymen to the feet of their blessed Lord.

Northern Pastorate.

The Northern Pastorate is under the Rev. J. Satthianadhan, who is responsible for the ministrations at two churches, one at Black Town, and the other at Tinnevelly Settlement, with 644 baptized Christians and 322 communicants. He also administers the Holy Communion to two other congregations, at Moneghar Choultry, and the Leper Asylum, and conducts services and prayer-meetings in more than one hospital. Bible-classes are held for men and women, and prayer-meetings are conducted twice a week in the houses of the Christians. A monthly missionary meeting is held, when accounts are given of work for Christ in other lands, and monthly meetings of the Gleaners' Union Branch, with forty-five members, are maintained by the members themselves. The Bishop of Madras confirmed twenty-nine candidates in December, 1899. At the Ingathering Service on September 29th, 1900, the church was decorated with flags and festoons, and the preacher was the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith. The auction sale after the service realized Rs. 200, the poorer members of the congregation showing much liberality. The sum contributed by the two congregations was Rs. 1,555. The pastorate has three primary schools with 191 children. Twice a week the Gospel is preached and Christian lyrics are sung, accompanied by a violin, to large and for the most part patient and attentive audiences, in the open-air. Ten adults were baptized. The Rev. D. A. Peter has charge of the Mount Pastorate, and the newly-ordained deacon, the Rev. S. Vedhanayagam, is the quasi-pastor of Poonamalee.

Divinity School.

Mr. Vedhanayagam is a former student of the Divinity School, which is the only pastoral agency in the city which is dependent on the Society and on European missionaries. The Rev. H. D. Goldsmith returned to Madras after his furlough in March, 1900, illness having necessitated his postponing departure from England four months longer than he had intended. Soon after his arrival he was attacked by dysentery, followed by ophthalmia and rheumatism, and he had to yield himself to the kind care of the nurses and doctors of the General Hospital, and then to visit the Hills to recruit. It was August before he was able to relieve the Rev. E. A. L. Moore of the charge of the class of four divinity students—"the most privileged work," Mr. Goldsmith writes, "that can be entrusted to any missionary. It is delightful having to instruct such keen and intelligent young men—the cream of the youth of South India." Bishop Gell's Greek Testament Prize was again won by one of the students of the class, and not only so, but the second and third places were also secured by a present and former student respectively. Some of the students, accompanied by Mr. Goldsmith and Mr. Moore, usually visited once a week a little fishing settlement on the beach, a very poor and neglected class. Mr. Moore says of these people and of efforts made on their behalf:—

"Most privileged work."

They go out to sea on the most primitive kind of boats—simply some logs of wood tied together with a rope and worked with a paddle, and untied again when fishing is over and they reach shore. The fish is carried off to the bazaars and sold by the women, and the money they bring back is spent by the men in gambling and toddy-drinking. We have frequently found them seated in a great ring outside their huts playing cards when we have gone down to preach to them. Others are busy mending nets or winding string. We generally get a fairly good audience. We have a violin and some coloured pictures. The latter are a great attraction; they represent some leading Biblical episodes. We tie one on to a walking-stick, and one of the students speaks about it. We took down a magic-lantern one evening after dusk, and exhibited some pictures in the open-air. As we could not plant the sheet-poles in the ground, two of the fishermen held them. They were very patient; but at last, when the audience became a little uproarious and noisy, they brought the proceedings to a close by rolling up the sheet and walking away, declaring that, as the audience could not behave themselves, they were not worthy to enjoy the show any longer. The children are a most noisy and obstreperous crew, and run absolutely wild. They have got so hardened and seasoned by mutual quarrels, and exposure to wind and storm, and parental rebukes, that they put up with cuffs from their elders—cuffs which would almost stun an ordinary child—merely with a frown and removal to a safer distance. We feel that the great need is a little school for the children, and we are thankful that the way is now clear for erecting one as soon as the rainy season is over. The Canal Company have granted us a site on the bank at the outskirts of the fishing village (we could not get a site in the village itself, because the headman is a Buddhist, and talks of starting a Buddhist school!). The school will consist of a few palmyra poles, with some cocoanut matting for roof, and the whole will cost about 30*s*. There will be one teacher, whose salary will be about £7 a year, and the Government will probably help us with a small grant of money. So that a fishers' school is not a very expensive business. The students have had some interesting talks with individuals after the preaching is over sometimes, trying to see what impression the preaching has made.

An inexpensive school.

There is a school for the Sweeper caste in the city, the teacher of which is acquainted not only with Telugu, the language of these Sweepers, but also with Urdu, and consequently he, as well as some of the divinity students, is able to join forces with the Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh and his co-workers of the Mohammedan Mission. It is easy to find listeners, but Mr. Singh considers their attitude for the most part to be that of indifference. He refers, however, to a Mohammedan Sepoy in the Madras Infantry, and to a Bairigi woman who has spent the best part of twenty years since her husband's death in visiting the most popular places of pilgrimage in India, as apparently sincere inquirers. The latter was moved by some words spoken on purity of heart by Mr. Goldsmith in the bazaar preaching; when a Mussulman contentiously claimed that all Mohammedans are pure, this woman, who had been listening with rapt attention, stepped forward and said with pathetic earnestness that she had been for twenty years wandering in search of peace and purity of heart without success.

A seeker after purity and peace.

The Hindustani Congregation consists of twenty-two adherents, all except two baptized; and there are frequent visitors, as it is the only Hindustani service in Madras. One of this little flock fell a victim to cholera. His widowed mother and her family of seven children—of whom he was one, and another is a teacher and evangelist to the Mohammedans—were baptized in 1892. Miss Sell, the daughter of the Rev. E. Sell, plays the harmonium, and, as Mr. Singh is in Deacons' Orders, Mr. Goldsmith takes the monthly Communion service.

The only Hindustani service in Madras.

The services are held in the hall of the Harris High School, which was ably carried on (as it was also during a considerable part of 1899), in the absence of the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick, by the Rev. J. S. Peter. Six out of eleven boys who tried for the Matriculation Examination were successful, ten boys passed the Lower Secondary, and six the Primary. The Inspector of Schools reported "the staff to be efficient," "the discipline and tone good," "the management and supervision very good, reflecting credit on the staff," and "there was a general air of smartness and life among the boys which was very pleasing." At the School Anniversary the Bishop of Madras presided, and he is reported by Mr. Peter to have paid a high tribute of praise to the Society's educational work in South India, saying that "it would be difficult for any schools in India to beat the thoroughness, conscientiousness, and ability with which these schools are managed." Mr. Peter visited Cuddalore during the Michaelmas holidays, and there the Deputy-Collector, who is an "old boy" of the school, afforded him the opportunity of meeting a number of the native gentlemen of the place for a religious discussion at his house. During this visit he was also present at a public Durbar, when the Collector presented his Deputy with the sannad of the late Queen-Empress and conferred on him the title of "Khan Sahib." In his reply the Deputy-Collector referred to his indebtedness to the Harris School. He has endowed the school with an annual scholarship of Rs. 36.

Work among Educated Hindus.

For twenty years the Rev. S. John has been engaged in Work among the Educated Hindus of Madras. These, of course, are often met with by other workers, and especially those in charge of pastorates. The Rev. W. D. Clarke says he daily meets young men educated at Government schools and colleges, where they had no religious teaching but at the same time were required to read books by Herbert Spencer, Huxley, Mill, &c. Some of them are avowed atheists or agnostics; others impartially regard all religions as having equal claims; but a few, who are not numbered as adherents, are convinced that Christianity is the only true religion. He quotes as an illustration of the last-named class the following letter written by one of these educated Hindus to the Madras Mail:—

Avowed atheists.

A Hindu social reformer's views on Christianity.

"My heart bleeds to see the miserable condition of my Hindu brethren. All the miseries the Hindu community suffers from are due to the ignorance of the Hindu women. . . . The Hindu religion and the Hindu social customs are responsible for the miserable state of the Hindus. It is impossible for the Hindus as Hindus to change the social customs, most of the customs being based upon the Hindu religion. I have given the subject of social reform my very best thought and attention these twelve years. My conviction is that the liberal education of women and the consequent happiness of the home is possible only in the Christian community. It is Christianity that permits the postponement of the marriage of girls. It is Christianity that allows widows to remarry. It is Christianity that allows fallen women a chance of reclaiming themselves from evil ways. It is Christianity that allows you foreign travel. It is Christianity that teaches the dignity of labour. It is Christianity that allows you all facilities for being rich, wise, and philanthropic. It is Christianity that gives free scope for women to receive complete education. It is Christianity that gives you salvation without laborious and multifarious ceremonies. If ever the Hindus are to rise in the scale of nations, it must be by Christianity, and Christianity only. Some of my Hindu brethren may say that agnosticism and atheism may produce these results; but I do not believe in that. Man cannot do without religion. Christianity is the most simple and convenient of all religions. Blessed shall be the day when all caste Hindus of enlightenment throw up Hinduism and embrace Christianity."

Mr. John's testimony is to the same effect as that of Mr. Clarke. He records in his Annual Letter several conversations and discussions with Brahmans and others which show at least that the Bible is widely read. He says that the hostile efforts which were so active a few years ago in Madras are far less so now. There is little, if any, organized preaching against the Gospel, and the anti-Christian tracts and books are no longer circulated, people being disinclined to buy, and funds for free distribution not being forthcoming. He says, moreover, that educated Hindus do not frequent temples and pagodas as much as in former days, that they have for the most part abandoned the practice of lying prostrate before the idols, and that they receive Christians with politeness in their houses and feel no scruple at entering the houses of Christians. On the other hand, Mr. Clarke says that the conservative orthodox Hindus are active in the restoration of temples and the erection of new ones Opposite to Zion Church in Madras is a temple to Ganesa, which twenty years ago was neglected and deserted, and was the resort of rogues and gamblers. This has been renewed and richly endowed by a Hindu widow lady, and services are now held there daily, while the idol is carried once a year round Chintadrepetta on a grand car with music and torches.

Temples being restored.

The Rev. M. G. Goldsmith, on his return to the Mission after furlough at the close of 1899, went again to Hyderabad, in the Deccan. This is not a C.M.S. station, but is worked under the Bishop of Madras as a Diocesan Mission. Mr. Goldsmith's services were lent for this work in 1891 and have been continued since then, the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick taking his place during his furlough. A good preaching-hall opposite the chief entrance to the Residency was rented in the autumn of 1900, and in this there was daily preaching. It is also a convenient situation for tract distribution. The Earl of Northbrook's little book, The Teaching of Jesus Christ in His Own Words, referred to already more than once in this Report, has been found very useful, and copies of it, in a superior binding, which were sent to several of the Hyderabad nobility, were most courteously received. A Mohammedan who was instigated thereto by his Eurasian wife, and a Rajput widow who seemed fully resolved to live as a Christian, were baptized. There were numerous inquirers, some of whom appeared to be sincere.

NILGIRI AND WYNAAD.

The Rev. A. H. Lash has an extensive area and a varied work under his charge. He mentions that during the six weeks preceding the date when he wrote his Annual Letter he had conducted services in six centres, and that the two most distant congregations were some ninety-seven miles apart. In OOTACAMUND alone he instances the following, which are under his immediate supervision: five schools with 400 children, and as many Sunday-schools with 200 children; a hostel for boys from a distance, one of them being a Toda boy, the first instance, it is believed, in the history of these strange people, of their seeking to have one of their boys educated in a Christian boarding-school; depôt of the Bible and Tract Societies. In addition, Mr. Lash gave lectures to educated Hindus; while the correspondence, &c. in connexion with the raising of funds, and the keeping of accounts, were no light burden. The Congregation has th

Rev. G. Swamiadian for its native pastor. There are 579 baptized Christians and 235 communicants. On the occasion of a confirmation by the Bishop of Madras there were 600 people present at the service, the largest congregation ever present in the church. Thirty candidates were confirmed. Mrs. Lash conducted a monthly prayer-meeting for the women of the congregation. The in-patients at the hospital are regularly visited, and a lad who had been an inmate in the hostel, and who was believed to be dying, was baptized at the request of his heathen mother. He recovered, however, and returned to the hostel. Among the accessions by baptism was a police constable who seemed to be deeply sincere. At Coonoor the Rev. C. P. Gnanamoni has 277 Christians under his pastoral care. Mr. Lash says of him that he is an able preacher, and his earnest sermons and addresses are much appreciated. Mr. Gnanamoni refers to a Three-hours' Service on Good Friday, 1900, when the people brought the money which they had saved by self-denial during Lent, amounting to over Rs. 13. Twelve candidates were confirmed in June. At Wellington a catechist resides. The villages within a radius of fifteen miles are visited, and thus Badagas, Todas, Kurumbas, and Tamil estate coolies hear the Word. Mr. Lash baptized twenty-six adults in the Wynaad during the year. There was much distress in the district and many deaths from scarcity and disease. The catechist at Vayitri, Mr. Y. D. Samuel, had a providential escape from perishing in a landslip in August; he had only passed five minutes before. The Bishop of Madras visited Gudalur and confirmed one candidate.

II. TELUGU COUNTRY.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Cain, who came home in May, 1900, sailed in February for Australia in order to complete their furlough in that country. Their previous visit to England was in 1880, the one furlough enjoyed during the past twenty years having been taken in Australia. The Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Peachey sailed in October, 1900, to return to the Mission; on the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Tanner, the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Panes, and the Rev. and Mrs. E. G. Roberts came home in March, 1901.

In February, 1900, the Bishop of Madras visited all the district centres of the work in the Telugu Country, except Dummagudem, and confirmed in all 1,406 candidates. The missionaries and Native Christians were greatly refreshed and cheered by his counsel and sympathy.

On Ascension Day, May 24th, 1900, at Ootacamund, the Bishop admitted the Rev. W. J. Williamson to Priests' Orders, Ordination.

Distress in the districts.

Although famine was not officially gazetted in the districts worked by the Society, there was very considerable distress, because of scarcity not of food only but of water also, as the wells over a considerable area were quite dry. Many of the cattle died, and many were sold to pay debts contracted for food.

MASULIPATAM.

Noble College.

The Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, on his return to MASULIPATAM from furlough in January, 1900, resumed charge of the Noble College, and a few months later the Rev. W. C. Penn left for his furlough. At the beginning of 1901 the two other European members of the staff, the Revs. H. J. Tanner and E. G. Roberts, were obliged to leave, the former on health grounds, anticipating his short furlough leave by a few weeks, and the latter on medical certificate, and Mr. Clarke was left alone. Even apart from the unusual strain induced by breakdowns of this nature, the work itself is one which is peculiarly a trial of faith, and Mr. Clarke writes some reflections which have doubtless often been a source of comfort and strength to himself:—

A plea for patient and zealous labourers among the Brahmans.

> Again and again I think of the apparently fruitless hours Jesus spent amongst the Scribes and Pharisees, day after day, year after year, throughout the brief period of His ministry. He never gave them up, He never even neglected them for the apparently more promising work amongst the humbler classes. He stayed to argue with them; He answered their questions; He accepted their challenges; He challenged them Himself; He denounced their sins, and warned them of the inevitable doom which hung over them if they did not shake off their deadly hypocrisy and become real men; and through it all He loved them, and laboured for them, and agonized over them, until He had done for them all that incarnate love could do, and then when His earthly career was over He left them, and the fruit of His patient labour began to appear. A great company of the priests became obedient to the faith: Saul, a Hebrew of the Hebrews, and of the straitest sect of the Pharisees, as he laboured with a frenzied zeal to stamp out the pestilent heresy of Christianity, was conquered by this Prince of Love Who had so toiled for Saul's caste. In the spirit of Jesus, if we enter in amongst the proud, self-satisfied, exclusive, subtle, and yet so wonderfully attractive Brahmans and educated classes of India, can He fail to draw them, those of them who have yet within them the power to respond to His love and wisdom? "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me." The love of Queen Victoria touched the heart of India more deeply than most of us knew or dreamt, and the love of the Prince of Peace is working deep down out of sight in thousands of hearts that do not yet know what it all means.

The examination results of the College were disappointing, especially in the Matriculation, only eight passing out of thirty-nine candidates, a failure which appears to have affected other colleges and schools throughout the Presidency. "These things," Mr. Clarke says, "we learn to take philosophically, the fat years with the lean, trying to strengthen weak points when they are revealed, and generally 'waiting till the clouds roll by', when the fault is not our own." One great help was sent to the discouraged workers, and that was a visit from the Bishop of Madras in February, 1900. It was the Bishop's first official visit to any Mission station in his diocese, and Mr. Clarke writes :—

> It was a time of great encouragement and pleasure, for the Bishop threw himself with such sympathetic interest into all the work and plans and difficulties of the Mission that we felt that our prayers had been answered, and one had been sent to us worthy to take Bishop Gell's place, and to be our spiritual and ecclesiastical leader.

Preparandi Institution.

There were eighteen students in the Preparandi Institution. Some additional buildings in connexion with the Institution, containing dormitories, hall, class-rooms, &c., to be used as a Central Boarding-school, of which His Excellency the Governor of Madras had laid the foundation-stone in October, 1898, were opened by the Bishop of Madras in February, 1900. This school receives such boys as, having passed through the boarding-schools in any of the several districts, give promise of proving good teachers or evangelists in the future ; it will thus prove a link between the district schools and the normal or Anglo-vernacular schools ; that is, between lower and secondary education. The school had twenty-seven boarders at the close of the year. There were instances of the remains of superstition in some of the boys, such as trust in mantrams or incantations, and in texts of the Bible treated in a mechanical manner. One of the masters, a bright and promising young Christian of the age of twenty-two, was unhappily drowned while bathing in the sea.

New Central Boarding-school.

Sharkey Memorial School.

The Sharkey Memorial Girls' School came again under Mrs. Goodman's superintendence on her return from furlough in March, 1900. It has lost its primary training class, as the new conditions issued by the Director of Public Instruction were found incapable of being carried out in the school ; so it is now a purely Lower Secondary School, and English is taught throughout it.

Pastorates.

The Rev. A. E. Goodman relieved the Rev. H. W. Eales of the chairmanship of the Church Council for the Masulipatam district, and the supervision of the pastorates and the evangelistic work in that district which that office entails, in March, 1900. Two new pastorates, embracing the Gudwada and Devapudi circles, were added to the Council's responsibilities during the year, making nine altogether. Three agents engaged in the Masulipatam Pastorate, two schoolmasters and one sub-catechist, were removed by death. The sub-catechist, who was named Matti Gnananandam, is pronounced by Mr. Goodman to have been by far the best lay agent in the district. He was given up when a boy by his heathen parents to the missionary in charge of the district to be educated in the boys' boarding-school. He was engaged as an agent at Tummalapalli in 1894, and it was mainly through his influence that the Christians there raised the sum required for building the Bhushanam Memorial Church, and he was instrumental in adding eighty-two souls to the Church in that place. In 1897 he was at the hamlets of Yeatipoggaru and Chinna Gollapollem, when the Church there endured much persecution (see Annual Report for 1897–98, page 274). Mr. Goodman states that a rich Kumma put a reward of Rs. 100 on the sub-catechist's head, but he eluded his would-be murderers, and at the end of eighteen months prepared 116 for baptism. During the last year of his life he was stationed at Peddapatnam, twelve miles from Masulipatam, and there he had seventy-five inquirers and thirty others under instruction in a neighbouring village, when he fell a victim in September, 1900, to the disease called berri-berri, at the age of thirty-five. The Bishop of Madras confirmed 136 native candidates at Masulipatam in February, 1900. The Sunday-school is well supplied by a band of voluntary teachers, and these attend themselves a class for instruction immediately after the Sunday morning service, which is taken by Mr. J. D. Samuel, a Christian pleader, and a member of the congregation. The offerings at the Harvest Festival gave Rs. 326 to the Evangelistic Fund. The pastorate is self-supporting, and, in addition, it forwards monthly a sum to the District Council Fund to assist other and less well-to-do pastorates. The Christians of the Tummalapalli Pastorate, under the Rev. Govadi Anandayya, have added a good school-house and parsonage to the church referred to above and handed all over to the District Council free of debt. In the Ellurapad Pastorate there is a congregation of 250 souls at a village called Prattipad, the place where the first Gospel converts were made (outside Masulipatam) in the Telugu Mission. These people have started a Church Building Fund, towards which Rs. 500 have been paid, their hope being to raise Rs. 1,000 in two years to replace their present mud church, with its grass and bamboo roof, by one made of brick.

A self-supporting pastorate.

The Rev. M. K. Ramiar was transferred from the Raghavapuram district to Chellapalli, as a centre for evangelistic work, at the beginning of 1900. He and Mrs. Ramiar had much to bear from the Komaties. Their servant was prevented from taking water from the wells, and then was forced by threats of excommunication to leave their service. The Mohammedans, however, were more neighbourly, and the Sudras also welcomed them to their homes, and listened while they sang lyrics and made known the Gospel. Mr. Ramiar says:—

A native missionary "boycotted."

"A very idolatrous place."

> This is a very idolatrous place, and full of deceit and lies, the natural fruits of idolatry. The Komaties and Sudras here have a sort of devil-dance at nights, similar to what the Negroes have in Africa. They keep a light in the middle and dance all round it, singing songs about Rama and his wife Seeta, and make great noise every now and then, in front of each Komati house.

BEZWADA.

Bezwada. The Rev. E. E. Hamshere resided the greater part of the year under review at BEZWADA while studying the language, and he enjoyed many opportunities of work among English-speaking Natives. He asks earnestly that missionaries, and especially new ones like himself, may be upheld by the prayers of God's people. The Rev. J. Harrison reports a year of considerable progress in the erection of Mission buildings in Bezwada and the district around. In Bezwada itself a new church was erected, largely at the expense of Government, for European and Telugu Christians. The relief work supplied by the Mission for those who suffered from the prevailing scarcity of food was largely directed to the improvement of prayer-houses, schoolmasters' houses, &c. The adherents in the district number 3,455, divided among three pastorates. The Rev. Kanaparti Adam is responsible for the Bezwada Pastorate. It contains thirty-one congregations in as many different villages, and there are, besides the pastor, a sub-catechist, three evangelists, ten schoolmasters, and two schoolmistresses. Seven of the congregation are making efforts to put up good prayer-houses. In the Bolapad Pastorate, under the Rev. Karra Naganna, there are 1,045 adherents in twenty-six villages, for whose instruction there are nine agents, i.e., the pastor, two evangelists, and six school teachers. The last-named, besides teaching the children, also conduct the simple services in the places where they live; while the evangelists visit the villages where there are no Christian congregations. The Christians are, for the most part, extremely poor, and suffer much oppression from the farmers. The Bishop of Madras confirmed ninety-five candidates at Indupally, in the church which the Christians built with much voluntary labour as a Centenary effort (see Annual Report for 1898–99, page 267). In the past year the Christians of Walloor, another of the larger villages, have erected a good prayer-house. The Tiruvoor Pastorate embraces portions of the two civil districts of Kistna and Godavery, and also of the Nizam's Territory, an area of from 600 to 700 square miles. The congregations include 932 adherents in thirty-four villages. Besides the pastor, the Rev. Battu Daniel, who has been nine years in this pastorate, and one evangelist, there are eleven schoolmasters. The Christians endure much oppression from the Zemindars, but they stand firm, nevertheless, and the Kingdom spreads. The Sudras often befriend them, and in some villages, impressed by the worship of the Christians, they have given up idolatry.

The Christians poor and oppressed.

evangelists. Between April and October they preached in 134 villages and towns, meeting with little opposition, but with much apathy and ignorance. In many villages not a single person can read his own language, and in many others only the Patel, or Government official, is able to read.

Much apathy and ignorance.

ELLORE.

Ellore.

"We are still strong to labour," writes the veteran missionary at ELLORE, the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander, of himself and Mrs. Alexander, after forty-three years of service. The High School was for the greater part of the year without a European missionary, as the Rev. W. J. Williamson was transferred in the spring of 1900 to Dummagudem. The school received considerable accessions from a municipal school in the town, and from several village schools—all the new pupils being quite strangers to the Holy Bible. Their studies for the Peter Cator examination brought them frequently to the Rev. G. Krishnayya with questions, so that most of his evenings were occupied in assisting them. Two Brahman youths expressed a desire for baptism. Mr. Krishnayya received a visit from the Rajah of Bhadrachelam, whom he describes as "an old friend," apparently a former pupil in the school. He found that he had not forgotten "the Gospel way of salvation through the blood and righteousness of the Incarnate Son of God," which he had taught him many years before. Mr. Krishnayya sometimes administers the Holy Communion to the English congregation, as well as assisting at the Telugu services. These two congregations, English and Telugu, worship in the same church.

A Rajah remembers the truths learnt in a Mission school.

Of the 1,406 confirmees in the Telugu districts in February, 1900, more than one-third belonged to the Ellore Pastorates, namely, 539. At Veeravalli, one of the three centres, at which the services took place, the Christians erected a spacious shamyana (marquee), to seat the 500 Christians and many non-Christians who were present at the service; 200 were confirmed on this occasion. After the service, Mr. Alexander mentions, the chief magistrate of the place, a Heathen, brought his three sons to the Bishop and asked him to give them his blessing, an evidence of a wonderful change of native feeling that has taken place within Mr. Alexander's recollection. In Ellore the Bishop addressed some 500 non-Christians in the church. The adherents throughout the district, notwithstanding the ill-effects of scarcity of food, increased by about 250, and the communicants by 186; of the latter Mr. Alexander says that "not one was admitted without a thorough knowledge of the Sacrament questions in the Catechism, and a full acquaintance with the institution of it by our Lord, and its uses in the Christian life." Mr. Alexander is much encouraged by the attitude of many of the young people in his district; branches of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. increased in number, and proved powerful auxiliaries, especially in providing helpers in the evangelistic work, Sunday-schools, &c. The baptisms of the year were numerous, embracing altogether 385 persons, of whom 170 were adults. Mr. Alexander says:—

A wide movement among low-caste people.

There is a very wide movement going on among Malas and Madigas, and I do believe it is extending to the caste people. Never before has the Gospel been so widely and efficiently preached, and surely that must be seen by signs following.

The Rev. G. H. Asirvatham had the care of the Ellore and Peddapad Pastorates. In the latter the forty-three baptized in 1899 at Pedda Lingala, as mentioned last year, continue steadfast, and some of them were among the confirmees at Yeeravalli referred to above. In the former pastorate, in December, 1900, Mr. Asirvatham and his colleague, the Rev. Maramudi Jeevaratnam, baptized ninety-three persons, adults and children, at Lingampad. These were selected, after examination, out of 125 candidates. Mr. Asirvatham says:—

Ninety-three baptized at one time.

I was astonished to see the way they grasped the truths of Christianity and answered to the questions asked, and their eagerness and desire to be baptized. A large pandal was erected for the occasion. Some of our agents from Ellore and surrounding villages were invited. Many addresses were given, and then the baptism was administered to them family by family. On the morning of the day of baptism a few ryots of the upper class (whose farm-servants a very few of them are) came and opposed their becoming Christians. But they stood firm, and said, "We have believed in Christianity and will be baptized. Please leave us alone." When I explained to those Hindu ryots what Christianity was, and how it makes people better men and women, they let our people alone and went their way. That day we had special prayers for the ryots, that they might not persecute the Christians. The next morning I went to see the Hindu ryots, and they were on good terms with our people, who were going on with their daily work as usual. I ask the earnest prayers of God's faithful people on behalf of the Christians of Lingampad, that they may be grounded in the faith, and not be afraid of persecution by their heathen masters. Now a great longing is going on in Lingampad amongst the Heathen to be instructed in the truths of Christianity. Besides, the Malas of the surrounding villages are awakened, and asked us to open schools for their children in their respective villages, and teach them the Christian truths. These villages are Bhogapuram, Argorigudem, Polsanipalli, and Nagulapalli. They have heard the preaching of the Gospel for a long time.

Three families were baptized at Ongagudem, eight persons at Ponange, and six at Mapparru. The other pastorates are Chintalapudi and Polsanipalli, under the Revs. Doutamala Shadrach and Mandapati Jonah respectively. In the latter pastorate, at Polsanipalli, the Christians showed a strong caste feeling two years ago, and refused to receive a trained Christian master of Chuckler origin, and the school was closed in consequence. Towards the end of 1900 the chief men intimated their willingness to receive the teacher, and he was sent. The surrender, however, was only half-hearted, and the poor man was treated with scant courtesy; nevertheless, Mr. Alexander claims a victory, and feels satisfied that the opposition will shortly wear away.

The Potaveram Itinerancy was worked by Mr. Asirvatham. Two new schools for caste children were opened during the year, the most hopeful, probably, of all ways to diminish the prejudice and opposition of these classes. Mr. Alexander writes:—

Christians of Mala origin teach Sudras and Brahmans.

> In these caste schools Sudras and Brahmans read, and over them are Christian men of Mala origin, whose parents are still alive, and are looked down upon as the offscouring of all things. Yet their sons teach the children of the highest castes, and live in the caste towns, an honour never allowed to Pariahs. Christianity raises the poor out of the dunghill, and sets him among princes.

The Rev. E. S. Tanner resided at Ellore during the past year, engaged in language study.

RAGHAVAPURAM.

Raghavapuram.

The Rev. H. W. Eales resumed charge of RAGHAVAPURAM district from the Rev. J. Stone in March, 1900. The Christians in this, as in the other districts of the Telugu country, being from the coolie or labouring classes, very few of them own any land, and those few lose their profits in paying heavy interest to money-lenders. The best off among them are the weavers and leather workers. Mr. Eales sees little prospect of the Church in his district becoming self-supporting. Nevertheless, he mentions that a poor Christian widow gave a sum of Rs. 40, scraped together during many years, to Mr. Stone on his coming to England, that he might purchase some suitable ornaments for the church at Raghavapuram—two brass candlesticks and a frontal for the pulpit. Eighty-one men and sixty-six women were confirmed in January, 1900, in the district. The Rev. Kalangi Ephraim succeeded the Rev. M. K. Ramiar in the charge of the Raghavapuram Pastorate, when the latter was transferred to the Masulipatam district. The Jaggiapett Pastorate, under the Rev. Atsanta Sabbarayudu, embraces the northern circle of the district. The three primary schools for Christian children are poorly attended, and the one for caste boys at Jaggiapett is not satisfactory, as it has not at present a Christian head-master. A Sunday-school for caste girls in Jaggiapett is held by Mrs. Sabbarayudu. When, in consequence of cholera, this school had to be closed for a time, Mrs. Sabbarayudu visited the girls at their homes and taught both them and their mothers to sing Christian lyrics. Mr. Sabbarayudu was himself a Brahman, hence he possesses advantages in his work among the caste people. The two Sudra inquirers of Togarai, mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 308), one of them a potter the other a tank-digger, were about to be baptized when the Annual Letters were dispatched. The potter had built a substantial prayer-house in his compound at his own expense. The Rev. J. Gnanapragasam was transferred from the Telugu Itinerancy to the charge of the Nandigama Pastorate, a new one, apparently, embracing the southern circles of the Raghavapuram district. Mr. Gnanapragasam is by race a Tamil, and consequently the Telugu country is a foreign land to him. In one of the examinations in the language which he had to undergo he had the misfortune to be plucked; but he was hopeful of success at his next attempt. Nandigama is only two miles distant from Raghavapuram, separated from it by a tributary of the Kistna River. It is the chief civil station of the Taluq of the same name, and is the place where the Tahsildar resides; it possesses a combined post and telegraph office, a sub-gaol, a hospital, &c. Twenty-eight out of the forty-four villages of the Pastorate have congregations, numbering about 500 baptized Christians. Besides the pastor, two catechists and ten teachers constitute the staff. In a village called Kanchakacharla five families who had lapsed in consequence of caste scruples, or of the oppression of Hindu landlords, returned to the Christian fold.

KHAMMAMETT.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Panes were mistakenly entered in the list of missionaries in the last Annual Report as on the way home on June 1st, 1900. They did not leave KHAMMAMETT to take their second furlough until January, 1901. Their previous furlough was commenced in the autumn of 1891, and Mr. Panes makes a comparison of the state of the work at the two dates. The number of villages occupied increased from forty-one to seventy-two; the adherents grew from 685 to 1,440, the baptized Christians from 427 to 988, and the communicants from 115 to 363. There were then six mud and straw thatched buildings, used as prayer-houses and schools in the district; now there are fourteen, some of them of a much improved type, and in addition to these there is a large and substantial church which cost some Rs. 6,000, towards which sum the local Christians gave about one-third. A widow, from whom Mr. Panes would not have expected more than a few annas, brought to him Rs. 16, and promised to save four rupees more towards the cost of this church. The contributions of the Christians in 1891 amounted to Rs. 395; in 1900—a year of general distress—they were Rs. 766; the year before they were Rs. 1,005. The paid workers of all grades in the district, who numbered twenty in 1891, are now forty. It is to the zeal and faithfulness of these fellow-labourers, under God, that Mr. Panes attributes the growth. At the same time, this progress has not been without vicissitudes. Mr. Panes writes:—

Khammamett.

We have had difficulties to overcome, crosses to take up, and trials which at times have caused us no little sorrow. Two famines, serious visitations of cholera, defection and backsliding on the part of some from whom we had hoped better things, a failure to get beyond the inquirers' stage on the part of others, and lack of progress in certain congregations, have furnished crosses and disappointments which have called from time to time for humiliation of self and unceasing prayer.

Besides such cases as the above, the scarcity in the district in the spring and summer of 1900 brought a considerable amount of anxious additional work.

The Bishop's visit.

Bishop Whitehead visited Khammamett and spent four days there in February, before the scarcity had set in. On February 2nd he dedicated the new church, St. Mary's, referred to above, when it was crowded with Christians from all parts of the district. On the same day 164 received the rite of confirmation. On the following day the Bishop addressed a gathering of the Christian workers, who, in response to his invitation to do so, freely plied him with questions. On the Saturday and Sunday of his visit 390 partook of the Holy Communion. His brightness and sympathy and his wise and experienced counsels endeared their new Bishop very greatly to Europeans and Natives alike.

There is a vast area of virgin soil awaiting the Gospel plough in and near the Khammamett district. Two hundred and sixty-eight villages are recognized as within reasonable walking distance of the stations and out-stations occupied, and beyond these are hundreds of others to which the Gospel has never yet come. Mr. Panes, in his journeys to visit the Christians, had frequent opportunities of speaking to Mohammedans and Hindus. At Zulurupad on one occasion he and his party encamped on the spot where some English officers had been engaged in tiger hunting a few weeks before. A bear's track was met with, but nothing more dangerous, by those in quest of souls. At this place is a huge well, built for travellers. The caste people refused to let the Christians touch it, but poured out water for them, and yet at the very time a Mohammedan was actually bathing in the well. This is, however, in the territory of a Mohammedan ruler! Mr. Panes' visit gave the Christians here their first opportunity of receiving the Lord's Supper; they were all Heathen a few years ago.

A District Church Council has been formed for the Khammamett district; its first meeting was held on January 1st, 1901.

DUMMAGUDEM.

Dummagudem.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Cain left DUMMAGUDEM to come home on furlough in March, 1900, and a few weeks later the Rev. W. J. Williamson arrived there from Ellore. The latter travelled the seventy miles through the jungle in a bullock cart, a journey occupying three nights—the heat being too severe for day travelling. A thunderstorm and sundry mishaps incidental to Eastern travel were encountered. He was attacked with fever soon after his arrival, and before he had regained his strength cholera broke out in the Girls' Boardin-school, carrying off six of the girls. A more serious trouble had to be faced at the same time. Three weeks before Mr. Williamson's arrival a catechist's house and other buildings had been burnt by incendiaries at Nallapalli, a large Christian village four miles from Dummagudem. Several of the Christians were gravely suspected of having committed the act, and, though they were acquitted, the judge (a European) intimated that their escape was due to other causes than their innocence, namely, to the ineptitude of one of the native officials. The famine was felt intensely in this district, and in August, when the new crops were coming up (but while the famine prices were still maintained), the River Godaveri rose four and a half feet higher than it had been ever known to rise before, destroying the first crops along its banks and making a breach in the embankment. Then, on September 20th, a still higher freshet came down the river and flooded the villages. The losses incurred by many of the poor people were very serious, and the deposit of mud and silt caused much sickness. Several school-houses were washed away, and the schoolmasters lost all they possessed.

III. TINNEVELLY.

The following returned to the Mission:—Mrs. H. J. Schaffter sailed in September, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Breed in October; and the Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Ardell and the Rev. J. C. McLeod Hawkins in November. Mr. Martin Browne and Miss E. C. Vines came home in April, 1901.

The opportunities which missionaries have of discharging a ministry of Gospel faithfulness to their countrymen on board ship while voyaging to and from the Missions are very many, and the Great Day alone will reveal to how many their words have proved a means of comfort and strength, and sometimes of life towards God. Now and then encouraging instances of the appreciation in which such labours of love are held are made known. For example, Mr. Ardell on his journey back to India, having had a letter of introduction kindly given him by the Secretary of the S.P.C.K. to the captain of the ship on which he travelled, was permitted to hold four services on each Sunday: a children's service; Morning Prayer in the first-class saloon, which was crowded; service on the third deck in the afternoon, when 300 were present; and evening service on the second deck, attended by nearly all the 150 second-class passengers and many of those of the first-class. Evangelistic services were held also on week-day evenings. Before the missionaries left the ship at Colombo, Sir George Pilkington, one of the passengers, thanked them in the name of all on board, and expressed a hope that God would abundantly bless their labours. Eighty of the passengers also subscribed to a "small tribute of acknowledgment."

Deaths of the Rev. V. Sargunam.

Two of the native clergy were removed by death. The Rev. Vedanayagam Sargunam, Chairman of the Palamcotta Circle Committee and Pastor of Palamcotta, died on July 11th, 1900. He was the son of an Inspecting Schoolmaster named Vedanayagam, whose service in connexion with the Society extended over a period of fifty years. Vedanayagam Sargunam was educated at Bishop Corrie's Grammar School in Madras, and at the Palamcotta Training Institution. For twenty years, from 1861 till 1881, he was engaged in education; then for two years he worked as an evangelist at Sachiapuram. Bishop Sargent admitted him to Deacons' Orders in 1883, and to Priests' Orders in 1885. From 1886 until the time of his death he laboured at Palamcotta, and for most of the time was in charge of Trinity Church. On the day of his death, being "Sangam Day," many missionaries, pastors, and church workers were at Palamcotta from different parts of Tinnevelly, and the assemblage at his funeral was in consequence unusually large. The Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura, the Rev. T. Kember, and the Rev. Isaac Gurubadham took part in the service.

an l Rev. A. Savarimuttu.

The Rev. Arulanandham Savarimuttu, pastor of Kallathikinaru, was the second pastor referred to. He died on November 6th. He was a convert from the Pallar caste. Like his brother in the ministry, he also was educated at the Palamcotta Institution, and was admitted to Deacons' and Priests' Orders in 1883 and 1885 by Bishop Sargent.

The work for which the Society is directly responsible in Tinnevelly consists of educational institutions for the training of agents and for reaching the Heathen with the message of the Gospel. The main part of the pastoral and evangelistic agencies are connected with the Tinnevelly District Church Council, of which the Rev. E. S. Carr is the chairman. As in previous Reports, it will be more convenient in the first instance to review the year's work of the several institutions worked by European missionaries, which are found at Palamcotta, Tinnevelly Town, and Mengnanapuram, and then to examine the work of the Native Church, in which also some of the Society's missionaries are privileged to have a share.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura admitted Mr. Asirvatham Nallathambi to Priests' Orders and Mr. Arulanandham

Manikan to Deacons' Orders at Mengnanapuram on August 19th, 1900; and on March 3rd, 1901, he admitted Messrs. Luke John and Swamidhason Vethamanikam to Deacons' Orders.

PALAMCOTTA.

Palamcotta. Preparandi Institution.

The Rev. T. Kember reports on the Preparandi Institution at PALAMCOTTA, which has two divisions, one for students preparing for the sacred ministry, the other, a normal department, for those under preparation for posts as schoolmasters, catechists, and evangelists. There were twenty-two in the theological classes, thirteen in the senior and nine in the junior class. All the students are members of a Bible and Prayer Union; many of them observe the "Morning Watch," rising early in the morning for reading, meditation, and prayer; and all take part in Sunday-school teaching and in preaching to the Heathen. The Normal Department had twenty-seven students, fifteen in the Primary and twelve in the Secondary Class. Eleven passed the written test in the Lower Secondary, and twelve the practical test; and thirteen both tests in the Primary Grade. In the Practising School the number of pupils is about ninety.

High School. Success in athletic sports.

The High School, under Mr. E. Keyworth, passed thirteen, all who were sent up, in the Peter Cator Scripture Examination; twelve passed the University Entrance out of twenty-one sent up; and twenty passed the Lower Secondary. In September the boys competed in some sports, got up by the superintendent of the gaol, who is a friend of the Mission. Eleven events were open to schools, and were competed for by Tinnevelly College, the Hindu College of Tinnevelly Town, the Roman Catholic High School, the S.P.G. Middle School at Nazareth, the C.M.S. High School, and the Mary Arden School. The High School boys gained eleven prizes, including four "firsts" and several "seconds." Mr. Keyworth attaches much importance to these athletic exercises, in view both of the present health and the future usefulness of the boys. There is a branch of the Y.M.C.A. among the High School boys, and its members, some sixty in number, go out on Sunday evenings to preach in neighbouring villages, taking with them violins, cymbals, and tambourines. The school dormitory has been extended, and can now accommodate 150 boarders. The Mary Arden School for non-Christian boys also had to be enlarged. It went up in number during the year from 159 to 203, and a new hall was added to the buildings, 52 by 17 feet. The aged headmaster of the Dohnavur Boys' Boarding-school has retired after forty years of service.

Sarah Tucker College.

The latest particulars to hand regarding the Sarah Tucker College are contained in the Report which was issued by the Principal, Miss A. J. Askwith (now at home), of the C.E.Z.M.S., for the year ending March 31st, 1900. There are over 400 pupils on its rolls. The results of the public examinations were in some respects better than those of the preceding year, but did not fully realize the hopes and ambitions of the staff. Four out of eight passed the Madras University Matriculation, seven out of twenty-eight the Lower Secondary, and about twenty the Primary. The Scripture examination results, however, could hardly have been better, as all the twenty-nine who were presented for the Peter Cator passed. Miss K. M. Richards, of the Travancore and Cochin Mission, rendered help in the school for six months, from June to December, 1900, when the staff was especially weak. She assisted in the First Arts and Matriculation classes, and took the English classes in some of the other forms, so that she was not hampered through her ignorance of Tamil. Ninety of the girls were confirmed in October, 1899, and, a few days later, eight of the College students who had entered as Heathen were baptized. The College Hospital had as many as 717 girls under treatment, but most of the ailments were of a trifling character. Three girls died, one a deaf and dumb child rescued from famine. Another died from consumption after cholera. The latter was a bright Christian. In reply to Miss Askwith's question, "Will it not be nice to see your father and mother soon?" she answered with a radiant face, "I want to see Jesus most, I shall see Him first." The two schools for blind boys and girls had 33 pupils, and three of the boys were baptized. In a branch school at Panneivilei, the blind boys are taught by a blind master, an old Palamcotta schoolboy who had passed the Primary Examination. So well does he teach his pupils that there has never yet been a failure in the Government examinations. The deaf and dumb children and the girls of the industrial class have been removed from the College buildings and placed in two bungalows rented in the town, where they are the special charge of Miss F. Swainson, of the C.E.Z.M.S. Three village boarding-schools and fifty branch schools, with two thousand children, are affiliated to the College. Some of these branch schools are supported by the C.E.Z.M.S. New College buildings were opened in November, 1900, and the Viceroy of India and Lady Curzon, in the course of their tour, already referred to more than once in this Annual Report, visited Palamcotta, and performed the ceremony of opening them. It was not possible, owing to the multiplicity of engagements, for the Viceroy to receive an address from the native pastors and Christians, but as many of them as possible assembled in the church compound.

Mrs. Kember has the Girls' Boarding-school under her charge, with the care of 118 girls, as full as it can well be, and probably fuller than it ought to be. Holy Scripture is the first lesson daily, and many of the children acquire a good knowledge of the Bible; all the elder girls succeeded in passing the Peter Cator. The teaching, Mrs. Kember says, is reverent, careful, and impressive, and the aid of the Holy Spirit is constantly sought, that this knowledge may make the children wise unto salvation. A class is daily held for one hour for the wives of students in the Preparandi Institution. Girls' Boarding-School.

TINNEVELLY TOWN.

The College at TINNEVELLY TOWN has some four hundred and twenty pupils on its roll. It passed thirteen through the Matriculation Examinations, one of them being twelfth in the whole Presidency, out of 4,000 candidates. Ten passed the First Arts, of whom one-half were Christians. The Principal of the College, the Rev. H. J. Schaffter, comments on the improved status now enjoyed by Christians in the eyes of the once disdainful Brahmans:— Tinnevelly College.

Twenty years ago I well remember the undisguised contempt with which the proud Brahmans looked down on the Christian students, leaving a separate bench in class for them to sit on. But all that is now wonderfully changed, and I was greatly gratified the other day at seeing a Pariah Christian student (a First Class Matriculate, by the way) walking down the chief Brahman street of the town with a Brahman student on each side, one with his arm locked in the Christian's, the other holding an umbrella over the party, both Brahmans deeply intent on a note-book the Christian held in his hands, containing notes on an important lesson that had been given that day. Contempt has given way to sincere regard, and in some cases real affection. Pariah Christian students and Brahman students on friendly terms.

The Hostel for Christian boys affords Mr. Schaffter very much happiness. Not a single complaint was made throughout the year against any of the inmates, while "their diligence, politeness, intelligence, cleanliness, and, above all, joy in Christian service, are a source of true joy and thankfulness."

MENGNANAPURAM.

The Elliot Tuxford School at MENGNANAPURAM was bereft of its honoured chief in December, 1899, when Mrs. Thomas died, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report (p. 291). In March, 1900, Miss Thomas came home on furlough, and her niece, Mrs. Douglas, wife of the Rev. E. A. Douglas, took temporary charge, assisted by Miss E. C. Vines (now at home). The latter writes of the encouragement afforded by the elder girls, many of whom are true Christians. The two senior classes have separate meetings for prayer every Sunday at 2 P.M., which they conduct themselves. Twelve of the girls, out of twenty-two who tried, passed the Lower Secondary examination. None competed for the Peter Cator, as only very few of the foremost girls are sufficiently acquainted with English to attempt it with any hope Elliot Tuxford School.

of success, and it was thought better to give the time to instructing a larger number in the knowledge of their Tamil Bible. The girls by the exercise of self-denial, putting aside a portion of their daily supply of rice, gave Rs. 8 for famine relief. The little branch school at Manad has on the average twelve children. Miss Vines says of these :—

Self-denial practised by school-girls.

> The way these young hearts have received Christ is wonderful. They have learnt to pray, and many have been the answers the loving Father has graciously vouchsafed to them. One man, a carpenter, had fallen from the roof of a house and had hurt his foot. He tried all sorts of remedies, and for a month it was swollen and he could not walk. He then came to the dispensary at Mengnanapuram and obtained some medicine. When he went home he said to his little daughter, "You have learnt to pray at school: pray that my foot may get well." She brought the medicine, rubbed it on, and then knelt down in front of a small crowd of people and prayed that God would make her father's foot well. The next day the father began walking about with a stick, and gradually got quite well. Since then the carpenters have listened most attentively when we have preached in their street; but the Vellalars, another caste in Manad, have been spreading reports against us, "that we rub medicine on our hands and then touch the children to make them become Christians."

A child's prayer.

THE TINNEVELLY DISTRICT.

Pastoral and evangelistic work.

The whole area which the Society has undertaken to evangelize, so far as it is enabled to do so, in the TINNEVELLY DISTRICT, is and has long been divided into pastorates, in which native clergymen, catechists, and school-teachers, who are appointed and paid by the Tinnevelly District Church Council, reside and labour. It follows, therefore, that all evangelistic work in this area, by whomsoever done, must be done within the boundaries of one or other of these pastorates, and that it should in consequence have the co-operation of the pastoral agents, and may be expected to be to these a source of help and encouragement in all their efforts for Christ. For these reasons, instead of reviewing the work of the Council Agencies and of the Itinerating Band separately, it will be more convenient first to introduce the workers, and then to give the information to hand in connexion with the several pastorates or circles of pastorates, taking them in the order in which they are enumerated in the list at the beginning of this Report.

Itinerating Band.

The Itinerating Band, on the Rev. J. McL. Hawkins leaving for furlough in the spring of 1900, was under the leadership of the Rev. Ll. G. Scott Price. Its other members were all Natives, some of them permanently connected with the Band, others only temporarily, as a part of their preparation and probation for the ministry. Among the permanent members is one, V. G. Subamoni, who is a lineal descendant of a celebrated Tanjore poet who enriched Christian Tamil literature with a number of beautiful lyrics. Subamoni is the fiddler of the band, and a very accomplished one from the Tamil point of view. "It is quite fascinating,"

An accomplished musician.

Mr. Scott Price says, "to watch him when the frenzy seizes his soul." His caste extraction gives him the readier access to high-caste Hindus. Another permanent member is David, who receives only the barest maintenance allowances, as he is anxious to preach the Gospel as far as possible without charges. He is described as a very earnest man, who speaks well and to the point. The third is Vedamattu, who has charge of the sale of Gospels, and sold during the past year 492 Gospel portions to Hindus of every caste, from Brahmans to Pariahs. Of the temporary members, two were preparing for orders on the title of the District Council, one a graduate, and the other a Matriculate of Madras University. After two years with the Band, if approved, they will be recommended for further training at the Divinity School, Madras. Another who was with the Band for a short time was under probation for employment by the Missionary Association of the Tinnevelly Church. Moreover, the Jones' Fund Evangelists joined the Band whenever it approached the localities where they individually laboured. A young fellow who had special gifts for addressing children, and a lad with a good voice for assisting in the singing, lately converted at the Panneivilei Boys' Boarding-school, accompanied the Band on some of its tours. Mrs. Scott Price, though mentioned last, was an invaluable co-worker, as she was able to teach the village women, whose ignorance is generally most lamentable, wherever the Band was encamped. Seven tours were taken during the year, of which five were in North Tinnevelly and two in the south.

Sale of Scriptures.

The Rev. E. S. Carr,* the Chairman of the District Church Council, makes some general remarks in his Annual Letter on the district generally and on the Pastorates as a whole. Following on the riots of 1899 there were numerous highway robberies, bands of men going about with torches lighted and attacking villages. The Rev. T. Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Carr were encountered by a party of these men, and Mr. Carr was laid aside for several days in consequence of their rough usage. Things became so serious that the Inspector-General of Police and his deputy made their headquarters for a time at Palamcotta. The attack on the missionaries occurred as they were returning from a Harvest Festival at Surandei. These festivals were observed at eight centres during the past year. They were not so well attended as in some previous years, but the disturbed state of the district would probably, in a great measure, account for that. The Week of Prayer (from November 11th to 17th), in connexion with the Y.M.C.A., was generally observed in Tinnevelly, as also was Sunday, November 18th, as a day of special prayer for India and Ceylon. Mr. Carr observes with thankfulness that from these "days of prayer" little bands have arisen here and there in the district, who continue to pray for the awakening of India. There were again, as for some years past, a large number of cases calling for the exercise of ecclesiastical discipline. Mr. Carr says:—

Cases of discipline.

Irregularities have again caused the excommunication of some 375 persons. One expected the number of these irregularities to decrease year by year, but they seem to range between 250 and 400 annually. We find not infrequently that people are here and there offering to devils in times of sickness and difficulty, showing the tremendous hold these old habits have on them. The irregularities in marriage are mainly due to the unwillingness of the people to marry those outside their own caste and family, considerations of property being sometimes, though not always, at the bottom of it. One cannot help feeling that this spirit must pass away before the Church can have a very strong hold upon the people. May God hasten the day!

Restoration of excommunicated persons.

On the other hand, nearly fifty who had been excommunicated in former years submitted to discipline and were restored to communion. Some feel the excommunication keenly, but others appear to regard it with indifference. Mr. Carr had much pleasure in welcoming the co-operation of a namesake, but not related, Mr. A. J. Carr, sent in 1899 by the New Zealand Association. The office work in connexion with the numerous circles and pastorates has long been recognized as too heavy for the Chairman to do without skilled and reliable aid. Mr. A. J. Carr has taken the work which the late Mr. W. H. Wise did till the time of his death.

Progress in fifty years.

Pastorates and Circles.

The number of pastorates is fifty-five, forty-four in South Tinnevelly and eleven in North Tinnevelly, and these pastorates are arranged in "Circles," which may be compared to Rural Deaneries in this country. In most instances one of the pastors working in the "Circle" is appointed Chairman of the Circle Committee, which has considerable executive responsibility, while at the same time its proceedings are liable to revision by the District Council. Only six of the forty-nine native clergy have sent Annual Letters, so that it is not possible to report, one by one, on all the Circles, much less on all the pastorates; but the few of which accounts have been received may be taken as samples of the rest.

The congregations in the Dohnavur Circle are reported by the Rev. T. Walker—who went, with Mrs. Walker, in the spring of 1900 to reside at Dohnavur, where a class of ordination candidates was reading with him—to be very dead, and the Heathen most indifferent.

Of Panneivilei Circle also, where Mr. Walker resided in the last months of 1899, engaged in conducting special Missions among some of the Christian congregations, his account is not encouraging. In this Circle the Rev. Jesudiyan Gnanapragasam was placed in charge of the pastorate of Kylasapuram after his ordination in 1899, and from his Annual Letter a good idea of the conditions and agencies in a progressive and well-worked pastorate may be gathered. Mr. Gnanapragasam is the son of a catechist, and was educated at the Palamcotta High School up to the Matriculation Examination, which he passed. He then was in the Dohnavur training class, under the late Rev. P. David, after which he joined the Itinerating Band, and proceeded thence to the Madras Divinity School. He obtained a Second Class in the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination for Orders, and Bishop Gell's First Greek Testament prize in 1898. The pastorate in which he labours has 552 baptized Christians, residing in fourteen villages, and he has the assistance of nine teachers, two of them females. On Sundays, at the mother church of the pastorate, there are three services, that in the afternoon for children; and after the morning service there are Bible-classes for men, women, and children—in effect a Sunday-school for all ages. After the evening service members of the congregation go in procession, singing, to the houses of some of the Christians, and conduct prayer-meetings, returning to the church, where the "blessed day is closed with prayers and benediction." Daily, morning and evening, there are prayers in church. The attendance is apparently very small, and only averages seven in the evenings. On three evenings of the week, after prayers in church, there is Bible study, with catechizing. On another evening there is special prayer for the awakening of India. On Saturday evenings there is an open prayer-meeting and communion or confirmation class. The communicants number 218, an increase of thirty-eight in the past year. A forty days' Mission was held, beginning on August 9th. The Children's Scripture Union has 58 members. The church has been enlarged, a debt of Rs. 104 paid off, and a sum of

Rs. 400 was in hand at the close of the year. The aim is cherished of raising Rs. 3,000 towards an Endowment Fund.

Mengnanapuram.

The chairman of the Mengnanapuram Circle is the Rev. Joseph David, who is Chairman also of two neighbouring Circle Committees, those of Asirvathapuram and Sathankulam. The Mengnanapuram Circle contains three pastorates; its native staff consists of four native clergymen (one of them a qualified medical man), one inspector of schools, fifteen catechists, twenty schoolmasters, fifteen schoolmistresses, and three Bible-women. There are 55 villages containing Christians, of whom the total number is 5,642, and 1,527 are communicants. Over eight hundred children are under instruction in day-schools. No Annual Letter has been received from Mr. Joseph David, but the Rev. E. A. Douglas, who resides at Mengnanapuram, and whose wife, as already mentioned, has temporary charge of the Elliot Tuxford School, feels it a privilege to assist, so far as in him lies, the growth of the spiritual life of the congregations, and realizes that in doing this he is not only strengthening the Church of Christ, but is also promoting in the surest way the evangelization of the district. He refers to the ordination at Mengnanapuram on August 19th (see supra, page 337), and reminds the Committee of the former occasion when an ordination was held at the station. This was on March 2nd, 1856, when Bishop Dealtry, of Madras, admitted four Europeans and two Natives to Priests' Orders, and one Native, Paul Daniel, to Deacons' Orders, and the Rev. W. Knight, a Secretary of the Society, who was on a visit to India, was present. It was of this Mr. Paul Daniel that the Rev. J. Thomas said, "If such sermons as he preached were delivered in any pulpit in London the church would be crowded to overflowing," though he had never been in a theological institution and knew not a word of any language except his native Tamil. The above-mentioned visit of Bishop Morley was his second to Mengnanapuram during the year. He had paid a previous visit in February on the occasion of the Harvest Festival, and held confirmations both there and at Sathankulam and Asirvathapuram. The candidates at the three places numbered 321. The offerings at the Thanksgiving amounted in money and kind to Rs. 463. On the subject of giving Mr. Douglas writes:—

Two ordination services forty-four years apart.

Joyful givers.

> This year our people here, far from regarding the giving of their annual contributions as a kind of "temple tax," as the Hindus do, kept the Sangam Day (it was entirely their own idea) as a feast day, killing some sheep and distributing portions among the various families, and after assembling under the large spreading village tamarind-tree they marched singing to the church, and at the end of a three hours' meeting it was found that every man there had paid his contribution in full, and that there was not a single pie deficit.

The Christians throughout the Circle appear resolved to accept responsibility for self-support, so far as the Circle is concerned, to the extent at least of seeking no pecuniary aid from the funds of the District Church Council, while continuing, of course, as at present, subject to all the Council rules. A Memorial Service was held in Mengnanapuram Church when the news of the Queen's death was received, at which about a thousand people were present. Mr. Douglas expresses his thoughts clearly and not despondently on the subject of the spiritual dangers as well as the spiritual helps of the people :—

A Memorial Service after the Queen's death.

I am not by any means blind to the "weaknesses" and "sins" which are amongst us. The light view of sin, the "cheap" idea of forgiveness, the fatal facility for lying and deceit, the passion for money and the law courts, the "blindness in part" to the truth of the keeping power of Christ, the withering influence of caste spirit, and the bondage of custom—all these I see ; but for all that I firmly believe that Christianity has struck its roots into the heart of the people, and has an uplifting, enlightening, and emancipating power amongst us. I believe that one proof of this is seen in the fact that although, owing to increased rigour in discipline, several are (especially for irregular marriages) excommunicated every year, yet a very small minority indeed of these ever go back to Heathenism or sink to the hole of the pit whence they were digged. There must be some working power (ἐνεργεία) which holds them. And again in the trial time of cholera, whilst the Heathen leave their villages in panic and wander in the jungle as sheep without a shepherd, when heathen wives desert their own husbands, and when no one is left to bury the dead, at such times the Christian faith of our people burns brightly in contrast, and even the Heathen can see that the Christians have a boldness begotten of hope to which they are strangers. Surely there must be some sense of the presence of Christ and His overshadowing wings which makes itself thus felt. But, while thankfully recognizing the power that now works, we long (though not, I trust, with an inactive longing) for the fire to fall from on high ; the fire which will burn out the sin, and burn off the cords, and burn in the love which constrains. We crave this baptism of fire for ourselves and for our people.

Conduct of Heathen and Christians contrasted in time of cholera.

"The fire that burns out the sin, and burns in the love."

A personal visit to the congregations, the holding of special Mission services in various centres, and especially (it is a gracious opportunity) the monthly meeting of agents in these centres, are among the means by which in the past year it has been sought to deepen the Church's spiritual life. Lovers of songs, and dearly liking the joyous times of festivals and the more informal gatherings for prayer in courtyards of houses or in the streets by night or under some spreading tree ; with a strong vein of Old Testament theology in their nature which finds its expression in vows and offerings ; understanding perhaps more the "thou shalt" and "thou shalt not" of the law than the fuller liberty of the Gospel ; yet containing among their number an inner core of souls whose hearts have been drawn by the higher influences of the Holy Spirit, and who, no longer satisfied with the "lower level" of mere freedom from the guilt of sin, are reaching out and grasping the higher life and fuller liberty of the Spirit, and who by life, preaching, and literature are spreading the healthful influence abroad ; a people teachable and responsive to efforts made on their behalf and imbued with a strong sense of the heaven-sent nature of a Christian guru—these are a people for whom one gladly spends and is spent.

In March, 1900, Mr. Douglas had the joy of baptizing fifty-seven persons, of whom thirty were adults, at Tiruvarangapati. There was a Christian congregation in the village in former years, but twenty years ago they lapsed back to Heathenism, and the large devil temple was for many years the scene of frequent midnight revelries. Their return is not due to any outward influence, Mr. Douglas says, nor have the people a very deep sense at present of the sin of idolatry and devil worship, but they appear to be mainly influenced by a sense of its uselessness, and regard the past twenty years as "idle" years, without profit or progress, because apart from the true religion and the true God. They evidently need much instruction, and it may be questioned whether further delay in baptizing would not have been more wise. They retain some of their former superstitious notions regarding lucky and unlucky days, the watching of omens, a blind belief in visions and dreams, &c. On the other hand, they have stood firm against the entreaties of relatives to make surreptitious offerings at the devil temple, and they are eager to rebuild their old church, long since fallen into decay, the doorstep of which is the idol they formerly worshipped. Sixty others in the village are under preparation for baptism. The Rev. M. H. Cooksley assists in the clerical work both at Mengnanapuram and in the villages of the pastorate, but he is mainly occupied in his capacity as a medical man. The total number of patients treated during the year was 7,000 out-patients and five in-patients. He says: "Hindus, Mohammedans, Native Christians, and other classes of people receive medical aid at our hands, and all meet together and take medicines from the same cup without distinction. They are chiefly told of Jesus Christ, the great and only Physician of both soul and body." The dispensary is an old building with wood walls (beginning to crack) and thatched roof.

Dispensary.

The Rev. Paramanandham Gnanakan Simeon, a B.A. of Madras University, is chairman of Suvisêshapuram Circle, and also of that of Dohnavur. His report is mainly confined to his own pastorate, that of Suvisêshapuram, in which there were sixteen adult baptisms. At each full moon, when the people are accustomed to be up late enjoying the moonlight, occasion is taken to visit in turn the heathen villages in the pastorate, of which there are over forty. The twenty-one agents and a number of volunteers, including some boys able to help in the singing, meet at 4 p.m. for united prayer and proceed together to the place selected; there they again unite in prayer, after which they parade the streets singing lyrics, stopping to preach wherever the people are assembled in sufficient numbers, two or more addresses being delivered at each stand. The preaching closes at nine or ten p.m., and the preachers disperse after uniting once more in prayer at the village chapel or at a Christian's house, and partaking together of a common meal. Mr. Simeon notes with thankfulness "the animation, sympathy, joy, and consciousness of strength in the Lord," which these moonlight preachings engender among the workers. He refers to an increasing desire on the part of the Christians to erect more substantial churches. Two stone and mortar churches with tiled roofs were completed in the Circle during the past year, and at least two others are in course of construction.

The Rev. D. M. Pakkianadhan is chairman of the Surandei Circle, and refers to the backsliders of former years :—

Backsliding congregations.

One sad feature of this Circle is the total backsliding of several congregations in times past. Almost all the villages within this Circle have once been Christian. Everywhere we see traces of their old Christianity. People assign all sorts of unacceptable reasons for their falling back. Some seem to be sorry for what they have done; others are indifferent; others, again, promise to return; but the hard-hearted lot among them fight against every conviction. With all their religious prejudice and indifference they receive us politely and give heed to what we say. I have moved frequently among them and tried to win them back. Their promises, I find, are only unmeaning and untrue. Still, I have not given up all hope of their returning to the fold. Prayers are often made on their behalf. They may still find happiness and peace in Christ. May the Spirit of the Lord work mightily in their cold hearts, and lead them to the Saviour of sinners, that they may obtain forgiveness of their sins and a blessed inheritance with the saints in light!

When Mr. Pakkianadhan says that all the villages were once Christian, he doubtless means that they contained Christian congregations, as in the same letter he distinguishes between those lapsed Christians and the non-Christians. The present attitude of the latter, he says, is very encouraging, there is very little of bitter opposition, but open doors and welcome voices are seen and heard on all sides. Mr. Pakkianadhan is responsible for the shepherding of two pastorates, those of Surandei and Uttumalei, having 1,700 baptized Christians and 319 communicants. During the year he administered the Holy Communion forty-six times at eight different centres; he baptized eighty-one, sixteen of them adults, and he married twenty-two couples. He has sixteen schools and 589 children, most of whom are non-Christians.

A native writer of two hundred books

The two last Circles on the list, the Sachiapuram and Vagaikulam Circles, are in North Tinnevelly. The late Rev. Samuel Paul, whose death was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 292), and whose valuable literary work in translating and adapting various books (great and small his publications are said to have numbered more than 200) obtained for him as a Queen's birthday honour in 1897 the title of Rao Sahib, was the chairman of both these Circles. It has, unhappily, not been found possible to fill his place from the ranks of the Indian clergy, as those who were eligible for appointment could not be spared from their present spheres. Consequently, the Rev. E. S. Carr, the chairman of the District Council, took the chairmanship temporarily, and now the Rev. F. W. Breed has accepted the position. His appointment makes no change in the relation of the Circles to the District Council. North Congregations small and scattered.

Tinnevelly is the most backward part of the whole district. The congregations being small and scattered it is difficult to make adequate provision for their instruction, consequently the people are more ignorant than those in the south, and irregular marriages and other compliances with and relapses to Heathenism are sadly frequent. Sometimes, indeed not unfrequently, it has occurred that agents have left the work without notice, and congregations have been left untended and schools untaught. Mr. and Mrs. Carr made a six weeks' tour in this part of the district in the summer of 1900. The people were in an agitated state of mind, and on three occasions murder occurred close to where they were or had been encamped; while on another occasion their approach to a village with a lantern about midnight gave rise to a general alarm that a torch-light robbery was threatened. They found some bright and encouraging instances of true faith and devotion. Mr. Carr says:—

A bright widow convert.

At one place we had the joy of finding a woman who was living a life of daily walk and fellowship with Christ, a poor widow, who had nothing to live on save what she could earn by daily work. She had been converted about eight months before at a Mission held by Mrs. Walker and Miss Carmichael for the C.E.Z.M.S. agents in North Tinnevelly, others being invited to attend some of the meetings. She had lost her eldest son since then, and, instead of bemoaning her fate as so many, even of the Christians, do, she praised God in her prayers for having taken her husband and her son from this weary and sinful world to be with Him. She has only one little boy left, and, instead of making him work and try to earn something for the home, she sends him to the village school so that he may learn to read the Bible, herself trying to learn from him at night-time so that she may be able to read it too. It was a treat to talk to her and pray with her, and was an instance of what grace can do in the humblest and simplest of lives, where no previous advantages exist. May God raise up more like her!

The Itinerating Band also, as already mentioned (see supra, page 341), made several tours in North Tinnevelly. Mr. Scott Price refers to a woman at a village called Thuraiyar who joined the Band uninvited at their morning prayer, and was judged to be actuated by inquisitiveness, but it transpired that her heathen husband hindered her from attending the means of grace, and she joyfully seized the opportunity of worshipping with fellow-Christians whose tent she happened to be passing while they were thus engaged; it was also ascertained that she was most earnest in speaking to women and girls who worked by her side in the cotton fields. At Saher, the Tahsildar lent his house for an exhibition of Scripture slides, and his large courtyard was filled with higher caste men, including Government officials and the élite of the town. At Kanjampati, while Mr. Price was sitting at his tent door under the shade of a banyan tree, a Hindu approached him, who showed an intimate acquaintance with Holy Scripture and with Christian lyrics. He told Mr. Price that he had learned what he knew in the time of the Rev. R. R. Meadows (1852–1878). He seemed to know the Gospel perfectly, but the Holy Spirit had not touched his heart nor brought conviction of sin. At Gangaikondan a number of boys bought Gospel portions, and while Mr. Price was speaking to them a Brahman dispersed them, seizing one of them by the hair and threatening the rest; but as soon as Mr. Price quietly took out a packet of Mrs. Grimké's Tamil text-cards and began to distribute them the crowd of boys immediately returned and the Brahman gave up his attempt in despair. Text-cards were given to all who could repeat the text on which the address had been based. The Rev. Simeon Anandham Daniel, of Sankaranainârkoil Pastorate, the last in the long list, mentions that one of the monitors in his school is blind, and was educated at the blind school connected with the Sarah Tucker College, Palamcotta. His people, he says, contributed Rs. 50 to the Twentieth Century Enterprise.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Western Ghats and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam, 1817; Cochin, 1817; Mavelikara, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission, 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy, 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to the See, and was consecrated on April 25th, 1890.

Death of Rev. E. Bacheler Russell.

ONE who laboured faithfully and fruitfully, though for a short period only, in the Travancore and Cochin Mission, was taken suddenly to be with Christ in the autumn of 1900. The Rev. E. Bacheler Russell's name was not formally on the list of C.M.S. missionaries, but his services were offered to and accepted by the Committee in 1894 for special and very important work in India. A few weeks before his offer, in view of the blessing which had rested on the Special Winter Missions conducted in India and Ceylon by eight clergy and laymen in 1887–88, and by others subsequently both in India and elsewhere, the Committee had instructed the Secretaries to seek for a suitable clergyman who would be willing to go to India as a resident Missioner for a period of three or four years, and it was for that special work—the importance of which had been emphasized by the Conference of C.M.S. Indian missionaries held at Bombay in 1893—that Mr. Bacheler Russell was accepted. He was to have sailed in the autumn of 1895, but the death of his first wife in the summer of that year obliged him to defer his departure, and he sailed in October, 1896, mainly at his own charges, with instructions to proceed in the first instance to Travancore and commence his labours among the Syrian Christians and those connected with the Society. He was so much encouraged by the welcome accorded to him and by the evident blessing on his labours that, after spending the summer of 1897 in England, he proceeded again with Mrs. Bacheler Russell to Travancore for a second winter campaign in 1897–98. He was appointed Vicar of the important parish of Leyton, in Essex, in 1899. His death resulted from a bicycle accident while taking a holiday in Scotland in September, 1900.

The Ven. Archdeacon and Mrs. J. Caley came home on furlough in May, 1900, and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Richards in May, 1901. The Rev. J. I. MacDonald was married on April 10th to Miss Jessie Violet Ellen Sinclair.

Ordinations.

On the third Sunday in Advent, December 23rd, 1900, Bishop Hodges, of Travancore and Cochin, admitted the Rev. J. I. MacDonald to Priests' Orders, and on March 3rd, 1901, he admitted Mr. Cirakkekutta Itty Mani to Deacons' Orders.

Progress during Bishop Hodges' Episcopate.

The Bishop, who was consecrated on St. Mark's Day, 1890, at the same time as Bishop Tucker, has sent home a brief review of the past ten years. He has during that period admitted sixteen to Deacons' Orders and seventeen to Priests' Orders, one of the deacons having been for Trevandrum, where the congregation is self-supporting and not connected with the Society. The Bishop has confirmed 7,461 persons. The agents—pastoral, evangelistic, and scholastic—increased in the ten years from 264 to 597, including about one hundred female agents as Bible-women and schoolmistresses. The same period has also seen six Anglo-Vernacular schools established; the Cottayam College raised to a second-grade college; the Cambridge Nicholson Institution recognized by the Madras Government as an upper secondary training institution; the Anglo-Vernacular school at Trichur raised to a high school; the Buchanan Institution opened at Pallam, which has eleven branch schools; and Miss Baker's* school raised to a middle school, with branch schools attached. The schools increased in number from 189 to 258, and the scholars from 6,351 to 12,269. The baptized Christians were 22,388 in 1890 and 35,910 in 1900, and there are 5,977 unbaptized adherents, as compared with 3,549 in 1890. Of these 41,887 the Bishop estimates that 25,215 belong to the Depressed Classes and 3,054 are Hill Arrians.

The Rev. T. Walker spends three months among the Syrian Christians.

The Rev. T. Walker, of the South India Mission (Tinnevelly), in response to a pressing invitation from Mar Thoma (the Metropolitan Bishop of the Reformed Syrian Christians of Travancore), which Bishop Hodges and Archdeacon Caley warmly seconded, spent three months at the beginning of 1900 in holding special Mission services for the Syrian congregations. He wrote:—

> I found division and misunderstanding sadly rife. The Plymouth Brethren (open) had got among the people, and several hundreds of them had already been re-baptized and formed into separate bodies. It was most difficult, under the circumstances, to steer a wise course. The conservatives wanted me to preach down re-baptism. The separatists wished me to expose the corruption of the old Malabar Church. Others would have me confirm their particular tenets. It was sad to see the people scattered and divided as sheep without a shepherd; many of them without that proper confidence in their own kattanar, or minister, without which they can never hold together as a church. Litigation with a view to retaining possession of their ancient church buildings, claimed in many cases by the unreformed party in communion with the Patriarch of Antioch, has introduced a spirit of strife and worldliness which tends to make "confusion worse confounded." Well, I followed carefully the programme prepared for me by Mar Thoma and his suffragan, Mar Titus. Missions were conducted in some eighteen different centres. There were morning meetings, intended more especially for true Christians, and evening meetings of an evangelistic type, with impromptu Bible-readings in the afternoons. Most of the meetings were held in open pandals, with just a roof of cocoanut matting overhead. Everywhere crowds of people came together and listened eagerly to the Word of God. I was entertained by the Syrian Christians themselves, in their own houses for the most part, and look back with pleasure on those three months spent among them. Towards the end of the period we held a large Holiness Convention in a huge pandal erected in the dry bed of the River Rana. For six days the crowds assembled to hear those truths which are usually dealt with at such conventions: the sinfulness of sin, the sufficiency of Christ, the need of absolute surrender to His Mastership, the baptism of the Holy Ghost, the call to missionary and evangelistic work. The strain of those six days was very great; but the encouragements and testimonies evinced were exhilarating. It seemed advisable to make an effort to draw the divided parties in the Church together, and, with the Metran's full approval, and by his personal invitation, a conference of the leading kattanars and clergy was convened, with certain C.M.S. brethren as assessors and advisers, viz., Archdeacon Caley, and the Revs. J. H. Bishop, J. J. B. Palmer, and T. K. Joseph. Various measures for promoting the unity and welfare of the Church were suggested, but the chief outcome of this important Conference was the appointment of a Revision Committee to overhaul the Syrian Liturgy, it being admitted by all that a leaven of objectionable doctrine still remains in it. The Rev. J. J. B. Palmer (C.M.S.) was invited to act as convener of this Committee, and he and the Rev. T. K. Joseph (also of the C.M.S.) to serve as advisory assessors. I am thankful to hear that the Revision of the Liturgy is going on apace, and trust it will make for purity and unity. Mr. Palmer has evinced the warmest interest in it, and has the confidence of all the reformed Syrians. I may just mention that this Conference was preceded by some "Quiet Days" for the Syrian kattanars, when we had some searching times over the great pastoral Epistle, 1 Timothy. I do not speak of results, even of the most apparent ones, for the servant's work is to toil faithfully and believingly and to lay all the glory at his Master's feet.

CHURCH COUNCILS.

The Council system for the training of the congregations in self-support was commenced in Travancore in 1869. In 1873 two District Church Councils were formed, those of Cottayam and Mavelikara, each embracing a number of Pastorates, and, at the same time, a Provincial Church Council, with delegates from the two District Councils, was called into being. In 1894 and 1896 respectively two additional Church Councils, those of Tiruwella and Melkavu, were formed.

The nine Pastorates (that of Mundakayam was transferred during the past year to the Melkavu Church Council) of the COTTAYAM CHURCH COUNCIL contain fifty-six congregations, 15,390 adherents, sixty-eight schools, and 3,183 pupils. The contributions of the Pastorates (including Mundakayam), to the Sustentation Fund amounted to Rs. 2,905. Taking the pastorates in order, from north to south, as they are given in the list at the beginning of this Report. The three out-stations of the Kunnankulam Pastorate are a source of anxiety to the Rev. M. P. Matthan. He fears there is but a "name to live" among them. Excellent and increasing attendances at the Sunday services encourage the Rev. A. E. David at Trichur, in the Trichur Pastorate. The congregation has 379 communicants. A Y.M.C.A. shows signs of new vigour. Some of the members commenced a prayer-meeting to plead for an awakening. During the holidays several visited neighbouring places to preach Christ to the Heathen, meeting their own expenses. A Total Abstinence Society also does a good work, and drinking in public, Mr. David says, has almost ceased. The Christians in the Cochin Pastorate, under the Rev. T. K. Ninan, agreed unanimously, at a meeting held to discuss the financial position, to double their subscriptions. Twenty-five adults were baptized by the Rev. K. T. Koshi in the Allepie Pastorate, one being a young man belonging to an influential Nair family. At first he confronted the Bible-women who visited his village and sought to silence them, but one of them succeeded in convincing him of the folly of idolatry. The contributions in this pastorate advanced from Rs. 969 to Rs. 1,216. Olesha Pastorate welcomed one of the deacons ordained in March, 1900, the Rev. C. C. Thommen, the Rev. E. V. John, of Cottayam, visiting the pastorate to administer the Holy Communion and supervise the work. Four of the former congregations of the Pallam Pastorate have been separated to form the Erikada Pastorate, which is at present without an ordained pastor. In the Arpukara Pastorate there were fifty-five adult baptisms during the year. The Rev. A. J. Pathen writes: "I am happy to note that the Church is growing in the grace of God through the knowledge of His Son." The Rev. T. K. Benjamin, of the Cottayam Pastorate, reports that about sixty women subscribe for the "Notes on Daily Readings," published by the Scripture Union. Three Sunday-schools are worked by the young men of the congregation. The congregations of the Changanachery Pastorate have been distributed, four being added to the Pallam Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Chandy. The Nedugadapalli Pastorate is a new one, formed at the beginning of 1900 by uniting some congregations of the former Changanachery Pastorate with three congregations of the Mallapalli Pastorate (connected with the Mavelikara Council), which are on the western side of the River Mallapalli. Special Mission services were conducted in two of the congregations, those of Kurumpanadam and Eloowanthanam, by the Rev. T. K. Joseph, the Diocesan Missioner. The numbers attending were so large that many had to stand outside the churches.

which the smallest and most southerly, Kannit, has at present no ordained pastor. There are sixty-one congregations, 11,553 adherents, seventy-five schools, and 2,981 pupils in these pastorates, and Rs. 2,624 was contributed to the Sustentation Fund. The separation of the important congregation at Nedugadapalli from the Mallapalli Pastorate (referred to above), caused anxiety at first that the finances of the pastorate would be seriously affected, but such was not the case. The Harvest Festival produced Rs. 156. The pastorate, under the Rev. K. P. Varkey, still contains 2,660 adherents. Four new congregations were formed in the Mavelikara Pastorate, the most distant of them being twenty-five miles from the mother church. On August 22nd, 1900, the Bishop unveiled a tablet at Mavelikara in memory of the Rev. Joseph Peet who died there in 1865. During the same visit the Bishop dedicated a new church at Gnakanal. At Kunnum 140 people joined the congregation from Heathenism, most of them being Pariahs. The Rev. P. P. Joseph, of Kattanam Pastorate, expresses gratitude to the Bishop, as do many of the other pastors, for assisting with grants and loans from his diocesan fund towards the building and restoration of churches. The Rev. M. C. Thoma, who was transferred to the Putupalli Pastorate in the spring of 1900, remarks on the lack of Scripture knowledge of his people and on the general apathy in matters of religion. He is disposed to attribute the latter to their intercourse with Mohammedans, and to the influence of the "Six Years' Party," which readers of former Annual Reports will remember flourished in this district. He has thought it well to catechize instead of preaching at the Sunday services, and he has started Bible-classes.

Ignorance and apathy.

Tiruwella Church Council.

In connexion with the TIRUWELLA CHURCH COUNCIL there are thirty-one congregations, 6,024 adherents, twenty-five schools, 872 pupils, and Rs. 420 were contributed to the Sustentation Fund. The sum just mentioned is only a fraction of the whole sum contributed. The 2,723 Christian adherents of the Tiruwella Pastorate, under a resident deacon, the Rev. K. P. Oomen, contributed over Rs. 860. A new congregation was formed at Mannar, where forty people placed themselves under instruction; the head-man gave Rs. 75 towards purchasing the site for a school. Puwattur Pastorate has 1,924 adherents and seven congregations, under the Rev. A. O. Matthai. The resident deacon in the Kaviur Pastorate, the Rev. W. C. Cherian, reports 167 adult baptisms. He also mentions, as several other pastors do in their Annual Letters this year, troubles from "Open Brethren" Salvationists, Extreme Reformers, and Faith Healers, who, he says, seem to direct their efforts exclusively to Christians.

The four hill pastorates which together form the MELKAVU

Church Council have nineteen congregations, 3,254 adherents, nineteen schools, 548 pupils; and three of them, excluding Mundakayam, contributed Rs. 421 towards the Sustentation Fund. The Rev. K. M. Matthai testifies of the Christians of the Erumapara Pastorate that in their attendance on the means of grace, in their mutual love and sympathy, and in liberality they surpass most of the low country congregations. Bishop Hodges, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Richards, visited the Mankompu Pastorate in November, 1899. Fifty candidates were confirmed, and afterwards 160 received the Holy Communion. Dr. Richards wrote:— Melkavu Church Council.

Mankompu is a lovely spot, with its trees, rocks, and cataracts, on the steep hillsides, and the backwater and the further sea visible over the lower hills. I went and saw a landslip; there had been several on a small scale, enough to render houseless four families. And this happened the week before, when we were due there. Twelve persons were in one house, and the land above them, sodden with moisture, slipped and came rushing in the fierce torrent down the hillside. Seeking to escape, they found the house surrounded by floods, and not knowing what was about to happen—a corner of the house had been struck—they all being Christians, betook themselves to prayer and reading. After two hours the great danger was over, but they found in the morning that the clearing with the cocoanut and other palms and their terracing were all swept away. They lost about Rs. 200 worth, their all, the labour of years, in a moment, but by the goodness of God no life was lost. "Betook themselves to prayer."

At Poongar, eight miles distant from Mankompu, some of the people intimated to the Rev. P. H. Samuel their desire to become Christians. The chief of the place tried by promises of help and patronage to dissuade them, but the head-man replied to him, "Your Highness cannot show to us the love that Jesus Christ has shown to sinners." Among these people polyandry is a prevalent custom, and the women are not prepared to follow the men in embracing Christianity.

COTTAYAM AND PALLAM.

At Cottayam the work of the Society, as distinguished from that of the pastorates, is educational. The Cambridge Nicholson Institution, under the principalship of the Rev. J. J. Beauchamp Palmer, is for training theological and normal students. The senior theological class, in which there were seven students, two being clergy of the "Reforming" Syrian Church, reads for the Universities' Preliminary Examination for Holy Orders. The junior classes consisted of twelve students at the close of 1900, and five left the previous July to engage in work. Four of these twelve, one being a Syrian deacon, studied some subjects in English, while the other twelve received instruction in Tamil, in order that they might have access to Tamil literature, which is more abundant than that in Malayalam. The two normal classes had nineteen students, of whom two were members of the Chaldæo-Roman Church. One of these last- Cottayam. Cambridge Nicholson Institution.

named, in thanking Mr. Palmer for the privileges he had enjoyed in the Institution, made a sad acknowledgment regarding the teachers of his own Church. He said: "I have many things to be thankful for since my coming to the Institution, but chiefly because I have learned that lying is sin." All the students take part in open-air preaching and Sunday-school teaching, while the divinity students in addition visited some of the heathen festivals. The Rev. E. V. John, who was a student under the first Principal of the Institution, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, afterwards Bishop of Travancore and Cochin, and was the first of the students to be admitted to Holy Orders, has been appointed Theological Tutor at the Institution.

College. The examination results at the College, under the Rev. F. N. Askwith, were as follows:—Out of twenty-four sent up for the First Arts fourteen passed, all in the second class. In the Matriculation only thirteen passed out of sixty-four, four being in the first class, results which, though very unsatisfactory, were better than any other school obtained at the Cottayam centre, and Mr. Askwith is inclined to blame the examination rather than the examinees. In the Lower Secondary thirty-nine passed out of seventy-five, two being in the first class and ten others partially so. For the Peter Cator Lower Grade Scripture Examination all the twenty-five sent in passed in the second class. The separation of the Hindus from the Christians for the Scripture teaching, referred to in last year's Annual Report, is thought by Mr. Askwith to have proved successful. In the F.A., or College Department, the Book of the Revelation was taken as the subject of study with the Christian students at their own request, and Dr. Barrows' Lectures were taken with the Hindus; while in the Matriculation Class Dr. Murray Mitchell's Letters was the subject with the Hindus, and St. John's Gospel with the Christians. The Hindu students readily bought both the above-named books, which were kindly supplied at reduced rates by the Christian Literature Society. The Hindu hostel was occupied throughout the year and proved a means of establishing a closer contact not only with its inmates but also with the Hindus in general, for it was regarded as an evidence of the interest taken in them. A life-sized portrait of the late Rev. A. J. French Adams, who was Principal of the College from 1890–97, subscribed for by the masters and pupils, was unveiled on prize day in the spring of 1900.

Girls' Boarding-school. The Misses M. F. and I. Baker carried on the Girls' Boarding-school at Cottayam, with 153 children, taught by eleven teachers, besides 129 other children in three branch schools. The building is inconveniently crowded in the heat of summer, and an effort is being made, as mentioned last year, to raise funds to erect a more suitable one. A former child pupil who had left the school on account of ill-health was, after her death, found to have collected seven rupees towards the fund. The school is near the river and most of the girls are good swimmers. One of the bigger girls saved two of the little ones from drowning by swimming out and rescuing them when the strong current was carrying them down. Five girls, out of eight, passed the Middle School Examination, and four, all that tried, the Primary, three being in the first class. Eight of the girls were confirmed.

A brave school-girl.

The Press, of which the manager is Mr. John Chandy, who works under the supervision of the Rev. J. J. B. Palmer, proves itself increasingly useful, and continues to pay its way.

The Buchanan Institution at PALLAM completed the first decade of its useful existence at the close of 1900. The Rev. E. Bellerby, who with Mrs. Bellerby returned from furlough in May of that year, thus refers to some of the results:—

Buchanan Institution.

> Nearly fifty trained pupils have been sent out to teach in girls' schools throughout the Mission; the standard of our girls' education has been raised from the Primary to Middle School Standard; Christian parents have been led to pay more attention to their daughters' training; and the number of Hindu girls under regular instruction has greatly increased. But who can tell to how many Christian mothers the lessons learned and character formed in their early days at the Buchanan Institution will prove a tower of strength in training future generations, who in their turn shall rise up and call them blessed?

Fifty teachers trained.

At the beginning of 1900 there were 203 pupils on the rolls, of whom 140 were boarders. These last were twenty more than in the previous year, and the care of them falls on Mrs. Bellerby, who, nevertheless, finds time in addition to the household responsibilities to assist in class work (especially in teaching Scripture), and in needlework, singing, and drawing. She even extended her labours to the sick ones of the town and neighbourhood, and dispensed medicine to over 1,300 applicants in the course of five months. The Normal Department passed two students in the second class of the Lower Grade Peter Cator Examination; three former students passed their final examination for the Madras Teachers' Certificate, two in the Lower Secondary and one in the Primary Grade; two senior and three junior students passed the written test for the same certificate; and one former student passed the Travancore Lower Vernacular Teachers' Examination. In the School Department six pupils passed the Madras Primary; nine the Madras Lower Secondary, five in the first class; and two the Travancore Elementary. Six students trained in the Institution took up school work during the year. These results were a legitimate cause of satisfaction; but the higher aim of building up a Christian character in all the inmates is the object of Mr. and Mrs. Bellerby's prayerful solicitude. Once a week the teachers meet for special prayer for themselves and their pupils. A branch of the Scripture Union has fifty members, and one of the Gleaners' Union seventy. Mr. Bellerby says of the tone and discipline :—

Work of a missionary's wife.

Kindness of older to younger pupils.

Our girls are not less human than in other schools; but, having said thus much, we have cause to rejoice over many who are growing in grace and setting bright examples to the rest, and the good influence of our training students, and their kindness to the younger ones has done much to keep up the good tone of the Institution and the Christian harmony that exists among our girls.

The eleven Branch Schools, with 577 pupils, teach up to the Vernacular Primary Standard. The teachers of these schools have many difficulties to contend with, and Mr. Bellerby is struck with their patience and perseverance.

ALLEPIE.

Allepie.

The Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards (now at home) returned to ALLEPIE, his former station, in the spring of 1900, after handing over the charge of the Buchanan Institution at Pallam to the Rev. E. Bellerby. As chaplain to the Bishop, he was called upon to take a larger share than falls to most missionaries in diocesan work, and he was also busily engaged in literary work. He saw the S.P.C.K. Commentary on the Epistles to the Galatians and Romans in Malayalam through the press, and prepared a Life of Christ for non-Christians in the same language, with an English edition also; he also prepared and edited a translation of a little book on Infant Baptism, by the Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence. Dr. Richards frequently took service at the gaol, where, alas, as many as twenty professing Christians—Roman, Syrian, and occasionally one or more Anglican—are generally to be found. He also ministered to the unfortunate inmates of the Leper Asylum, which has usually its full complement of twenty-four male lepers. The attitude of the Hindus is friendly for the most part, an evidence of which was given by Dr. Richards being invited to preside at the prize distribution of the local Government High School. Nevertheless, the withdrawal of the Government grants-in-aid from some of the schools, referred to in last year's Annual Report, has not been rescinded. There is a Hindu girls' school, formerly an agency of the C.E.Z.M.S., and a thriving boys' school, with over a hundred in daily attendance. There are also two girls' vernacular schools at Parawar, four miles south of Allepie; and four for boys and girls, at Punappra, four miles south, Kernamel, ten miles south, in Allepie itself among the fisherfolk, and at Kayappuram, twelve miles north respectively.

TIRUWELLA AND ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Tiruwella.

When Archdeacon and Mrs. Caley came home on furlough in the spring of 1900, the Rev. C. E. R. Romilly was requested to take up his residence at TIRUWELLA, which he did in the autumn.

A number of schools in the district are under his management, as the finances of the District Church Council are not yet equal to undertaking their support; and he supervises several out-stations which for the same reason have not up to the present been attached to the Pastorates, although within their boundaries. Within the Mission compound at Tiruwella are two vernacular schools, one a middle school for boys, the other a primary school for girls, both having boarders and day scholars, the former thirty-four boarders and the latter twenty-four. In the boys' school the monitor system is in practice and answers well, the order and discipline of the boarding-house, the conduct of prayers, &c., being maintained, and well maintained, Mr. Romilly says, by the boys themselves. At Pernigera, a strong Hindu quarter two miles from Tiruwella, there is a Hindu caste girls' school which attracts many Sudra girls.

Ettamanur Itinerancy.

The Rev. C. A. Neve superintended the work of the ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY. At Ettamanur, which is a strong centre of Hinduism, an English primary school was opened during the past year, at the instance of the Hindu magistrate of the place. The opening was attended with some ceremony, but unfortunately the magistrate was soon afterwards transferred. There are about twenty boys in the school. When Mr. Neve showed some lantern slides of the life of Christ the police inspector, who is a Christian, helped in explaining the pictures to a large Hindu audience. At Walayankotta an encouraging work is going on. There is a resident teacher and his wife, Pulayar converts, who were educated at the Tiruwella schools, and an earnest catechist visits the place. The building that serves the double purpose of schoolroom and prayer-house is a low mud-floored shed, but within its walls more than forty were baptized during the year. A friendly Roman Catholic gives hospitality to Mr. Neve and the catechist when they visit the place. At Meenadam a church and school were built, at Kattampakkal a church, at Kothata a school, and at Chenapadi and Tedanada teachers' houses during the year. A new out-station was opened at Anikkad. A member of the Cottayam congregation, having commenced a farm at this place, put up a shed for his farm labourers, and a married teacher and his wife were sent. There is now a small congregation there as well as a school.

A mud-floored shed the scene of many baptisms.

Peer Maad

Both the European planters and the Native Christians at Peer Maad show an increasing liberality, and their united contributions sufficed to meet the salary of the pastor, the Rev. Muttu Nallathambi. Two evangelists itinerate in the district. Converts from the Goldsmith caste are referred to as standing steadfast and commending the Gospel by their lives. Mr. and Mrs. Neve resided some weeks in the district during the year. Dr. Richards spent several days, including two Sundays, at "High Range," where some 13,000 coolies are engaged on the estates, and about a hundred superintendents reside. No settled work, either pastoral or evangelistic, is done among this large community.

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy.

At the close of 1899, when the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Bishop's return from furlough relieved the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. R. Romilly of the charge of Trichur, the latter returned to ALWAYE, their former station. A few months later, however, they responded to the request of the Conference to succeed Archdeacon and Mrs. Caley at Tiruwella when the latter came home on furlough, and the Rev. J. I. MacDonald was assigned to reside at Alwaye while reading for Priests' Orders, the work being under the supervision of the Rev. J. H. Bishop. The Alwaye Itinerancy attempts to cover a large and straggling tract of country mostly lying in the northern part of Travancore, but partly also in the State of Cochin, and extending from the backwater in the west to the mountains in the east. The highest peak in South India, "Ana Mudi" (Elephant Peak), is about eighty miles due east of Alwaye. The district is, for the most part, a low, undulating plateau, intersected with valleys and paddy-fields, watered by numerous rivers and streams, thickly wooded towards the east, and sparsely populated. Good cart roads are found, with Public Works Department sheds at intervals of ten miles, which the missionaries are courteously allowed to occupy when they are not required by the officials. There are several interesting and important towns within the limits of the area referred to. Alwaye itself is in the heart of the district and is approached by a good cart road. The Mission possesses a bungalow, a small church, and a school. A gathering was held here in September for the spiritual edification of the native agents of the itinerancy and of those in the neighbouring district of Trichur; the Revs. T. K. Joseph and T. Koshi gave some very heart-searching addresses and the little convention was attended with much spiritual blessing. On the last day of these meetings a Hindu convert was baptized. This young man, Aya Pilla, is a clerk in the Munsiff's Court at Muwattapura, the Munsiff himself being a Christian. The convert had been reading the Bible for some years. It was through intercourse with the Christian masters of the Mission Anglo-vernacular school that the new convert decided to come out and boldly confess Christ in baptism. Mr. MacDonald says of him, "I have never seen a brighter young Christian." Ernakulam, the political capital of Cochin, is twelve miles south-west of Alwaye. Two evangelists live there in a hired house, having an upper room for Sunday services. This place is of considerable importance, and is the terminus of a newly-constructed railway. An attempt is being made to erect a small church in memory of the late Rev. E. Bacheler Russell, and the English residents have petitioned the Rajah for a site. Wykium is still further south. It has a large and wealthy temple which supports numerous Brahmans. A Hindu gentleman at the place remarked to Mr. Bishop: "We have plenty of good moral teaching in our religion, but no power to carry it out." At this important place there is only one evangelist, who resides in a small wooden cottage belonging to the Mission. At Koothattakolam a catechist resides who has commenced an interesting work among the Pulayars at Mulakulam. Mr. Bishop and Mr. MacDonald in visiting the place found thirty-six catechumens gathered together who had given up a day's work and wages in order to meet them. Some of them had walked four miles out for the purpose of assisting their progress by carrying them over the streams. Mr. MacDonald wrote:—

A Hindu's acknowledgment of impotence of Hinduism.

> They looked very happy, and the women were in their best white garments. Sitting on the floor of the shed which they had themselves erected, they seemed to drink in our words. None at present can read, but they have learnt several Scripture texts, the Creed, Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, and two hymns.

Earnest catechumens.

There is a difficulty in obtaining a piece of ground for any buildings. This is one way in which the landowners manifest their disapproval of the Pulayars becoming Christians. Another is more active and direct. The headman of the little congregation in this place was noticed to have his collar bone badly set after a fracture, and it was explained that he had received a severe beating from his master in consequence of placing himself under Christian instruction. Mr. MacDonald says of the various difficulties encountered in teaching and helping the Pulayars:—

Persecution of Pulayar Christians.

> The average mean temperature in which we work is about 81 degrees, i.e., about 30 degrees warmer than the average mean temperature of London. In visiting the Pulayars a few days ago I had to walk sixteen miles in places where not even a horse could go. Needless to say I was in a bath of perspiration the whole time, and was stiff for three days afterwards. Another sort of difficulty lies in the fact that the people who employ the Pulayars dislike their being taught. This makes the procuring of a piece of land for them very difficult. Sometimes we have to try for years before we can get land for a school, teacher's house, and burial-ground. Then the Pulayars themselves, although generous and consistent, are often obstinate and childish.

Difficulties.

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

The Rev. J. H. Bishop, who returned with Mrs. Bishop to Trichur, after a short furlough, at the end of 1899, was engaged during a large part of the year under review in itinerating. He reports on the Bible and Book Depôt, in the centre of the town, as a most useful adjunct of the Mission; on the High School as doing a quiet but effective preparatory work under its native headmaster, Mr. P. A. Stephen, B.A.; and the two Boarding-schools for boys and girls respectively, as helping the Native Church and the Mission by giving the early stages of the training which fits for service as spiritual agents. The two Hill Arrian agents at Kannattupatam, some fifteen miles south-east of Trichur, were obliged through sickness to be absent from their work for some time, but Mr. Bishop on visiting the place was very pleased with the clean appearance of the Malayar Christians, adults and children, and with their intelligent answers to simple questions on the Scriptures. The children had learned to read somewhat and do simple sums, and could sing Christian lyrics to the accompaniment of a violin. A farmer in the neighbourhood, a Roman Catholic, invited Mr. Bishop to hold a meeting, and gathered fifteen persons to hear an address on "Salvation through Faith." This farmer bought a New Testament, and told Mr. Bishop that he owed all the light he possessed to the teaching of Joseph and Warugisa, the two Hill Arrian evangelists. At Mala, about twenty miles south by east of Trichur, the Mission school is restricted to Hebrew and Mohammedan boys and girls, the Roman Catholics and Hindus attending the Government school in the place. For various reasons the Mohammedan and the Hebrew children were withdrawn by their parents at different times, but they all returned to the school again. Near to Mala a celebrated Namburi Brahman resides, who is supposed to have the power by his mantrams of averting the evil effects of any curse incurred in consequence of harm done to serpents, whether accidentally or with design. Mr. Bishop visited him to obtain his permission for his slaves to be instructed, but found him unwilling; he had, however, accepted a copy of the New Testament. While Mr. Bishop was there several Brahmans assembled for the worship of the serpent. Mr. Bishop says of this cult:—

A friendly Roman Catholic.

Worship of the serpent.

> It lasts some days, costing about Rs. 2000. Ten paras of milk and equal quantities of rice and turmeric mixed together are offered to the serpent-god (Ananthen). The recent earthquake (February 15th) is supposed to be the reason for having the sacrifice at this time, though it is performed periodically about every sixteen years. The Hindus (uneducated) suppose the earth rests on the serpent-god Ananthen (i.e. Vishnu in the form of a serpent), and that by raising its head in the act of biting or grabbing food the body trembles, which causes a tremor in the earth!

Eringalakuda, fourteen miles due south of Trichur, is a place of considerable importance. The Mission school has nearly one hundred pupils, mostly Mohammedan boys. At Shalakudi, a new out-station, several Namburi Brahmans gladly received copies of God's Word.

Mr. Bishop dwells on the necessity of patience in waiting for the manifest fruits of such work as his in this district. Using as an illustration the engineering works in progress on the new railway, which cuts right through the Cochin State, and will, he hopes, tend to break up caste, he says:—

Foundation work.

Bridging the rivers is necessarily a slow process. I asked one of the engineers the other day how he was getting on with the bridge over one of the large rivers. "Oh, nicely and rapidly!" he said, but there was nothing to be seen. The fact is, the main and most difficult part of the work is laying the foundation by sinking shafts right down some thirty or forty feet to the solid bed of the rock. Here is a spiritual lesson for Christian workers in difficult fields like Trichur and Alwaye. More patience is needed. Waiting upon the Lord and for the Lord. If we are really building on Christ, the solid Rock, in due time the Church will rise, and here and there it is coming as it were to the surface, and there are not wanting indications that our labour is not in vain in the Lord.

Kunnankulam.

At KUNNANKULAM the Rev. F. Bower continues to see fruit from the circulation of the Holy Scriptures. There is a Bible and Book Depôt, and the sale of Bibles and portions during the year realized Rs. 172, and the sale of other religious literature brought in addition Rs. 228. Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress has a ready sale among Hindus, while a growing interest in the narrative of the Gospels is manifest among Mohammedans. Four colporteurs are engaged in this work. Many copies were received, either as a gift or by purchase, by Namburi Brahmans. Mr. Bower gives an instance of the effects of Bible distribution among this class:—

A Namburi Brahman asserts the Bible to be "all true."

The other day an influential and highly-educated Namburi Brahman, who had received a Malayalam Bible from us about two years ago, on being asked if he had read it, readily replied in the affirmative, and said very emphatically, "The contents of that Book are all true, and I admit the truth of Christianity. I have noticed the signs of the times and see how things are changing. You need not trouble yourself about instructing us in these matters, for after a while there will be but one religion in this country, and that religion will be Christianity." This was said in the presence of several other Namburi and Pattar Brahmans, and not a word was uttered against his opinion. I cannot help feeling very strongly that the circulation of God's Holy Word amongst them is calculated to do a vast amount of good. In some houses the women, as well as the men, are carefully reading it, and surely this is a cause for much thankfulness. Some who at first flatly refused the Bible, on being offered it a second time have willingly accepted it. I believe that not a few of them are surprised to find that the Bible is such an excellent Book. The Proverbs of Solomon and the Gospel of St. John are highly appreciated by many of them. Will all who read this report pray that the Scriptures may be made a great blessing to this ancient and interesting people?

High caste women reading the Scriptures.

A Hindu has family prayer.

Of another Hindu Mr. Bower says that he not only reads the Bible but conducts family prayer both morning and evening, using a book of prayers prepared by Archdeacon Mamen. Five adults were baptized during the year. The Schools in Kunnankulam do a good work. The Christian girls' school in the bazaar has over eighty pupils; the girls' boarding-school has twenty-seven boarders and eight day girls; the boys' boarding-school has twenty boarders; the industrial school teaches carpentry, and passed two of its eleven pupils in the first class and the rest in the second. An evangelist resides at Guruwayoor, and there is a school for caste girls. An annual festival at this place attracts many thousands of people, and Mr. Bower, with a number of evangelists, was about to proceed thither when he wrote his Annual Letter in November. There is a flourishing school for Hindu and Mohammedan boys at Chowghat, and some fifty of these boys also attend a Sunday-school, which is conducted by Mr. Chakko, a Christian pleader. At Wadakancherie the high caste girls' school was kept open with difficulty, owing to the opposition of Brahmans, but the pupils who were taken away shortly returned, and at the prize-giving the Tahsildar presided, and the Munsiff, a warm friend of the school, gave some prizes for good conduct and singing. Eighty pupils—Brahmans, Nayars, Thuans, and a few Mohammedans—attend the Mission school at Thriprayar. This school was put up at the expense of the inhabitants, and was opened in February, 1900. Mr. Bower notes with special satisfaction that two or three of the Mohammedan pupils are girls, as this appears to be the first time in the immediate district that girls of the Moslem community have attended a Mission school. The girls in question are all daughters of an influential man, who has shown himself well-disposed to the Mission agents.

CEYLON MISSION.

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which form the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddegama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kegalle, 1880. For work among the Tamils Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845, and has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), and Copleston (1875).

Reinforcements.

THE Ceylon Mission has been called upon in God's mysterious providence to surrender several of its European labourers, while its reinforcements have been comparatively few. The latter have consisted of the following:—The Rev. Roland Potter Butterfield, an Islington College man, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the late Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900; Mr. George Arthur Purser, who received a short course of training at Islington College; and Miss Edith Grace Beeching, transferred from the British Columbia Mission. Mr. Purser sailed in October, Mr. Butterfield in November, and Miss Beeching in May, 1901.

Deaths of Mrs. J. D. Simmons,

The losses by death and retirement make a long list. The news of the departure to her heavenly rest of Mrs. J. D. Simmons was received as the last Annual Report was passing through the printer's hands, and was mentioned in a foot-note on page 352. Mrs. Simmons went to India, as Miss Ada Van S. Chitty, from Australia, together with her only sister, on the death of their parents, in or about 1854. Her missionary life of thirty-six years was a quiet, consistent effort to promote the Kingdom of Christ by all means in her power, first in Tinnevelly, then in Jaffna, Nuwera Eliya, Kotagala, and lastly at Haputale.

Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin,

The home-call of the Rev. Richard Thomas Dowbiggin occurred at sea, while on his way to England with Mrs. Dowbiggin to take their overdue furlough. On March 8th, nine days after setting sail from Colombo, his spirit departed and his mortal remains were consigned to the deep. He was trained at Islington College, was ordained in 1866, and joined the Ceylon Mission in 1867. He had the unusual experience of continuing throughout his missionary career, after qualifying in the Singhalese language, at one station, and Cotta will ever hold in veneration his memory and that of his devoted wife. Happily, the Mission will not lose for yet awhile the services of Mrs. Dowbiggin. The Committee passed the following Minute on hearing of Mr. Dowbiggin's death:—

The Committee have heard with deep sorrow of the removal by death of the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin, who spent his entire missionary career, with the exception of the first few years, in Cotta. As they review the thirty years during which their brother was allowed to carry on the important educational agencies of this station, superintending the extensive organization of the evangelistic and pastoral agencies connected with the area committed to his trust, acting, moreover, as a member of the Singhalese Prayer-book Revision Committee and chairman of the Singhalese Bible Revision Committee, the Committee thank God for the important and extensive work which for so long a period and with such entire devotion he was enabled successfully to carry on. In the presence of such a mysterious dispensation, fraught as it is with such sorrow to the bereaved family, and serious loss, from a human point of view, to the entire Singhalese work of the Society in Ceylon, the Committee feel that they can only bow in humble resignation to Almighty God, and pray that the death of their brother may be over-ruled for the increased quickening of the Singhalese workers in the task of evangelizing those who know not Christ.

Rev. R. Collins,

Two former missionaries have also entered into their rest. The Rev. Richard Collins, of St. John's College, Cambridge, who graduated tenth Junior Optime in 1851, went out in the first instance, in 1854, to Travancore, where he was Principal of the Cottayam College for thirteen years. After his first furlough he sailed for Ceylon, and held the Principalship of the "Kandy Collegiate School," now known as Trinity College, Kandy, from 1871 to 1878. He became Vicar of St. Silas', Hunslet, Leeds, in 1879, and in 1882 he succeeded his father, who had at one time been a C.M.S. Association Secretary, as Vicar of Kirkburton, Yorkshire, a living which the father and son between them held for sixty years. Mr. Collins was the author of several books in Malayalam—a school grammar, a Sanskrit and Malayalam dictionary—and he wrote papers which were read before the Victoria Institute.

Mrs. R. Pargiter,

The other former missionary referred to above was Mrs. R. Pargiter, wife of the Rev. Robert Pargiter, Vicar of Towersey, in the Diocese of Oxford, who laboured with her husband in the island, most of the time at Jaffna, from 1851 till 1864, and subsequently assisted his labours as Association Secretary and in the pastoral charge he has held at home, and has shared his joy in giving two sons to labour for the conversion of India to Christ.

and the Rev. B. P. Wirasinha.

The Rev. B. P. Wirasinha died during the past year at the advanced age of seventy-six, having been connected with the Society as an agent for over fifty years. He was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1869, but never proceeded to Priests' Orders. He retired from active service in November, 1894.

Retirement of Rev. E. T. Higgens.

The losses due to retirement make a formidable list, and have presented grave problems. Happily the hope is not excluded that some of the names which are now removed from the Society's list may at a future date be restored again, please God. This hope, however, is not one that can reasonably be entertained in the case of the Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Higgens,* who, after a period of service in connexion with the Society of almost fifty years (a few of them spent as an Association Secretary at home) on his part, and of over forty years on hers, have felt called upon by the growing infirmities of age to retire. Mr. Higgens had the privilege of commencing both the Singhalese Itinerancy and the Tamil Coolie Mission in the centre of the island, and he has done good work at Cotta, Baddegama, and Colombo. For the past twenty years he has held the important office of Secretary of the Mission, and for much of that time he was also pastor of the English congregation worshipping at Galle Face Church, Colombo, as well as superintendent of the Singhalese Mission in that city. His departure from the island in May, 1900, was the occasion of very touching demonstrations of affection on the part of both Natives and Europeans. Various addresses and presentations were made by Singhalese Christians and fellow-missionaries, while the congregation of Galle Face and others presented him with a purse containing a generous gift of £106. The other retirements are mostly due to ill-health of the missionaries or of members of their families. They are the Rev. L. G. P. Liesching, the Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering (who came home in August), the Rev. J. Carter, and the Rev. W. Welchman.

As mentioned in last year's Annual Report, the Rev. A. E. Dibben succeeded Mr. Higgens in the office of Secretary of the Mission. The Mission lost a warm friend and active fellow-worker through the death of Colonel James Meaden, which occurred at Colombo on November 20th, 1900. For many years Colonel Meaden was a member of the Finance Committee, and was Honorary Secretary and Treasurer of the local C.M.S. Association.

Ordination.

The Bishop of Colombo admitted Mr. John Vethamanikan Daniel to Deacons' Orders on June 11th (St. Barnabas' Day), 1900, in the Cathedral at Colombo.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

Mrs. Thomas came home in May, 1900, and sailed again in November; Miss A. Higgens came home in June; Miss M. S. Gedge in October; and Mrs. R. T. Dowbiggin in March, 1901. On the other hand Miss E. S. Young sailed in May, 1900, and Miss E. M. Josolyne in October.

COLOMBO.

Colombo.

Within the city of Colombo and its immediate neighbourhood the Society's work has three main branches—among the English-speaking, Singhalese, and Tamils—and all the three branches have a common meeting-place in Christ Church, Galle Face, where services are held every Sunday, and on other occasions, in each of the three languages. The Rev. A. E. Dibben has the pastoral charge of the English congregation in addition to the onerous and growing work of the Secretariat. A Special Mission was conducted in the church by the Rev. A. H. Bowman, who was Acting Minister of the Old Church, Calcutta, during part of the year under review (see supra, page 208), from November 18th to 25th. The occasion was a time of refreshing to many a heart, and a starting-point for many a life consecrated anew to God. On the last evening of the Mission, Monday, November 25th, the church was packed to its utmost capacity with a throng of Europeans, Tamils, and Singhalese such as had seldom been seen in a Colombo place of worship. A leading business man in the city remarked: "When I saw that crowded and representative congregation spell-bound by the Gospel Message, I was convinced there was a power and a reality behind it which I had never recognized before." One who was present at all the services wrote:—

A Special Mission.

> Colombo has indeed been stirred, and it is believed the impressions made will remain in many a heart and life. The one message of the preacher was "Jesus Christ and Him crucified," and as Jesus was exalted, and the truth as it is in Him was plainly set forth, few there were that heard the message but must have felt the living power of the Saviour's own words: "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

Colombo stirred.

There is a flourishing Boys' Brigade with seventy members and an average weekly attendance of sixty, comprising Burghers, Singhalese, Tamils, Malays, Parsis, and occasionally an English boy. At every parade there is prayer, hymn-singing, and teaching from the Scriptures. The Governor of Ceylon is the patron of the Brigade, and Lady Ridgeway distributed the prizes in December, 1900. The Sunday evening evangelistic service in the school-room, mentioned in last year's Annual Report as carried on by members of the choir (the leader of this effort was formerly a member of the congregation of the Rev. W. E. Burroughs at the Mariners' Church, Kingstown, and it was by him also that the Boys' Brigade was commenced), has been the means of attracting some of Portuguese descent who have a knowledge of English, a class not previously reached.

A flourishing Boys' Brigade.

The English School for Girls, designed for the higher education of the daughters of the upper classes of all nationalities, which Misses L. E. Nixon and E. Whitney went out to open at the end of 1899, was commenced on February 10th with two girls. Ere the year closed the two had increased to twelve, of whom three were boarders, and these twelve represented Tamil, Singhalese, Jewish, and English homes, but all speaking English with perfect ease. None of the parents expressed any objection to their daughters receiving Bible instruction, and Miss Nixon conducted classes on the Acts, Old Testament History, the Life of our Lord, and the Church Catechism, and some of the examination papers showed that the girls had both listened to and been interested in these lessons. Miss Nixon taught the elder girls English, French, German, Latin, and mathematics, and Miss Whitney took the drawing classes and also some of the Bible-classes, but as she was responsible for the housekeeping—no light charge in a new country, and with servants speaking a strange language—and for visiting upper class native families, she had not very much time available for teaching. She did, however, in addition to the above, take a Bible-class of big girls at Galle Face Church, which had been taken by Mrs. Higgens before she left, and she visited the English-speaking patients at the Lady Havelock Hospital.

The work among the Singhalese is both pastoral and evangelistic. There are two Singhalese Congregations, one worshipping at Christ Church, Galle Face, and the other at St. Luke's, Maradana. These have hitherto been connected with the Cotta District Church Council, but during the past year it was thought well to sever this connexion, and to make the Church Committee elected by the congregations, under the chairmanship of the pastor, the Rev. D. Joseph Perera, autonomous and the work dependent altogether financially on the native contributions. This arrangement came into operation in July, 1900, and, so far as can be judged, is working satisfactorily. The Rev. J. Ireland Jones says that the Church Committee take a warm interest in the various business matters which arise, and are pleased with the position of independence accorded to them. The attendance at public worship is not, however, what it ought to be, and it is not surprising to be told by those who watch prayerfully the state of the Church that the people's standard of spirituality and their zeal for the salvation of the Heathen is not of a high order. Mr. Ireland Jones's own sphere of work during the past year, since his arrival in the Mission in May, 1900, was the Singhalese Evangelistic work. He writes with deep thankfulness to God for the privilege of again, after fifteen years at home, being permitted to enter the field. The Singhalese population of Colombo at the last census (1891) was 33,000, the vast majority of whom are Buddhists. Mr. Ireland Jones notices a pronounced change for the worse in the attitude of these people, due to the Buddhist revival of recent years. He says :—

Singhalese congregations self-supporting.

"Buddhist Revival" makes itself felt in a very real manner. Its press is actively at work. Several Buddhist newspapers have a large circulation, and contain violent attacks on Christianity, and, from a native point of view, strong articles in explanation and defence of the doctrines of Buddha. Many of these articles are entirely devoid of either argument or teaching. They consist sometimes of strings of almost incomprehensible words, describing the supposed attributes of Buddha, and entirely beyond the comprehension of ordinary readers. That style of writing is regarded as displaying the superior wisdom and learning of the writers. Tracts and pamphlets, too, are circulated in large numbers, some of them illustrated. One which has come into my hands represents in gross caricature the events recorded in the early chapters of Genesis, and turns into ridicule the accounts of Creation and the Fall. It professes to be the Singhalese reproduction of a book published at New York! Even the English papers have been utilized.

Schools also have become a powerful instrument in Buddhist hands. The Government grant-in-aid helps to supply the funds, and in many places the endeavour is made to supplant us.

Incoherent preaching

The form which Buddhist opposition takes as regards the directly evangelistic work is the occupation of our usual places of gathering by Buddhist preachers, of course to our exclusion. Very frequently, on our arrival at the appointed place we find one of their men already on the ground, which he holds persistently, and usually surrounded by a sympathetic crowd, ready not only to applaud, but also to respond to his appeal for funds. On more than one occasion I have stood by and listened, and have felt astonished that an address so incoherent and meaningless should have a hearing. The chief object is, evidently, the prevention of our preaching. When we are fortunate enough to be first in the field we are, I may say, left in peace.

The response made to these tactics of the enemies of the Gospel is to make the Message of Salvation as simple and intelligible as possible. The Religious Tract Society's pictures of the Prodigal Son, or the Brazen Serpent, usually attract a large gathering, of whom a few will stand and listen with apparent attention for an hour at a time. At the police-courts, in the streets, and especially at the C.M.S. book-room in the Pettah (or native town), Christ is thus proclaimed. Three catechists render efficient help, the addresses of one of them being especially telling and forcible, and four Bible-women visit daily from house to house. Miss E. M. Josolyne took the superintendence of these valued agents on her return to Ceylon in November, 1900. The school for girls at Kolonnawa, four miles from Colombo, had to be closed. A large and very superior (as to the building) Buddhist school was opened near to it; the girls were thereby attracted away, and the reduced attendances caused the loss of the Government grant to the Mission school.

Bible and Prayer-book revision.

The Rev. S. Coles rendered such help as he was able in both pastoral and evangelistic work, but his chief occupation at present is Bible revision, for which the British and Foreign Bible Society has borrowed his services. The revision of the Singhalese Prayer-book had been practically completed ere the year closed, and Mr. Coles was preparing a tenth edition of the Scripture Union illustrated tracts, consisting of 40,000 copies.

The charge of the Tamil work in Colombo and the district around was under the Rev. J. I. Pickford until he left to come home in November, 1900, when he was succeeded by the Rev. W. J. Hanan. The city of Colombo itself contains some 40,000 of that race. Miss A. E. M. Thomas and Miss E. J. Howes (whose chief work was language study) were rejoined by Miss E. S. Young in June, 1900. In Visiting Among the Tamil Women they found a general readiness to hear, and Miss Young thought on her return that this apparent interest was more marked than it had been before she left to come home. Occasionally a Mohammedan woman whom they visited would show resentment at their speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ as the Son of God, but more commonly ignorance was the foe they found it hardest to combat. On one occasion when Miss Thomas and a Bible-woman entered a courtyard all the women took fright and hid themselves, fearing, as they afterwards explained, that Miss Thomas was intending to take them away! Others credited the Bible-women with being possessed of an invisible powder which they sprinkle on the inmates of the houses visited, the effect of which is to make the Bible-women themselves kind and gentle and the Hindu or Mohammedan women disposed to listen to the Christian Message! Among the Tamil-speaking Hindus there was ground for encouragement. In one house three girls who had been under instruction for several years, and had a most intelligent grasp of the truth, at length obtained permission to be baptized, their mother saying: "I am too old to change now, but let them live their pure, good lives." Each of these girls possesses a Bible and can read it, and "they understand," Miss Young says, "the power of prayer." The number of Bible-women engaged in Tamil work is eleven. The two Boarding-schools for Tamil boys and girls respectively are in the Mission compound, and were under Miss Thomas's supervision during her mother's absence on short furlough. The girls' school had thirty-nine boarders, and the boys' school fifty-eight boarders and twelve day scholars. The headmaster of the latter, Mr. J. V. Daniel, was admitted to Deacons' Orders in July, as already mentioned. He prepared four of the school-boys for baptism. Nine of the boys and six of the girls were confirmed, with eleven others, in Galle Face Church in July; 398 children are on the rolls of the day-schools.

Ignorance of Mohammedan women.

"Let them live their pure, good lives."

Boarding-schools.

The Tamil Pastorates remitted to the District Church Council the sum of Rs. 2,403, an excess of Rs. 150 over the estimated income. Mr. Pickford entertains little doubt that if the necessity arose the Christians could support the work without monetary help from outside. He also says that the services are generally conducted with more reverence than formerly, and that the singing is more hearty. At St. Luke's Church the pupils of the boarding-schools are a great help to the singing. At Negombo most of the Christians are immigrants from South India, and their numbers consequently fluctuate.

COTTA.

The late Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin's Annual Letter was written three months before he left COTTA for the last time. He was suffering in health at the time that he wrote it, and it breathes a spirit, not indeed of despondency, but of disappointment. He felt that the work was not going forward, and that the outlook was not a very hopeful one. What appears to have chiefly distressed him was three cases of backsliding. "I looked for so much," he wrote, "and it has come to nothing. I longed for the Holy Ghost to take the helm and guide the ship, but it seems to have been driven by contrary winds to where I would not." Then as to adult baptisms, of which there were fifteen in the whole district under his charge, he regarded the year as one of the most barren he had known during the thirty years he had been at Cotta; and the catechumens under preparation for baptism were also fewer than usual. Moreover, the spiritual tone of the Christians seemed to him disappointingly shallow, and few evidenced an earnest desire to win souls. He found some consolation in recalling the state of the district, and of the Mission agencies, which he had been privileged to supervise, at the time when he first went to Cotta. The Girls' Boarding-school, for example, did not then exist. It was begun in September, 1871, nine months after Mr. and Mrs. Dowbiggin, shortly after their marriage, went to reside at Cotta. The school began with twenty-nine girls, and the monthly expenditure was Rs. 165; it has now seventy-six on the list, and the monthly cost is Rs. 385, but it has never since the first year been a burden on the Society's funds. On the contrary, during the past year, in addition to building a new dormitory at a cost of Rs. 700 from the school funds, a gift of Rs. 500 was generously sent from the same source to assist in establishing the English School for Girls at Colombo. The last Government Examination showed better results than in any previous year, and the grant-in-aid amounted to Rs. 1,114. The Boys' English School succeeded the former Cotta Christian Institution in 1867. That year its present head master, Mr. W. de Silva, entered upon his work, assisted by two teachers. In 1870 there were three masters, and an average attendance of forty boys, whose fees amounted to Rs. 41.75 a month. Now there are eight masters, and an average attendance of 210, whose monthly fees amount to Rs. 178. A large proportion of the boys are Buddhists—197 out of 282 on the roll—the rest being Christians, and three of them Roman Catholics. Three of the existing staff of teachers were formerly pupils who entered the school as Buddhists, and were converted to Christianity while in the school. The other teachers, except one, are also old pupils. The largest number of boys hitherto presented, 176, went up for examination in Standards I. to VIII. in August, 1900, and obtained a percentage of eighty-eight in "the three R's," and eighty in all subjects. Three of the pupils were among the fifteen adults baptized during the year, referred to above. All three are sons of Buddhist parents. One of them belongs to a village called Talawatugodo, and his regularity at service and Sunday-school while at home and his earnestness in Bible study afforded much pleasure and encouragement to Mr. de Silva. In the Vernacular Schools there are 1,719 boys and 1,615 girls under instruction. At the Sunday-schools the average attendance of both boys and girls was 874. One new school was opened on the estate of a Singhalese gentleman, and at his expense. In view of this extensive work among the young, it is not surprising to find the Buddhists taking a very different view of the prospects of the Mission from that which Mr. Dowbiggin was, in the heaviness of his spirit and physical weakness, inclined to take. A Buddhist newspaper, the Sarasavi Sandaresa, in one of its issues during June, 1900, raised a cry of alarm over what had been accomplished at Cotta and what was being done. It could only account for the large attendance of children by assuming that the gentle bribery of sugar-plums was freely exercised, but it foresaw and foretold that Cotta, once the glory of Singhalese Buddhist kings, was likely to become a Christian district if the present progress continues. Besides the above schools, there are two other important educational institutions at Cotta, namely, Training Classes for males and females respectively. The former had nine students reading for teachers' certificates under a native head teacher, who has been engaged in the work for upwards of thirty years. The latter had six students preparing to be Bible-women under Miss A. L. Dowbiggin's tuition.

A Buddhist cry of alarm.

The severance of the Colombo Pastorate from the Cotta District Council has already been mentioned. There are left three pastorates, those of Cotta and Nugegoda, Talangama and Welikada, and Mampe, all under ordained pastors. The Rev. G. S. Amarasekara, of the Cotta and Nugegoda Pastorate, reports that twenty-two were confirmed during the year, and one adult was baptized. About three-fourths of the 518 baptized Christians in the Talangama and Welikada Pastorate dwell in the two towns from which the pastorate is named. The rest are dispersed in different hamlets, and are mostly members of Buddhist families. They need much watchful care and help. In the case of girls efforts are nearly always made, and too often successfully, to marry them to Buddhist husbands, and this notwithstanding promises given by parents at the time of their baptism to respect their Christian profession. The Rev. T. G. Perera laments some marriages of this kind during the past year. Services are held at seven different centres in the pastorate on Sundays, and meetings for prayer and edification are held on most days of the week in the houses of the Christians. A large proportion of the adult baptisms of the district were in this pastorate, namely thirteen. One of the converts belongs to Malabe, where the Buddhists are very bitter in their opposition. Another works in a carpenter's shop at Colombo, and he was not only not ashamed of studying his Prayer-book in odd moments before his shopmates at the time when he was preparing for baptism, but he had the courage to refuse to work on Sunday when pressed to do so by his relatives. There are eleven day-schools and the same number of Sunday-schools in the pastorate; the latter, having 300 pupils, many of them Buddhists, are managed by a Sunday-school Committee. The Bishop of Colombo confirmed eleven candidates in the Mampe Pastorate. The Rev. W. E. Boteju remarks on the difficulty of making adequate progress towards self-support, seeing that the younger people so frequently leave their village homes and go to the towns in search of employment.

Evangelistic Work is carried on by catechists and Bible-women. Two of these catechists, one young and very promising, and the other having retired from active work after some fifty years of service, died during the year. The latter, when Mr. Dowbiggin asked him how long he had known the Lord, replied, "Ever since I first heard about Him." At Lujanwala the church was re-opened after repairs on the 25th anniversary, and the Bishop confirmed eleven candidates on the occasion. One of these walked twenty-seven miles in order to be present at the service. The catechists preached, it is calculated, to 38,373 people in the streets, bazaars and villages, and the Bible-women's reports show that they read the Scriptures to 7,342 men, 12,737 women, and 7,342 children. At least 16,000 tracts were distributed, and from the depôt at Cotta 83 Bibles, 13 New Testaments, and 395 portions were sold, besides 41 Prayer-books and 31 Singhalese hymn-books. The Rev. J. Ireland Jones took temporary charge of the district on Mr. Dowbiggin leaving in February, 1901.

BADDEGAMA.

Reminiscences of Baddegama by Professor of Latin at Cambridge.

The author of Antipathies of Race and Habit, the Rev. J. E. B. Mayor, Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Professor of Latin at the University since 1872, introduces an interesting reminiscence of BADDEGAMA, where his father, the Rev. Robert Mayor, commenced the work in 1819 and laboured till 1828. The Professor writes:—

"In the Michaelmas term I had a proof, interesting to me at least, of the truth of that promise, 'Cast thy bread upon the waters, and thou shalt find it after many days.' A Singhalese knocked at my door. He is in holy orders in the English Church, won a scholarship at Selwyn College, and is reading for the Theological Tripos. His first words were, 'My father ['grandfather' or 'great grandfather' more probably] was a convert of your father.'

He must have been converted from devil-worship. Eighty-one years ago my father founded at Baddegama, in a fairy-like country—'where every prospect pleases, and only man is vile'—a Mission station. To the ruin of his health, labouring under a scorching sun, he built church and school and parsonage, all which are still in use. In that village my visitor and I were born, in that church he and I were baptized. Seventy-one years ago we left Ceylon, where Reginald Heber, an old Shropshire friend of my father's, had visited and blessed his work. My father would have hailed that one fruit of his labours as ample reward for shattered health and an early grave. My friend had taken part in the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Mission."

The Rev. J. W. Balding, who is now in his twentieth year of service, and from whose Annual Letter the above extract is quoted, finds in it an encouragement to labour on in hope and confidence. He is conscious of the need of such an encouragement. The "White Missionary's Burden," as he terms it, is always a pressing one, and not seldom a depressing one. He instances a few of the cares and disappointments of the past year:— The "White Missionary's Burden."

A trusted teacher falsifies her school register; four of our Christians become teachers in Buddhist schools; six of our people re-baptized by the Romanists; two of our old Christian school-girls married to Buddhists; three of our former schoolmasters start opposition schools; some who seemed to be in earnest have fallen away; whilst the majority of the Christians make not the slightest effort to lead their heathen relatives or neighbours to Christ. It is next to impossible to get a voluntary worker for Christian work: the cry is always, "Pay, pay, pay!"

The Girls' Boarding-school had fifty-eight boarders, the full complement it is capable of receiving, and fifteen applicants for admission had to be declined. Of the forty-six presented for the Government Examination not one failed altogether, and the high percentage of ninety-one was gained, while the grant amounted to Rs. 1,137. Twenty of the girls are Buddhists. The school obtained a second-class certificate in the Diocesan Religious Examination, and five of the girls secured special prizes. The Sale of Books is a hopeful feature of the work. Twenty-five Singhalese Bibles, thirty New Testaments, and 400 Gospel portions were sold and 12,550 tracts and leaflets distributed. The Bible-women, two of them supported by the British and Foreign Bible Society and one by the Frances Ridley Havergal Fund, were under the supervision of Miss M. S. Gedge till she came home, and then of Miss L. M. Leslie-Melville, so far as the claims of language study permitted her to take an active part in Work Among the Women. At a class for the Bible-women held by Miss Gedge, and afterwards by Miss S. H. M. Townsend (who removed from Dodanduwa to Baddegama when Miss Gedge came home), Conybeare and Howson's Life of St. Paul was the book studied, and that with much interest. Four women and girls were under instruction for baptism, but the two most promising of them had Buddhist husbands, while the other two, who had Christian relations, seemed less in earnest. Consequently none of them were baptized. The ladies started a Monthly Missionary Meeting, held on the last Monday of the month in their verandah. The Christian women who attended it did some sewing, were refreshed by a cup of tea, and enjoyed a missionary talk. An average of fifteen were present month by month, and their hearts were moved to sympathize and help their sisters of other lands. An "O.O.M." collecting box was introduced, and the women made garments for the Bhīl famine sufferers.

Pastorates

The Rev. G. A. B. Perera was transferred from Balapitiya, of which he had been the pastor since he was ordained in 1881, to the charge of the Baddegama Pastorate. He was encouraged by being privileged to baptize eleven adult converts from Buddhism soon after his arrival, and by having twenty-nine candidates to present to the Bishop for confirmation. A catechist, Mr. Paul Gunasekara, is in charge of the Balapitiya Pastorate. He says that the attendance at the Singhalese service is small, as those who understand English prefer to attend the evening service in that language. A fortnightly prayer-meeting has an attendance of thirteen. The jubilee of the church in this pastorate was celebrated on June 24th, 1900. The congregation contributed Rs. 110 to the Indian Famine Fund, subscribed Rs. 150 for the purchase of a harmonium, and gave Rs. 10·50 to the Diocesan General Fund, and Rs. 10 to the Christian Literature Society. The Kitulampitiya Pastorate is a new one. The pastoral catechist, Mr. J. N. Wickramanayake, reports with sorrow that some of his people are careless as to the observance of the Lord's Day; but on the other hand he speaks of some whose light shines brightly among their Buddhist neighbours, and of a backslider who has returned and shows zeal for the conversion of the people around him. He has a well-organized Sunday-school. The lately-appointed catechist in the Bentotte Pastorate, Mr. J. de Silva, finds the people ignorant of Buddhism and contemptuous of Christianity, and they oppose open-air preaching. Three candidates were confirmed, and one woman was baptized. In the Dodanduwa Pastorate eight persons were confirmed and three adults baptized. The Rev. J. P. Kalpage's report is a brief one; he refers to troubles and hindrances raised by the Buddhists.

A church jubilee.

Evangelistic Work in the district is carried on through vernacular day-schools, of which there are thirty-five, giving instruction to 2,275 children, and by evangelists. Buddhist schools are being rapidly multiplied. Mr. Balding refers to a part of the district, where for many years the only schools have been Mission schools, there are now a Buddhist college, a high school, and two primary schools, in all which the instruction is given in English. In one village where the C.M.S. school has been alone for twenty years there are now two Roman Catholic and two Buddhist schools. In another the rivalry has led to the closing of the two Mission schools. These schools are regularly visited by a school catechist, whose duties are to see that the Scripture lessons are regularly and carefully taught; to encourage the children to purchase New Testaments or portions—which most of them do—and read them; to expound and apply the Scripture lesson for the day; to examine the school registers, &c. He also labours as an evangelistic catechist. Another catechist is stationed at Lelwela, from which he visits a few Christians, fifty-two in number, scattered in twelve villages, and the three schools, in which services are held. Another is at Elpitiya, and he reports one baptism, two persons confirmed, and an average attendance of fourteen at the Holy Communion. The catechist at Gonapinewala refers to improvement in the attendances at services, school, and prayer-meetings, and two adult baptisms. The catechists of the district meet at Baddegama once a month for study and prayer; and at the beginning of the year (1900) the Rev. M. J. Burrows, Incumbent of All Saints', Galle, addressed the workers at a special Communion service on "The Work of the Holy Spirit."

The transfer of Miss S. H. M. Townsend from DODANDUWA to Baddegama in July, 1900, left Miss H. P. Phillips, of the New South Wales Association, with only the help of Miss Loxton, the independent worker from Australia referred to in last year's Annual Report, and the latter was obliged to return to Australia on grounds of health in December. Miss Phillips gives an interesting report of the Industrial School, which had a daily average attendance of ninety-two, as compared with sixty-five in 1899. The receipts for work done amounted to Rs. 1,182, an advance of Rs. 511 on the previous year. The lace worked by the girls which was sent to the Paris Exhibition, as mentioned last year, gained a diploma and the only silver medal given for Ceylon lace. A main object Miss Phillips had in view in starting the industrial work was to keep the boys under Christian influence after leaving the vernacular school. Two of the three adults baptized, referred to above under the Pastorates, were industrial school boys, both having been learning printing for the past four years. One of them was cast-off by his friends in consequence. Mr. G. A. Purser has taken charge of the tailors', printers' and joiners' work, and of the vernacular school in the compound of the bungalow which Miss Phillips built herself and which she gave up to Mr. Purser, she removing into a hired house close at hand. Numerous villages were visited by the Bible-women and by Miss Loxton before she left.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCE.

THE Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Heinekey sailed from England in May, 1900, to return to the Mission. On the other hand, Miss H. E. Finney came home in December, 1900. The Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Ryde have been transferred from the Northern to the Central Province.

KANDY.

On the return home from KANDY of the Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering in August, 1900, the Rev. R. W. Ryde was transferred from Jaffna and appointed Principal of Trinity College, of which he was the Vice-Principal from 1895 to 1899. His absence of eleven months had not been long enough to put him out of touch with the masters and boys. One student passed the Calcutta University Entrance Examination in the first class. As in 1899, so again in 1900, a Trinity College boy was awarded a Jeejeebhoy Medical Scholarship at the Ceylon Medical College. Major G. H. F. Mathison conducted special services for the boys, and the Rev. A. A. Pilson carried on the good work thus begun by holding a catechumens' class for those who expressed a desire to be baptized. Both Mr. Ryde and Mr. Pilson refer to a greater readiness on the part of the parents of some of the boys to accord to them liberty of conscience, and no obstacles are placed in the way of their confessing Christ.

Trinity College, Kandy.

Miss A. M. Denyer and Miss A. L. Earp were busily engaged in Work among the Singhalese Women. Feeling the great importance of securing opportunities for continuous teaching and influencing some of the village women who desire such help, the ladies opened a Home, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, and received in it during the year for longer or shorter periods six women and eight grown-up girls. Some of the women were able to pay a fair equivalent of the expenditure involved, and this, with the sale of the lace made and the needlework done, and with help from friends, provided the needed support. One woman who, in the first instance, had entered chiefly on account of her sickly babe, came afterwards, saying, "My child is not ill, but do let me come here to learn about God. I have a fire in my heart to learn." Afterwards, in taking part in a prayer-meeting, this woman offered only one short petition, the publican's prayer, "God be merciful to me a sinner," and she asked Miss Earp, "Does it matter that I only said so little to God? It is all I know." When she returned to her home she had much persecution to endure, but she did not shrink from it. One of the inmates was baptized, the girl who was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 347) as having gone without her mid-day meal that she might continue attending the afternoon school at Kattukalle. The Rev. H. Gunasekara, who examined her for baptism, was very pleased with her readiness for that rite and her joy in looking forward to it. Her Buddhist father's consent was only obtained after repeated failures, but a two hours' pleading on the girl's part at last broke down his opposition. The Bishop visited the Home and confirmed this girl and two others. Miss Earp says of his visit:—

"Just the thing wanted."

> The Bishop came up the night before and gave us a most encouraging visit, praying earnestly for God's blessing on every detail of the work. He also encouraged us by saying that from his wide experience, the work we were trying to do was just the thing that was wanted, and that if the girls could only come to us from heathen villages a month or so before their confirmation it would be a very great blessing. They want the example of Christian living as well as the precept.

A Ragged School.

The number of women who are under instruction in their own houses increases. The opening of a Ragged School in Kandy, through the energy of one of the catechists, has proved a help in obtaining access to the homes of the very poor, of which Miss Earp writes:—

"These awful homes."

> Some of the children come from the lowest strata of the people, and their surroundings and homes are too awful to be described. Some are sunk in such depths of wickedness that we cannot go back to them a second time. I have had a few visions of slums and back places in Kandy which make one shudder to think of the awful power of Satan. One is thankful that some of the little ones for whom Christ died are taken out of these awful homes for at least five hours in the day. We do pray that in some way or other their parents may be reached.

Miss Earp regularly visits the five girls' schools, giving a Bible lesson each visit. The ladies also visit the villages in the neighbourhood of Kandy, where they meet many former pupils in Mission schools. These are surrounded by temptations in their Buddhist homes, especially to yield to marriage with heathen men.

Holy Trinity Church has an average congregation of about sixty and thirty on Sunday mornings and evenings respectively, and the average number of communicants is thirty-one. The Rev. H. Gunasekara exercises pastoral supervision also of Kattukalle, Gaetaembe, Gampola, and Nawalapitiya.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

The hill country in the centre of Ceylon is divided into three districts for work among the Singhalese inhabitants. The work is carried on by catechists and by means of Mission schools, under the supervision of European missionaries.

South-Eastern District.

The South-Eastern District is under the Rev. J. G. Garrett, who resides at Kandy. Mr. Garrett spent several anxious weeks in the spring watching as a daughter's life hung in the balance in typhoid fever, from which she was mercifully raised up. He refers to crowded audiences in the preaching-hall in Kandy, the building in which the Girls' Ragged School referred to above is held, and which is also used for various classes. In the neighbourhood of Pusselawa two old men were confirmed, one of whom had been a backslider; the other, over eighty, manifested a touching simplicity of faith. On the other hand one or two fell seriously into sin. Major G. H. F. Mathison resides at Katugastota, three and a half miles from Kandy, from which place he itinerates over a part of the district known as the Lower Dumbara. Wattegama, which is six miles distance from Katugastota, is frequented on Sundays by a large number of people to sell vegetables, and the evangelists find their opportunity to preach the Gospel, the Sunday-school boys helping in the singing. The Gospel Temperance Society in this place has twenty members.

Northern District.

The Rev. H. E. Heinekey, has charge of the NORTHERN DISTRICT. He also resides at Kandy for the present, until a house is erected for him at Anuradhapura. At this place the Rev. J. Colombotantorige is responsible, under Mr. Heinekey's supervision, for the pastoral and evangelistic work. He holds both English and Singhalese services, the former being preferred by the English-speaking Natives. The Christians generally, he says, show an interest in spiritual things and subscribe liberally to the work. One member of the congregation, whose duties called him some twelve months ago to a distant town where there is no church, sent regularly his monthly subscription. Most of the schools in the district are for both boys and girls, as the village people are not sufficiently alive to the importance of education for their daughters to make it worth while having separate schools for girls. Some 500 children attend.

Western District.

The WESTERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy, under the Rev. S. M. Simmons, covers an area of 2,500 square miles, with a population of about 500,000. At three centres within this area the number of Christians affords scope for more settled pastoral work and at these places native pastoral catechists—in one of them a native deacon—are placed. The Kurunegala Pastorate has for many years been under Mr. Wanigasekara, and his health, as also that of his wife, has suffered from the climate of the place. His congregation averages twenty-eight adults. There was much fever in the Talampitiya Pastorate—and, indeed, throughout this district of the Itinerancy—during the year, and the mortality was great, but very few of the Christians died. One woman, who fell a victim, was rather a victor, for she died rejoicing in her Saviour, saying, "I am coming, Lord Jesus, I am coming home." Sickness proved a blessing to one of the Christians who had previously been very careless, for he used the enforced leisure to read the Bible through from beginning to end. His illness left him a cripple, but he took the earliest opportunity to make his way slowly and painfully to church to return thanks to God, and he continued regular in his attendance, though he had to start a long time before others in order to be in time. Another man, Silas, who had been a gambler until he was visited with a severe illness became afterwards a humble and exemplary Christian. He was confined to his house, but was never found without his Bible and Prayer-book and a pair of spectacles close beside him. This man has been the instrument of his wife's salvation. Many of the Christians in the pastorate fasted on Good Friday, 1900, and gave the proceeds, Rs. 6.50, to the Indian Famine Fund. The Rev. F. W. Daundesekara is the pastor of the Kegalle Pastorate. He appears to think that the dulness and monotony of the physical surroundings of the place have some effect on the people. At all events, the statistics of the congregation show very little growth, and this is not surprising if, as he says, "the least sign of rain or drizzle is enough to frighten away the people from coming to the service." There were no adult baptisms, but some persons were under preparation. The English school, the opening of which was mentioned last year, had an average attendance of twenty-five boys. The Girls' Boarding-school at Kegalle, where Mr. and Mrs. Simmons reside, has twenty boarders and three day girls. A small lace-making and embroidery class of about thirteen girls was formed. Three Bible-women and three evangelistic catechists are at work in the district. These men are stationed respectively at Mawanella (where one man, the father of one of the three Bible-women, is being prepared for baptism), Moonamella, and Mitanwella.

Proceeds of fasting sent to Indian Famine Fund.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

The area embraced by the Tamil Coolie Mission is in part the same as that with which the Singhalese Itinerancy is concerned. Both go considerably beyond the boundaries of the Central Province, but while the Itinerancy extends northward and westward into the North Central and North-Western Provinces, the Tamil Coolie Mission extension is southward and eastward, into the Sabaragamuwa and Uva Provinces. The chief distinction is, of course, linguistic, the Itinerancy being to the Singhalese inhabitants, and the Coolie Mission to the Tamil immigrants. Like the former, the latter is divided into three districts, each under the supervision of a European missionary.

Tamil Coolie Mission.

The Rev. J. Ilsley has charge of what is known as the KOTAGALA DISTRICT, though he resides at Nanu Oya, a few miles from the well-known sanatorium, Nuwera Eliya, which is to the east of Kotagala, on the railway which connects Kandy and Haputale. In this district there are over 1,700 baptized Christians, of whom Mr. Ilsley says:—

Kotagala.

> There is much to admire in some of our Christian people—in many, perhaps, I ought to say. Their attendance at the Sunday services (I only speak of what I have actually seen) is very encouraging. Their sympathy for Christ's work in some respects is very marked. Their prayerfulness, I hope, is becoming a reality. Here and there one can trace the working of the gentle Spirit of God leading one and another to higher and better things. Yet there is still much to be desired.

Twenty-five candidates were presented for confirmation, who were all examined by Mr. Ilsley or his colleague, the Rev. A. Sathianathen, and found to have been well prepared, and in two cases at least Mr. Ilsley has no doubt that the preparation was markedly blessed. Every second month Mr. Ilsley and his native fellow-labourers met together round the Lord's Table, and spent a time in Bible study and prayer. Of Mr. Sathianathen's help he writes in very grateful terms. But Mr. Ilsley is able to speak of other fellow-workers besides the paid agents. Of one in particular, who has been the means of winning to Christ some of the workpeople on the estate where he is employed, he says:—

A zealous voluntary worker.

He lends them Christian books, and gives some to others, for which purpose he has lately spent more than Rs. 50. He speaks to them when the day's work is over, prays with and for them, puts the claims of Christ before them, and warns them of the consequences of rejecting Him. Thus, by the earnestness of his personal appeals, the thoroughness of his Christian life, and, not least of all, by his sympathetic tact, he has been the means of winning several for Christ. Only last month five adults were baptized whose first impulse towards Christianity was derived from this man.

The evangelistic work consists mainly in using opportunities, allowed by the courtesy of the planters, of speaking for fifteen or twenty minutes to the coolies when they assemble on the parade ground at six o'clock, and again in the evening when they go to their huts, known as the "Lines." At least some 750 addresses are given monthly in this district, and yet it is only possible for the same coolies to hear the Gospel about once in four or five weeks. But the work is not in vain. Twenty-nine adults were baptized during the past year, most of whom owe their knowledge of the Gospel to the simple fervent addresses on these occasions. And Mr. Ilsley assures the Committee that the most rigorous care is taken in respect of the candidates passed for baptism. He says as to this:—

Gospel only heard once a month.

Care taken to test candidates for baptism.

It would be the easiest thing imaginable to increase our baptismal roll if the simple test of knowing the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments were alone applied. We go much further than this, and no persons are baptized who cannot give a reason for the hope that is in them. Except we are as sure as men can be that a real and definite change has taken place in heart and life we never admit an adult to baptism. There is a reason for this. The moral atmosphere in which these new converts will have to live is so bad, the temptation to go back into Heathenism and sin is so strong, that except they thoroughly understand what they are going to do, and what is expected of them, it is little use to admit them to baptism.

Without the keeping power and restraining grace of God, they are bound to fall back into their old ways. I mention this in order that you may understand why it is that so few, year by year, are admitted to Christ's Church by baptism.

Interesting particulars are given of several of the converts. One, who received the baptismal name of Peter, is the son of a pusari, or temple officer, near Trichinopoly. He wrote to his father acquainting him with his purpose to confess Christ in baptism, and pointing out the folly of Hinduism. After his baptism, a relative on the same estate threatened to bind him hand and foot and carry him to a temple on the estate and leave him there, but nothing could move him from his steadfastness. Three of the converts were led to Christ by attending weekly prayer-meetings held by the Christians. Another, Yesudian David, who was employed in a tea factory, was frequently spoken to by an earnest Christian in the same factory, and he forsook his devil-dancing and cut off the sadei, or tangled lock of hair, which betokened a devotee to Siva. His relatives beat and otherwise persecuted him, and hindered him for a while from coming out as a Christian, but the same friend who had first spoken to him encouraged him to persevere, and after some months of teaching he was baptized. In his intense emotion on one occasion he fell down weeping in the presence of Mr. Sathianathen and others, and said, "O Jesus, Thou only art my Saviour; I am Thine!" Another convert, Paul, on the advice of a catechist, taught himself to read, buying some Tamil school-books for the purpose, and getting help as he could from fellow-coolies; then he bought some Christian books and searched for the truth. He obtained an engagement as a bungalow servant to a European, and found opportunities of attending prayer-meetings. A Roman Catholic head-servant destroyed some of his books and tried his utmost to induce him to follow his own persuasion, but Paul replied, "Christ Himself is what I want. I have no wish for other things." Three of the converts are Singhalese, who, from being utterly careless, and one of them addicted to drink and a gambler, were led to Christ by a Tamil Christian living on the estate where they were employed, the one referred to on the previous page as having spent Rs. 50 on Christian books. The eighteen schools in the district are also valuable evangelistic agencies.

The KANDY DISTRICT is divided into fourteen sections, in each of which an evangelistic catechist is stationed, who ministers to the Tamil Christians and proclaims the Gospel to the Heathen. The Rev. H. C. Townsend took over charge of the district from the Rev. J. I. Pickford in February, 1900. He resides at Kandy, as also does Miss V. M. L. Franklin, and as Miss H. E. Finney did until she left to come home on furlough in November, 1900. The ladies engaged in Work among the Tamil Women in Kandy and on the estates near to it, and occasionally visited more distant estates, remaining a few days holding meetings for women and children. They also supervised the eight Bible-women, four of whom were stationed in or near to Kandy, two in Gampola, to the south of Kandy, and two in Matale, to the north. Over 12,000 visits were paid by these Bible-women during the year, and the hospital was visited sixty times. All the Bible-women meet once a month in Kandy for mutual edification and encouragement and united prayer. One of the most trusted of the Bible-women, Marial, was placed at Matale. She had sixty Mohammedan women and girls under instruction within a few weeks of going thither, the family of one of the most wealthy Mohammedans in the place being among them. There are twenty-one Tamil schools in the district. Some of the fourteen catechists reside at a distance of twenty-five miles from Kandy; each has from thirty to forty estates assigned to him as his sphere of labour, and each estate has from 100 to 200 coolies. Eleven adults were baptized during the year. The Christians in eight out of the fourteen sections of the district elect Church Committees, which receive and disburse their contributions towards the Mission expenses of the catechists, such as house rent, &c.

Haputale District.

The sorrow which fell upon the Rev. J. D. Simmons in the loss of his wife has been mentioned on a previous page (see supra, page 365). Mrs. Simmons's four months' illness obliged him to leave the catechists of the HAPUTALE DISTRICT very much to themselves, but he reports that they did their work faithfully and showed much sympathy in his trial. The Christians, who are 380 in number, increased their contributions 33 per cent., sending Rs. 800 in lieu of Rs. 600 of the previous year. Five adult coolies were baptized. The brightest spot in the district is some ninety miles distant from Haputale, where a voluntary worker had fifteen adult inquirers whom he was preparing for baptism; on the other hand, much sorrow was caused by the fall of two schoolmasters into sin. The Rev. W. J. Hanan, who resided for four months with Mr. Simmons at Haputale, was transferred to Colombo at the close of the year. He mentions the eagerness of the people to receive and read tracts:—

Tracts eagerly read.

> They are always very eager to get them, especially if they are picture tracts. I have seen little boys trying to read them aloud to a group of their elders. One day a tract was accepted by one of a party of Tamils who were conducting with great pomp a man who carried one of their gods. Shortly afterwards, as we passed down the road, we saw the party resting under the shade of the hedge. They sat in a circle; in the centre was one reading the tract aloud to them. They appeared to be listening most attentively.

Chaplain to soldiers guarding Boer prisoners.

At the Bishop's request and with the consent of the Committee, Mr. Simmons accepted temporarily the chaplaincy to the Second King's Royal Rifles stationed at Diyatalawa, three miles from Haputale, to guard the Boer prisoners.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Thompson were transferred in August, 1900, to the Northern Province from Colombo, succeeding the Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Ryde, transferred to Kandy. Miss L. A. Case sailed in May, 1901, to return to the Mission.

Nellore Girls' Boarding-school.

At Nellore, where Mr. and Mrs. Horsley reside, the Girls' Boarding-school has a roll of seventy-seven pupils, of whom thirty-four are Christians, the others being Sivites. One of the girls named Devasagayam, who carried off the first prize in Scripture, handed to Mrs. Horsley after the summer vacation the sum of one rupee for the Pastoral Fund. The girl's parents are very poor, but she had earned the money by plaiting cocoa-nut leaves during the holidays. Miss Horsley, who joined her parents in the Mission during the year, gave assistance in the school.

Chundicully College.

The Rev. J. Thompson, who, as stated above, is now stationed at Chundicully, has had a considerable amount of anxiety since his appointment to the charge of St. John's College, which, while it enjoys the dignity of being the oldest Church of England College in the island, suffers also the inconveniences of old age. The falling in of the roof was mentioned in last year's Annual Report, but the whole of the buildings were in a more or less dilapidated condition, and the walls of the dormitory needed the help of supports to keep them from collapsing. When Mr. Thompson arrived he found some of the students being taught in the verandah of the boarding-house, some in the vestry of the church, others in the village girls' school; even the shade of a large tree was utilized until the monsoon rains arrived. The hall of the College was restored, and was opened by the Bishop of Colombo on February 18th, 1901. Two St. John's boys obtained first classes in the Calcutta University Entrance Examination out of four first classes obtained in Ceylon, and one of the other two, as already mentioned, fell to Trinity College, Kandy. There were 288 pupils, of whom 210 were high-caste Hindus.

Girls' High School.

The Girls' High School, under Miss A. C. Goodchild, has eighty-one on its roll, all except nine being Christians. The boarders fluctuated in number between eleven and fourteen. All, of course, receive careful Bible and Prayer-book teaching, the lessons of the lower standards being given in Tamil. Eleven girls were confirmed. Forty-six girls, all who were eligible, were presented for the Government Examination, and forty-two were successful. The Inspector showed his pleasure at the results by recommending several extra prizes, and by bestowing two himself. Sir William Twynam presided at the prize distribution, when the girls sang English songs, recited, gave pianoforte solos, and duets, as is done on similar occasions by schoolgirls at home. The two first candidates of the school to attempt the Junior Cambridge Local Examination were both successful, and two also passed the Calcutta University Entrance, one in the second and the other in the third division. The girl who passed in the second division has since become a teacher in the school, making two former pupils who are on the staff, and both are giving great satisfaction. Miss Goodchild mentions in grateful terms Miss Hopfengärtner, another member of the staff, to whose unselfish and untiring co-operation with herself the school owes very much. The demand for an English education for girls was greatly on the increase during the past year. Miss H. E. Payne, who was responsible for the housekeeping, mentions that all the girls, both boarders and day scholars, gave liberally to the Indian Famine Relief Fund, some earning money by needlework, and all the boarders denying themselves of pudding on Sundays, their special treat on that day, for two months, and of a promised holiday outing, in order that the money saved might swell the fund. Miss Payne has been transferred to Gampola.

Demand for English education for girls.

The work under the Jaffna District Church Council embraces several Pastorates. Mr. Horsley, as Treasurer of the Council, reports that the congregations contributed Rs. 500, by means of missionary boxes, to their Native Missionary Association. The Rev. G. Champion, of the Chundicully Pastorate, says that almost every Christian family in his pastorate possesses a Bible, which they read and learn daily. A Bible Union for children encourages its members to commit portions of Scripture to memory and to study the references. The attendance at the Sunday services increased considerably during the past year. A leading member of the congregation was removed by death, Mr. Advocate Allagacorn, and several agents also were taken, among them Mr. Charles Williams, a retired reader and colporteur, at the age of seventy-six, after nearly fifty years of service. Six adults and fifteen children were baptized; of the former one was a woman of the Island of Mandative whose husband and children were baptized in 1891. The Christians in that island are purposing to buy a piece of land and erect a church. Thirty-one candidates were confirmed at Chundicully, and forty-one in the Nellore Pastorate, of which the Rev. S. Morse is pastor. Among eight adults whom Mr. Morse baptized one was an old woman who in her young days was a pupil in a girls' boarding-school at Nellore. For the greater part of her life she has been, like so many others in the island,

Every Christian family possesses a Bible, and reads it daily.

Nearly fifty years of service as a colporteur.

Mr. Morse says, neither a Heathen nor a Christian, her early education having counterbalanced the effect of a heathen environment, but her heart remaining till far advanced in years estranged from God. Her two daughters meanwhile had both received a Christian education and embraced the Christian faith. A group of Christian voluntary workers, under the name of a Gospel Band, takes part with Mr. Morse in street-preaching, and on one occasion canvassed seven villages, visiting almost every house, and selling eight Bibles, thirteen Testaments, and 259 portions. Two hundred children attend the Sunday-schools in the pastorate. The Rev. G. Daniel, of the Copay Pastorate, reports the formation of a Scripture Union, the meetings of which are conducted by the older boy members in turns under the pastor's supervision. Scripture texts and Bible stories are repeated and lyrics sung. At the Anniversary Meeting the members were examined in the presence of their parents and friends. Four adults, all having been rigid Sivites, were baptized. The Training Institution, which is in this pastorate, is carried on by Mr. Thambapully and two assistants. The students passed a good examination on the Bible, and the Government grant was in excess of that of the previous year. The Rev. J. Backus is in charge of the Pallai Pastorate. Mr. Horsley visited Pallai, which is twenty-four miles from Nellore, and the other outlying districts of Poonaryn, the Wanney, and the islands of the peninsula. The placing of the Rev. C. T. Williams at Tanniatto, the distant outpost in the Wanney, relieves the superintending missionary of much anxiety. The Rev. A. Matthias, at Vavoniya, saw his flock diminish in consequence of the exercise of discipline.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Mission has owed much to successive Bishops of Mauritius, especially to Dr. Ryan, Dr. Royston, and Dr. Walsh. The present Bishop, Dr. Pym, was consecrated in 1898.

"Difficult work under difficult circumstances."

"DIFFICULT work, under exceptionally difficult circumstances," expresses, in the words of one of the workers, the verdict which a retrospect of what has been attempted and done for Christ in the Island of Mauritius during the past year is likely to endorse. The language difficulties are always serious, and have been dwelt upon again and again in previous Annual Reports. The way in which the Christians who look to the Society or to the Church Council for pastoral help are scattered over the island in units and families is another difficulty. The continual flux of the members of the congregations is perhaps less a difficulty attaching to the work than a condition that militates against tangible results, but it is none the less apt to be a source of discouragement to the workers. The low standard of social morality which obtains amongst the immigrant population is undoubtedly an obstacle, and one which, even were other conditions more favourable, would be liable to affect seriously for evil the little scattered community of Christians. And when to all the above is added the difficulty which is common to all Foreign Missions, but which this Mission is less able than most to encounter—that resulting from reduction of the staff through death and sickness—it will be realized that there are grounds for the claim on the Church's sympathy and prayer which the missionaries make. To one at least of the workers the consolation has occurred, and it is beyond doubt a valid one, that it is a higher privilege to work where trials abound than in spheres which flesh and blood would preferably select.

Fewer adherents.

The number of adherents returned in the statistical sheets is 1,851, a decrease of fifty-eight on the figures of the previous year. The Rev. V. W. Harcourt attributes the diminution in part to a more careful compilation, and in part to a pruning off of dead branches. Most of the Chinese who were included as converts in former Reports have now been removed because they have proved themselves unwilling to sacrifice their Sunday gains and attend church. Converts that never put in an appearance at church can hardly be considered Christians, as Mr. Harcourt most truly remarks. The want of a Chinese catechist to work among these people is sorely felt.

Ordination.

The Bishop of Mauritius admitted Mr. Solomon Toolsy to Deacons' Orders at St. James's Cathedral, Port Louis, on Trinity

Sunday, June 10th, 1900. Mr. Toolsy was for many years a teacher at the Plaisance Orphanage, under the late Revs. P. G. Ansorge and N. Honiss, and has latterly had quasi-charge of a pastorate.

Miss H. A. Wilkinson came home on furlough in April, 1901.

Rose Belle. At Rose Belle Miss H. A. Wilkinson, before she came home, and Miss M. L. Penley after July, 1900, resided, and found it, being a railway junction, a convenient centre for their Work among the Women of the south of the island. Miss Wilkinson held 128 meetings for Christian women in the course of the year in different parts of the island, and twenty-two were held by the other ladies. Seven Bible-women were supervised, and these were gathered together at Rose Belle twice in the year for three days' conference and prayer. Miss Wilkinson gave medicine to 1,128 people. The Girls' Orphanage is also at Rose Belle. It is a sphere of peculiar difficulty, as Miss K. Heaney's Annual Letter shows. She says:— Girls' Orphanage.

> While these children inherit bodily disease from their parents, most certainly do they inherit spiritual disease, and many are the struggles they must have with their evil tendencies. But I thank God that I can say that, as far as one can tell, many of them are true children of God. When a girl has done wrong I always now send her to her room alone for a little time, and in every case she has come to me afterwards saying she was truly sorry, and we have been enabled to have a little talk and prayer together, and I have been encouraged by seeing how earnestly she has striven to overcome afterwards. I do often feel that now I am seeing in the lives of these elder girls the results of the work of the late Mrs. Buswell, and that her prayers are being abundantly answered in the lives of those for whom she was most anxious.

Children's prayers. The younger children are very fond of singing in their native Creole patois, and "Now the day is over" is one of their favourites. They make each verse into a little prayer, Miss Heaney says, applying "the weary" of the hymn to "Madam and the teachers," and "Those who plan some evil" to "the wicked men in China" ("Dimome mechat dans la Chine"). They make garments to be sold, and the proceeds go for the support of missionary work in Africa. Miss Heaney had hoped to start a training class for teachers, but she failed to find in the island as a helper one whose character and home life would justify her being taken into the school, though there was no difficulty in finding those who had the necessary certificates as to education. Miss M. B. Gwynn went in September to Vacoas, about half-way on the railway between Rose Belle and Port Louis. The Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Finnimore resided at this place, and Miss Gwynn was able to recommence the work among the women and children which Mrs. Finnimore left to come home four years ago. She had as her companion Miss Tessin, who assisted Mrs. Finnimore. Numerous heathen villages are close at hand, and the ladies' house was on the outskirts of a large camp of some 2,000 Indians.

Boys' Orphanage.

The return of the Rev. and Mrs. V. W. Harcourt in June, 1900, relieved Miss M. L. Penley of the charge of the Boys' Orphanage, which is at PLAISANCE, a few miles from Moka, where the Bishop resides. Grave fears of a visitation of plague in the orphanage were entertained by Miss Penley in the early part of the year (1900). As many as forty-five dead rats were found on the premises—in the compound, out-buildings, kitchens, and latterly under the flooring of the house. Every precaution was taken, and the calamity was kept away. Psalm xci. was an unfailing source of strength and comfort to Miss Penley while the danger continued. Mr. Harcourt, in addition to the charge of the orphanage, also visited the schools, twenty-five in number, in different parts of the island.

A threatened attack of the plague.

BEAU BASSIN is at the most western point touched by the railway, which affords communication from thence with the north and east and south of the island. It would appear, therefore, to be a well-chosen station for the Rev. C. A. Blackburn, whose work is among the immigrant Natives of North India, who, since the abolition of slavery in 1834, have been imported to work on the various sugar estates of the island. His staff of Indian fellow-workers suffers diminution year by year through death and retirement, and it is found most difficult to replace them. During the past year a valued evangelist died, Daniel Abdul Wahid, a former Mohammedan Moulvie, particulars of whose conversion were given in the Annual Report for 1889–90 (pages 192, 193). Mr. Blackburn writes of him as his "right arm in all his conferences with the Mussulmans." And Archdeacon Buswell says :—

Work among Hindu coolies.

Death of a valued evangelist.

> I had known and carefully observed D.A.W. from the time that he first sought admission into the Church of Christ, and my opinion of him from the first was that he was a diligent student of God's Word and a man of prayer—a type of man of which, alas! we have too few. Though constitutionally unequal to very active work, he was, nevertheless, diligent to the measure of his strength, and did good service. He attended the Bible-readings which I held weekly for the workers in the district in which he lived. I know, therefore, from his questions and suggestive remarks on those occasions, that he knew and loved his Bible.

He loved his Bible.

Mr. Blackburn held public discussions with both Mohammedans and Hindus. The former were astonished to learn what favourable testimonies may be found in the Koran concerning Christ, and the latter were ashamed of the testimony of their own religious books regarding the character of the Hindu gods. He believes he sees signs of a movement among the more educated Hindus in the island towards the Truth. His journeyings were more restricted than in some previous years owing to ill-health, but he spent a considerable portion of the past year in visiting the camps on the sugar estates, the cottages in the villages, and the hospitals, and also in preaching in the marketplaces, court-houses, and on the roads, wherever Indians were to be found, and they were, as in former years, ever ready to listen. Fifteen adults were baptized.

Pastorates.

Of the six Pastorates three only have native ordained pastors, namely, the Port Louis Pastorate, the Northern, and the North Central. The other three—the Moka, South Central, and the Southern—have native catechists in charge. The Rev. S. Susunkar gives the following list of his normal Sunday engagements in the Port Louis Pastorate. At 8 a.m. he holds a service in the civil prison of Port Louis, when usually he has a congregation of thirty; at 11 a.m. he conducts the Morning Service at St. Paul's Church, in Hindi, with an average attendance of sixty; at 1 p.m. he has a class of from ten to fourteen; and at 7 p.m. the Evening Service is attended by from 80 to 130. The Rev. J. Ernest, of the Northern Pastorate, presented eleven Indians and five Creoles for confirmation. He prepared them in four classes some distance apart—one of them at Pamplemouses and another at Poudre d'Or, for example. He taught some in French and others in English, but the services were in French, and some of the candidates were consequently at a disadvantage in answering the Bishop's questions. In the North Central Pastorate the language difficulty assumed still more complicated aspects. The Rev. I. F. Chorley had to instruct his thirty-two candidates in five different languages—English, French, Creole, Tamil, and Hindi—and the same problem presented itself naturally in the services and the Sunday-schools.

Archdeacon Buswell was absent from Mauritius for six months—from May till November, 1900—taking temporarily the chaplain's duty at Seychelles, in response to the request of the Bishop. He resided at Mahé, the Society's former station in the Seychelles. The people are mostly of African descent and are nominal Christians, the exceptions being a few Indians and Chinese. The adherents of the Church of England, out of a population of 19,000, number about 2,500, most of the remainder being Roman Catholics, who have in the group of small islands a bishop and sixteen priests, ten Frères engaged in educational work, and fifty Sisters of Charity, while the Church of England had never more than three clergymen. Archdeacon Buswell found many of the nominally Church of England adherents—those who lived in inaccessible places, and whose religious duties scarcely extended beyond attending church at Easter and Christmas—extremely ignorant of Christian truth. One old African woman, living eighteen miles from the town, to whom he was asked to administer the Holy Communion, not only knew nothing of the meaning of the service, but appeared equally ignorant as to what the Lord Jesus had done for mankind. Others seemed to regard the Sacrament as a charm. Even those who lived nearer to the means of grace and attended the services with regularity were surprisingly ignorant. There are about 100 Chinese in Mahé, most of them little shopkeepers, and with them Mr. Buswell had conversations through the medium of Creole, and he left with them Scripture portions and other books. More interesting, however, were his interviews with some African political prisoners, especially King Prempeh, lately King of Ashanti. He says :—

Political prisoners.

Amongst items of interest I ought to mention the arrival of Kings Prempeh and Asibi and the other political prisoners from West Africa. I made their acquaintance as soon after their arrival as I possibly could, and, thanks to the kind offices of the interpreter who accompanied them, have been able to do something amongst them. Some of them are getting into the habit of coming to church.

King Prempeh interested in the Gospel.

King Prempeh seems to look forward to my visits with pleasure. He certainly listens most attentively, and by his questions and remarks I gather that he is trying, and not unsuccessfully, to take in what he hears. I find also that he talks about it afterwards. One day, when I was trying as simply as possible to illustrate the teaching of the Lord's Prayer, he said, as it seemed to me very feelingly, "I should like to give my heart to God," and that, so far as I remember, without my using language to suggest such an expression. Three or four weeks ago, whilst speaking to him on the subject of prayer, I told him that prayer must be offered through Jesus Christ, and that when we asked any favour of God it must be for Jesus Christ's sake. I used illustrations such as I thought would make the matter plain to him, and he seemed to be much interested. The next time I went his mother came and seated herself by me. It was clear he had been telling her what I had said, for when I got up to leave he said, "Explain to me again, 'For Jesus Christ's sake.'" He was anxious that she should hear. The next week his father and brother and another old chief came to listen.

"Explain to me again, 'For Jesus Christ's sake.'"

The Rev. J. Draper, chaplain at Moka, kindly acted as Secretary of the Mission during the absence of the Archdeacon.

CHINA.

Events of transcendent importance.

During the year that is under review in this Report China has been the scene of events of transcendent interest and importance, whether regarded in their secular aspect or as they affect the concerns of the Church of Christ; events which have focussed the gaze of the civilized world and exercised the diplomacy of its statesmen and the military science of its soldiers, and which have dealt a terrible blow at the agents and agencies of the Church's evangelistic efforts, and at the Chinese converts who are the fruits of those efforts. This Report must first indicate, with the utmost brevity, the leading features of the siege of Peking, a siege which is certain to be a notable landmark of history.

The "Boxers."

The Annual Report of last year (page 360) made reference to a body of men in the Shan-Tung Province who were known as "Boxers," by whom the Rev. S. Brooks, a missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, was killed on the last day of 1899. The precise origin of the Society thus designated (because the last character, "Chuan," of the title "I-ho-Chuan," which was inscribed on their banners, means "defending with the fists"), and otherwise known as the "Long-Sword Society," because they were armed with those weapons in the course of 1898 by Yü-hsien, the Governor of Shan-Tung, is uncertain. As an organization it appears to have existed during the greater part of the last century. From its proclamations, its aims appear to have been at one time anti-dynastic rather than anti-foreign. Its members, however, have been credited with the murder of the two German Roman Catholic missionaries at Yen-chau-fu, in Shan-Tung, at the close of 1897 (see Annual Report for 1897–98, page 317), which led to the occupation by Germany of Kiaou-chow, and it was through the outrages which this body perpetrated in the course of 1900, under official encouragement and patronage, that China was brought to the verge of disintegration.

Their depredations in Chih-Li.

When, on the demand of the Foreign Ministers at Peking, Yü-hsien was removed from Shan-Tung, his successor in the Governorship of that province pressed the "Boxers" so vigorously that they migrated to the neighbouring province of Chih-Li, and there in the spring of 1900 their increasing popularity and growing audacity, their ruthless and barbarous attacks on Native Christians, and their threats against all foreigners, gave alarm to the Diplomatic Body, and these ordered up to Peking to protect the Legations a number of Marine Guards, who arrived on May 30th. On June 2nd two other missionaries of the S.P.G., the Revs. H. V. Norman and G. Robinson, were murdered at Yung-ching, in Chih-Li Province; two days later the railway connexion between Peking and the coast was finally interrupted, and on the 11th all communications were stopped. On this last-named date also the Chancellor of the Japanese Legation, M. Sugiyama, was murdered, and Baron Von Ketteler, the German Minister, was assassinated while on his way to the Tsung-li-Yamen on June 20th. For over two months, until a relief force arrived on August 15th, the whole foreign community in Peking, including forty-three Protestant missionaries, were besieged in the British Legation (the other Legations having been in a great measure destroyed) by the Chinese Imperial troops, armed with modern rifles and possessing Krupp guns, and their preservation was solely due to a succession of most remarkable and signal providences. The French Minister, M. Pichon, in his account of the siege to the President of the French Republic, wrote :—

Siege of Peking.

Signal providences.

> It is a wonder the besieged were able to resist and be saved. A series of extraordinary events, the origin of which was less the will of men than the occurrence of circumstances which could not be foreseen, was the only thing which prevented the general massacre to which they seemed condemned. If, on June 20th, all the members of the Diplomatic Corps had gone to the Tsung-li-Yamen, as they had intended doing, none of them would have escaped death, or at least the firing of the Chinese soldiers. As chance would have it, only the German Minister set out to attend the audience which he had demanded. He was assassinated. If, on June 22nd, the Legations of France, Germany, America, and Russia had been evacuated, or if that evacuation had taken place, as was seriously contemplated, a few days later, the British Legation would have succumbed in less than a fortnight. If, at the very commencement of the siege, we had not discovered in abandoned houses sufficient rice and corn to feed 900 refugees and 2,400 Native Christians for more than two months, we should have been reduced to surrender by famine. Had our aggressors, instead of sending the greater number of their artillerymen to Tientsin, kept a few good gunners at Peking, we should not have been able to protect ourselves against their fire. Moreover, if the Chinese had possessed a little courage, and had attempted to storm our walls and barricades, we should have been crushed by their numerical superiority. If, from July 17th, we had not profited by a sort of intermittent armistice, the causes of which it is difficult to understand, the losses we should have suffered would have reduced us to powerlessness. Our ammunition would also have been exhausted before it would have been possible to liberate us. If the international army, which arrived in the capital on August 15th, had delayed its entry twenty-four hours, it is probable it would have found no one living. The Chinese had dug a mine fifty-four metres long under the British Legation, and had it been exploded it would have killed some hundred persons, and would have opened to the assailants the refuge of the women and children. They had accomplished a similar work on the wall, which would have blown up the Russo-American barricade, and they were not far from having succeeded in the same result at the French Legation. Our salvation, therefore, resulted from a chain of events which cannot be explained by logical reason and rational considerations.

A large number of Roman Catholic Native Christians took refuge in one of the two Cathedrals of that denomination in Peking, that known as the Pei-tang Cathedral, and there, assisted by a small force of French and Italian Marines, defended themselves successfully, though with a heavy mortality, until they were relieved by the Japanese on August 16th. The Protestant Native Christians of the city and neighbourhood applied for admission within the protected area of the Legations. Dr. W. A. P. Martin, President of the Chinese Imperial University of Peking, who was one of the besieged, states in his book, The Siege of Peking, that when some of the Diplomatic Corps objected to receiving so large a body lest the provisions should run short, the missionaries "resolved to live or die with their converts, and their noble devotion was fully appreciated by the American and British Ministers, as well as by the greater part of the Diplomatic Body." These Christians were placed in an enclosure adjoining the British Legation, which was under the protection of the Japanese Marines, whose gallantry surpassed all praise. When the siege was raised it was found that of the entire force of Marines only five men had escaped without wounds. The frenzied hatred shown by the Chinese troops against these Christians attracted the special notice of Dr. G. E. Morrison, the distinguished Correspondent of the Times, who in his graphic account of the siege records their repeated attempts to force their way into this enclosure in order to slaughter the Christians. "Their rage to reach them," he wrote, "was appalling. They cursed them over the wall, hurled stones at them, and threw shells to explode overhead." And it transpired afterwards, as the official Peking Gazette showed, that instructions to burn out and slaughter the converts had been given by the highest in the land. These converts proved an invaluable auxiliary to the defenders. Colonel Shiba, the officer in charge of the Japanese Marines, raised a force of Christian volunteers, drilled them, instructed them, and armed them with rifles captured from the enemy, and, Dr. Morrison says, "they made an effective addition to the Japanese strength and stood up to the barricades without flinching. Many were wounded and some killed. Those of us who saw these men under fire were favourably impressed with their conduct." The American and British Ministers also bore ungrudging witness to the help rendered both by the missionaries and the Native Christians. The former, Mr. Conger, in a letter he addressed on August 18th to the American missionaries, said:—

The missionaries and the Native Christians in Peking.

Chinese Christians protected by Japanese marines.

Rage of Chinese soldiers to reach them.

A force of Christian volunteers.

The American and British Ministers testify to value of help rendered by missionaries and Native Christians.

> To one and all of you, so providentially saved from threatened massacre, I beg, in this hour of our deliverance, to express what I know to be the universal sentiment of the Diplomatic Corps, a sincere appreciation of, and profound gratitude for, the inestimable help which you and the Native Christians under your charge have rendered toward our preservation. But for your intelligent and successful planning, and the uncomplaining execution of the Chinese, I believe our salvation would have been impossible.

And Sir Claude Macdonald, the British Minister (now

British Minister at Tokio), in an interview with a representative of the Daily Express, said of the missionaries, "They were courteous, patient, and self-sacrificing, and I can only say that their capacity for organizing and their power over their converts which was then displayed came as a revelation to me. In fact, had they not been with us our hardships would have been materially increased."

While the whole world was in suspense waiting to learn the fate of the Legations in Peking, a terrible persecution was proceeding in some of the northern provinces, more particularly in Shan-Si. The Governor of this province was Yü-hsien, the same who was removed at the instance of the Foreign Legations from the Governorship of Shan-Tung at the beginning of 1900 because of his notorious complicity with the "Boxer" movement in that province. The transfer was in effect a promotion, and it appears to have been made without a protest from the Foreign Ministers. The consequences were terrible in the extreme. Out of a total of 133 Protestant missionaries and forty-eight children who were killed in the provinces of Shan-Tung, Chih-Li, Shan-Si, and Cheh-Kiang, more than one-half suffered in Shan-Si. Regarding the circumstances attending the death of most of those who thus laid down their lives in the service of Christ nothing is known, as reliable witnesses have not yet divulged the particulars. One of the few cases of exception to this statement relates to the massacre of forty-three missionaries at once in the yamen of the Governor of Shan-Si, which occurred on July 9th. The following extract from the North China Daily News gives a condensed account of this painful incident:—

One hundred and eighty Protestant missionaries and children killed.

A bloodthirsty Governor.

An eye-witness—not a convert—writing from the city of Tai-yuan to a relative here with reference to the massacres of missionaries in the Governor's yamen in that city, states that the "Boxers," when sent out by the Governor to attack the missionaries of Shan-Si Province, had no intention at first to bring any of their victims to the provincial capital, but to slaughter them wherever found. But Yü-hsien was so anxious to be the first to wreak vengeance on his victims that he sent special orders after his "Boxers" to bring all their captives to Tai-yuan-fu "for trial" first, and not to harm them on the way. When the first batch of missionaries was brought to Tai-yuan-fu, therefore, Yü-hsien ordered them to be brought straight into his yamen and taken to an archery-ground in the rear, and then placed standing at a distance of a few feet from each other. The sanguinary Governor then took off his outer official robe and necklace, mounted a horse ready saddled for him, and then, taking a long sword from an orderly, cantered to the other end of the ground. As Yü-hsien turned his horse towards his victims, standing some fifteen chang (about 200 feet) away, he started at a hard gallop towards them, swinging his long sword as he swept past them, carrying off four or five heads on the onrush. Then his horse balked and would not go farther, so Yü-hsien had to get off his horse, and the rest of these unhappy missionaries were then massacred by the "Boxers" and soldiers who were present.

Several small parties made their escape, but the sufferings they endured in the course of land journeys extending for hundreds of miles were heartrending, and several died, literally tortured to death by the populace. They were attacked and their food stolen from them. Some were killed with swords, and some beaten with clubs. They were stripped of their clothes and compelled to walk for days in the blazing sun of mid-summer with no covering for the head or for the upper part of the body. The villagers refused them food. When they demanded protection of mandarins they were herded in dark and filthy prisons like the worst of criminals. In addition to the Protestant missionaries, a Laffan's Agency telegram dated March 12th, 1901, gave the number of Roman Catholic missionaries of French, Italian, Belgian, Dutch, and German nationality who were killed as forty-nine, and the number of Native Christians, Protestant and Roman Catholic, as "30,000 at the lowest computation."

Sufferings of refugees.

Thirty thousand Chinese Christians massacred.

While the outbreak of anti-foreign violence was confined to a very few provinces—four out of the eighteen—and to districts where the local governors were men of strong anti-foreign sentiments, it was impossible at any time to be sure that the troubles would not extend throughout the length and breadth of the Empire. That they did not is largely due to the influence of two powerful Viceroys, Liu Kien-Yi, of Nanking, and Chang Chih-Tung, of Hupah and Hu-Nan, who at the time when the fate of the Legations at Peking was still in doubt entered into a compact with the European Consuls at Shanghai to protect the lives and property of foreigners in the provinces subject to their rule, and they kept their engagement. Nevertheless, in obedience to the representations of the Consuls of Great Britain and America, many missionaries, with the utmost reluctance but under a sense of duty to the Native Christians whose lives their presence might have jeopardized, vacated the interior stations and took refuge at the treaty ports, so that for several months of the year under review the main part of China was practically bereft of its foreign missionaries. This was so largely in the Missions of the Church Missionary Society, though there were a few stations where the missionaries were able to continue all through the period of excitement and danger. As the following pages will show, when their human stays and supports were withdrawn, the Lord was with the converts and strengthened them, and caused the things that happened to fall out to the furtherance of the Gospel.

Spread of anti-foreign violence arrested by two Viceroys.

Missionaries summoned to treaty ports.

In the home lands, when anxiety regarding Peking filled all hearts, and conflicting rumours regarding its fate followed each other in rapid succession, the Lord's people could only resort to prayer. June 20th was observed as a day of special prayer for

China, and large gatherings assembled for that purpose at New York and Boston, U.S.A., at Edinburgh and Glasgow, and in London. The Honorary Clerical Secretary of the C.M.S., at the united request of the Secretaries of the China Inland Mission and of other Societies having Missions in China, presided at a meeting held in Exeter Hall, and there the missionaries and the converts were committed in trustful assurance to the keeping of their covenant God, His protecting care was supplicated for the besieged in Peking, and wisdom was asked for statesmen to deal justly and rightly with the great and intricate problems relating to China.

Prayer-meeting in Exeter Hall on June 20th.

On the day before that meeting for prayer Lord Salisbury, the Prime Minister, and at that time Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in the same Hall, let fall a few words which were taken by a portion of the secular press, without due appreciation of their import, as the text for charges against missionaries for having by their indiscreet zeal provoked the animosity of the Chinese and necessitated the intervention of the allied Powers, and for pleas that missionary work should be restrained, or at least "deprived of the power to create class hatreds." This outbreak of unfriendly and uninformed criticism was met by a joint statement put forth by the Secretaries of eleven British societies engaged in missionary work in China, which was published in the C.M. Intelligencer for October, 1900.

But it should also be noted in this connexion that a more reasonable view on the subject of the relation of missionaries and converts to anti-foreign outbreaks, and one far more consonant with the facts, was expressed by some of the leading representatives of the Press. An article appeared in the Spectator of July 21st, 1900, some weeks before Peking was relieved and the story of the invaluable help rendered to the besieged by the Chinese Christians became known, in which the writer, after referring to the perennial danger of massacre which confronts Europeans in Asia, said :—

A strong Native Christian community the only "effective guard" of Europeans in China.

"Of preventives, there is but one which can be relied on, and that Europe has seldom or never secured. A great native caste which could be implicitly relied on, and which knew every emotion of the people around them, could probably protect the Europeans from any outburst of sudden death. Ten millions of Christian Natives in China or India, for instance, would be for the white Christians an effective unpaid guard. It is difficult, however, even to think of a bond other than a common religion strong enough to be a guarantee, and it may be centuries before that guarantee is secured. Till then, we may rely on it, Europeans in Asia will remain under the conditions of a garrison liable at any moment to be called upon to fight for their authority and their lives."

Among the more thoughtful arguments in favour of some measure of Government interference with Missions were those which were based on the indignities and sufferings which women missionaries had been called upon to endure in the recent troubles. It was urged, for example, that unmarried women should be prevented from travelling or residing in the interior of China without a passport signed by the British Minister. It ought not, however, to be forgotten, even at a time of such events as have been recorded above, how exceptionally safe in normal conditions China has proved for women missionaries. The China Inland Mission had on its list of missionaries before the outbreak 293 unmarried women and 176 wives, while its male missionaries numbered 317. It has, and has had for some years past, far more unmarried women missionaries than any other Society, and a larger proportion of them are in the interior stations than are those of any other Society. Yet, during the thirty-five years since the C.I.M. was founded, in 1865, only one member of its staff—Mr. Fleming, in 1898—has suffered death by violence previous to 1900. It is true that that Society's share of the suffering and sorrow and loss of the past year has been a terribly heavy one—no fewer than fifty-eight adults and twenty children—yet it is a matter for thankfulness that the following statement could be officially made :— Women missionaries.

"In most cases they appear to have been put to death speedily. In consequence, however, of statements which have repeatedly appeared in print, which have either intentionally stated or by a cruel carelessness in the use of language have implied outrage, which reports have caused untold anguish to many, we feel it necessary to definitely say that so far as facts are yet known such statements or insinuations are untrue and without foundation."

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society were not unmindful of their responsibility to do all that in them lay to promote the safety of the Society's missionaries, subject to the well-being of the converts, and they realized it most deeply. They were led to send out an important memorandum in the spring of 1900, before the troubles which shortly broke out were apprehended, instructing the Society's missionaries how to act, as to mutual counsel and united prayer, in times of danger, and these doubtless proved opportune and useful in some cases where doubt might otherwise have existed. Then in June telegrams were sent to the Secretaries of the Missions, authorizing their taking any steps which in their judgment might be called for; and again on July 17th, when reports of the fall of the Legations at Peking were universally believed, and the Times that very day had obituary notices of Sir Claude Macdonald, Sir Robert Hart, and Dr. Morrison, and when a Memorial Service had been arranged to take place at St. Paul's Cathedral, the Committee sent out an instruction to the Secretaries to secure the safety of the ladies, and suggesting their sending them, if necessary, to Japan. Committee's action in the crisis.

On the other hand, the Committee had also a duty to do something to enlighten the Christian public on the value of and necessity for women's work in China, and the safety of it in ordinary times and with proper precautions, and the degree in which it is welcomed by the Chinese where its aims have come to be understood, and with this view the Society held a meeting in Queen's Hall, Langham Place, on February 28th, 1901, at which Colonel R. Williams, M.P., presided, and seven women missionaries gave short, pointed, and impressive addresses. The gist of the whole matter was expressed in the pregnant question with which one of them concluded her remarks—"Are only the men to receive the Gospel, and not the women?" Justly did the last speaker, the Rev. H. E. Fox, declare that the troubles of China were caused, not by the presence of the missionary, but by his, and especially her, absence. The whole day on which the above meeting was held was devoted to prayer for China, a Communion Service being held in the morning at St. Bride's Church, when Archdeacon A. E. Moule was the preacher, and in the afternoon two prayer-meetings were held at the C.M. House, and many petitions were offered up that the Lord of the harvest would thrust out more labourers into the great Chinese harvest field.

Meeting in Queen's Hall.

"Are only the men to receive the Gospel?"

"Troubles caused by absence, not presence, of missionaries."

And, while Christians at home were praying, the labourers already in the field, former Student Volunteers who are now missionaries in twelve different provinces of China, sent to the Student Volunteers in the home lands the following appeal:—

Appeal of Student Volunteers.

> The churches, hospitals, schools, and homes of Christians have been generally destroyed by the Boxer uprising, in a territory five times the size of Great Britain. Thousands of Christian Chinese have died for the Faith. More than 130 Protestant missionaries have been murdered, and many others have been incapacitated, by their sufferings for missionary work. Yet we are confident that these days of persecution are soon to give place to an unprecedented opportunity for a great spiritual awakening in the Chinese Empire. It is, therefore, with intense and prayerful earnestness that we urge you to come to China.

In similar terms of fervent appeal Mrs. Isabella Bishop addressed the Church Congress at Newcastle-on-Tyne in September, 1900. Having first testified that, after eight and a half years of journeyings among Asiatic peoples, she could unhesitatingly affirm "that the raw material out of which the Holy Ghost fashions the Chinese convert, and oft-times the Chinese martyr, is the best stuff in Asia," she said, "The word 'retreat' is now on the lips of many, but the Church of Christ cannot, dare not, retire from the blood-drenched battlefields of the Far East so long as the Captain of our Salvation is in the front and men and women are ready to fight and die under His banner. But this service requires our best and ablest men and loving women of discretion and mature judgment."

"The best stuff in Asia."

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tientsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied by the Society's missionaries in 1862, Pakhoi in 1886, Canton in 1898, and Kuei-lin in 1899.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, the third, Dr. Burdon, and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, were C.M.S. missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Division of the Mission.

THE term "South China Mission" has in previous Annual Reports covered the work not only in the Province of Kwan-Tung (including the Island of Hong Kong) and that newly opened in the Province of Kwang-Si, but also that in the Province of Fuh-Kien, all being under the episcopal supervision of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. It has never been possible, however, owing to the distance of Hong Kong and Pakhoi from Fuh-Kien, where the work is far more advanced than further south, and the workers more numerous, to find a convenient administrative centre for the whole, or to bring the missionaries together periodically for conference. Moreover, the increasing extent and importance of the Society's work in Hong Kong within the past few years has rendered it expedient to relieve the Secretary there from all responsibilities regarding Fuh-Kien, while the improved facilities at Fuh-chow for banking and for direct communication with London removed the grounds which once obtained for connecting Fuh-Kien with Hong Kong as its base. Accordingly, the Committee have constituted Fuh-Kien a separate Mission, and the South China Mission is now limited to the work which the Society undertakes in the other provinces within the diocese of Bishop Hoare.

"The heavy throb from the north."

South China "felt the heavy throb transmitted from the north," as one of the missionaries aptly says. When the Viceroy, Li Hung Chang, left Canton to proceed to Peking, fears were entertained that the removal of his strong hand from the helm of affairs would issue in the breaking loose of the many forces making for lawlessness and violence which abound in every part of China. At the beginning of October the aspect was, indeed, exceedingly grave. On the East River a rebellion broke out against the Government, and the whole province of Kwan-Tung seemed to be in a ferment. A number of churches were destroyed, and Native Christians suffered the loss of their possessions. The Government was enabled, however, to obtain the upper hand, and adequate compensation was promptly given by the authorities, not only for property of foreigners destroyed, but also for losses incurred by the Native Christians. The Consuls at Canton, both British and American, recalled all inland missionaries to the treaty ports at the beginning of July The Colonial Government considerately placed some buildings in Hong Kong at the disposal of the Mission for the use of the Native Christians from the mainland.

Death of Rev. Edmund Davys.

One who was an honorary missionary in this Mission for five years, and who was instrumental in opening work at several places in the neighbourhood of Canton at his own expense, the Rev. Edmund Davys, died during the year under review. Mr. Davys was a Cambridge graduate, 16th Wrangler of his year, and was a son of the Rev. George Davys, who was Queen Victoria's tutor, and subsequently Bishop of Peterborough. He relinquished the living of Holy Trinity, Leicester, in 1876 to go out to Hong Kong with Bishop Burdon. After retiring from the Mission he became curate to the Rev. Henry Sharpe, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Hampstead, whose death preceded his by only a few months, and who had been his curate in former years in the parish of St. John the Baptist, Peterborough. Mr. Davys was an Honorary Life Governor of the Society.

Bishop Burdon's retirement from the work.

The health of Bishop Burdon has, unhappily, necessitated his coming home. After resigning the Bishopric of Victoria in 1896, he paid a few months' visit to this country in 1897, and returned again at the close of that year with Mrs. Burdon to engage in the work they loved. Mrs. Burdon was called to the Home above in June, 1898, and subsequently to her departure the Bishop's own health broke down more than once. In the course of 1900 he suffered from the effect of a sunstroke, and it was considered wise to ask Miss A. A. Bolton to accompany him on his journey home. They arrived in November, 1900, Miss Bolton returning in January, 1901.

Reinforcement.

The one recruit of the year, Miss Ada Mary Pitts, of Plymouth, trained at "The Olives," accompanied Miss Bolton on her return.

Miss A. M. Baker came home in April, 1900; Miss M. Johnstone in May, returning again in October; and Miss A. K. Hamper in February, 1901. The Rev. C. Bennett has been obliged, in consequence of Mrs. Bennett's state of health, to retire from the work.

HONG KONG.

Hong Kong.

Training Class.

The state of unrest at Canton led the Rev. G. A. Bunbury to remove the Training Class under his care from that city to Hong Kong in the summer of 1900. The move was intended to be only temporary, but an offer made by the Bishop of Victoria to the Society of permission to use St. Paul's College for a term of three years, accompanied by a further generous offer of pecuniary help towards the salary of the staff, which offers the Committee gratefully accepted, led to the transfer becoming a fixed one, for some time at least. The disadvantages of Hong Kong for such a purpose are counterbalanced by the great benefit which the students will, please God, derive from Bishop Hoare's and the Rev. W. Banister's taking a share in the instruction. The class was commenced at Shiu-hing under a catechist, Mr. Fok, and six students were handed over by him to Mr. Bunbury in November, 1899, and were lodged in a Native's house in the city of Canton. One of them retired from the class during the past year, and one became a colporteur of the British and Foreign Bible Society, while six others were admitted, four being sons of native agents. The Anglo-Chinese School had an average daily attendance of about 150. The great eagerness existing among the Chinese to acquire a knowledge of English led the missionaries, at the close of 1900, to resolve to close four of the six free day-schools for boys, and to open in lieu of them three schools in which an elementary knowledge of English would be given by Chinese masters, and a small fee charged, instruction in Scripture being given in Chinese. During Miss M. Johnstone's absence at home Miss H. S. Fletcher had charge of the Girls' Boarding-school. The number fell off slightly during the latter part of the year, the average being about seventy. About one-fourth of the present pupils were admitted as heathen children, and some of these are now numbered among the most earnest Christians in the school. Sixteen of the girls were confirmed in the spring of 1900.

The confirmation just mentioned took place in St. Stephen's Church, of which the Rev. Fong Yat-Sau is the pastor. No Annual Letter has been received from him, but from references in other letters some knowledge of his good work is derived. Mr. Banister says there are many indications of spiritual growth in the congregation. One he mentions is their undertaking, in co-operation with the congregation at Kowloon, to be responsible for the whole expenditure connected with the Native Church—the support of the pastor and quasi-pastor respectively, the cost of lighting, cleaning, repairs, &c. Another sign of growth is the provision of a parish hall in which to hold classes, prayer-meetings, &c.; this is under the sole management of a committee of Native Christians. The two congregations contributed over Rs. 1,200 during the year; the Sunday collections amounted to over Rs. 400. At St. Stephen's Church seventeen persons were baptized in December, 1899, and ten in October, 1900. A lady, a relative of one of the Government officials in Hong Kong, who was present on the occasion of the baptisms in December, wrote as follows of the service:—

Self-support of native congregations.

> Last Sunday we went to hear a Chinese service, that is, our Church service translated into Chinese. It is a church belonging to the C.M.S., and except ourselves and three missionary ladies the whole congregation and the clergyman also were Chinese. The church was packed. It held from 300 to 400. The men sat on one side, the women on the other. You could follow the service quite easily with our Prayer-book, and the hymns were sung to our own tunes, also the canticles to our chants. I never saw a more devout and earnest congregation, and they seemed absorbed in their Prayer-books and Bibles, and repeated all the responses far better than any congregation at home. It was a most impressive sight.

Of the ten converts baptized in October, six were the fruits of Women's Work. One of them, a widow lady, was led to accept the Gospel before she came to Hong Kong. The Bible-women discovered her in the course of their visits, and prepared her for baptism. She had counted the cost, and declared that she would cleave to the Lord Jesus though it should involve suffering, or even death. When told to be in good time at the service she replied, "No need to tell me that; I shall be up with the break of day." Another of the converts was a young woman who suffered much from her husband on account of her faith in Christ, and who was eventually cast out with her two little ones from her home, with the remark that "they were of no use if they prayed to Jesus and would not worship the ancestors." Miss A. M. Jones, who, though destined for Shiu-hing, was detained at Hong Kong, visited the Tung Wa hospital, where a woman waiting for an operation for cataract was under preparation for baptism. The women's ward is divided into a number of small chambers or cabins, and a lame girl, the daughter of a fortune-teller, shared a cabin with this blind woman, both uniting daily in prayer to God. Another patient, who learned in the hospital to believe in Christ, on leaving it was not permitted to return to her mistress, because the latter had been told by diviners whom she had consulted that her servant's return would bring ill-luck. She was received instead into the women's school by Miss L. A. Eyre. An Indian interpreter, a Mohammedan, whom Miss Jones had met in the hospital, was baptized while in India, having been led to believe through comparing the Koran with the Bible. He subsequently to his baptism returned to Hong Kong.

"Of no use if they prayed to Jesus."

An Indian Mohammedan brought to Christ in China.

The progress of the new territory on the mainland after it came under British rule in 1899 was, according to the report made in February, 1900, to the Colonial Office by Sir Henry Blake, the Governor of the Colony, satisfactory and encouraging. A sense of security was growing, induced by efficient police arrangements, and the people beyond the British boundary, who were subject to frequent attacks from gangs of armed robbers and pirates, regarded the people within that boundary with envy on account of the quiet and protection they enjoyed.

Kowloon.

KOWLOON, the English city across the harbour, reached in a few minutes from Hong Kong by the steam ferry, with its docks, and works, and streets, and pleasant villas, was the temporary place of residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H. Hipwell during the past year, pending the erection of a house at a suitable place in the district. This Kowloon and the peninsula of the same name have been a part of the colony of Hong Kong since 1861. Upon the peninsula are three old-established out-stations, each of which has a preaching-hall and school, while one of them, the old Chinese city of Kowloon, three miles distant from English Kowloon, has a church in addition. Near the church it is proposed to erect buildings for the Victoria Home and Orphanage, to be removed thither from Hong Kong. The church can seat 100, and there are seventy baptized Christians. Hung Hom has twenty Christians and Yaumati has ten. These congregations have formed a Church Committee of four members. Mr. Hipwell visited the most important districts of the new territory, and met almost everywhere with a friendly reception. Three places to be occupied by catechists were selected, namely, Ping-shan, Lung-kwat-tau, and Tai-wai. From a slight eminence near the first of these Mr. Hipwell counted nearly forty villages, in only one of which had any Christian work been done. Miss A. M. Jones also made an expedition into the district with a Bible-woman, and returned very much cheered. The people were decidedly friendly, and showed no opposition to the Christian doctrine, and she was not often called a "foreign devil woman." Some declared "the doctrine" to be good, but showed a disposition to apply its precepts to their neighbours rather than to themselves. Miss Johnstone, after her return to Hong Kong at the end of 1900, mentioned that a former member of St. Stephen's congregation, a returned emigrant from Australia, had gone to live on one of the islands near to Hong Kong, where he owns some lime works. There he has built a church capable of holding 100 people, and besides his own family there are ten others professing Christ's name whom he teaches.

CANTON.

The removal of the Training Class from CANTON to Hong Kong, and the consequent transfer of the Rev. G. A. Bunbury, has been already mentioned. Mr. Bunbury, previous to his leaving Canton, superintended the work in a portion of the Canton Itinerancy, namely, that in the Tsang-shing district, about forty miles to the east of Canton. A rebellion occurred close to this district, referred to above (page 401), and several chapels of other Missions were destroyed, but the Christians connected with the C.M.S. Mission were undisturbed and were kept in peace, Mr. Bunbury says, all through those anxious months. He baptized in Tsang-shing city—a place of about 10,000 inhabitants—a well-to-do boat-builder named Liu. One man and two women were also baptized at Shat-tsz-kau, a place on the bank of the river, where a very earnest and true-hearted schoolmaster, Chiu Nam Kam, ministers to a congregation containing fourteen baptized persons. A Communion Service which Mr. Bunbury held at this out-station was interrupted by a very deadly snake concealed in the wall in close proximity to where the catechist's wife with her baby was kneeling. There was a few minutes' pause, during which the reptile was killed, then a thanksgiving prayer for the merciful deliverance, and the service was continued. Ten miles inland from this last-named place is Wang-long, the chief out-station of this district, where over fifty baptized Christians assemble from villages around to worship in the house of Mr. Lau Ut Kai, who is both the catechist and the patriarch of the village. Ten years ago he leased part of his house rent free as the chapel, and, after renewing the gift and handing the deed of loan for a further period of ten years to Mr. Bunbury, he said, "Now I shall be happy." The Rev. E. J. Barnett, Secretary of the Victoria C.M. Association, Australia, who was in China studying the language in order to qualify himself for supervising the work among the Chinese immigrants at and near Melbourne, had charge of Heung-shan, Kong Moon, and Hok-shan. At both the last-named places the chapels were destroyed early in October, and all the belongings of the catechists were looted. The chapel at Kong Moon was built by the late Rev. Edmund Davys, whose death has been referred to above (page 402). Mr. Barnett wrote offering his services to the Society, but before his offer was considered by the Committee he received a telegram summoning him back to Australia.

Canton.

SHIU-HING.

Shiu-hing.

The prefecture, of which SHIU-HING is the capital city, has thirteen counties, a fact from which its importance as a centre for evangelistic work may be gauged. The city has for many years been occupied as an out-station by native catechists and visited from time to time by European missionaries of the Society. For some years past the American Baptists have had a resident missionary there. When, however, the Rev. and Mrs. A. Iliff took up their abode in the city, there was no representative of the American Baptist Mission there, and they, together with Miss A. Smith, gladly availed themselves of the empty house belonging to that Mission, the more so as no other could be obtained. They were the only foreigners residing in the city during the first half of 1900, and were uniformly treated with respect and consideration. At the end of June they were summoned away to Hong Kong. In March, 1900, Bishop Hoare confirmed five men and five women, all Christians of some years' standing. There are twenty adult baptized Christians in the place. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H. Hipwell were transferred from Hong Kong to Shiu-hing in April, 1901.

KUEI-LIN.

The Rev. and Mrs. L. Byrde wrote their Annual Letters from Hakodate, in Japan, and, looking back over the year passed away, its appropriate key-note seemed to be "blighted hopes," but in the confidence that God's will is best they were able to hope still, and to rejoice in hope. They visited Hong Kong in the winter of 1899–1900 to attend the Conference, and had the pleasure of taking back with them to KUEI-LIN a fellow-labourer in the person of Mr. J. P. Laird.* The journey up the river from Wu-chow,* a distance of 300 miles, occupied five weeks, and Kuei-lin was not reached till May was well advanced. Their arrival caused no stir, they might have been old-fashioned residents, Mr. Byrde wrote, so little attention did they attract—a great contrast to their first entrance. Shortly their house was thronged with visitors, and there was every promise of widening doors of opportunity. Then, four weeks after their arrival, on June 22nd, a code message was received from the American Consul informing the members of the Alliance Mission—who shared Mr. and Mrs. Byrde's house, as no other could be obtained—that "China was at war," and "they must leave at once." They left Kuei-lin on the 25th, the furniture being committed to the care of two servants, and the river being in flood the journey to Wu-chow was accomplished in four and a half days. Mr. Laird awaited there the arrival of the baggage, and followed Mr. and Mrs. Byrde to Hong Kong after a few days. Mrs. Byrde's state of health made it desirable that they should go to Japan, and at Yokohama she had a serious illness which kept them under the hospitable roof of the Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Austen, of the Missions to Seamen, for five weeks.

PAKHOI.

Two thousand miles from Peking the Christian workers at PAKHOI were happily exempted from the painful necessity of leaving the work for any lengthened period, though, acting on the strong recommendation of the British Consul, the two unmarried ladies at the station, Miss E. L. Havers and Miss A. K. Storr, went for six weeks to Hong Kong during August and September. Shortly before leaving one of these ladies wrote:—

Pakhoi.

I do hope you are not the least bit anxious about us, for we are in a mighty Heavenly Father's keeping, and nothing can come but what He permits; and all is so quiet and peaceful, we go to bed and to sleep as soundly as though we were in dear old England. We are constantly praying that God will overrule everything for the extension of His Kingdom and the glory of His own Name. He knows best, and we can trust Him to do His own will, which is PERFECT. We hear nothing from the north, so trust God is answering all our prayers and sending peace, and we are quite happy in Him. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart."

"We can trust Him."

*An error was inadvertently made in last year's Annual Report (page 368) in stating Wu-chow to be the third city in China in point of size and the second in commercial importance. It is a place of only about 50,000 inhabitants.

The news of occurrences in the north conveyed in Chinese papers did, however, produce a certain measure of excitement, and on two occasions, Dr. E. G. Horder states, a date was fixed for the extermination of foreigners, but all passed off quietly. On their return from Hong Kong Miss Havers and Miss Storr were accompanied by Miss A. Smith, whose help in the nursing at the Hospital was required on account of Miss Bolton having accompanied Bishop Burdon to this country. The gates of the hospital were not closed for a single day, the number of patients was the largest recorded since the hospital was opened in 1886, and their contributions or fees were also larger than in any previous year. On Saturday afternoons there are five simultaneous prayer-meetings at 2 p.m., held in the hospital and leper compounds, all conducted by the Native Christians. The European missionaries meet together at the same time for reading and united prayer, but once in two months their practice is to separate and each attend one of the meetings conducted by the Natives. Mrs. Horder, on one of these occasions, went to the meeting of the leper women, and, writing on September 15th, she relates what occurred :—

Hospital open throughout the year.

Prayer-meeting of leper women.

To-day, thinking the leper women would be far too shy to lead the meeting in the presence of the missionary, the writer went fully prepared to conduct the meeting herself and give the Bible address. However, Tai-Che, whose turn it was to lead, was fully equal to the occasion, and it was a real joy to listen to this dear woman, after she had read forty verses from St. John vi. in her Romanized Testament, give a simple Bible talk on the Feeding of the Five Thousand. Tai-Che led in prayer twice. The meeting was then thrown open as usual, when many of the others also prayed. They offered intercessions for their Christian fellow-countrymen in the north, many of whom are in situations of great danger; they prayed that peace might soon reign, and that the plague and famine in India might soon be arrested. Some prayed for the missionaries connected with us in the work here, some of whom are now in Hong Kong and others in England. They asked for a blessing also upon the services on the morrow. The hymns sung were translations of "The great Physician now is near," and "I am Jesu's little lamb." Out of the thirty-two leper women inmates of the Asylum eleven are baptized communicants, and all take their turns in leading the weekly prayer-meeting. Truly we can praise God for what He has done. Five years ago none of these dear leper women, with the exception of two, who had been in Mission schools, had ever heard the name of Jesus. Now He is their strength and song and has become their salvation.

All take their turn in leading the meeting.

Many of the lepers, the Rev. E. B. Beauchamp says, could pass a very good examination in almost all the books of the Bible. A man who was baptized in the hospital was first introduced to the missionaries by one of the leper patients. He was the headman of his village, about ten miles from Pakhoi, and heard from the lips of his leper friend the story of the latter's conversion and of what he had learnt at Pakhoi. He became an inquirer, and was visited several times by the missionaries. When attacked with an incurable disease he entered the hospital to end his days there. After his death his widow and married daughter and her daughter-in-law became inquirers, and another daughter, who is a Buddhist nun, appears to be an earnest seeker after truth. Miss Smith refers to a woman who came to the hospital from a distant village, and who surprised them by her knowledge of "the Jesus doctrine." She told them that some years before she had visited the hospital for treatment and had received a Bible when she left, and that her husband had read to her from it every day since. She was suffering from an incurable complaint, but was quite happy, and only anxious that someone should go to her village and teach her and her people of the true God. Four native colporteurs of the B. & F.B.S., who were making the Mission-house their head-quarters while working the surrounding district, were the means of bringing to the missionaries an earnest inquirer from Liem-chau, a city twenty miles distant from Pakhoi, and he in turn asked that some one should go and teach his wife and others. Miss Bolton and Miss Havers accordingly went, and were welcomed most warmly and treated most hospitably. The military mandarin in the place—a man who had visited America—was also very friendly to the ladies, and invited them to visit his wife, which they did. As a result of this visit, under God, the woman at whose house they stayed took down her idol, one which the women of China honour most of all, and burnt it, together with her incense-sticks. Miss Havers says :—

"Read the Bible daily ever since."

Wife of a military mandarin burns her idol.

> From the day of our arrival in her house until now she has used no incense; this means much, especially as theirs is the only house in Liem-chau where Christ is honoured, and she has no one resident there to help her, as her husband is more often in Pakhoi than at his own home. He is a very earnest inquirer, and it was through him that we had the privilege of visiting his wife.

There were some promising inquirers also at Ko-tak.

FUH-KIEN MISSION.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-chow city. In that year and the following other large cities were occupied by native evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-ning was occupied by European missionaries in 1882; Ku-cheng, 1887; Lo-ngwong and Nang-wa, 1889; Kien-yang, 1891; Hing-hwa and Kien-ning, 1894; Ning-taik, Keng-tau, and Ko-sang-che, 1896; Lieng-kong, 1897.

Jubilee of the Mission.

In May, 1850, the Revs. W. Welton and R. D. Jackson arrived at Fuh-chow as missionaries of the Church Missionary Society, and in May, 1900, the jubilee of the Mission was celebrated. The Bishop of Victoria preached from St. John iii. 29, at the English Church, Fuh-chow, on Sunday, May 13th. He dwelt on the privileges and the joys of the missionary's work.

Sermon by the Bishop.

He said: "Often as one travels up and down the coast of China one finds that with many, though I am glad to say by no means all, of the European residents in China the word 'missionary' is a term of contempt, his work a subject of derision. How different is the way in which missionary work is spoken of in Scripture. There the missionary is an ambassador of the King of kings, a fellow-worker with God, a steward of God's mysteries. Some people would hardly condescend to reckon a missionary amongst their acquaintances; Christ calls him His friend. Not, indeed, that missionaries only are called friends. 'Ye are My friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you,' says Christ; and the words are surely applicable to all who, in any station of life, strive to carry out Christ's command; but surely they may claim that blessed title best who are endeavouring in whatever way they can to do the friend's work and to prepare the Bride for the Bridegroom. A 'friend of the Bridegroom'! What a privilege! What an honour! far, far above any honour that man can confer!" And he faithfully pointed out things that were wanting in Fuh-Kien before the workers could say in all its significance, "This my joy is fulfilled." On the following day, May 14th, three simultaneous meetings were held, at which the speeches were in Chinese: one at the College, presided over by the Bishop; one in the city, at which Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe took the chair; and one at the Girls' Boarding-school, with the Rev. Ll. Lloyd in the chair. All these gatherings were well attended. The speakers were missionaries and Chinese Christians, and review of the fifty years—the first ten fruitless years as regards baptisms, after that gradual growth and extension—was naturally the subject matter of the speeches, which were characterized by a tone of deep thankfulness to Almighty God. A fourth meeting in the evening of the same day was held at the house of the C.M.S. lady missionaries, over which the Bishop presided, and the Rev. J. Walker, of the American Board, and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd and Dr. J. Rigg, besides the Bishop, were speakers.

In response to the Committee's request to be apprised of the state of things by cable once a week while the time of trouble continued, the Secretary of the Fuh-Kien Mission, the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, sent home uniformly favourable reports, which were a source of comfort to the many friends of the missionaries, to whom they were at once communicated. At the request of the Viceroy and the British Consul all the European missionaries, except some of the male missionaries at Hing-hwa, were summoned to Fuh-chow in the month of June, and from that date until the following February practically the whole Mission was left without European supervision, except such as could be exercised by correspondence and by occasional visits of Chinese Christians to Fuh-chow, or, in one or two instances, brief visits of Europeans to the stations. In the despatch wherein the Chinese Tao-tais intimated their assent to the missionaries returning to the up-country stations they said, "We are greatly desirous for the speedy return of the missionaries, their intention being to exhort men to do right."

Whole Mission for eight months without European superintendence.

Chinese officials appreciate aim of missionaries.

A terrible disaster which visited the province in June seems undoubtedly, in the providence of God, to have been a powerful deterrent to the carrying out of the designs of certain men who might otherwise have attempted to disturb the peace. In the month of June the river Min, which flows through the centre of the province, rose to a height which had not been known for upwards of a hundred years. This occurred on the very day which, according to rumour, had been fixed for an attack on foreigners, whether local or general is not known. In Fuh-chow alone many hundreds of people were drowned by the flood. Whole streets were wrecked, and the bridge of "Ten Thousand Ages," which joins the island of Nantai, in which the foreign residences are, to the native city, was broken. At Kien-ning, which is 260 miles higher up the river than Fuh-chow, the men's hospital was swept away, and in the city itself only two-fifths of the houses remained standing. The Rev. W. C. White, who witnessed the havoc made at Kien-ning, writes:—

Disastrous flood.

> Whatever God in His providence intended by this flood, it is certain that it put a stop to what in all probability would have meant a serious and dangerous time for the Christians and missionaries. Ugly rumours against the foreigners were increasing day by day, until the floods came and put an end to them, at least for the time being.

The fidelity of the officials to the engagements they made with Fidelity of officials to engagements

the foreign Consuls should be noted with gratitude. Under God, the safety of the Europeans in Fuh-chow was entirely in their hands. That city is twelve miles up the Min River, and no gunboat or other material means of protection was nearer than the mouth of the river. Some called in question the trustworthiness of the Viceroy and the mandarins, and others doubted their power, even if they had the will, to restrain the evil-minded. But the prevalent feeling, which events fully justified, was that they would loyally keep their word, and in this confidence practically the whole foreign community, including ladies, remained at Fuh-chow through the anxious months of June, July, and August. The Rev. Ll. Lloyd wrote in December:—

"at the peril of their lives."

> We have been, and still are, humanly speaking, entirely in the hands of the Chinese officials, and we have realized as never before how literally true it is that the hearts of those in authority "are in God's rule and governance," and that He disposes and turns them as it seemeth best to His godly wisdom. These officials have dared to disobey the command, which undoubtedly came to them, to destroy all foreigners within their jurisdiction, and they have done this at the peril of their lives, and we feel our indebtedness to them.

Meetings of Provincial Council.

The annual meetings of the Provincial Church Council, held from November 24th to December 2nd, were of peculiar interest and importance under the then existing circumstances of the Mission. A certain measure of apprehension was felt by some as to the prudence of gathering the people together at so critical a time, but it was judged wisest to make as little change as possible in the normal plans of the Mission, and this particular event is one which is looked forward to year by year by the numerous delegates with peculiar pleasure. Mr. Lloyd thus sets forth some aspects of the meetings:—

God's marvellous protection.

Mass of converts remained firm.

> And so we meet together, children of a common Father and disciples of a common Lord. One by one our brethren rise and tell us what their work has brought forth during this perplexing year in the annals of China. Almost all of them first sound a note of fervent praise for God's marvellous protection in real and imminent danger. Then they tell us the reassuring news that, notwithstanding hostile murderous threats and wild rumours, the great mass of baptized converts have remained firm, though here and there a few have been shaken from their faith, at least for a time, and walk no more with us. We hear of some not daring to come to church until the muttered curses which assailed them in the highways had passed away; of widespread attempts to compel contributions to idol-festivals and idolatrous processions; of houses wrecked, and of converts ostracized because they refused to pay these idol-dues; of stones thrown violently into church premises with the hope of their hitting some one within.

Large accessions and increased contributions.

> This is the darker side of the shield: thank God there is a brighter one. We are told of increased contributions by the Native Christians even where plague has been rampant and famine has threatened; of large accessions to the Church in various places, notwithstanding the hostile attitude assumed by many towards everything Christian; of nearly a thousand added to the Church by baptism during the year; of a Chinese mandarin asking the permission of his superiors to present a tablet to one of our native clergy extolling his goodness and virtue.

In August, when the aspect of political events gave little prospect of an early return being authorized to the interior stations, and as there was a large body of ladies who joined the Mission at the beginning of 1896 (having been detained at home a few months to give time for the excitement after the Hwa-sang massacre of August 1st, 1895, to calm down), and whose furlough would be due early in 1901, the Committee cabled instructions for all whose furloughs were shortly due to be sent home at once. The following ladies accordingly sailed in September and reached this country in October:—The Misses K. M. Andrews, M. E. Barber, M. D. Boileau, E. M. M. Brooks, E. J. Harrison, A. L. Leybourn, F. E. Oatway, and E. M. K. Thomas. Miss A. I. Oxley left Fuh-chow for Australia in August, and the Misses M. Searle and S. S. Newton in October. Besides the above, the Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips (on account of the latter's state of health), the Rev. L. H. F. Star, and Miss A. L. Greer came home in June, 1900, Dr. J. Rigg in July, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. Light in January, 1901. Archdeacon and Mrs. Wolfe went to California in January under medical orders. Several missionaries, on grounds of health and to facilitate arrangements for meeting the abnormal demands for accommodation, went to Hong Kong and to Japan. Against so long a list, the only names to be set on the other side are those of the Revs. J. Martin and C. Shaw, who sailed in January, 1901, to return to the Mission, and of the Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips, who sailed in March. The new recruits whom the Committee had assigned to the Mission, and who would have sailed in the autumn if the conditions had been favourable, were kept back, and some of them, either at their own request or to meet pressing needs elsewhere, were sent out to other Missions. One addition made to the Society's staff, though not to the ranks of labourers in the field, inasmuch as she was one of them already, was Miss Margaret Ellen Sears. Miss Sears' acceptance by the Victoria C.M. Association was recorded by the Committee in 1898, but on reaching China, with the Committee's approval, she was appropriated by the sister Society, the C.E.Z.M.S., to supply a need which was then pressing. At the instance of that Society she has now been transferred again to the C.M.S. Her sphere of labour has been Kien-yang, with the dialect of which she is familiar. One new worker the Mission has secured by the marriage of the Rev. J. B. Carpenter with Miss E. Casson on April 22nd, 1901. On the other hand, a serious loss is suffered by the retirement, owing to family considerations, of Dr. John Rigg; and Miss A. L. Greer has also retired on similar grounds.

Return home of ladies whose furlough nearly due.

Sailing of reinforcements deferred.

Addition to the staff.

Dr. W. P. Mears, who laboured for a short while in Fuh-Kien—from 1890 to 1893—died at Edinburgh on February 22nd, 1901. He was, before he offered to the Society, a lecturer and examiner in the Durham University School of Medicine, and after he was invalided home some able articles which he wrote appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer.

Christian Endeavour Meetings.

Several interesting meetings in connexion with the Christian Endeavour Society were held in Fuh-chow in May, 1900, when the Rev. F. E. Clark, the founder of the movement, was on a visit from America. There are said to have been 1,150 members present, of whom 1,100 belonged to the Fuh-Kien Province. Among the papers read was one by Miss F. E. Oatway on "The Origin and Growth of Christian Endeavour in connexion with the Fuh-Kien Anglican Mission," and another by Miss F. Codrington, of the C.E.Z.M.S., on "The History of Christian Endeavour in Ku-cheng." On the closing day of the gatherings a "Women's Consecration service" was held, over which Mrs. G. Hubbard, of the American Board Mission, and Mrs. Chitnio Ling, widow of a former native clergyman of the C.M.S., presided.

Nantai.

At the time of the disastrous flood in June, 1900, the foreign community in the Foreign Settlement on NANTAI ISLAND contributed about $5,000 to a relief fund, which was distributed among the sufferers by the Rev. Ll. Lloyd and Mr. Muller, the Secretary and Assistant-Secretary of the Mission, and by two or three Chinese helpers.

New Girls' Boarding-school.

Of those few events of the past year marking the progress of missionary work in Fuh-Kien the most striking was the opening of the new Girls' Boarding-school within the Settlement. It is a remarkable monument to the zeal and tact and patience of the two ladies—Miss J. Bushell and Miss C. J. Lambert—who planned the scheme of its erection and supervised its execution. The school was first opened in 1868, with only two or three pupils, on the Shih Shan Hill, within the Fuh-chow city walls. For many years its growth was very slow, as the Chinese were suspicious of the missionaries' motives for gathering their girls together. When the Society was turned out of the native city in 1879 the pupils had increased to twenty-one in number. They were removed to a large house on Nantai Island, which the Government rented to the C.M.S. at a nominal rent for a term of twenty years by way of compensation for the destruction of the building within the city. The term expired in December, 1899, and meanwhile the number of pupils, then 120, had far outgrown the accommodation, having to sleep four in a bed in the hottest weather. A whole year was spent by the ladies in negotiating about the purchase of the land, as thirteen landlords of infinitesimal plots had to be persuaded or induced to sell. The ladies were their own architects, and Miss Lambert superintended the Chinese workmen who built the structure. The cost was slightly over £3,000, and most of this the ladies collected, as the Society's grant was only about one-third of the sum expended. The result of all the planning and the toil is a beautiful building capable of accommodating 200 boarders, with necessary schoolrooms, covered playground, ladies' house, and a school chapel which can seat 500 worshippers. The school buildings were occupied by 202 boarders, including fifty belonging to the C.E.Z.M.S. school—the premises of which had to be temporarily abandoned in consequence of an outbreak of severe illness—in March, 1900; and on May 15th the chapel was dedicated by Bishop Hoare during his visit to attend the special services and meetings in connexion with the jubilee of the Mission. In June it came to the knowledge of Miss Lambert and others that a day had been fixed among some of the lawless classes in the city for burning down the school premises, and a number of the girls' parents, hearing of the rumour, wished to remove their children before the examinations were concluded. To have permitted this would have been the surest way to encourage a riot, so, after conference with the Consul, it was decided not to break up an hour earlier than had been previously decided. It speaks volumes for the confidence of the parents under these circumstances that they went away quite satisfied, saying, "Kuniong knows best!" The occurrence of the unprecedented flood already referred to rendered an attempt on the school impossible. It was at this time, on the last Sunday of the summer term, that twenty of the girls were baptized, several of them fully realizing, Miss Lambert says, that the step would involve petty persecution from their relatives. Twenty-one of the girls were confirmed in November. The Bible-women's Training School, under Mrs. Ll. Lloyd, had an average of from fifteen to twenty women.

Confidence of Christians in the missionaries.

"Kuniong knows best."

Baptism of pupils.

The Theological College was under the Rev. F. E. Bland. It had an average of about thirty men throughout the year; six left to take up work as catechists; and six others went out as probationary catechists, to return to the College after a year's trial for two years' further study. For the twelve vacancies at the beginning of 1901 there were twenty-two candidates. The Rev. W. S. Walsh, who gives some help in the classes, mentions that the students hold a prayer-meeting on Saturday evening, which once a month is made a missionary meeting, and that one evening a month a students' literary meeting is held. The Boys' High School had an average of thirty-four pupils. Mr. Walsh commends them for the extreme care and neatness and minuteness with which they take down the notes in the margins of their Bibles; these should become exceedingly valuable to those of them who become teachers up-country, as many, it is hoped, will. Some of the senior boys learn music, and one of them was able, within a week of learning his notes, to play "Peace, Perfect Peace" fairly well. More than half the boys have been confirmed and are communicants. The Junior Boys' Boarding-school had seventy pupils, far too many, obliging them to sleep three in a bed. The limit in the new year was fixed at forty. Most of the boys are from villages near the city, and many are from heathen homes.

Mr. Walsh, during the earlier part of the year under review, engaged as he had opportunity in Evangelistic Work, visiting from time to time in the evenings after the school closed a number of villages, taking his lantern and Scripture slides. Some of these villagers have an indifferent reputation, but they were invariably attentive and respectful, and they evidently appreciated the "shadow theatre," as they termed the lantern pictures. On one occasion, thinking to gain their interest the more, Mr. Walsh began by showing views of Peking, Canton, &c., but a man interrupted with a request to be shown "the doctrine maps." Mr. Walsh was once invited to show the lantern at a wedding feast, and again at an idol festival. On the latter occasion he was received, as he says, "with an Irish welcome," "the red candles were lighted, tea was poured out, pipes were smoked, and all were dressed in their best." At Lau-tak, in the western end of the island of Nantai, a catechist is placed and there is a church. Mrs. Saunders visited the homes of the people in and near the Settlement, but she found after the summer that few houses were open to her, even where she had had a warm welcome in the earlier part of the year. She attributed this to fear rather than to unfriendliness; fear not of her, but of each other. Yet twelve women joined a class she opened in October, and she was surprised how much they learned, notwithstanding their great ignorance and their quite untutored minds.

The "shadow theatre," and the 'doctrine maps."

Miss E. Little continued the interesting Work among the River Population. In the afternoons she visited the people with a Bible-woman, mooring her boat alongside theirs, and inviting them to come on board. She says:—

Work among boat-women.

> Some days it is better than others, but I have never yet gone out without some having come on my boat to listen. Often when I look at the bright faces of some of the girls and women and ask them, "Do you know Who God is?" and they answer, "No; we never heard of Him, Who is He?" I feel how great is my responsibility as well as my privilege. If I do not give my message in the power of the Spirit they will be repelled, not attracted by it. Then the honour of being the first to tell them of a Saviour's love is indeed great. As a class I find them very attractive, quite apart from those living on land; they are more frank and open, and yet not bold in their manner.

Her little day-school for the boat-women, open from 8 a.m.

till noon, was well attended, though it was impossible for the women to be regular. They are intelligent and plodding, and some of the middle-aged women who had never learned anything before made appreciable progress. Miss M. E. Molloy (of the Victoria Association) continued, during the early part of the year, her evangelistic work among the Villages of the Fuh-chow Plain on the south side of the Min River. She spent the Christmas of 1899 at A-ding, the few Christians of that place and the adjacent villages meeting with her and Miss A. E. H. Burton to worship the Saviour of the world on Christmas Day. After Christmas the two ladies gave a fortnight to visiting among the villages. Another fortnight was spent at the time of the Chinese New Year, in February, among the women who work in the fields, and who, except at that time, have rarely leisure to listen to Gospel teaching. Easter was spent with a catechist and his wife at a little shipping village called Deng-gie, where they called at every house, from that of the petty mandarin to those of the poorest inhabitants. Many women attended the Easter service. Miss Molloy was surprised at their readiness to kneel in prayer; one young woman even insisted on repeating to Miss Molloy on her knees the prayers she had learned. From Deng-gie many villages higher up the river were visited by boat. A whole week was spent in going from house to house at Au-guang-che, a village lower down the river.

Christmas spent in the villages.

Readiness of Heathen to kneel in prayer.

On the north side of the river the work in the native city of FUH-CHOW was carried on with every mark of encouragement up to the month of June. There were large attendances at the daily and nightly preaching in each of the four Preaching-halls, situated in four of the main streets of the city. No opposition was experienced, and the same people were noticed attending night after night. A considerable number of inquirers joined the catechumens' classes, and 106 were baptized. In June a sudden change took place in the attitude of the people. Archdeacon Wolfe wrote:—

Fuh-chow.

A sudden change.

> Everything looked most bright and encouraging, when suddenly the report of the "Boxer" movement and the news of the destruction of Tientsin and all the other troubles in the North reached us and spread like wildfire all over the city and country, causing intense excitement among all classes. Threats, especially against the Christians, were freely used, and the result was that most of our inquirers got alarmed and left us. Public preaching in our preaching-halls had to be given up, though the weekly prayer-meetings as well as the Sunday services were continued as usual without the least opposition or disturbance, except on one occasion when all the converts met at their monthly Christian Endeavour meeting, and when some low vagabonds took occasion to bring a crowd on pretence that the Christians had beaten one of their number in the church and abused the idols. The mandarins, however, were soon on the spot and dispersed the crowd.

By November the public preaching had been resumed, and the people attended and listened much as before; some of the inquirers who had left returned, and others joined the classes and prayer-meetings for catechumens. A new church was built at the north end of the city with money given to Archdeacon Wolfe for the purpose during his last furlough at home. It is close to the site which the hospital will in due time (D.V.) occupy, and where Dr. G. Wilkinson resides while engaged in language study, and thus is able to superintend the work of Dr. Ding and to give assistance occasionally in the Dispensary, worked by Miss E. E. Massey. The Women's School at the close of 1900 had thirty students, as many as it would accommodate. It was closed for a few months in the summer, but re-opened in October, when there were fourteen applicants for five vacancies. Miss A. M. Wolfe was proposing to pass on three of the women to Mrs. Lloyd's school at Nantai in February, 1901. Five girls' day-schools were all well attended. Visiting among the Heathen, when resumed in the autumn, was as welcome as it had been before the summer.

Women's School.

In the Fuh-chow District, which embraces the two hiens, or counties, of Ming-kaing and Au-kwang, there are eleven out-stations, eight in the former county and three in the latter. At Teng-kie over one hundred catechumens attended the services until July. They were subjected to a severe persecution from Romanists and Heathen; their property was plundered, many of them were beaten, and one was actually killed. Archdeacon Wolfe wrote on July 30th:—

A Native Christian killed.

> Two or three days ago a party of the persecutors attacked four of the Christians as they were reaping their rice harvest, killed one of them on the spot, and seriously wounded the others. The man who was thus killed was a young man and a most earnest Christian, recently baptized. His elder brother is also a Christian. Though his aged father has not yet given up his Heathenism he sometimes attends the services in the church, and is in a very hopeful state of mind.

About thirty remained firm and attended the services regularly notwithstanding the severity of the persecution. At Sing-tau there is a congregation of nearly fifty members, some of whom showed much earnestness and zeal. Chen-sen is on the south side of the Min, and is in the midst of a large number of populous villages. Between thirty and forty catechumens there showed much fidelity amidst trial and persecution.

LIENG-KONG.

The supervision of the LIENG-KONG DISTRICT was shared between Archdeacon Wolfe and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, the former presiding at the meetings of the Church Councils and the latter visiting the out-stations. There are 918 baptized Christians and 1,114 catechumens in the district, and their contributions amounted to $617. One ordained pastor, the Rev. Ting Sing

Ang, who resides at Lieng-kong, and fifteen catechists, are the only native workers. Three lady missionaries resided at DENG-DOI, namely, Misses A. I. Oxley, S. S. Newton, and M. Searle, all Australian ladies, the first two representing the New South Wales C.M. Association and Miss Searle that of Victoria. Mr. Lloyd writes of these ladies:— Deng-doi.

Their names are household words in the locality, and they are looked up to by the people as a sort of living reservoir of all that is needed both for physical and spiritual ailments. Some people say that such lives are thrown away; one would ask in astonishment, Could any life more closely approximate to the Master's? "Their names are household words"

A new church has been opened, and among the worshippers the military officer in charge of the few soldiers stationed at Deng-doi is sometimes to be found. At Deng-hai, a large town on the coast to the north-east of Deng-doi, there are five Christians, one of whom is the leader and spiritual father of the rest, and is remarkable for his earnestness. Miss Searle spent some months at Puo-kau, which she found a good centre. She was much cheered by a considerable number of women finding the courage to unbind their feet, and still more by the baptism of twelve women by Mr. Ting on June 17th. In April, Miss Searle went for a fortnight's itineration to a distant part of the district, accompanied by a Bible-woman. She writes:—

We had a blessed time indeed. The opportunities in the Bek-ga district were overwhelming, and we got such a hearty welcome everywhere; received and sent off in many places with guns and crackers. It seemed positively cruel only to spend a night or two in a few of the villages, and it was hard indeed to resist the many entreaties to stay on for a week or two and teach them the doctrine; one had to just tear oneself away. "A hearty welcome everywhere."

At and near Wong-ngie, where there was much persecution in 1899, there are now some 600 professing Christians scattered in twenty-seven villages. The place itself is a fishing village, situated in a well-sheltered bay, and the people are described by Mr. Lloyd as "fine stalwart fellows, who looked quite able to battle with the winds and waves, which they have constantly to do." On a Sunday in March, 1900, which Mr. Lloyd spent at Wong-ngie, 150 were present at the morning service. Paek-ka is six miles distant from Wong-ngie. The military officer stationed there is a professing Christian, but one who, as Mr. Ting remarked to Mr. Lloyd on the occasion of one of their visits, "has not yet reached to Christ." The Christians of this place meet for public worship at the neighbouring village of Ti-lioh, where a well-to-do tradesman has fitted up his house as a place of worship. At Pwang-sang there is a day-school, and almost all the inhabitants are nominally Christians. Mr. Lloyd was struck with the brightness and intelligence of the women, and he found that Miss Searle had spent a fortnight "Not yet reached to Christ."

among them teaching them the outlines of Christianity. He says:—

Living in a Chinese farm-house.

They showed me where she slept, on what I can only call a "lofty shelf," and were evidently very pleased to have had her with them. Only those who have had experience of the sights, smells, and sounds of a Chinese farm-house can understand what grace is needed to live in one for any length of time.

Perils by waters.

Mr. Lloyd, after his visit to the district in March, embarked at Kwang-tau in a Chinese launch to return to Fuh-chow. The very next trip taken by this launch it sank and caused the death of some 200 passengers. Miss Searle also mentions a providential escape which Miss Oxley and she had. When travelling on the river in their boat, the Messenger of Peace, a thief cut the cable and carried off the anchor in the night while they were asleep. Happily the boatman awoke and discovered the danger in time, or they would probably have drifted out to the rocks, as did a native boat on which the same thing had happened a few weeks before with fatal consequences.

LO-NGWONG.

The Rev. W. Light (now at home) superintended the work in the LO-NGWONG DISTRICT. No Annual Letter has been received from him.

NING-TAIK.

Ning-taik.

The NING-TAIK DISTRICT was also under the supervision of the Rev. W. Light. Two of the four ladies who were residing in Ning-taik city at the beginning of 1900 came home in the autumn of that year, namely Miss M. D. Boileau and Miss M. E. Barber. The former had charge of the Girls' Boarding-school, the number of whose inmates, which was twenty-eight in 1897, stood at eighty-two in June, 1900. Nine girls were baptized by Mr. Light in February, one being aged nineteen. Miss Barber had charge of the Women's School. Several of the women were baptized during the year; and some members of the class were also confirmed on May 1st, when the Bishop visited Ning-taik. Miss Bibb (now Mrs. Goodchild), of the New South Wales Association, spent most of her time during the first half of the year visiting the villages and "searching out," as she says, "the scattered sheep on the mountains." And "the mountains" were more than a figure of speech. With her Bible-woman she ascended on one occasion the highest mountain in the Fuh-Kien Province, and found there, among the lovely bamboo groves, four Christian homes. She says:—

Christian homes on the mountains.

Oh, what a welcome they gave me! They said I was the first lady who had ever visited them. From house to house we went, reading the Word, singing hymns, and praying with these dear people. Their gratitude knew no bounds, and when we left them they gave us presents of eggs and flowers. One man followed me about a mile to put a spray of pear-blossom into my chair because he heard me admire it as I passed.

In March Miss Bibb met by arrangement the women from different villages, who all brought their bedding with them, and they spent a week together, sleeping in the little chapel of the place which was their rendezvous. The special object in view was to prepare the women for confirmation. Miss Bibb wrote:—

Preparing village women for confirmation.

I think that week was one of the most blessed I have ever spent. It was truly a pleasure to see the eagerness of the younger women to learn more, and two or three of their own accord said at the end of the week that they would like to unbind their feet, as it was a hindrance to them in walking a long distance to church; and another said, "I will never go picking tea on Sunday again instead of coming to worship God." One dear woman, very old, over seventy, and very deaf, said, "Kuniong, for many years I have waited to be confirmed, but I am so stupid! What shall I do when the Bishop asks me questions? I will tremble so, and my face will grow so red." After asking her a few simple questions she said, "God loves me, and Jesus died for me—another thing I do not know;" and any effort on my part to get her to answer any questions would always call forth the one answer. She was greatly comforted when I told her that if she believed that in her heart it was sufficient to please God, and that the Bishop would be glad to confirm her.

"God loves me, and Jesus died for me."

The confirmation duly took place at Ding-sing-A. On entering a village near Ngu-iong, where a foreigner had only once been seen before, the whole village turned out to look at the strange creature who had suddenly come among them. They invited Miss Bibb to the temple, and about 500 people gathered round to hear, amidst hideous idols, the proclamation of the Lord Jesus as mighty to save.

Lady missionary proclaims Christ in a temple.

Miss Boileau spent, as she writes, a delightful twenty days at Huok-leng, twenty-seven miles from Ning-taik city. She visited the Christian women at their scattered homes within a radius of several miles. Miss Bibb and Miss K. L. Nicholson (the latter of the Victoria Association) went to Japan in the autumn.

FUH-NING (DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUH-KIEN MISSION).

Fuh-ning.

The DISTRICT OF FUH-NING is worked by the staff of missionaries from Ireland, who are in a large degree supported by the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. The workers were greatly encouraged at the beginning of 1900 by a very hopeful movement in the city of Fuh-ning. The name of the city means "Happiness and Peace," which one of the missionaries says is equivalent, according to the Chinese view of the terms, to "Laziness and plenty to eat." Sleepiness for the most part pervades the community, and the Christians have not escaped the influence of the prevailing lethargy. Suddenly, however, and unaccountably, a spirit of inquiry manifested itself. The catechists and churchwardens' time was fully occupied in interviewing those who came to them, sometimes even before breakfast. The little church, enlarged here and there by unecclesiastical accretions, seemed to be packed to the utmost with 250 worshippers, but in March, somehow, 300 found themselves within, and the Rev. L. H. F. Star (now at home) had great difficulty in moving from the reading desk. The necessity for a new church was self-evident, and the Christians opened a subscription list for the purpose, and entered their names for sums which far exceeded the scale of their previous gifts, one even promising £12 and another £10. The two Boarding-schools, for boys and girls respectively, had more pupils than ever before. In March there were fifty in the latter school, which was under Miss E. M. K. Thomas. Miss Thomas also held a weekly class for the Bible-women, and was interested, and occasionally somewhat amused, to find that they would accept the conclusions of no commentator, however distinguished, if in their judgment they seemed to be inconsistent with the teaching of other passages of Scripture. The Women's School, under Miss G. M. Harmar, had thirty-three pupils, and these showed more eagerness than formerly in visiting the homes of the people, which they do in the afternoons. A new and commodious building has been erected for the school, and the building lately in use has now reverted to its original purpose, that of a Women's Hospital, under Mrs. Synge, M.D. She, however, and also her sister, Miss Harmar, were laid aside by severe attacks of fever in the spring, followed by protracted weakness, so that out of the six working months of the year they were on the passive rather than the active list. The Rev. Dr. S. Synge mentions that a rich lady, apparently the one who was referred to in the Annual Report for 1898–99, page 338, as under treatment for the cure of the opium habit, was baptized during the year, and in February, 1900, two somewhat notable persons were admitted into the visible Church. One was a native doctor named Uong, a man of influence and large practice in the city, who had been a catechumen for five years. The other was a man of the literary class, who has for ten years past instructed missionaries in the language, the late Rev. J. S. Collins and Dr. Mears having studied under him. He had for some time been a secret believer. Mr. Star wrote: "No one in England could realize what his baptism has probably meant for him. All the city knows about the step he has taken, and we look upon his as perhaps the most important baptism in the whole history of the Fuh-ning Mission." Fourteen men and seventeen women were confirmed at Fuh-ning in May, 1900.

The right of private judgment claimed and exercised!

A doctor and a literary man baptized.

The work in the out-stations was also very encouraging. In Fuh-ang, however, where there had been marked growth in the past few years, the mandarins instituted an opposition of a most dangerous kind, which resulted in the burning down of the church. On Sunday, May 6th, the Rev. T. de C. Studdert, who, on Mr. Star coming home in April succeeded him as superintendent of the district, wrote :—

A hostile mandarin.

A short time earlier in the day the mandarin visited the church and showed his contempt for it, and his hostility towards the Gospel, by his abusive language, and, sitting inside the communion rails, angrily striking the Lord's Table, and getting our catechist forced on to his knees before him to answer to a false charge of beating some of his runners; whereas it was really a party of bullying runners who had entered the church some time before and beaten the poor catechist because they failed to extort from him as much money as they had hoped he would have given them to buy them off. The mandarin abused our work and our Church, saying that even the Roman Catholic Church was better than ours, as it had images which the people could worship, and was three hundred years established in Fuh-ang; and he left the church after declaring that he would like to see it burned and our Mission driven out of the country.

Inflammatory placards.

Almost immediately afterwards a mob burst into the church and buildings, destroying everything they could lay hands on in the church and catechist's house, the catechist having had to hide for his life. Thus instigated and started by the officials, a regular and fierce persecution and open unrestrained hostility to our work grew up in the city and all through the district, with the expressed determination of driving us and our religion and work out of the district. Pictorial placards were sent out, in which some of us foreign missionaries and ladies, and some of our catechists, were represented as being led to execution by fierce runners brandishing their swords over our heads, we being led with chains about our necks, or kneeling before the mandarin and officials, who as well as ourselves are mentioned by name under the pictures, the ladies being half stripped of clothing, and a group of Native Christians praying for mercy, while the whole is headed "The expulsion of the Christians," victorious flags being carried by the soldiers of the mandarin's retinue.

Persecution of isolated Christians.

At Ka-bang, where there was persecution in 1899 (see Annual Report for last year, page 383), seventy men entered their names as inquirers, but the purity of their motives was somewhat questioned. Tai-hung was visited for the first time by a European in March, 1900, when Mr. Star and Mr. Studdert found there fifteen inquirers who had endured much severe persecution. Mr. Star noticed in the house of one or more of them some large holes in the roof of the kitchen caused by stones hurled down from the hill behind the house. These inquirers, in order to attend Divine worship at Cie-tau—six miles distant, where was the nearest church—without molestation, had to make their way thither by back mountain paths.

A courageous young catechist.

A young catechist was placed at Tai-hung, who had volunteered to go notwithstanding threats of beating and even worse. A schoolmaster was placed at Buang-sang, a village of thirty-three families on the shores of the Sang-sa basin, and only half a mile from the busy port of Bah-sioh-bi. Thirty of the thirty-three families have given up their idols and resolved to worship the one true God. A temporary catechist has also been placed at Siong-bah-sioh, where an old man of over sixty years is a catechumen and offered his own shop and tea warehouse as a church and residence for a teacher.

Fifteen miles to church.

The nearest church is fifteen miles distant. He occasionally attends it, rowing himself down the mountain river, on the banks of which his town is situated. The first-fruits of Sen-ning, a pedlar, was baptized by Mr. Star in April, 1900; now all the five cities of the Fuh-ning Prefecture, the others being Fuh-ning, Ning-taik, Fuh-ang, and Fuh-ding, have one or more Christian residents within their walls.

Forty-nine adults were baptized in the district before the missionaries left in June. While absent at Fuh-chow Mr. Studdert maintained communication with the catechists by letter and by special messengers, and occasionally saw some of them at Fuh-chow, especially at the time of the annual Conference in November. In December Mr. Studdert and Dr. Synge, with the Consul's permission, visited Fuh-ning and spent a week there. Everything was peaceful and quiet, and subsequently the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie went there for a few days.

HOK-CHIANG.

Hok-chiang.

Archdeacon Wolfe superintended the work in the HOK-CHIANG DISTRICT, where, as in the previous three years, the people suffered severely from drought and plague and floods and storms. Rice rose to double and potatoes to five times the ordinary price. Many of the people, including some of the converts, could not afford even one regular meal a day, and many were fearful that they would not be able to get their winter clothes out of pawn when the cold weather came. Under these circumstances it was a surprise and great encouragement to Archdeacon Wolfe to find that the contributions of the Christians to the Pastoral Fund were $320 in excess of those of any previous year. They have lately had far less to bear from the Romanists in the district; indeed, the influence of the latter has considerably declined, and only a fraction of those who joined them in large numbers a few years ago now remain with them.

Contributions increased in spite of scarcity.

The last remark does not apply to the city of HOK-CHIANG, where the Romanists have many converts, and are building extensive premises. It was not from them, however, but from the Heathen, that the Rev. Lau Taik-Ong, the native pastor in Hok-chiang city, had to witness a severe persecution of his people. In the summer, just at the crisis caused by the troubles in the north, a new mandarin was appointed, and he at once announced his intention to compel the Christians to worship idols and to subscribe money to support idolatry. At the instance of the Archdeacon the authorities at Fuh-chow sent a special officer to Hok-chiang to investigate the grounds of the Christians' complaints, and they were declared innocent of charges which the magistrate had formulated against them; the magistrate was censured and some of the police dismissed. The Archdeacon thinks it possible that the magistrate was deceived by his underlings, as he shortly afterwards, as will appear under "Ko-sang-che," acted in a very different spirit. A large piece of land in a most eligible site within the city was procured for a Hospital, which was erected during the past year, as well as a house to accommodate three ladies. These, however, were not completed until after the ladies—Dr. Mabel C. Poulter, Miss A. L. Leybourn (now at home), and Miss J. H. Poulter (who joined them in March)—left Hok-chiang in July, but the new dispensary was ready in April, and its commodious waiting- and consulting-rooms were greatly appreciated after the cramped quarters in the room used as a church. Seven thousand eight hundred patients were treated. Hospital.

Miss Leybourn visited all the congregations in the upper district, aiming at spending a Sunday with each, so as to have opportunities for teaching the women. She saw also 700 patients on these visits, though not on Sundays, which she kept free for teaching. Besides these, 1,500 patients were treated in the first six months of the year at Hai-kan, a fishing village six miles from Hok-chiang, where a branch dispensary was opened. From Hai-kan Miss Leybourn visited twice, in May and June, 1900, the island of Sentau, being the first foreigner to set foot on its shores. It is very small, only three miles long, yet it has thirteen villages. Forty families are enrolled as catechumens, but the women had received no instruction, as the customs of the country would not admit of the young unmarried schoolmaster teaching them. They gladly came to Miss Leybourn in relays of two or three at a time, and kept her occupied from 6 a.m. till 6 p.m. during the several days of her visit. Even the Heathen showed a desire to learn about the Christians' God. A Bible-woman was left on the island.

First foreigner to land on island.

Teaching for twelve hours daily.

At KENG-TAU the same three ladies as were mentioned in last year's Annual Report were resident during the first half of the year—namely, Miss F. E. Oatway, Miss I. Suttor, of the New South Wales Association, and Miss E. Mort, of the Victoria Association—who all left China on furlough in the autumn. The conduct of the pupils in the girls' school showed great improvement, and the ladies had reason to hope that the character of some of them was radically changed. The ladies heard that several of the girls started prayer-meetings in their own villages. Miss Oatway and Miss Suttor took charge alternately of the school and the work of visiting the village women. The latter gives a touching account of a woman to whose troubled spirit she was privileged to bring the peace of God. She writes:— Keng-tau.

> When returning from my last itinerating trip I passed a heathen village about four miles from home. As I passed by, a woman came out from a house and walked up to me. Her face was very white and troubled. She said she wanted to worship God, and asked me to go to her house and teach her about God. I went. She was most eager to learn; in fact, was intensely in earnest. She said for seven years the devil had tormented her, till she was driven to despair of ever knowing peace. She spent all her money and her strength in worshipping the idols and the devils, in order that the devil might be cast out, for she said she was possessed of the devil; but she only grew more wretched. Finding all this was of no avail, she cast the idols away, but still found no peace; then, hearing that reading Confucian books could give peace, she got these and read them night and day, but only grew worse, and, finding these books could not bring peace, she threw them away too, and despair settled upon her. At this time some one said to her that if people joined the Church they had heard that God would give them peace. So from that time she wished to hear about God, and said to her neighbours, "If you at any time see the foreign missionary lady pass this way let me know, and I will go and speak to her." So as I passed by that afternoon they told her, and she came out to see me. She received every word I told her, and has become an earnest Christian. She is a wonder to all who know her, for she is now so bright and happy and goes about telling her relations and every one what the Lord Jesus Christ has done for her, and they can see she is quite changed. The peace she sought so long she found in Christ. We call her the "Nang Siu Huoi So."

A troubled soul finds peace.

Miss Mort took her first itinerating trip with Miss Suttor early in the year. She was impressed, but not distressed, with the primitive hospitality extended to them. Native rooms and native beds, or boards or the top of a heap of tiles in lieu of beds, were new experiences to her. At Ming-diang, the catechist being a bachelor, the women never go to church, but they availed themselves with delight of the ladies' visit, and were with them early and late.

Primitive hospitality.

The magistrate of Hok-chiang, referred to above, after visiting the lower Hok-chiang district, and calling upon the Rev. Yek Twang-Mi, of Ko-SANG-CHE, declared himself so pleased with what he heard of him and his work in preventing law-suits between the Christians and the Heathen that he obtained permission from the Tao-tai to present him with a tablet as a recognition of his work in this direction. The Women's School, under Miss M. E. Wolfe, moved into a new building in April, 1900, when twenty-five were admitted, some of whom were wives of native agents. One of the women, from an island called Tong-seu, was asked to make an untrue statement to Miss Wolfe, but she promptly replied, "How can I do that? I promised to renounce the devil and all his works." Some of the women have classes in the Sunday-school, which Mrs. Yek, the pastor's wife, superintends, and at which as many as forty women are often present. Mrs. Yek also assists at a weekly women's class, and Miss Wolfe, by whom it is conducted, says she is much loved by all the women, and has a beautiful way of comforting those who are in trouble, especially those who have lost their little ones, as she has herself gone through that trial more than once. Miss K. Andrews (now at home) bears a similar testimony regarding the pastor himself. When he visited the Dispensary

A tablet given in recognition of pastor's work in preventing law-suits.

"How can I do that?"

he "seemed to understand the people and to know just the right way to reach them;" the patients are specially grateful for his "good words," and he is "much beloved by all the people around." Miss Wolfe conducted women's classes in neighbouring villages, having five of them each week. Miss E. J. Harrison (now at home) also took part in itinerations. Miss A. McClelland was chiefly engaged in language study. After the ladies had left Ko-sang-che some of the ill-disposed people in the town, in common with the thieves and beggars (the latter a recognized class in China), proposed to pull down and loot the Mission buildings, but an influential man in the town publicly announced that he would be surety for these premises, and that any one who touched them or the pastor's house would have to reckon with him, "as the ladies' only aim was to benefit the people and do them good." The Archdeacon found this feeling very general when he visited the district in the winter of 1900-1901, just before his health obliged him to take leave. He wrote to a friend:—

Pastor and his wife much loved.

A leading Native protects Mission buildings.

> I was in Hok-chiang for the Church Council, and the people were very quiet, and begging for the ladies to come back. I am sure if our friends at home could only see and hear the Hok-chiang people begging and praying for the ladies to come back they would not say one word against sending ladies out to China. The people all over this Mission, especially in the old stations, have the greatest respect for and set the highest value upon the work and presence of the ladies among them. Let them say what they will, we know that China can never be won for Christ without the help and presence of ladies.

People begging for the ladies to return.

Some hundreds of inquirers in the district were affected by the threats of their neighbours in the summer, but others came forward, and there were 2,870 catechumens at the year's close, besides 3,201 baptized Christians; the year witnessed 120 adult baptisms and 100 of children. The total amount contributed for religious purposes was $2,481. There are sixty-two places of worship in the district and thirty-four catechists. Regarding these last Archdeacon Wolfe bears the following testimony:—

> I am glad to say that not one of our catechists or other native agents in this district has left his station, nor has any of their ordinary Mission work been suspended. Services have been conducted in our sixty-two places of worship twice every Sunday without opposition of any sort, and, though many inquirers have left off coming to us, a considerable number of new ones have joined us.

No native catechist forsook his station.

The work on the island of Hai-tang was encouraging, but it requires more frequent visitations from the foreign missionary than the Archdeacon was able to give. It has now a native deacon resident upon it, the Rev. Wong Hung Ong. Archdeacon Wolfe expressed the hope that the Rev. J. B. Carpenter, to whom he was about to hand over the charge of the district, would be privileged to see the work greatly extended and solidified as well.

Island of Hai-tang.

HING-HWA.

Hing-hwa.

HING-HWA was the only inland station of the Fuh-Kien Mission which was privileged to keep its foreign missionaries, or some of them, throughout the year. Two events of no small encouragement occurred at the beginning of 1900. One was the Christian Women's Conference, held in January, particulars of which were given in last year's Annual Report (page 387), and the other was the baptism of Dr. A. T. Sampson's teacher, Mr. Iah Cu Ga, together with the hospital cook and a photographer in the city. Mr. Iah possessed a degree, and had decided leanings towards reform through reading the books of the Society for the Diffusion of Christian Knowledge among the Chinese, but had not come into contact with foreigners until he was engaged as a language teacher. Dr. Sampson says of him:—

Baptism of a man with a literary degree.

During those first few months with me it was a struggle for him between Jesus Christ and Confucianism with its concomitant of ancestor-worship. Every step he contested, but his heart had been touched before his head was convinced, and was on the side of Jesus Christ almost from the beginning. I did not urge him at all to apply for baptism. It should come from himself if he had really come to believe from his heart. At the time of the autumnal sacrifices to ancestors he did not go home for them, but remained teaching me until they were over. At the beginning of this year Mr. Nightingale examined and baptized him. By reason of his literary degree he is one of the head-men of his village, and in previous years it had been the custom to bring the village idol to his house. This year he refused to receive it. Shortly afterwards disease broke out amongst the cows and pigs in his village, and this was attributed by the villagers to the wrath of the insulted idol, and Mr. Iah has had to suffer in many petty ways. He has also been cut by many of his old friends, and is regarded as a heretic by the other Confucian scholars in the city. I am glad to say that, though much pressure was brought to bear upon him by relatives and friends to quietly leave the "Jesus doctrine" in these troublous times, he stood his ground firmly throughout this year and helped much to encourage the other Christians to remain true, even though it might mean death.

Hospital.

In the Hospital, under Dr. B. Van Someren Taylor, a class of medical students was opened. An increasing willingness on the part of the patients to submit to operations was noticed.

Head of a Buddhist monastery a patient.

Among the patients was the head of one of the largest Buddhist monasteries in the Prefecture, an old man of over seventy, who, while he acknowledged that Buddhism did not and could not satisfy, and bought a New Testament and read it, and attended all the meetings, seemed afraid of showing too much interest in the Gospel in the presence of the monks who attended him. In contrast with him was another, and a still older, man of very engaging appearance, who, though very ignorant and slow to understand, kept asking with pathetic earnestness, "Why can't I see God?" "How can I see God?" "When shall I see God?" "When shall I go to heaven?" "I want to see God." Dr. Sampson expresses confidence "that God must have answered the longing of that dark heart to see His face." He died in the hospital. One of his sons, a pattern of filial piety, and possessing a degree, read the New Testament night after night with Dr. Sampson, and had an intelligent grasp of the plan of salvation before he left the hospital after his father's death. Dr. Sampson was much drawn to him on account of his "honesty and absence of Chinese flattery." The Misses A. F. and F. A. Forge, both trained nurses, were cheered by the willingness of the patients to listen to the Gospel. One woman of a somewhat wealthy family refused to attend prayers when she first entered the hospital, but after she left it she became a regular attendant at the church with two other members of her family. Through her influence the ladies were invited to visit the women in two houses, and she was instrumental in sending other patients to the hospital.

"Absence of Chinese flattery."

When the news from the north of China assumed its most serious character, Hing-hwa was suffering from a drought, following upon heavy floods which had inundated the city. Such circumstances would add to the danger, rendering the people suffering from loss and damage the more ready to avenge their sufferings on foreigners in their midst. Dr. Taylor at once escorted Mrs. Taylor and the two Misses Forge to Fuh-chow, but Dr. Sampson and the Rev. S. J. Nightingale applied for and obtained from the Consul permission to remain. The former wrote in July:—

> The Christians, being uneasy and fearing that the opportunity might be taken by their heathen neighbours to attack them, have been coming in to the city from time to time to see if we were still here, and were much comforted and encouraged at finding that we were. Our staying on has also had a steadying effect upon the Heathen and dissipated many rumours. It is good to be able to reassure our Chinese brothers and sisters, surrounded as they are by rumours of the wildest description. In Ging-deong the Heathen have been telling them that whoever will not worship their ancestors will shortly be seized by the officials and have their property confiscated and be severely beaten.

Presence of missionaries a comfort to the converts.

The missionaries staying was not only a means of comfort and protection to the Christians, but it brought a rich blessing to themselves, for they realized the Lord's presence with them, and His Spirit wrought through their ministry in a degree they had not experienced before. Dr. Sampson wrote:—

> Just now a good many of the Fuh-Kien missionaries are at Kuliang, and have a daily prayer-meeting there, so we decided to start one here at six every morning. We have ten minutes' address from one or other of the workers or myself. We have had some searching addresses, and helpful, too, especially those of Dr. U., our head-doctor, and Mr. Iah, my teacher. This prayer-meeting has been attended by all the workers in the hospital, students, servants, and those patients who are themselves glad to come of their own accord, which means the majority. I believe there has been deep conviction of sin and a desire awakened in many hearts for the filling of the Spirit.

A daily prayer-meeting.

The District Magistrate was openly anti-foreign, and the Prefect an opium smoker, and early in July an edict to exterminate foreigners was being circulated in the city; but the Viceroy and Tao-tai of Fuh-chow put forth stringent proclamations which silenced the clamour. The decoration of the Mission buildings on the Emperor's birthday pleased the gentry, who thereupon erected a banner in a public place to the effect that "The Middle and Outside Kingdoms live in peace and happiness together."

"The Middle and Outside Kingdoms live in peace"!

The Rev. S. J. Nightingale was in charge of the work in the Pu-tien portion of the Hing-hwa Prefecture. He refers to the large sale of Gospels; some hundreds of Scripture portions having been sold by the five colporteurs in Sieng Iu and Pu-tien. Twenty-three were baptized in Pu-tien. The Bishop of Victoria visited that part of the district on a confirmation tour in May, 1900, Dr. Sampson accompanying him as interpreter. The Bishop decided to visit the mountain villages instead of requiring the people to meet him at Sieng Iu. Dr. Sampson wrote: "I shall not soon forget the confirmation service and meeting round the Lord's Table afterwards in one little remote mountain hamlet. The modified barn which served for a church was crowded with people, most of them baptized Christians." Sixty-six were confirmed in the course of the tour. The district contains fifteen places of worship, at each of which the Rev. Ting Chung Seng administered the Lord's Supper three times during the year, while at the Sieng Iu city church there was a monthly administration. Dr. Sampson mentions that when the rumours and threats were at their worst some Christians walked many miles from their village homes to the city to ascertain whether their pastor was still there and was safe, and were greatly rejoiced to find him working amongst them as usual.

Confirmation service in a mountain village.

Mr. Nightingale was absent from the station on account of illness for six months from September, 1900, till the spring of 1901, but meanwhile Dr. and Mrs. Taylor had come back to Hing-hwa in December, and Mrs. Taylor wrote of the joy expressed by the women at her return:—

> The real joy of some of these women at seeing me back again was well worth running a risk in coming, had there been any risk to run. I heard a great deal from them about their fears and difficulties during the time of the trouble. Many of the women got together in the hospital; they felt that to be a place of safety, as a promise had been given by the officials that if any trouble arose they, as far as they could, would protect the hospital. Some of the Christians suffered a good deal in the way of petty persecutions from their friends and relatives. One little woman who had been in the station class last term, and who lives in a mountain village, told me that the neighbours tried to frighten her by telling her she would be killed on a certain day with all the other Christians. She bravely told them she was not afraid. "You may kill me," she said, "but I shall go to heaven, and there I shall see Jesus." This was a hard time for the poor little woman, as she is the only Christian woman in the whole village.

"You may kill me, but I shall go to heaven."

KU-CHENG.

Ku-cheng.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canada Association, and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Woods continued to reside at KU-CHENG, as in 1899, until called down to the coast in the summer of 1900. Mr. Boyd says of the Rev. Li Sie-Mi, who has pastoral charge of the northern and eastern part of the district, that he earnestly tries to induce the Christians who are sufficiently instructed to do so to visit the outlying villages and preach the Gospel. His own father was converted by such a preacher from Ku-cheng city years ago. The Vegetarians, who committed the massacre at Hwa-sang in 1895, reside in Mr. Li's pastorate, and showed signs of activity in the summer, but the Viceroy sent up 400 soldiers to Ku-cheng to protect the Christians. The subscriptions of the Christians increased over $90. Mr. Boyd twice visited Ping-nang, a small city of 4,000 people. It has until quite recently been very anti-foreign, and Mr. Boyd believes that only once before his visits had a foreigner entered its walls; even Native Christians would a few years since have been stoned if they had tried to enter. Catechists were placed there in 1898. There are no converts as yet, but one man is called by the catechists "Nicodemus" because they consider him to be a real believer, though he is afraid of being seen going to church, but will kneel down in prayer if no Heathen are present. Mr. Boyd mentions the following instance of practical Christianity which he met with, apparently at Pi-liang:—

A "Nicodemus."

A Christian was living with his mother and brother, both Heathen. The family estate had been divided between the two brothers, and each was to pay half of the family debt. The Christian paid his share, but the other one would not, so the creditor came to the mother and said she must pay. The poor mother was greatly distressed and worried by it, so the Christian, seeing this, said he would pay the second half, which he did. The mother was overjoyed, and said, "Is that what Christianity is?" and she herself has since come to church.

"Is that what Christianity is?"

KIEN-NING.

Kien-ning.

The work in the district of KIEN-NING has suffered a great loss, and one which it is most difficult to repair, in the retirement of Dr. J. Rigg, who was in charge at the beginning of 1900. The Rev. W. C. White, who was taking a rest imposed by medical orders, went up from the coast to give temporary assistance to Dr. H. R. Pakenham, who was left alone, until the return of the Rev. H. S. Phillips. The flood which occurred in June, 1900, and the destruction it effected in Kien-ning and its neighbourhood have been already referred to. Mr. White arrived at Kien-ning on the day before the flood, and was an eye-witness of the havoc made in the city and to the Mission buildings at Seven Stars Bridge, two miles from the city gate.

About 250 people, with their cattle and other effects, took shelter in the Mission compound. He wrote :—

Mission hospital destroyed by flood.

The flood in Kien-ning city was the worst that had been known for 116 years. The large men's hospital at Seven Stars Bridge, with the greater part of the compound wall and outbuildings, were totally wrecked or carried away, and other buildings were partially destroyed. The medicines in bulk and most of the instruments were saved, but there was a great loss of furniture and fittings, and almost all the dispensary medicines, bottles, &c., which were in the upper storey, were destroyed when the building collapsed. The hospital itself was very substantially built, of the usual 2½ ft. mud walls, but when the waters washed round the foundation the mud walls melted away as if they had been made of sugar, and of course the building had to come down. One cannot realize the misery thousands of these poor people had to go through during these few days. The water flowed over the city walls, and boats were engaged by the mandarins to pick up the people from the roofs of the houses. The night during which the water reached its highest—the night that the hospital went down—the city became a turmoil of indescribable horrors. The villagers, when driven out of their homes, brought their pigs and fowls, their cows, goods and chattels to our compound, until every available space was occupied. When the floods subsided what a desolation met the eye! Whole villages had been completely swept away, and thousands of lives had been lost. In Kien-ning city alone it is estimated that at least 600 lives were lost and 1,500 houses destroyed.

Distressing scenes.

A little later, after Mr. White and Dr. Pakenham had been summoned to Fuh-chow, a body of rebels (not "Boxers") in the south-west corner of the Province of Cheh-Kiang, having killed a prefect and three district magistrates, crossed the border into the Fuh-Kien Province to the north of Kien-ning. Happily a force sent against them succeeded in defeating and scattering them, though numbering 4,000, as, if they had been victorious, there seemed every reason to fear they would be reinforced by members of numerous secret societies, and might have overrun the whole northern half of the province and even the city of Fuh-chow itself. It is, perhaps, scarcely surprising, with all these dangers around them and left to their own judgment without Europeans at hand to guide them, that the Chinese agents in the district, who are not Natives of Kien-ning, but were brought up from Ku-cheng, felt justified in fleeing to Ku-cheng. They returned, however, a few weeks afterwards to their posts. The church, dispensary, and other buildings in Kien-ning city which were burnt down during the riots of 1899 have been rebuilt. The work at YEN-PING was quietly continued without interruption. Two colporteurs of the B. & F.B.S. did excellent service for a great part of the year in the villages of the district.

A rebellion suppressed.

KIEN-YANG.

KIEN-YANG is about forty miles further up the valley of the Min River than Kien-ning. The Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips came home in April, 1900, and Miss M. E. Sears, of the Victoria Association, who was transferred from the C.E.Z.M.S. to the Kien-yang.

C.M.S., as already explained (see supra, p. 413), was placed temporarily with the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies in the Kien-ning district, and with these was called away to the coast soon afterwards. On Sunday, January 21st, 1900, four persons were baptized, one of them being the former "opium sot" mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 393). Miss Sears wrote of this convert :—

Baptism of a former opium-eater.

One man who was baptized is a living monument of what our God can and does do. I wish those who "do not believe in Missions" could see him. He is a great broad-shouldered man, far taller than the average Chinese. When I first saw him on my arrival here he was a miserable-looking object, and even then was a great deal better, they said, than he had been. He had just come back from the Kien-ning Hospital (or rather Seven Stars Bridge), where he had been treated on giving up opium. Formerly he was one of the most degraded opium-eaters in the place; he had been a victim for over twenty years, and was a most miserable wretch. At his baptism his face positively shone, and he was tested just before it too, for he was sent away on business with over forty dollars (about £4) in his pocket. After he had started, Satan tried to make us doubt, but home he came safely with the business satisfactorily concluded.

An offshoot in troublous times.

Though left without a foreign missionary, the work at Kien-yang threw out an offshoot in the summer. The first out-station was opened in the large market town of Song-chiong. The two catechists placed there remained faithfully at their post teaching and witnessing all through the troubled months.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became a separate diocese, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter See. Shanghai was occupied by European missionaries in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-chow, 1864; Shaou-hing, 1870; T'ai-chow, 1892; and Chu-ki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chu-ki district from Hang-chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal, and seventeen of them have been ordained since 1863.

THE reinforcements assigned to the Mid China Mission for the year 1900, as in the case of those for the Fuh-Kien Mission, were either detained at home or diverted to other Missions. The closer proximity of Cheh-Kiang to the focus of disturbance naturally occasioned an even greater measure of concern for the safety of the missionaries in Mid China than for those in Fuh-Kien and South China, and from time to time telegrams appeared in the press regarding Ningpo and other stations which caused the deepest anxiety. Happily, they proved to be exaggerated or without foundation. At Ku-chow-fu, in the west of Cheh-Kiang Province, a band of eight missionaries and three children of the China Inland Mission were killed on July 21st, 22nd, and 24th. The district magistrate himself lost his life at the hands of the men who killed the missionaries, and who apparently were a body of rebels, connected probably with one or more secret societies. The firm action of the Yangtse Viceroys in withstanding the policy of extermination of foreigners, instituted and pressed on their adoption by the Court party, has been already referred to. Bishop Moule ascribes to Mr. Pelham Warren, British Consul at Hankow, a large share of the credit, under God, for the preservation of foreigners throughout the Yangtse Valley.

Eight C.I.M. missionaries and their children killed in Cheh-Kiang Province.

Bishop Moule himself had a very heavy share in the common anxiety. In addition to the care of all the churches in his diocese, which rested upon him as bishop, those very nearly related to him by ties of blood were at nearly all the stations of the Mission, and one of his sons, Mr. Christopher Moule, was at Tientsin during the bombardment. The Bishop remained at Hang-chow after sending Mrs. and the Misses Moule and the other ladies to Shanghai, and reached that place himself on August 7th. His reluctance to leave the home in which he had lived since 1865, when he occupied Hang-chow as a pioneer missionary—the very first English missionary to take up his permanent residence in an interior Chinese city—was very natural, and his enforced withdrawal, in the seventy-third year of his age and the forty-third of his missionary career, was a saddening event indeed.

Bishop Moule's share in the common anxiety.

Death of Rev. Sing Tsae-Ling.

One of the native workers, on whom during the summer of 1900 the heavy responsibility rested of standing by and comforting the Christians in their hour of temptation and danger, was taken to his rest after faithfully fulfilling his duty to the Church. The Rev. Sing Tsae-Ling was a son of the Rev. Sing Eng-Teh, whose death was recorded in last year's Annual Report (page 395). He was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1894, together with three brothers-in-law—namely, the Revs. Dzing Kyi-Doh, Mo Kw'un-Yü, and Song Vi-sing. He was stationed at Hang-chow, and when most of the European missionaries retired to Shanghai he, after arranging for his wife and family to be in a place of safety, went back alone to the care of his pastorate, and continued at Hang-chow ministering to his people during September and October. He then fell ill, and passed away on November 11th, calling on the Lord of his salvation.

Went back alone to the care of his pastorate.

I. PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

Miss M. J. Godson came home in October, 1900, and Messrs. A. J. H. and W. A. H. Moule in March, 1901. Miss R. M. Elwin, who was accepted for service in local connexion in 1896, has been received into home connexion.

SHANGHAI.

Shanghai.

There is no place within the Empire of China where foreigners are so numerous as in Shanghai, and consequently the events of the summer of 1900 were nowhere followed with keener interest and anxiety. Mr. A. J. H. Moule wrote:—

Towards the end of June we were horrified at the news of the bombardment of Tientsin. About that time Shanghai was practically undefended, except for the local volunteers and a small gunboat. The Natives soon caught the prevailing panic. Trade was paralyzed, and the inhabitants fled in tens of thousands to Ningpo and other places. Our servants were seriously alarmed, and nothing seemed to reassure them. The number of the volunteers quickly rose to more than 1,000. During the burning heat of July drills were going on at all hours. I had resigned for some years my membership in the Shanghai Volunteers, but this year I rejoined the ranks as a "bearer" in the newly-formed Ambulance Corps. My duties also included the summoning of the various members of the corps on my bicycle for attendance at the numerous secret night parades. At one time the people were so alarmed at these frequent calls to duty that the chief magistrate of the city remonstrated with the Consuls about the matter. I shall never forget the tension of some of those awful days in June and July. Shanghai is well known as a hotbed of false rumours, but there were enough hideous facts to occupy our attention without thinking of the countless rumours. We heard of the massacre of brave men, tender women, and helpless children, and we felt powerless, except to pray. The many thousands of murdered Native Christians have not died in vain. Christianity in China has never been so much in the ascendant as at the end of this terrible year. We may ourselves have been in very real danger in Shanghai, but our blanched faces and aching hearts were mainly the result of pity and horror at the heartrending news from other places which reached us almost hourly.

Special arrangements were made in view of the possibility of an outburst of native hostility. Places were assigned in the different districts of the city to which Europeans were instructed to fly, and the signal for flight was to be eight strokes of an alarm bell. With the relief of the Peking Legations in August tranquility was partially restored, and shortly afterwards the landing of Indian troops removed all cause of anxiety.

Fifteen hundred refugee missionaries in Shanghai.

Shanghai about this time became the place of refuge for missionaries called in from their stations in all the Yangtse provinces. In October there were as many as 1,500 thus involuntarily assembled, and it was most wisely agreed to improve the occasion by holding a conference for self-humiliation and self-consecration, and for united prayer for brethren and sisters still in danger and for China. This conference was held during the week commencing Sunday, October 7th. The Rev. Barclay F. Buxton, of the Japan Mission, in response to an invitation, visited Shanghai to give assistance at the conference. The Rev. C. J. F. Symons, the Secretary of the Mission, wrote: "This time of waiting upon God, for Him to teach us, could never have been brought about in such a thorough way if we had planned it. We had hoped for a conference of some 500 next year, but here we are a body of 1,500 strong thrust out from our stations."

A united conference.

Literary Work.

Of the small staff connected with the Society located at Shanghai two were engaged in Literary Work. Mr. A. J. H. Moule (now at home), who has for several years past been engaged in translating a Commentary of the Bible, has been much encouraged by the sale of the first two volumes; an edition of a thousand copies of the first volume has nearly disappeared, and a new and revised edition has had to be prepared. Volume iii., from Ezra to the end of the Psalms, has been accepted by the examining committee of the Chinese Tract Society, and has been published by that Society. Mr. Moule has also for some years been engaged in preparing a Classical Phrase-book, and mentions that it now contains almost 28,000 phrases! The Rev. W. G. Walshe translated three books of the series on the "Conversion of the West," published by the S.P.C.K., namely, Dr. Maclear's Celts and English, and the late Dean Merivale's Continental Teutons. He also prepared during the year a series of eight original discourses on the Seven Churches of Asia, historical, descriptive, and explanatory, which appeared in the Anglican Church Record, a quarterly magazine in Chinese, of which Mr. Moule is joint editor and Mr. Walshe diocesan editor. Mr. Walshe was called upon to be Acting Secretary of the Society for the Diffusion of Christian and General Knowledge among the Chinese during the absence from Shanghai of the Rev. Timothy Richards when he attended the New York Missionary Conference. The members of the Native Congregation, under the pastorship of the Rev. Dzing Kyi-Doh, appear to have stood the testing time of the summer's crisis with credit. At the time when the frightened Natives were fleeing panic-stricken to Ningpo and other places of refuge, Mr. Symons says he only knows of one member of the congregation who fled. One of the missionaries wrote early in July, 1900 :—

Prayer-meetings.

At the Wednesday afternoon prayer-meeting the prayers have been so earnest, beseeching God to keep them quite faithful if severe testing time came, and I am sure He will do so. Mrs. Dzing quite broke down one afternoon. Trouble here would mean so much more for them than it would for the foreigner. Even now I think they have to put up with a good many remarks of an unkind nature. But all this, under God, will be for their strengthening and establishing.

The Sunday services were fairly well attended, and the number of regular communicants was forty-two. The attendance at the Day-schools was naturally affected by the state of excitement, and when they were reopened after the summer vacation the numbers in some cases, Miss H. Wood states, were only half what they had been in the early months of the year. A Sunday-school in the Nan-king Road kept up better, and Miss Wood was using Steps to Truth, by Mr. Eugene and the late Miss S. Geraldina Stock, as the basis of a course of lessons. Evangelistic Work had to be discontinued for a time. When the ladies attempted to visit the people they were treated with politeness, but there was a manifest uneasiness and a desire to pass them on to some other house as soon as possible.

II. PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

THE following missionaries came home during the year :—The Rev. and Mrs. A. Phelps and the Rev. J. B. Ost in May, 1900; Miss M. Vaughan in June; and the Rev. W. E. Godson and Miss E. Goudge in October; Miss M. Riddall in March, 1901; and the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Moule and Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Kember in April. The Rev. H. W. Moule was married to Miss L. C. Pope, of this Mission, at Hang-chow, on May 15th, 1900; and the Rev. T. C. Goodchild was married to Miss Leila Bibb, of the Fuh-Kien Mission, on April 10th, 1901, at Fuh-chow.

Ordination.

On December 9th, 1900, Bishop Moule admitted Mr. Ing Djün Yüih to Deacons' Orders; and on April 14th, 1901, he admitted the same to Priests' Orders.

NINGPO.

Ningpo.

"The peaceful wave" is the literal translation of NINGPO, and one of the missionaries remarks that its condition during the past year corresponded with its name—"the centre of the whirlpool, itself at rest." The "rest," however, as applying to the city as a whole, was very far from being complete. It is evident that there was a good deal of excitement during the latter half of June and the months of July and August. The arrival every day of two or three steamers from Shanghai packed on every deck with Ningpo men, whether returning to escape from dangers that were anticipated elsewhere or to fly with their families in the event of troubles occurring at Ningpo, was calculated to disturb the minds of the people. Twenty-six thousand of these people are said to have arrived at Ningpo in the course of a fortnight. Then, early in July, it was rumoured that a party of men was advancing against Ningpo from T'ai-chow to avenge the death of a man who had been executed at the instigation of the Roman Catholic bishop, and the alarm thus created caused the well-to-do Natives to remove their families and their chattels to the hills, paying pounds instead of pence for boats and coolies. Foreigners and Native Christians also had special causes for anxiety, as notices fixing dates for their murder were posted in the city. Many of the foreigners in the Settlement sent away their wives, and packed their boxes in preparation to follow them, and arms and ammunition were distributed to the Custom House officials. The Consul, however, remained at his post, and his wife remained with him, and the Chinese officials were friendly and energetic. To their united efforts, under God, it was due that Ningpo remained in any degree true to its name.

Disquieting rumours.

But it is equally evident that the Society's missionaries, amidst this turmoil, did enjoy a very real and profound "rest," a peace of mind and freedom from distraction which only God's Spirit could bestow. All the institutions were kept open without other interruption than is usual every year. The Training College, under the Rev. W. S. Moule (now at home), had thirty-eight students—one in the theological class, eight in the preparandi class, and twenty-nine in the junior department. Eight of the students were accepted by the Missionary Conference as schoolmasters, and the one theological student as a catechist. The Rev. A. J. Walker gave Bible instruction to the upper classes.

All C.M.S. institutions kept open.

The Women's School, under Mrs. W. S. Moule (now at home), had five women under training to be Bible-women. She believes them all to be truly good and earnest. Sometimes a few catechumens are admitted to the school, and three such were in it at the close of the year, two ex-hospital patients and one woman from San-poh. Mrs. Moule conducted two weekly Bible-classes for Christian women, and Miss M. E. Turnbull held two sewing classes for heathen women, with an average attendance of twenty-five at each. The Girls' Boarding-school building was enlarged during the summer, and at the close of the year there were thirty-five pupils. Miss A. Maddison had feared that none of the country girls would return after the summer. Four did leave for various causes, but seven applied for admission. Miss Maddison can speak with confidence of several among the elder girls that they are true Christians, and they show a marked interest in missionary work. The sale of some of their handiwork produced $20. The ten Day-schools—one, however, had to be closed owing to the misconduct of the master—presented 149 boys for examination, and that even in July, when so many disquieting rumours were abroad. Thirty-five of these were Christians. The Hospital was kept open all through the summer and the women's department was only closed for a month, during Dr. Smyth's holiday. The number of patients fell off somewhat, owing to the fears and suspicions of the people.

Pastorates.

The Rev. W. S. Moule, as chairman of the Church Council, reports upon the Pastorates. He says of the Christians:—

Much reproach suffered by Christians.

> The Native Christians have suffered much ignominy and reproach, hearing daily that their annihilation was only a matter of time. Some have given way; one poor woman erased the words "Hall of the religion of Jesus" from the wall of her house, and hid the few forms which the Christians who met there used at their meetings; another wished his name removed from the list of subscribers to the Church Fund hung up in a chapel. But many also stood firm, and I hope their faith has been deepened by adversity.

The Rev. Wông Yiu Kwông states that the Christians of the Ningpo Western Pastorate contributed $100 for church purposes and $20 for alms, and gave in addition $100 towards building a church at Lingts'eng. Miss Turnbull wrote of the conduct of the Christians during the summer:—

Prayer for their country and for foreigners.

> During the time last July, when rumours were rife and the fate of the Legations was hanging in the balance, some of the Ningpo Christian women were glad to meet with me for prayer once a week, and it was touching to hear the way hearts were poured out in petitions for their country, and also in prayer that the lives of the foreigners in Peking might be spared. They prayed that God would feed the latter as He did Elijah, and deliver them as Daniel and the three children were delivered. Who knows the part that prayers like these were playing when the enemy did their worst in vain?

Since the death of the Rev. Dzing Ts-Sing in December, 1898, Mr. Moule had to assume charge of the Ningpo Eastern Pastorate until he passed it over to the Rev. Yü Hyien-Ding in June, 1900. There are three churches in the pastorate—namely, Grace Church in the city, one at Yu-ko-da-ao, and one at Dzang-ko. The contributions rose from $32 to $52, and the alms from $8 to $12. The Rev. Ô. Kwông-Yiao reports that there are sixty-five communicants on the roll in the Z-ky'i Pastorate. The contributions were as much again as in 1899—namely, $44, apparently to the Council Fund, $11 for alms, and $29 for other local purposes. There are two churches in the pastorate—at

A club to provide meals for worshippers from a distance.

Z-ky'i and at Tsong-gyiao. The Christians at the latter place started a club for the purpose of providing a mid-day meal for those who attend the services there from a distance. The churches are opened for Gospel preaching on the occasions of "the birthdays of the gods," idol processions, and market days. Miss I. Hughes spent much of her time working among the women at Tsong-gyiao and the neighbourhood, assisted during part of the year by Miss E. Green. The latter refers to an old Christian woman, who lives alone in the midst of the Heathen and cannot walk to church. She found her in July calm and happy, saying, "I am not afraid; I will willingly die if it should come to that." The churches in the San-poh Pastorate are four in number. The largest congregations are at Kwun-hae-we and Ming-ngoh-dgiang, at each of which between twenty and thirty were present at the monthly administration of the Holy Communion; the other two are at Tung-fu-deo and Long-deo-dgiang, where there were bi-monthly administrations, with an average attendance of eight. A man was baptized who was engaged on the railways in the Shan-Tung Province. The contributions increased over those of 1899 by at least $20. The Rev. Song Vi-sing says his people show reluctance in learning to read, and are consequently backward in Christian knowledge, and there is much irreverence in the House of God. Moreover, "they do not show patience in bearing trouble; if things do not fall out as they please they are shaken; or if there are quarrels, or illness, or death, or they suffer wrong from any one, too often they transfer their anger to the Church"—all types which will be readily recognized by those engaged in pastoral work at home. The Rev. W. H. Elwin writes of Mr. Song: "He is a man of remarkable ability, and appeals to me much as one who knows of the love of Christ—a man to be loved as a brother." And he adds: "Those who pray for him may be laying up treasure in heaven." A rich man named Ky-uo-Seng is an inquirer. He made over a Confucian school to the Christians to be used as a school and church. Twenty-four others were concerned with him to some extent in the gift, all men of the rank of small mandarins. One of them has a son in the Tsung-li-Yamen and another on the "Board of Rites." As Mr. Elwin says: "it is a remarkable thing that twenty-five men should commit themselves in this way when China was in such a disturbed state." Miss Turnbull and Miss Green spent the months of March and June (1900) at Kwun-hae-we engaged in teaching the Christian women and in carrying the Gospel to the homes of the people. They found a difficulty in bringing the former together, as they are scattered and very poor. But opportunities for reaching the Heathen were abundant. People stood at their doors to invite them in as they passed, and sent messages to them soliciting a visit, the better-to-do people being just as accessible as the poor. They spent many happy hours in one large house teaching the girls and young married women of two families who were anxious to learn to read. A girls' day-school was started with fifteen heathen girls. One of these unbound her feet, and expressed her intention to be baptized. A Chinese Christian widow accompanied the ladies on these visits to Kwun-hae-we, of whom Miss Green writes:—

A Bible-woman's persuasive manner—"never scolding."

She is an old pupil of Miss Laurence's, having been a boarder in the Ningpo girls' school. She is the greatest help to us in talking to the women, as she can speak the Kwun-hae-we dialect as well as Ningpo; if a woman uses the pure Kwun-hae-we dialect we cannot understand her at all. She is so modest and gentle, and has a sympathetic persuasive manner, never scolding as some Bible-women are rather apt to do. We spent some very happy evenings reading with her. She was deeply interested in the Epistle to the Hebrews, the book of Esther, and in the Pilgrim's Progress, asking such thoughtful questions, and literally drinking in everything. I have never yet met a Chinese woman with such a thirst for knowledge, except perhaps Miss Wells' blind Bible-woman.

On recommencing her visits to San-poh in September, Miss Turnbull found the people just as friendly as before, after they had recovered from their surprise at finding that any foreigners survived, as they thought all had been killed.

The Rev. W. H. Elwin superintended the Evangelistic Work, in which twelve catechists were engaged. Mr. Moule says that these men "stuck nobly to their posts until the end of July, and started off cheerfully again at the beginning of September." On Sunday, July 1st, a meeting of the catechists was held in the College at Ningpo, and four of them spoke on "What should be the attitude of the Christians in the present crisis?" Miss Green refers to this meeting:—

Catechists "stuck nobly to their posts."

Views of native agents as to the right attitude of Christians during the crisis.

Mr. Moule gave a brief account of the S.P.G. work in the north, mentioning those who had been martyred lately. Then the Rev. Sing Tsae-Seng gave a short address on, "Who, then, is that faithful and wise steward?" He spoke so solemnly and practically, telling the young schoolboys that each one as a disciple of Christ had his work to do faithfully, and that even the stupid ones might be wise in knowing and loving and fearing God. Very solemnly he spoke to those of us who were present and have anything to do with teaching and feeding Christ's flock. Then four men spoke on the subject. They were brief and calm and good, especially the third master in the College, a very young man. He said that during the past week he had been searching his Bible for something to comfort himself, and at last had found the passage in St. Luke where our Lord says "Lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." He felt sure our Lord's coming was near, and how happy Christians were to know from the Bible what some of the signs of the times meant. As to the duty of Christians, "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and you yourselves like men that wait for their Lord."

Two of the catechists, it is true, were dismissed for unsatisfactory conduct; but, on the other hand, a former catechist, who had been dismissed in 1898 for interference in lawsuits, was re-engaged on his undertaking to confine himself to his proper work. Mr. Elwin also mentions that one man gave a day's salary towards averting a deficit in the Society's accounts for the year, and that another refrained from charging his travelling expenses for a month—about 4*s*.—with the same object in view.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-chow.

A missionary seized by robbers.

The Rev. W. E. Godson (now at home), who was the senior missionary in the T'AI-CHOW DISTRICT, had a most trying experience at the hands of a number of Chinese brigands in July, 1900. On the 13th of that month he was proceeding from Hai-mên to Su-gyiao in a boat when a number of men armed with guns, swords, and spears attacked him. He tried to make his escape, but was overpowered. A rope was fastened round his neck, one of his hands was tied, and he was led away. Some of the men appeared to wish to take his life, but were restrained by the others. At length the men gave him over to a Mr. Nyün, who escorted him to O-dzing, and took him into his house, where Mr. Godson was reassured by seeing a Christian almanack on the wall and Christian books on the table. He then learned that Native Christians had been told of his capture, and had appealed to Mr. Nyün to save him, that with the latter several Christians connected with the China Inland Mission were sent, and that Mr. Nyün was armed with a letter saying that if his captors did not release him a thousand men would be sent to effect his rescue. The intention of the robbers was to hold Mr. Godson until they received a ransom, but the threat about a thousand men frightened them. This violent treatment affected in some degree Mr. Godson's health, and he came home, as already mentioned, in October.

Released through the efforts of Native Christians.

An attempt on the life of a native pastor.

Two months earlier than the above occurrence an act of violence was committed in the Southern Pastorate. A number of lawless men made a daring attempt on the life of the pastor, the Rev. Yü Hyien-Ding, on Friday, May 11th. The men, some forty in number, approached his house at Ts'ing-yang-dao shortly after midnight, but happily he had left the previous day to assist Mr. Thompson in examining some candidates for baptism at Wan-k'yi, ten miles distant. They forced their way into the premises, removed everything of value, and then, placing faggots sprinkled with petroleum before each door, set fire to each pile and departed. The inmates then effected their escape and roused the neighbours, who, Heathen and Christian alike, combined their efforts to extinguish the flames. Providentially the wind, which had been blowing from the west, veered round to the east, and a portion of the church which adjoined the pastor's house was saved from destruction. This church was formerly a nunnery (see Annual Report for 1893–94, pages 200, 201). The district magistrate, on the application of

His house and part of church burnt down.

Mr. Wilkinson, the British Consul, refunded nearly all the loss, which amounted to $1,550. In consequence of the danger to which he was exposed at Ts'ing-yang-dao, Mr. Yü was removed temporarily to Ningpo, and the Rev. Dzing Teh Kwông, who is on the retired list, took his place. The Rev. E. Thompson connects the above episodes with a succession of previous events of a particularly sad and painful character. He states that in February a man who had been engaged as a catechist by the Roman Catholics led a band of lawless persons to raid a village; that the villagers, forewarned, routed the band, and executed lynch law on its leader; that an adherent of the C.M.S. Mission, a man who had suffered much at the hands of Romanists, was unhappily among the foremost of the mob which wrought the deed; that the outrage against the pastor at Ts'ing-yang-dao in May was to avenge the death of the ex-catechist; that these excesses again led to an attempt to kidnap M. Lepers, the French priest; and that Mr. Godson owed the discomfort and danger to which he was exposed to the fact that he was mistaken for M. Lepers, for whom the band of ruffians were then in search.

A melancholy series of events.

Mr. Thompson remained in the T'ai-chow district until September, when the Consul at Ningpo, at the suggestion of the Governor of Cheh-Kiang, requested him to retire for a time to Ningpo. He visited the district in November, and again in January, and met by appointment the catechists and a number of the Christians. On the latter occasion he found a tone of thankfulness prevailing for God's protecting care; the church at Ts'ing-yang-dao had been rebuilt; and the outlook for the new year seemed hopeful. During the first six months of 1900, thirty-nine adults were baptized.

A tone of thankfulness prevailing.

SHAOU-HING.

On the Rev. and Mrs. A. Phelps leaving SHAOU-HING in March, 1900, the Rev. H. W. Moule was appointed to take temporarily the supervision of the station work. His marriage took place in May, and he arrived with his bride on June 7th, to leave again, in obedience to instructions received by telegram, on July 2nd, bringing the Misses I. S. Clarke (who had returned from furlough the previous December) and H. M. B. Clayton to the coast. The ladies' leaving involved the closing of three Day-schools in which a hopeful work was being done. The promise of instruction in English, and in music, singing, and knitting, attracted the children of some well-to-do people (including those of a mandarin's family) to these schools.

Shaou-hing.

Mandarin's children sent to Mission schools.

After June the work was carried on as far as possible by the Chinese pastor, the Rev. Tsong Sieh-En, and the catechists,

Mr. Moule visited Shaou-hing in October. Mr. Tsong wrote in December :—

Owing to an edict which came down from the Court to destroy the churches, Church affairs came to be everywhere talked of, and whenever I went abroad I used to hear people on the road talking to each other of such things as the desire to burn church buildings and murder the Christians and their leaders. This state of things lasted for more than three months, and there was very great unrest, so much so that many even of the rich Heathen left the city. During those three months my only reliance was on the Lord. I was forced to send my wife and younger children to live in the country, while I with my three grown-up sons kept watch on the church premises. One of these sons, owing to the extreme anxiety, was so frightened that it brought on blood-spitting, and he was in great danger. With the exception of holding service each Sunday, exhorting the Christians, comforting those who kept the house, entertaining Christians from far and near as they came and went, and sending reports to the Bishop and his son, I could do nothing; I could not open the chapel and preach to the Heathen. This month I have at last been able to open the chapel as usual.

"My only reliance was in the Lord."

Two adults, a man and a woman, were baptized. Once a month Mr. Tsong visited Ha-pao, the out-station.

HANG-CHOW.

Hang-chow.

Until May all was going on peacefully and encouragingly at HANG-CHOW. In June rumours became rife, and the 27th of that month, at 10 p.m., was fixed for the burning down of some of the Mission premises, but the alertness of the officials averted any mischief that might have been plotted. The action of the officials was all the more praiseworthy because on the very day named (June 27th) orders arrived from Peking instructing them to expel all foreigners. Some alarming telegrams received by the American Presbyterian missionaries on July 2nd from their friends at Shanghai led to the Rev. G. W. Coultas taking Mrs. Coultas and their child and the Misses Goudge and Frewer to Shanghai on the 3rd, and the Misses Barnes and Joynt followed on the 4th. Mr. Coultas returned on the 8th. The other ladies of the Mission (excepting Mrs. Babington, who gave birth to a child on that very day)—namely, Mrs. and the Misses Moule and Mrs. Kember left on July 18th. On August 3rd the Bishop, the Rev. G. W. Coultas, the Rev. T. C. Goodchild, Dr. and Mrs. Babington, and Mr. T. Gaunt left—all, in fact, except Dr. A. T. Kember, who remained in the native city until August 6th, and then only removed as far as the Foreign Settlement, three miles distant, where the Commissioner of Customs offered him hospitality.

Hospital.

That the work of the Hospital was kept up without interruption throughout the year appears to Dr. Kember (now at home) a matter for very special satisfaction and thankfulness. He recalls the fact that sixteen hospitals were burnt down in different parts of China and several medical missionaries killed, and this enhances his sense of thankfulness. Until the summer, the men's and women's wards were, as usual, full of patients, there were numerous operations, and the out-patients thronged the dispensary. In July, however, at the time when the anxiety was at its height, a scare occurred among the in-patients. One of them suffering from nightmare awoke the others, and the whole hospital was immediately in confusion, and the patients were rushing for the doors in terror of the "Boxers." After this the wards gradually emptied. But the dispensary continued active all the time, the out-patients being attended to by the native assistants and students who remained behind. In November the city officials manifested their confidence in the skill of the native staff of the hospital, for when an explosion occurred at the Chinese arsenal they begged that the injured men, twenty in number, might be taken in at the Mission hospital. "All honour," Dr. Kember wrote, "to our helpers who have so nobly stuck to their posts." In December Dr. Kember wrote with thankfulness that patients were coming as usual, half the men's hospital had been re-opened, and Dr. Babington and he, though still living in the Settlement at the Consul's special request, awaiting the issue of the attempts to punish the perpetrators of the Ku-chow massacres, went frequently into the city to supervise the work.

CHU-KI.

Chu-ki.

On the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Ost leaving CHU-KI in March, 1900, to take furlough, the Rev. and Mrs. H. Barton, Miss L. C. Pope, and Miss M. Riddall were the European missionaries at the station. Miss Pope left soon afterwards to be married to the Rev. H. W. Moule, and Miss E. Onyon volunteered to take her place temporarily as a co-labourer with Miss Riddall. These several changes were scarcely adjusted before the whole party had to leave under circumstances attended with many providential mercies, but peculiarly trying to mind and heart. On June 22nd, the Rev. Nyi Liang Ping, pastor of the Western Chu-ki Pastorate, wrote to Bishop Moule, telling him of inquirers he had lately met with at some of the out-stations of his pastorate, and asking the Bishop's counsel as to baptizing some of them, but making no reference to any signs that foreboded trouble. The Bishop had, however, heard from other sources of a Buddhist monk who had endeavoured to stir up riots against the missionaries. Whether this monk was the origin of the troubles that followed, or whether they had a direct connexion with the simultaneous anti-foreign riots elsewhere, is not at present clear. Mr. Barton noticed, however, on June 30th, that visitors in the compound were rude and insulting, and on Sunday, July 1st, stones were thrown. This was repeated on the 3rd, and a catechist reported that in all the public rest-sheds people were talking about killing the foreigners, and a "Boxer" placard which had been posted in a neighbouring village was produced. About mid-day on the 4th a special messenger arrived from the Bishop—sent largely in consequence of the alarmist messages received from Shanghai referred to above (page 435)—instructing all to leave, and to do so quietly and unencumbered with much baggage. The Christians were summoned together and a prayer-meeting was held in which the missionaries and they commended each other and themselves to God's gracious protection. By 4 p.m. the former left in two boats, being followed to the river by a crowd who threw stones as they passed under the bridge. They reached Hang-chow on the morning of the 5th. On that day the Mission-houses, schools, and chapel were looted by a city mob. The success of this riot encouraged to further acts of lawlessness, and on the 7th the Rev. Tai Iah-An, of the Eastern Pastorate, was attacked and beaten by roughs at Fong-gyiao, and his house pillaged. Two native gentlemen, high graduates, assisted him in stowing away some of his goods, took charge of his house, and enabled him to take away his wife and family in a boat to Hang-chow, which he reached on the 8th, and three days later the families of the Revs. Nyi Liang Ping and Dong Dao-Fah arrived, warned to fly by the military officer, who said he was quite unable to protect them. The crowd burnt down the Mission buildings and the houses of all the Christians they could identify. They also burnt down churches at Lok-ko and at Great Valley.

WEST CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-Chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. The cities of Chong-pa, Sin-tu, Mien-chuh, Mien-cheo, and An-hsien received resident missionaries in 1894, Shih-ts'uen-hsien in 1895, and Wei-cheng in 1899. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

Anxiety at home for the West China staff.

When the troubles in the northern provinces thickened and multiplied during the summer of 1900 the Committee felt that they could only help the Society's West China Mission by fervent prayer, in which they engaged again and again during the weeks which passed before news of their safety was received. The same telegram which was sent to Hong Kong and Fuh-chow and Shanghai, assuring of the Committee's sympathy and prayers, and bidding them to act promptly if emergency should arise, was sent also to the Secretary of this Mission. But it was sent with a sense of the greatest uncertainty as to its reaching its destination, the telegraph lines from Shanghai forward being in the hands of the Chinese, and the utmost pressure of the great European Powers proving unavailing at that time to secure communication with the Legations in Peking. Moreover, the Committee, having no means of judging what were the local circumstances, could not offer advice. Whether there was special danger in the Province of Si-Chuan depended largely on the attitude of the officials, as to which no reliable information was accessible. If there was danger, the Committee could not be sure whether an attempt to reach the coast would not involve still greater danger, the journey having, as to a large part of it, to be accomplished in hand-propelled boats. And how the Native Christians would be affected, whether the missionaries leaving the province for a time would add to or diminish their danger, this again could only be judged by those conversant with all the local conditions. The Committee, therefore, could only leave the missionaries to seek in united prayer for guidance from on High, and they rejoice to believe and to record that guidance was vouchsafed. On August 15th a telegram sent off the previous day from Ichang informed the Committee that the missionaries were on their way to the coast and had safely passed through the most anxious part of the river journey, having reached the point whence there is steam navigation to Shanghai.

The Consul's instructions.

The first news of the troubles in the Province of Chih-Li reached missionaries in Si-Chuan early in July, and the news was immediately followed by a letter from Mr. Fraser, H.B.M. Consul at Chung-king, requesting all English missionaries in the province to retire "to some place where there is a British force." This practically meant the coast. There was no

British force at Chung-king. Two gunboats, the Woodcock and Woodlark, specially constructed to navigate the gorges and rapids of the Yangtse, had reached Chung-king in May, 1900, but they returned down river the same month, and had not ascended it again. There was a gunboat at Ichang, 500 miles lower down the river than Chung-king, but once there it would be more convenient to proceed to Shanghai. A number of missionaries who were at Cheng-tu, the capital of Si-Chuan, met several times in conference, and a telegram was sent to Mr. Fraser by the English missionaries present asking whether during the ten days that had elapsed since his message was received any improvement in the state of events had occurred. He replied, "My decided opinions not changed by ephemeral local conditions." The United States Consul at first intimated that he considered the course taken by Mr. Fraser to be unwise, but subsequently he wired to Cheng-tu emphatically applying the British Consul's orders to the American missionaries. Those missionaries, therefore, and also the members of the Canadian Mission (acting on the judgment of Dr. Hart) left Cheng-tu on July 24th. The China Inland missionaries stationed at Cheng-tu were awaiting instructions from the Director of their Mission, but the missionary in charge took a serious view of the situation. An edict of the Empress was freely quoted ordering that foreigners be exterminated or driven out; riots had occurred in the neighbourhood; and in the district generally there was a certain degree of excitement, threatening language was used, and placards announcing the intention to attack Mission premises were posted up.

No earthly protection within 500 miles.

Edict of the Empress.

It was under these circumstances that Mr. (now the Rev.) A. A. Phillips, the Secretary of the Mission, summoned all the missionaries of the C.M.S. to Mien-cheo. After a time spent in prayer and conference, and partaking together of the Lord's Supper, it was agreed that the right course was to prepare at once to depart. How the pros and cons were weighed, and under how deep a sense of responsibility this decision was arrived at, the following extract from a letter of Mr. Phillips may serve to indicate:—

The pros and cons weighed.

> We are aware that it is likely that the danger in going down river at this time may be greater than that of stopping here, but we feel that the reverse may be the case in a few days. Further down river the people may be more fully instructed as to the nature of the disturbance in the north, and may therefore be more anti-foreign. But, while their feelings towards us are not likely to improve, the popular feeling here will meanwhile probably get stronger and more dangerous. Just now we can count on official escort and protection at any rate as far as Chung-king, but we know not how long this may be available. It is a most serious matter to move all the members of the Mission away from the district, and we cannot tell how far we may have to go or what we shall do when we get there. We must just take a step at a time, and the Lord will direct. Did we follow our own inclinations we should most of us, perhaps all, remain at our stations. But we realize that they cease to be posts of duty when the Lord calls us elsewhere. We trust that the crisis will quickly pass and that we may soon return. I do not think that the converts are likely to suffer hardships on account of our absence; perhaps, on the contrary, it may be easier for them. Though we deeply regret the fact that we shall not be at hand to help them with spiritual instruction, we can but leave them in the Lord's keeping, and hope that our absence may lead them to look away to Him more than hitherto. We were thankful to receive a wire from Shanghai expressing the Society's sympathy, with directions to act promptly in emergency. That has helped us in coming to our decision.

The missionaries leave for the coast

Most of the missionaries left Mien-cheo in four boats, obtained for them by the officials, on July 30th, and the rest left Chong-pa on August 1st, reaching Chung-king, a distance of 250 miles, on August 5th and 6th. They found this place deserted by the foreign community, the French Consul and three other gentlemen alone remaining. The house of an English merchant, Mr. Archibald Little, was most considerately placed at their disposal for three days, and on the 8th and 9th they started down the Yangtse in house-boats. They accomplished the distance to Ichang, 500 miles, in four and a half days, the river being in flood and over eighty feet higher than the normal level, consequently there were no shallows, and the rapids were not tedious, though somewhat hazardous. At Ichang they embarked on a Japanese steamer on August 13th, and the following day transhipped at Hankow to a German vessel. Here they met some of the refugee missionaries of the C.I.M. from the Province of Shan-Si, and Miss Rosa Lloyd remained behind to assist in nursing the sufferers. Mr. Hamilton also remained for a short time. Shanghai was reached on August 17th.

Bishop Cassels' movements.

Bishop Cassels arrived at Pao-ning from the coast at the beginning of 1900. At the Tong Yangtsi rapid, below Yün-yang-hsien, he and Mrs. Cassels passed Messrs. A. E. Seward and P. J. Turner, who were going up to reinforce the staff, their boat having been wrecked there. The Bishop found them about January 16th, with their travelling companion, Mr. J. Murray, the well-known colporteur of the Scottish National Bible Society, camped out on the bank under an extemporized tent, in good health and spirits, waiting while their boat was undergoing repairs. One of these two brethren was to suffer shipwreck again on this river in the course of the same year, with the Bishop as his companion in adversity. The Bishop was at Pao-ning when the British Consul's message reached him in July. It was impossible for him to consult with the Society's missionaries or they with him, as a week's journey intervenes between Pao-ning and Mien-cheo, and there is no telegraph line. He was exceedingly disinclined to leave, but was compelled eventually to do so by the Chinese officials, and he reached Shanghai on September 5th. News came to him there shortly afterwards that one of the Pao-ning (C.I.M.) out-station chapels had been burnt down, and many of the Christians robbed and beaten almost to death, while others had escaped for their lives. His regret was keen that he could not be near to strengthen and comfort these Christians. Early in December the Bishop, with the assent of the British Consul-General, started up the river to pay a visit to his diocese, and a week later the Rev. W. Kitley and Messrs. A. Lawrence and A. E. Seward followed him. The three last-named missionaries were passengers on the Suihsiang on its first trip up the river. This vessel was specially built for a German firm with a view to opening up the higher waters of the river Yangtse, and was equipped with powerful engines to face the rapids above Ichang. The Bishop awaited their arrival at Ichang, and they proceeded together on their journey on December 27th. All went well for a time. The Ta-Tung rapid was safely mounted, and forty miles were made in four hours, in lieu of the usual four days by native boats. What followed is best described by the Bishop himself:—

The Bishop wrecked in the Yang-tse rapids.

We rushed along at a great pace—the wash certainly upset one boat, if not more—and before noon reached the first bad rapid, fifty miles up the river. Here the first officer and native pilot went on shore to view the passage, and brought off a local native pilot, and we were off again full speed ahead. Almost at once the vessel struck a hidden rock, and I noticed great consternation among the officers. Whatever efforts were made to ground the vessel failed, and she began to take in water at a great pace. Personally I could hardly believe that she would settle down, but noticing that the passengers were all procuring life-belts I also went to my cabin for one, giving it away, however, to a missionary who could not swim. These belts had only been served out an hour before. The two tiny skiffs, which were the only boats the vessel carried, were let down, but were at once filled with the Chinese crew trying to escape, and one or both were submerged and the crew drowned. Now three or four native life-boats were coming out from the shore, and most of the native and European passengers were got off. Seward and Lawrence got off without a wetting, and Kitley later on with a ducking. I was left with a few others in the stern, which was now high up out of the water. The bows meanwhile were sinking lower and lower. The captain came along to us and said, "Gentlemen, the vessel will go down in a minute. Jump into the water and save yourselves." We were standing on the upper deck, some fifteen feet from the water, and 200 or more yards, I suppose, from the bank. I am not a strong swimmer, but seeing the captain himself get over the rail I did so too, and, calling to the others to come, I commended myself to the Lord and jumped over, along with Mr. Wigham, of the Friends' Mission. We kept as clear of the sinking ship as we could, and after about ten minutes were picked up by a life-boat returning from the shore, just as the vessel went down. She seemed to stand right upon her end, her stern right up into the air, as if she were about to turn a somersault. The other missionaries who had been standing with me on board were picked up, but, alas! the captain, who had been standing with me too, and jumped in a little later, was not seen again, though he is said to have been a powerful swimmer. We do not know how many of the Natives were lost, but they had the first place on the life-boats. Certainly ten to twenty were drowned. Of course we have lost all our effects. . . . I was taking up three or four months' provisions, including silver, for the party going with me, which has gone with everything else. But our lives are spared, thanks be unto the Lord. May they be more than ever devoted to His service!

Some of the party hailed a passing boat going down stream, and on its deck they huddled together on that cold December night. The Bishop had a dry (borrowed) overcoat over his saturated single garment, others had some wet Chinese clothing, and none of them had partaken of food since breakfast on the previous day, the 27th. The Bishop wrote:—

Two things kept us warm on that cold night journey back to Ichang. One was our huddling together in the bottom of our little boat—a Quaker, a Baptist, a Methodist, and Churchmen. We even persuaded one of the two poor French Fathers to come and sit down shoulder to shoulder with us until he got a little of our warmth. The other was whiling away the time by singing together songs of praise for our deliverance.

"Two things kept us warm.'

At Ichang, which they reached at 1 a.m. on the 28th, the Custom officials and the officers of the British gunboat Esk did all they could for their comfort, and sent up-stream a launch with clothing and food for those who had been left behind on the scene of the disaster. The passengers lost all their possessions, but of this the Bishop said:—

It is not altogether a bad thing for us to have had the privilege of sharing in the great losses sustained by our fellow-missionaries in other parts of China during the past year. And it is a pleasure to look back and remember how joyfully the trial was endured by the missionaries, even though there were again and again passing pangs felt as one useful article after another was needed, or as some treasured gift was missed. Here again, as so often in the missionary's life, it is "as sorrowful yet always rejoicing."

Privilege of sharing in losses.

A pleasing instance of brotherly feeling was afforded by the calamity. The missionaries of the American Episcopal Church at Hankow sent a most kind present of $150 to the three C.M.S. brethren as a token of sympathy with them in their losses.

Instance of brotherly feeling.

Learning, while at Ichang, that the Chinese Government had accepted the terms of peace proposed by the Allied Powers, the Bishop decided to return at once to Shanghai to fetch Mrs. Cassels and their family, instructing Mr. Kitley to proceed up the river to Wan-hsien, and thence to go forward with the C.I.M. missionaries to Pao-ning; and Messrs. Lawrence and Seward to ascend the river to Chung-king, and wait there till after the Chinese New Year. Mr. E. Hamilton and Mr. P. J. Turner left Shanghai in February, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Phillips started a few days later to return to the Mission.

It has been mentioned above that when the missionaries travelling towards the coast reached Hankow they met there some of the refugees of the C.I.M. from Shan-Si. They were the party of fourteen, consisting of the Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Saunders and their two children, Mr. Jennings, and Miss Guthrie from Ping-yao; Mr. E. J. Cooper and his two children from Luch'ing; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Glover and two children, and Miss Gates from Lu-an, who, after experiencing most terrible sufferings, and losing en route five who had started with them—Mrs. Saunders and two of her children, Miss Rice, and Miss Huston, who were either murdered or died from the effects of ill-treatment when travelling—reached Hankow on the same day, August 14th, as did the C.M.S. missionaries from Si-Chuan.

Miss Lloyd nursing C.I.M. refugees at Hankow.

On August 28th another party of twelve C.I.M. missionaries reached Hankow from Ping-yang, and Miss Lloyd prolonged her stay in order to nurse Mrs. Lutley, whose two children had died in the course of their terrible journey of 600 miles. On what date Miss Lloyd reached Shanghai has not been mentioned, but early in December she was nursing there one of the missionaries' wives. These instances of her self-denying love, ever forward to help where her tenderness could assuage suffering, are fair examples of her life and work. A week or two later and she herself was suffering from peritonitis, and underwent an operation, after which she gradually sank, and passed away on January 5th. She was one of the original Si-Chuan party who sailed in November, 1891, under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh's leadership. For some years she worked at Mien-cheo, until her first furlough in 1897, and on her return she, with Miss G. E. Wells, occupied a new station at Wei-cheng in April, 1899. She was, socially and educationally, one of the humblest candidates whom the Committee have ever accepted, but she proved a true-hearted and efficient missionary, attained a fair colloquial fluency in Chinese, was an excellent (though untrained) nurse, and was much valued by her fellow-workers.

Her death.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview with the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh, the former leader of this Mission, and, in a very true sense, its founder, in June, 1900. He expressed thankfulness for the starting of the Mission, and for the numberless tokens of God's goodness in connexion with the work and with the health and security and happiness of the Mission party.

Ordinations.

On St. Andrew's Day, November 30th, Bishop Cassels admitted Messrs. A. A. Phillips and W. Kitley to Deacons' Orders. The service took place in the Cathedral at Shanghai, and therefore within the episcopal jurisdiction of Bishop Moule, who gave his cordial consent and preached the sermon.

The following missionaries came home during the year under review:—The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Hickman in March, 1900 having left the Mission the previous August, and interrupted their homeward journey by spending a few months in Canada; the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Callum, Mr. and Mrs. W. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. L. Knipe, Mr. J. G. Beach, Mr. T. Simmonds, Dr. W. Squibbs, Miss L. S. Digby, Miss M. C. Gillmor, and Miss

M. A. Thompson in October; Miss I. D. S. Mitchell in February, 1901; and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gill in May. The Rev. O. M. Jackson sailed in March, 1901, to return to the Mission. Dr. Squibbs was married to Miss M. C. Gillmor, of this Mission, at Dunmore East, County Waterford, on April 10th, 1901.

MIEN-CHEO.

Mien-cheo.

The Rev. D. A. Callum (now at home) was in charge of MIEN-CHEO. His companions, besides Mrs. Callum, were Dr. W. Squibbs and Mr. T. Simmonds (both now at home), Miss E. D. Mertens, and Miss R. F. Murray; and they were joined in February, 1900, by Miss L. Mellodey, and in March, by Mr. P. J. Turner. Dr. Squibbs opened a dispensary in March, and some 2,000 visits were recorded by the end of July. Miss Mertens spent her mornings receiving visitors, and pointing them to Christ, and her afternoons in visiting. She found the gentry friendly. Miss R. F. Murray was away from the station, giving help at Chong-pa and Shih-ts'uen during four out of the first six months of the year, after which she and all the missionaries, as already mentioned, came down to the coast.

WEI-CHENG.

Wei-cheng.

The late Miss R. Lloyd and Miss G. E. Wells were together at WEI-CHENG, which they occupied for the first time in April, 1899. They had just succeeded in getting their Chinese house in order when they were summoned away. During the Chinese New Year holidays they were visited by large numbers of people. Over two hundred, mostly simple country women, called to see them on "New Year's Day," and from forty to a hundred on many of the following days. They heard afterwards that these were impressed with their "kind, good manners," an impression which they themselves attributed mainly to the tea and sweetmeats provided for their guests. A weekly sewing-class had thirty members, of whom twenty attended regularly. Two farmers, named Chang and Wang, and a Mrs. Hsü, daughter of a catechumen at Mien-cheo, appeared to be genuine inquirers. The station was left in charge of two faithful Christian servants, Liu and U-ing-hao.

The "kind, good manners" of the missionaries.

SIN-TU.

Sin-tu.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Andrews were joined at SIN-TU by Miss A. Walmsley, one of the new recruits just arrived from home, in February, 1900. About the same time a young man named Uh, in Mr. Andrews' employ, was baptized. A teacher named Li showed much interest in the Bible, and purchased a copy, which he diligently read; and an old lady named Ih was under preparation for baptism. Two members of the little church fell into sin, and were placed under discipline by the Bishop. Their repentance seemed sincere. In visiting the markets held in the district Mr. Andrews had on two occasions a hostile reception, being jostled about by the crowd, and called a "Baby Eater," "Foreign Sheep," &c. Mrs. Andrews found willing listeners among the women whom she visited.

Jostled by a Chinese crowd.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gill were transferred to Chong-pa at the beginning of 1900, and Miss R. F. Murray removed from Mien-cheo to MIEN-CHUH to be a companion to Miss M. C. Gillmor (now at home) until the arrival from furlough of the Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Phillips in May. Miss Murray says that it seemed strange to be the only two European ladies in that Chinese city of 80,000 people, with a Christian woman and two men-servants as their sole bodyguard! But they had no fear whatever. The guest-hall was frequented by large numbers of women daily, many out of curiosity merely, but a few willing to listen to the Gospel and to learn Bible-texts. One old woman from the country, after listening earnestly to the story of the Saviour's love, said pathetically to Miss Gillmor: "Ah, here am I, over eighty years old now, and I never heard this wonderful news before. Is it true?" Another woman, as Miss Murray spoke of heaven, suddenly bent forward and said, "Teacher, will there be any daughters-in-law in heaven?" And then she told of the bad treatment she had suffered from her daughter-in-law, and argued that if such were in heaven it could not be such a happy home as Miss Murray had described! About one difficulty experienced Miss Murray says:—

Mien-chuh.

"Eighty years old and never heard the wonderful news before."

> Our greatest difficulty at Mien-chuh was getting the women to come to church on Sundays. Their precious pigs had to be looked after. One woman removed the difficulty by bringing her pigs with her and tying them to a tree in the courtyard. Another woman locked them up in her kitchen, and others stayed at home lest any one should steal them while they were away.

A difficulty in the way of attending church.

Of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips's reception on their return one of the missionaries writes:—

> What a time of rejoicing! and what a welcome the Christians and inquirers gave to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips! It was a time not easily forgotten. They came out several miles to meet them, and then they let off strings of crackers, hung red silk on their chairs, and conducted them with all honour to their home. When near the house all the neighbours came to their doors to give them a word of welcome, while scores of others who lived farther away were on the streets waiting to greet them. When the excitement began to cool down a little, presents were brought by the Christians and inquirers, consisting of fowls, ducks, scrolls of silk, &c. After it was all over we returned to the guest-hall for a short thanksgiving service, then all went to their homes.

Welcomed back after furlough by the Christians.

Mr. Phillips did not discern much progress since his departure in 1898, nor did he see during the three months before he started again for the coast any very promising signs. The people, it is true, were willing to listen; many were found daily in the guest-rooms, and the preaching-room attracted good audiences; Mr. J. G. Beach (now at home) and Miss Gillmor, though both without medical training, had numerous patients; but it was rarely that any inquired definitely about the way of salvation. "The whole city needs prayer and witness," Mr. Phillips wrote; and, alas! the few witnesses were removed. Mr. Beach regarded Mien-chuh as his home, but as a matter of fact he was very little there, his services being almost constantly in request at other stations to supervise repairs and alterations to Mission-houses. He visited the out-station Hsiao-chuen in February, 1900. While preaching at a large fair which is held there annually he experienced incivility and was threatened.

AN-HSIEN.

The staff at AN-HSIEN, which consisted at the beginning of 1900 of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Knipe (now at home), Mr. E. Hamilton, and Miss I. S. D. Mitchell (now at home), was reinforced in March by Mr. A. E. Seward. All the nine men and women who were enrolled as catechumens in July, 1899, and about some of whom particulars were given in last year's Annual Report (page 410), were baptized by the Rev. D. A. Callum, of Mien-cheo, on December 31st—the first baptisms in this station—and confirmed by Bishop Cassels in April, 1900. One of them, Mr. Tuan, who was teaching Mr. E. Hamilton the language, was drowned soon after his confirmation while bathing with Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Seward. Besides those who had been baptized, nine other women attended Miss Mitchell's class for instruction, and among the regular pupils at her children's class were four girls about whom she felt very hopeful. Of the departure from An-hsien Miss Mitchell says:— An-hsien. First baptisms.

> I shall never forget the dear children. The afternoon before leaving they came with parting gifts, and as they gave them they could not say a word, but tears filled their eyes. We all knelt together, and I committed them to the Lord. Then the pleadings—"Who will teach us when you are gone?" "May we still come here on Sundays?" We were followed to the boat the next morning by most who knew us, and the last look from those faces, which spoke of hearts touched by the love of God, will never be forgotten. "Who will teach us when you are gone?"

Mr. Knipe was absent for a month at the beginning of the year, engaged in escorting the Misses Knight, Mellodey, and Walmsley from Chung-king to Mien-cheo—equivalent, he reminds the Committee, to a tramp from Carlisle to London and back. Again, in July, he left An-hsien, accompanied by Mr. Seward, to visit the Man-tsi border tribes to the west of Mao-cheo, whom he had visited in the company of Mrs. Isabella Bishop. They reached Mao-cheo, where they sold a good few copies of Scriptures. Their supply, in fact, was almost exhausted, and this decided them to return. Their doing so was provi- Among the border tribes.

dential, as messengers had been dispatched to recall them and advise them of the necessity of withdrawing from Si-Chuan. They reached An-hsien by forced marches on July 16th.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-pa. Mr. (now the Rev.) W. Kitley and Mr. A. Lawrence carried on the work at CHONG-PA to the best of th[illegible]bility, while engaged in preparing for their final language ex[illegible]ation, until March, 1900, when Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gill [illegible]y at home) arrived from Mien-chuh, after which the attendance at the Sunday services and visits to the Mission-house, especially of women to see Mrs. Gill and the baby that was born on July 17th, increased. The anxieties of the latter half of July were naturally intensified by Mrs. Gill's state of health after the birth of her babe. But it was found possible to start for Chung-king on August 1st, and the long journey to Shanghai was made without serious detriment to either mother or child. Mr. Kitley, accompanied Song-pan. by Mr. Hamilton, of An-hsien, visited Song-pan, the distant out-station on the borders of Tibet, a mountain journey of 250 miles, in the summer of 1900. Mr. T. Simmonds had been there in the previous October, and had received formal possession of the Mission premises from the China Inland Mission. The people were most friendly. While there, rumours reached them early in July of the troubles near the coast, in consequence of which they hastened their departure, receiving numerous gifts from the various yamens.

SHIH-TS'UEN.

Miss M. A. Thompson and Miss L. S. Digby (both now at home) had the pleasure of welcoming Miss M. C. Knight as a colleague Shih-ts'uen. at SHIH-TS'UEN in March, 1900; and the last-named writes gratefully not only of the loving welcome accorded to her in their mountain home by her English sisters, but of the motherly solicitude of a Chinese Christian, Mrs. Cheo, to help her early efforts in the language. The convert Tuan, who was drowned, as already mentioned, at An-hsien, belonged to Shih-ts'uen, and his body was conveyed thither for interment. Neither his wife nor his A Christian funeral. parents would attend the Christian funeral, not appreciating the absence of priests and paper money and incense and various heathen practices; but a younger brother, who was a scholar in Miss Digby's class, was present, and the little band of Chinese Christians and the missionaries committed the body to the ground in sure and certain hope.

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokio were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hamada, 1895; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; and Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; Kagoshima, 1895; Nobeoka, 1897; Kokura and Loo-choo Islands, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; and Otaru, 1897.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and Archbishop Benson nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883. But in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the Bishop of Exeter. In 1893, the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern Islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated, the former Bishop of Kiu-shiu, and the latter Bishop of Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the Main Island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokio, Kioto, and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896, and transferred to South Tokio on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, Bishop Foss of the S.P.G. succeeding him at Osaka—the S.P.G. providing these two stipends. Bishop Partridge, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, was consecrated to the Diocese of Kioto in 1900.

Material progress.

SOME of the missionaries whose work was interrupted by the troubles in China passed over into Japan to await the reopening of the way to their interior stations, and the contrast between the two countries in all that relates to the outward marks of civilization and progress was forced upon their attention. As they witnessed and enjoyed the luxuries of electric trams and electric lights and telephones, as they realized the security enjoyed by foreigners under Japanese jurisdiction, their rights respected without consular courts, their property safe without "settlements," as they saw the evidences of Japan's material strength advancing at an unparalleled rate, the activity of her industries and commerce, and the powerful armaments at her disposal for defence or offence, they must have found it hard indeed to realize that only a few decades ago Japan was not one whit in advance of China in all these things. And as they read, or heard read and translated, the comments of the Japanese press at the close of January, 1901, when the news of Queen Victoria's death was flashed round the world, as they turned from one paper to another and noticed the extraordinary unanimity of the outburst of regret and sympathy, without a single note of dissent, in journals of every party and persuasion, they must have been led to offer many and fervent prayers that a people capable of appreciating so highly the unique standard of goodness and of greatness which the Queen's life and reign presented might be brought by the Spirit of life and light to receive the Gospel in its saving power.

Comments of Japanese press on Queen Victoria's death.

But an intelligent acquaintance with the contemporaneous history of Christian lands and an increasing intercourse with them, which are the necessary concomitants of Japan's political and commercial development, are not certain of themselves to issue in her appreciating the superiority of the Christian religion over Buddhism and the other cults professed by the Japanese. A humiliating reminder of this was occasioned by the outbreak in China. The Japanese army, after taking a conspicuous part in the relief of the Peking Legations, and performing that part with credit and success according to the uniform testimony of all concerned, returned and told their countrymen what they had seen of the conduct of some of their European comrades in arms. After stating their "appreciation" of French and Russian soldiers as regards robbery, incendiarism, murder and outrage, the Times Tokio correspondent declared: "If the pictures they draw of the North China campaign be not greatly exaggerated, Europe has lost all title to cry out against Boxer outrages or against any excesses committed by Oriental troops." On the other hand, the outbreak gave also occasion for an "appreciation" of Christian Missions from a very unexpected quarter, namely, from the Buddhists of Japan. A "Circular in connexion with the Chinese emergency," signed by six representatives of the "Great Japan Buddhist Union at their headquarters within the Kenninji Temple in Kioto," was issued in October, 1900. The signatories professed to be horrified and alarmed at the atrocities which had taken place, and confessed to "having conceived with no small regret that Buddhism in China has so completely declined as to have lost all vestige of influence upon the morals of men." They paid a noble tribute of respect and commendation to the "missionaries from the various Christian churches," and added: "In this respect we, the followers of Buddha, cannot sufficiently express our sincere admiration for them. . . . The brilliant success thus secured by the missionaries in China the world cannot for a moment doubt." The document then proceeded to give some admirable advice to Christian missionaries, to refrain from proceedings likely to create suspicion as to their being connected with the foreign policy of the countries to which they belong, and to avoid interference with litigation on behalf of the converts. That some Christian Missions in China need this advice there can be no doubt, but it is less clear whether the Japanese Buddhists are correct in attributing the troubles in China to infringements of the simple rules which they lay down.

But, while the Buddhists of Japan were forming their indictment of their co-religionists in China as "having lost all vestige of influence upon the morals of men," a discerning and judicious critic was passing judgment on Buddhism in Japan itself on this very ground. Mrs. Isabella Bishop said at the Church Congress at Newcastle-on-Tyne:—

Mrs. Bishop on Buddhism in Japan.

This Japan, which has risen in the stagnant East like a young phœnix from the ashes of the old order, is, to all seeming, a brilliant and successful empire. My most recent impressions of it are that its population of forty-four millions is vehemently patriotic, civilized, independent, educated, ambitious, and free, persevering, tenacious, and possessing a singular secretiveness and power of assimilation. Law is respected, the social order is remarkable, and a genius for constitutional government pervades all classes. The standard and practice of social and commercial morality are equally low. Shinto and Buddhism, and Riyobu Shinto—a combination of both—flourish side by side, and affect chiefly the social and pleasure-loving side of the people. Buddhism, discredited by the ignorance and immorality of her priests, is in the main sunk into a condition of puerile superstition. The view taken of religion by educated Japanese was lately expressed by her greatest statesman thus: "I myself regard religion as quite unnecessary for a nation's life. I do not regard Japan's almost universal Atheism as a peril to the community. Science is far above superstition, and what is Buddhism or Christianity but a superstition, and therefore a source of weakness rather than of strength to a nation? There is one point in the new civilization, however, on which I have long felt great uneasiness—Japan's chief source of danger—her gloomy outlook for the future is in her rising manhood." Sadly true is the Marquis Ito's verdict. An educated youth, emancipated from the teachings of Confucius and rejecting those of Christ, is a "yellow peril," not to Japan alone, but to the whole Far East.

Marquis Ito "does not regard Japan's almost universal Atheism as a peril."

"Her gloomy outlook for the future is in her rising manhood"—a truly pregnant admission, and the conviction which forced its utterance may be expected under God to lead the Japanese statesman to reconsider, in the light of history and of universal experience, the views above quoted regarding Atheism and Christianity. Indeed, it is noteworthy to observe, Marquis Ito, in distributing the portfolios of his short-lived Cabinet in 1900, bestowed no less than two (out of nine) upon Christians. Mr. Kato, Minister of Foreign Affairs, formerly represented his country in London, where he made a marked success. The Times correspondent said of him: "He is a finished English scholar, with wide knowledge and sound judgment, and he enjoys the full confidence of all parties in the State." The other Christian member of the Cabinet was Baron Kaneko, a graduate of Harvard University, U.S.A., who, under Marquis Ito, had much to do with the preparations for Parliamentary government. "He is," the Times correspondent stated, "an erudite jurisconsult, with strong sympathies for Anglo-Saxon government." One of the earliest acts of Marquis Ito's Government was to provide a safeguard to protect "the rising manhood" of his country against a terribly besetting danger, and at the same time to emancipate the womanhood of Japan from liability to a slavery worse than death. It seems that hitherto a girl whose wretched parents had sold her to a life of shame, however great her desire to abandon a career of vice, found herself practically precluded from asserting her independence, and even from communicating with those who might assist her to do so. A recent enactment of the Department for Home Affairs imposes a fine or imprisonment on any person who places obstacles in the way of a woman who desires to obtain a release, and in order to do so she has only to present herself at the nearest police-office and make her application. The effect of this enactment is said to have brought the traffickers in vice to a state of despair. It deserves also to be recorded that Marquis Ito strongly opposed the regulation of the late Government which prohibited religious teaching in any schools recognized by the State, restrictions which have since been practically removed; and that it was by his approval and assistance that a copy of the Scriptures was presented to H.M. the Emperor in 1900.

An enactment of social reform.

Emperor accepts a copy of the Scriptures.

The Emperor's acceptance from his Christian subjects of the gift just referred to led to an unprecedented demand for copies of the Word of God among the educated classes of the people. The Rev. H. Loomis, the well-known agent of the American Bible Society, states that one worker alone distributed 22,066 portions in a little more than six months, and that he found he was able on the average to sell a Gospel or a New Testament in seven out of every ten houses he visited, while to passengers in railway trains he sold an average of 397 volumes a day, on one occasion disposing of 155 in a single train. No better proof could be afforded that "Japan's almost universal Atheism" is being assailed on a large scale, and with the best of all weapons. The following pages bear witness that the assault is telling "all along the line." Mr. Loomis, however, in an article published in the Chinese Recorder for March, 1900, mentions a few encouraging facts which show that the Gospel is winning its trophies not only among the educated middle classes of the people, but here and there also among the men of light and leading. He states that a Judge of the Supreme Court, who was regarded as one of the ablest and most learned men that had ever occupied that exalted position, died a devoted Christian towards the close of 1899; that two battleships of the first class in the Japanese Navy are under the command of Christian captains; that the honoured President of the Lower House of the Diet is a member and elder of the Presbyterian Church; that there are besides thirteen or fourteen Christians in the present Diet; that there are three Christian professors and upwards of sixty members of the Y.M.C.A. in the Imperial University of Tokio; and that there are thirty Christian Associations among the students of Japan, with a total membership of 850.

With the above facts in view, it is not possible to endorse the opinion regarding the prospects of Christian Missions in Japan recently pronounced by a Roman Catholic writer in Illustrated Catholic Missions, to the effect that they are, "humanly speaking, hopeless." Certainly that was not the view of the Protestant missionaries who met at Tokio in October, 1900, to hold the second "General Conference of Protestant Missions in Japan." Four hundred and fifty missionaries were present, and papers by Bishop Fyson and the Revs. H. McC. E. Price, J. Batchelor, and W. Andrews, of the C.M.S., were read, and the Rev. Barclay F. Buxton gave an address on the last day of the conference on "The Fulness of the Spirit." One of the missionaries writes:— General Conference of Protestant missionaries.

> There are, however, signs that a great advance is imminent. It was no pessimistic tone that was struck at the recent conference. The difficulties and discouragements were acknowledged and faced, but there was a genuine air of expectation of coming blessing. This and the Forward Movement of the Japanese Christians themselves, warrant us in believing that a brighter day is dawning for Christianity in Japan. The Buddhists seem to think so. They are alarmed at the united front presented by Protestant missionaries in the Tokio conference, and at the prospect of this organized evangelistic effort. Expectation of coming blessing.

The "Forward Movement" referred to in the above extract was initiated by the Evangelical Alliance in Japan, and is thus described by the Rev. W. P. Buncombe:—

> A great effort is being attempted by the Churches to preach the Gospel in every part of Japan during this year, the first of the twentieth century. Japan has been parcelled out into twelve divisions, and a Local Committee formed in each, and it is proposed to employ every kind of evangelistic method to reach the masses in town and country. A special bi-monthly paper has been started for free distribution among the Churches, calling all Christians to definite consecration to God for this work, and giving hints and directions as to what to do, and also information as to what is being done in different places. Special efforts will be made all through the year, but, as the months of April and May and October and November are the best for general work, very special efforts will be made in those months. The motto adopted is, "Our country for Christ." "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit saith Jehovah." Amen! A proposed united evangelistic effort by Japanese Christians.

To quote further testimony of encouragement and blessing derived at the conference, a lady missionary says:—

"A wave of blessing coming."

For a long time we had been looking forward to these meetings, and we went "expecting to receive," and were not disappointed. I am sure God met with many of us there, showing us the grand possibilities before us if we would only claim His promise of the power of the Holy Ghost; and as a result of these meetings we believe that a wave of blessing is coming over all this country of Japan.

Indeed, the instances are quite numerous in the Annual Letters from this Mission, and from missionaries widely scattered, of a gracious personal visitation of the Holy Spirit, humbling under a sense of sin, and satisfying by revealing the perfections of the Lord Jesus. One writes:—

More than twenty members of the C.M.S. Mission alone have within the last six months sought, obtained, and testified about an experience in sanctification which has wrought a great change in their spiritual life. As Mr. Buxton said to me, "God is wonderfully blessing the C.M.S. Mission in Japan." We are full of praise to God about this, and confidently expect that greater showers of blessing still are coming upon us.

Another says:—

Even more remarkable, perhaps, than the conference proper has been the wave of blessing that has been flowing over so many of us, and especially over the C.M.S. workers. It is in this direction that we are expecting an outpouring of God's fulness on Japan. Organized effort will supply the machinery, God's Holy Spirit working through His renewed, consecrated and filled agents will be the power. Many of us have seen new vistas of holiness, and turning towards them with new hope, have found a new freedom; we have placed ourselves in the hands of the Great Potter as pliant clay, that He may make unto Himself a vessel that He can use.

And another from the northern island of Yezo:—

Answers to prayer.

To me came more strongly than ever before the call to give oneself first of all to the work of intercession, and we can praise God that since that time we have been living in the continual experience of definite abundant answers to prayer.

If the power of the Holy Ghost comes upon the workers, however feeble they may be in themselves, however few their number, however scattered their little force, it may be looked for with confidence that strongholds will be overthrown—yes, though their foundations be embedded in the soil of past ages like Buddhism, or their walls be armed with the latest artillery of unbelief like the Atheism and Agnosticism and Unitarianism which find currency in Japan. For the victory in this warfare is not with the mighty nor the powerful, but it shall be with those in whom dwells the Spirit of God.

Death of Rev. J. B. Brandram.

The European staff has received some additions, but it has through death and retirement suffered just as many subtractions. To mention the latter first: the Rev. John Babbs Brandram died at sea on December 30th, 1900, and was interred at Shanghai on New Year's Day. He had shown signs of being overwrought and was troubled with sleeplessness, and a voyage to Hong Kong was ordered by his doctor, but he died on the day after sailing from Nagasaki. He was educated at the Ware Grammar School, and graduated from Queens' College, Cambridge, in 1880. For a few months after taking his degree he was senior tutor at the Society's Missionaries' Children's Home. In 1881 he was ordained and licensed to the Curacy of St. Andrew's-the-Less, Cambridge. In 1883 he offered for missionary work, and sailed the following year to Kiu-shiu, in which island he spent the whole period of his service in the field, and nearly all of it at Kumamoto, where he was the first missionary to reside. Mr. Brandram was accompanied on his first going out by his sister, Miss M. E. Brandram, who died at home in 1892; and another of his sisters is the wife of the Rev. A. E. Goodman, of the South India (Telugu) Mission. His widow, who came home soon after his death, is a daughter of the Rev. T. T. Smith, Association Secretary for the Dioceses of Ripon and Wakefield. Miss Matilda Laurence has retired after devoting over thirty years to missionary service, first in China and then in Japan; and the Misses M. E. Allworth (of the Canada Association), E. M. Bernau (on her marriage), G. Nott, H. Riddell, A. H. Wright, and G. S. Stevenson (on account of ill-health) have also retired.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements sent out have been the following:—The Revs. Samuel Heaslett and George William Rawlings (a brother of Mrs. G. C. Niven, of this Mission), Islington College men, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders by the late Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900, when the former of the two read the Gospel; Miss Alice Marion Cox, of Clifton, who was trained at "The Olives," and is a sister of Mrs. H. W. G. Stocken, of the North-West Canada Mission, who laboured before her marriage in the Japan Mission; Miss Janet Mackie, of Castle Cary, Somerset, trained at "The Olives"; Miss Edith Louisa Beatrice Norton, of Sydenham, also trained at "The Olives"; and Miss Geraldine Amelia Reid, trained at "The Willows." All these sailed in October, 1900.

Consecration of first Bishop of Kioto.

The consecration of the sixth Bishop of the Anglican Communion for Japan on February 2nd, 1900, in Tokio, was an event which should not be overlooked in this Report, as it carried to a completion the arrangement first provisionally proposed in 1891 between the late Bishop Edward Bickersteth and Bishop Hare, and finally agreed upon in 1894 between Bishop E. Bickersteth and Bishop McKim. The northern and southern islands were not affected by the arrangement, as the C.M.S. was then and is still the only Society connected with the Anglican Communion having Missions in those islands, and the Society undertook in 1893 to support two Bishops to supervise the work there. It related to the Main Island of Japan, and the arrangement agreed upon was that it should be divided into four dioceses (or "missionary jurisdictions," as dioceses in heathen lands are termed by the American Episcopal Church), to be known as the sees of North Tokio, South Tokio, Kioto, and Osaka; and that the first and third should be held by Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, and the second and fourth by Bishops of the Church of England. Bishop McKim elected to hold the jurisdiction of North Tokio, and Bishop Edward Bickersteth that of South Tokio. Bishop Awdry was appointed in 1896 to Osaka, but Kioto remained until February, 1900, without a Bishop of its own. The vacancy was then filled by the appointment of the Rev. Sidney Catlin Partridge, who had been labouring since 1881 as a missionary of the American Church at Wu-chang, in China, and Bishop McKim was authorized by the House of Bishops in the United States to consecrate him in Japan. The five Bishops of the other dioceses were present at the consecration, and also Bishop Graves, American Bishop in Shanghai, who preached the sermon from St. John xx. 21, and his predecessor, Bishop Schereschewski, paralyzed and unable to walk, but able to join in the laying on of hands. Bishop Nicholai, of the Russian Orthodox Church Mission, showed his interest in the occasion by being present in the congregation, and the English and American Ministers (Sir Ernest Satow, now Minister in Peking, and Colonel A. E. Buck) also attended. In the city of Osaka the missionaries of the C.M.S. work as near neighbours with the American missionaries under Bishop Partridge's jurisdiction, as they do in Tokio with those under Bishop McKim, while all meet in the Synod of the Nippon Sei-ko-kwai, the Protestant Episcopal Church of Japan.

I. DIOCESE OF OSAKA.

A convention for the workers—Europeans and Japanese.

For the past ten years the Society's missionaries, or some of them, together with the Japanese clergy and catechists labouring on the Main Island—that is, in the Dioceses of South Tokio and Osaka—have met annually for mutual edification and united prayer in what is known as a "Summer School," or convention for the deepening of the spiritual life. Over seventy were present at Hamadera, a place near Osaka, from September 19th to 25th, 1900. The Rev. W. P. Buncombe thus described the proceedings of one of the days:—

> At about five o'clock in the morning some of the men could be seen going down to the beach, and, after a bathe, go off singly to some quiet spot under the fir trees for Bible-reading and prayer. On our way down to bathe a little later we would come across many thus engaged in prayer; often they would be praying aloud. At six o'clock a bell was rung, and an open prayer-meeting was commenced in the large room. This was a voluntary prayer-meeting, and not part of the fixed programme, but still was always well attended. At 6.30 there was shortened Morning Prayer, with an address. Then followed breakfast. At 9 a.m. a general meeting was held, at which a paper was read or an address given on some practical religious subject. The subjects actually taken during the week were: "The Place of the Resurrection in the History of the Church"; "The Sinfulness of Sin"; "Paul as an Evangelist"; "Some Tendencies of Modern Religious Thought"; "The Book of Habakkuk." These papers were followed by discussion, which generally ran in the most practical lines. At 4 p.m. a consecration meeting was held, in a shady place among the fir trees when fine and indoors when wet. These were to many truly times of blessing. At 7 p.m. another general meeting was held, and addresses on some subject bearing on evangelistic or pastoral work were given by one or two selected speakers, followed by prayer and discussion. These were valuable opportunities for the free interchange of thought and experiences, and were very helpful to us all. On the whole, we had one of the happiest and most profitable "Summer Schools" we have yet had, and the results will be seen, we believe, in work both evangelistic and pastoral, done less in dependence on self and more in entire dependence on the Lord and on His Holy Spirit.

Miss H. S. Jackson came home in May, 1900; the Rev. R. H. Consterdine in October; Miss M. Brownlow (invalided) in November; the Rev. and Mrs. G. Chapman in March, 1901; and the Rev. H. Woodward (also invalided) in April. On the other hand, Miss K. A. S. Tristram sailed in August, 1900, to return to the Mission, Mr. F. E. Hamond in September, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Warren, Miss A. C. Bosanquet, Miss E. S. Fox, and Miss F. M. Fugill in October.

The Rev. H. McC. E. Price is the Secretary for the work in the Diocese of Osaka.

OSAKA.

At Osaka, the Rev. H. McC. E. Price relieved the Rev. G. Chapman of the charge of the Divinity School on his return from furlough at the end of 1899, and he found the work an onerous addition to his duties as Secretary of the Mission. It was one, however, in which he took a keen interest, and he had the advantage of a good Japanese staff, two of whom, the Rev. S. M. Koba and Mr. K. Yamada, had had several years' experience in the work, and the third, the Rev. P. Y. Matsui, was an old friend and colleague of Mr. Price's when he was in charge of the Boys' Boarding-school. For the quiet, steady work and spiritual tone of these brethren he expresses much thankfulness. Some of the students met daily by mutual agreement at 5.30 or 6 a.m. for prayer; on two days a week the students in rotation gave the address at morning prayer; and they took part in the work at the various preaching-places in the city. Four students left the school in April, 1900, one going to Kagoshima, in the south of Kiu-shiu, and another to Bibai, in the far north of Yezo, and the other two to intervening places. Six others entered the school—of whom two were sent on from the Hakodate Divinity Class—and the students were then twelve in number. One of the students was called away for three years to serve in the Army.

Boys' Boarding-school.

The Boys' Boarding-school maintained the high number of pupils to which it attained rather suddenly in 1899—namely, over one hundred—but the new educational enactments of the Government, referred to in last year's Annual Report (page 413), had the effect of emptying the upper classes of the school. Not being licensed, its graduation certificate has no recognized educational value, and consequently the school was used almost exclusively as a preparatory one. Application has, however, been made for Government recognition of it as a private middle school, as its missionary character will not, it is confidently asserted, be thereby affected. Should it prove otherwise the licence will be relinquished. Miss Hamilton, in spite of much physical weakness, held on to the post of Acting Principal of the Girls' Boarding-school.

Girls' Boarding-school during Miss K. A. S. Tristram's absence on furlough, but on the very day of the latter's return she was taken seriously ill, and came home as soon as she could travel. On reaching home she became for a short time an in-patient at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London. Miss D. S. Wynne Willson gave such help in the school as was possible while engaged in studying the language.

The Evangelistic Work in the city, under the Rev. C. T. Warren, secured a valuable acquisition when on September 25th, 1900, a new central Mission-room, built in memory of the late Archdeacon Warren, and to be known as the "Warren Memorial Hall," was dedicated by Bishop Foss. One of the four native clergy who assisted at the proceedings, the Rev. Y. Nakanishi, was one of the first six Christians whom Archdeacon Warren had baptized twenty-four years before. Congratulatory addresses were delivered by several of the visitors, including the pastor of the leading Congregational Church in the city. A room in the building, devoted to the purpose of a reading-room and library, is known as the Caspari Reading-room, and is in memory of Miss J. Caspari, who died in Osaka in 1888, after twenty-three years' faithful service in West Africa and Japan. Throughout the week following the opening of the hall it was the scene of special preachings to the Heathen, and subsequently it was used daily for either public preaching to non-Christians (with an average attendance of ninety) or for women's meetings, children's meetings, English classes, &c. Three converts were fruits of the English classes. One of these, who held a responsible position in a large firm, had possessed a New Testament for thirteen years without really studying it; he was led to do so in 1900. Another was a medical student who lived in apartments close to one of the preaching-places in the city and heard all that was said while sitting in his room. When he moved his quarters he wrote to the catechist requesting to be instructed. He was baptized on Christmas Day, taking the name of Luke, partly because he was purposing to be a medical man and partly because he was led into the light by the study of St. Luke's Gospel. One of the catechists, Mr. Kashiwagi, visits the steamers in the port and meets with much encouragement in the work. Miss Hamilton's Classes for Policemen have been mentioned in previous Reports. On the day she left Osaka to come home, under doctor's orders, a striking proof of their gratitude was given by these men, a long line of whom, with their chief inspector and other officials, was drawn up at the railway station to pay her a farewell tribute of respect. Miss Wynne Willson bears witness to the remarkable eagerness of some members of the police force to hear and understand the Gospel. She made the acquaintance of a police inspector and his wife, and says:—

Gratitude of Policemen for efforts in their behalf.

> I remember going to see them one hot July evening, when mosquitoes were much in evidence, and after one and a half hour's steady talk I thought they must be weary, but they would not hear of our going. "You really must tell us more," they said, and listened on for another hour as the Bible-woman and I, one after another, took up our parable; and then they pressed us to come the next day, even though it was Sunday and our rest day.

"You really must tell us more."

Miss D. C. Joynt, of the Mid China Mission, who was in Osaka owing to the troubles in China, carried on these classes. The work among the police had the effect of opening a door of access to their wives. Nine of these were regularly visited by Miss Wynne Willson, and a good proportion of the women who attended a weekly meeting in the new Memorial Mission Hall were policemen's wives. The work among factory-girls had to be interrupted for a part of the year in consequence of Miss Holland (who, like Miss Hamilton, is an independent worker) being laid up through a cycle accident, and there being no other workers available. Miss E. M. Huhold's time was chiefly occupied in holding classes for men and boys, to whom she gave lessons in German and English, on the understanding that a Bible-lesson invariably followed. She had one class of sixteen medical students, and three classes of teachers connected with several of the largest schools in Osaka, the principal himself of one of them attending. Mr. McC. E. Price had the pastoral charge of the Church of the Saviour, and Mr. Gray of the Jonan Church, each assisted by experienced catechists who were reading for ordination. The congregation worshipping in the former contributed $380 towards the repairs of the church and the erection of a house for a pastor, and the little congregation, averaging about twenty, of the latter gave or collected $400 towards building a church. The Rev. Y. Mori, the newly-ordained deacon, has charge of the Church of the Resurrection. A marked spirit of unity characterized the congregation. It became necessary to hold the services in another and less suitable house than the one which had been used, and which the landlord required. Miss R. D. Howard says that the lowly character of the places used as churches, compared with the heathen temples, often creates a difficulty in the way of inducing non-Christians to visit them. The women of the congregation were specially regular in their attendance at the meetings held for their instruction. A man and his wife were baptized at St. Peter's Church in June, 1900. They had been living in rooms in a Buddhist temple, and the man was disgusted by the corrupt lives of the priests, while both were much touched by the kindness shown by Christians at the time of the illness and death of their child.

HIROSHIMA AND FUKUYAMA.

Hiroshima.

At HIROSHIMA, being a military centre and port of embarkation for the troops, the year under review was naturally one of unrest. In the summer the sound of preparation for war burst suddenly on the people, soldiers hurrying in all directions, the drill-ground full of artillery and other implements of war, temples converted into storehouses for grain. Such a state of tension and excitement is not favourable for Gospel work, and the Rev. J. Williams says the progress made was but slight.

Work among soldiers.

Nevertheless these very conditions offered new opportunities, and lantern meetings were held in the preaching-room and in the ladies' house for the special benefit of the soldiers, which they attended well. Several hundred parcels of tracts were also distributed among them. On the night before sailing for China a number of the men called on the ladies to thank them, and some few of them wrote from Tientsin and from Peking.

The Work among Women, in which Miss M. P. V. Gregg gave such help as her language studies admitted of, brought several interesting individual cases under notice. Miss Sander says :—

God's mighty power seen in missionary work.

> This year has been one of more individual dealing with souls than any previous one. We have got closer to the people, and seen God's mighty power in the deliverance of many souls from the power of darkness. God seems to demonstrate to missionaries more than to others His great power. Their eyes see done what to human thought is utterly impossible, i.e., the doubly-welded chain of Heathenism—superstition and tradition—falling to pieces, being loosed without hands, just by the mighty power of the "Word of the Lord, which endureth for ever."

An officer's wife, who professed to believe in Christ, put off baptism on account of the impossibility of keeping the Sabbath, as the Sunday, being a holiday for those in Government service, is kept as a day of pleasure and for receiving and paying visits.

Two, one of them the wife of a Government official, had, before they knew anything of salvation, been baptized by agents of the Greek Church, and were disappointed that they could not be baptized again. The first-fruits of the Sunday-school, a girl of eleven, whose parents were Christians, was baptized; so was another girl of sixteen. Among other converts were a sergeant-major and a normal-school teacher. The latter witnessed brightly for Christ in his school, and other students and one of the masters frequently went to his room to ask about the "new doctrine." A man under sentence of death, convicted of being implicated in the murder of his aunt, was baptized in the Hiroshima Prison on the day before his execution. He had somehow become possessed of a New Testament, and by reading it a conviction forced itself upon him that Christianity was true. He asked to be instructed by a Christian teacher, and his wife found Mr. Murata, the catechist, and took him to her husband. Miss Sander gives the following touching account of Mr. Murata's visits:—

Converts.

A man under sentence of death baptized.

He had only once in his life heard a preaching somewhere. For two months Murata San was allowed to go once or twice a week. A Buddhist priest is appointed to look after the spiritual interests of the prisoners. So special leave had to be given to Murata San. He found one whose heart had already been prepared by the Word of God, and who immediately asked for baptism. Murata San told him that preparation was needed. The first question the prisoner asked him was the meaning of Rom. iii. 23. Murata San asked him what he knew of prayer. He replied that he had found a prayer in St. Matt. vi., which he always prayed: he knew no other. Murata San was much impressed with his knowledge of the Bible. When teaching him about sin, salvation, or judgment, he would reply, "Yes, that is in such and such a chapter." He was deeply convinced of sin, and of God's righteous judgments, and of His love in forgiving sin. His gratitude towards God was real. Knowing that the broken law of his country demanded his death, and there being no way of pardon, made him see God's most gracious loving-kindness in providing a way of pardon for the breakers of His law. His letters to Murata San were full of gratitude.

His knowledge of the Bible.

Prisoners do not know the day of their execution beforehand—they are not told till the morning of the day. Then they are almost immediately taken away. A special watch is set for their last night. Murata San was not allowed to be there, but the particulars were told him by the prison officials. None of them were Christians, but they were greatly impressed by the man's behaviour. The guard said the prisoner awoke in the night and said, "God is calling me." Then he put his hands together and prayed, then slept again. An hour or two after he opened his eyes and said, "Jesus has come," and prayed again. On being awakened early next morning he knew, for the first time, that soon he must leave this world. He went very calmly to his execution, and after repeating the Lord's Prayer in a clear voice, and with the words on his lips, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," he passed away. The officials said: "Surely the Christian Religion has power in it to be able to work such a change." The prisoners generally give a good deal of trouble on being led to execution. Another prisoner asked for Murata San, and when he went to see him two of the priests came to hear what he taught.

"Surely the Christian Religion has power in it."

Miss A. Roberts was joined at Fukuyama in the autumn of Miss L. A. Galgey. Meetings for women and girls were well attended, but those for factory-girls were suspended for lack of time. Two Bible-women held four children's meetings each week, two of them on Sundays, which the little ones highly appreciated. A man in Government appointment was much interested in studying the Bible, and purchased commentaries to assist him in understanding it.

HAMADA.

Hamada. HAMADA is the central town in the province of Iwami, and has a population of about 13,000. It is not easy of access, being faced by a somewhat dangerous sea and having mountains in its rear. When the Rev. G. Chapman, who on being relieved of the charge of the Osaka Divinity School at the end of 1899, in his turn relieved the Rev. C. T. Warren of the duty of supervising the work at Hamada, visited it in the winter, he travelled over hills covered with snow. Mr. Chapman held a large number of evangelistic meetings during the year at Hamada and its out-stations, in which he was assisted by the Rev. N. Fukada and the catechists. Five adults were baptized. One of the converts, Mr. Fukada states, had suffered greatly from depression, and had even purposed at one time to destroy himself by committing suicide. At this time a friend of his, a non-Christian, advised him that if he would become a Christian he would be happy. Acting on his advice, he became an inquirer, and found his friend's assurance correct. "Now," writes Mr. Fukada, "he is a joyful and happy young man and a hopeful Christian." An inquirer, who had first found out by experience that he could not walk in purity of life without the help of religion, and had then reasoned that in seeking for the right religion he should begin with the one which swayed the most enlightened nations of the world, and had thus come to believe in Christianity, was deterred from baptism by his wife's threat that if he did so she would seek a divorce. The Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Warren returned to Hamada in January, 1901; and a few weeks earlier Miss F. M. Fugill and Miss J. Mackie, the latter one of the year's recruits, arrived there.

"If he would become a Christian he would be happy."

MATSUYE.

Matsuye. The Rev. and Mrs. Barclay Fowell Buxton have had around them at MATSUYE a band of earnest European fellow-labourers independent of the Society, and whose names, therefore, are not on the list of its missionaries. They have been: Mr. Wilkes, Mr. Knight, Miss King-Wilkinson, Miss Nash, Miss Head, and Miss Evans. Mr. Buxton has been very greatly used of God in conducting conventions for the deepening of the spiritual life, and the Keswick Mission Council appointed him, in the summer of 1900, an honorary agent of that Council for the purpose of conducting such conventions in Japan. This was, of course, done with the concurrence of the Committee, and does not in any way affect Mr. Buxton's relations with the Society. In the autumn, Mr. Buxton was invited to Shanghai to take part in a large conference of missionaries gathered there in the providence of God. Such meetings as the above are naturally a conspicuous feature of the work at his own station. He is persuaded that the speediest way to bring about the evangelization of the Heathen is to help the Christians. He rightly argues that if they are definitely saved and know it, if they are filled with the Holy Ghost, then wherever they are they will be used to the salvation of others. Accordingly, twice in the past year, in the spring and autumn, conventions were held at Matsuye, and of the latter of the two Mr. Buxton writes:—

Convention and after-meeting.

The autumn gathering this year was richly blessed of God. Nakada San, a Methodist evangelist, was with us, a man indeed full of the Holy Ghost and of power. Many of the Christians came in from the neighbourhood for these meetings, so that we had about 100 at the meetings. One came from a Congregationalist church two days' journey off. The meetings lasted four days, and we had three meetings a day. We always had after-meetings in the evening, and often a space was cleared in front, and those who were seeking cleansing were invited to come there. There was extraordinary power present on some evenings. The whole church was full of seekers, some being dealt with, some praying earnestly, and at last some praising God aloud. On the last day we had a testimony meeting, and very many told out of a full heart how the Lord had sanctified and satisfied them. One old lady was so full of joy she could not help giving her testimony in the middle of one of Nakada San's addresses. "It did more good than all my addresses," said Nakada San afterwards. She can hardly read, and her greatest joy now is to come to the meetings, where with beaming face she is always ready to tell out the joy she has in the Lord.

These meetings were an excellent preparation for the visit of Bishop Foss on a confirmation tour, and Mr. Buxton is persuaded that many at those solemn confirmation services received fresh blessing. Evangelistic meetings, followed by "after-meetings," were also held. In one respect the year was a period of transition, for Mr. Buxton, in order to press the important principle of self-support, dismissed some of the native workers for whose maintenance the Christians were not prepared, or possibly not able, to provide. In one or two instances the former agents continued to live at the out-stations, supporting themselves by manual labour, and teaching and preaching as they had opportunity. Thus the paid workers at Yonago and Mori and Hirose were withdrawn. Bishop Foss gives the following interesting account of one of those whom he confirmed at Yonago:—

Pressing the principle of self-support.

One of the candidates, who had been away to Tokio and had lately returned, had made a solemn engagement with a companion some years before that they would both live pure and righteous lives. He in Tokio had done so, and had heard Christian teaching and been baptized before he returned, but found his companion had not been true to his promise. However, diligently bringing him to classes and sermons in the town near by, he at last had the happiness of seeing him renewed to repentance, and seeking very earnestly for baptism, having given up saké drinking and other bad ways. He was living with an uncle who drank much, and this uncle, finding his nephew a changed man, took to drinking his saké privately, but his nephew said, "Why should you do that? If it is nothing to be ashamed of, drink as you used to do in my presence. I won't say a word." But the uncle having tried that once or twice said, "No, it's no use—it's no pleasure to drink saké when my nephew is by. It does not taste the same." Possibly he may see more why he is ashamed as time goes on, but it is an instance how a changed life shines for good even without the Word.

"No pleasure to drink saké now. It does not taste the same."

The father of one of the Christians at Yonago kept a spirit distillery, and the son's conscience would not let him take part in such a business. To his great pecuniary loss he removed with his wife and children to a town eleven miles distant and started another business. Of him Mr. Buxton says:—

A conscientious Christian.

He strictly has kept Sunday from the first, though he feared that it would lose him custom. He sells a kind of sauce that is much used with all kinds of food. As the poor people live from hand to mouth, some who needed just the day's quantity came to him on Sunday for it. He told them his principles, and gave them the sauce they needed for nothing, and I hear that his customers are getting to understand, and he is not much troubled on Sunday now. He also very strictly gives one-tenth of his earnings to the Lord. Lately he asked whether we could not send two evangelists over for two or three days' meetings, and he would pay their expenses. So Mr. Wilkes and Mitani San went, and had some good meetings for the Heathen and also a little holiness meeting for Shinda San and his wife. Two speakers and a congregation of two, though the baby was so noisy that Mitani San took it into the next room and stayed with it there while Mr. Wilkes was addressing his small audience. As a result of the Gospel meeting one great drunkard publicly broke up his wine-cups and bottles, and I hope will soon be saved.

A merchant devoting his time to preaching the Gospel.

At Hirose one of the Christians, Mr. Adachi, is a well-to-do rice merchant, and the building used as a church and preaching-room was erected at his expense. He has by degrees committed his business to a clerk, and gives more and more time to preaching the Gospel. The little congregation have undertaken to supply a part of the sum needed for the maintenance of the catechist, Mr. Hayakawa, he earning the remainder by manual labour.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima.

The Rev. R. H. Consterdine and, about the same time, the Rev. T. Makioka were transferred from Osaka to TOKUSHIMA, the Society's one station on the Island of Shikoku. The Rev. H. Woodward (now at home) says that the Christians were roused to a deeper sense of their responsibilities by some special evangelistic meetings, at which the Rev. S. M. Koba, of Osaka, rendered help. Meetings for students were held at the same time. Mr. Makioka mentions that at a social meeting held by the members of the congregation on Christmas evening (1900) several non-Christians were present, including a judge, two teachers in Government Schools at Tokushima, and three bankers. Ten adults were baptized. One of them was gardener to the ladies, Miss E. Ritson and Miss D. S. Wynne Willson, until the latter was temporarily removed to Osaka. This man's old mother, who lives with him and his wife, seeing that the idols and ancestral tablets were removed, and in lieu of them a scroll with the Ten Commandments was hanging up in the house, said: "There are no idols left for me now to worship, so there is no help for me but to believe in the religion of Jesus." Two of the converts, a young man and his sister, belonged to Awajima, a village fourteen miles distant from Tokushima. Miss Ritson paid weekly visits to the place, and a children's meeting was held in the house of the converts. Yet another convert was a girl from a village called Tsubaki Domari. This girl became housemaid to the ladies, and learnt from them about the love of Christ. Then she urged them to visit her native village, and Miss Ritson went. She made the journey in a little coast steamer, and her arrival caused much excitement, as she was, she believes, the first foreigner to visit the place. From there she made her way on foot over sixteen miles of sea-cliff, mountain, and plain, through a drenching rain, accompanied by the catechist and Bible-woman. Mr. Woodward itinerated to the southern border of the Province of Awa, a distance of seventy miles, in the spring of 1900, holding meetings in the open air and distributing tracts. Later he went northward, and he mentions that in one town he and his companions preached in five spots in one long street, having a large audience each time.

II. DIOCESE OF SOUTH TOKIO.

Bishop Awdry admitted the Rev. V. H. Patrick to Priests' Orders in St. Andrew's Church, Tokio, on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900.

Ordination.

Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand Association, reached Japan from New Zealand in September, 1900. In the course of the journey she and her companion, Miss D. I. Hunter Brown, suffered the trying experience of shipwreck on August 17th. Their steamer, Futami Maru, ran into a typhoon and became a complete wreck off Cape Calavite, Mindoro Island, one of the Philippines. Providentially the steamer Australian was at hand and saved all the passengers and crew, and also the mails, and landed them at Manila, and the ladies arrived at Yokohama in good health, but without their baggage. The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hamilton went to Canada on furlough in July. Miss O. Julius and Miss K. M. Peacocke came home in November.

TOKIO.

Tokio is a city of over a million and a half of souls. The Rev. V. H. Patrick, in his first Annual Letter, says:—

Its tramway, running straight through the city from Shinagawa to Uyrno or Asasuka, must be some eight miles long. Its main streets are lined with busy shops, in many cases with glass fronts and huge signboards (some of the latter in English of a special type coined in Japan, e.g. "Wotches and Clooks Shop," "Bread, Cakes, Kind and Sell Shop," "Extract of Fowl," i.e. eggs, &c.), and teeming with busy bustling men. It is hard to realize that beneath all this material prosperity hoary-headed idolatry and superstition still hold sway. Yet it is so; in most of those busy shops there is the "god's shelf" with its candle burning, or the "ancestor's shrine." In many parts of the city the graceful curves of the temple roofs, towering above the ordinary building, remind one that idolatry or false religion is still rife. If the educated are throwing off its trammels, the masses still firmly believe, and support it by their offerings. These are generally small, mostly, apparently, in rins (one rin equals one-fortieth of a penny), yet from their number and frequency they seem to maintain most of the temples in prosperity. Almost within a stone's throw of our house rises the lofty roof of the Hongwangi Temple, belonging to the Monto sect of Buddhism, now being re-erected at great cost, having been destroyed by fire some two or three years ago. At Asakusa (the "people's palace" of Tokio) is to be seen a wooden idol, which is gradually diminishing through the superstition of its devotees. Its features are hardly distinguishable, having been worn away by generations of sick folk, who have rubbed the part of the idol corresponding to that affected in their own bodies.

Material prosperity and idolatry.

The Society's European staff in this vast heathen city consisted of one clergyman and his wife having twelve years' experience in the country, one clergyman studying the language, and four ladies, one with twelve years', two with five, and one with one year's experience. The Japanese staff was one ordained and ten unordained workers; five years ago there were one ordained and two unordained. The Congregation worshipping at St. Paul's Church receive the converts resulting, under God, from all the various evangelistic agencies of the Society in Tokio. Their contributions amounted to $518 (about £55). The congregation are hoping at an early date to dispense with the Society's grant-in-aid. The Rev. M. Tomita is the pastor. Some twenty of the congregation reside in Fukagawa. The classes for police in this district (Fukagawa) were given up, but Miss K. M. Peacocke (now at home), at the request of one of the most earnest Christians in the force, held meetings in his house, which were attended by other policemen and their wives. Mr. Ito, one of the catechists, expounded some passage of Scripture, and sometimes the meetings were continued for three hours. Four of the men and two women became catechumens. A class of students conducted by Miss Peacocke on Sundays afforded three converts. One of these, who had been, she says, "full of all kinds of modern theories and doubts," became a most humble-minded Christian, regular at church, and rising very early every morning in order to secure half an hour of quiet communion with God. One member of this class remarked: "I doubt everything in existence," and that is the attitude of mind of too many of the students. The total number of adults baptized was forty-seven, and of these eighteen were brought to the knowledge of Christ at the Mission Hall in the "Ginza," which is the finest and busiest thoroughfare in the city. Mr. Patrick says of its situation:—

"I doubt everything in existence."

> Japanese, especially students, from every province in the empire, as they pass along the "Ginza," drop in and hear the Gospel message. Situated in the heart of the heart of Japan, in a street traversed for several miles by a tramway, in that small portion of the street possessed of two broad pavements (the other busy streets and other parts of this same street have no pavements, and are narrower), and near the busiest station in Tokio, it has an ideal position.

"Ginza" Mission Hall.

The ownership of this important property changed hands during the past year, and the Mission was compelled to purchase it or to lose the site. Throughout the month of May, 1900, special Mission services were held in this hall, and the number of inquirers was little short of three hundred. Only a small proportion of these were baptized in St. Paul's Church, but Mr. Buncombe is satisfied that all understood the Gospel offer of salvation, and recognized their individual responsibility for accepting or rejecting Christ. The Hostel for Young Men was full during the year, but that meant only ten boarders, all Christian students in various Government schools. The Hostel for Girls suffered the trial of a change of premises forced upon Miss A. P. Carr and Miss H. J. Worthington by the landlord. Temporary quarters were obtained, but the securing of a permanent habitation was an anxious and difficult problem in a city like Tokio, the Society's straitened finances obliging the Committee to impose stringent conditions. Before the removal in June, 1900, there were on the average nine girls in the Hostel, all belonging to upper class families. The youngest of them, a pupil at the Royal School for Girls, who has, so far as human foresight can judge, a brilliant prospect before her, was removed by her relations from the Hostel, but on leaving she said to Miss Carr, while clasping her Bible tightly: "Though I am going away from here to my home, where no one believes in our Saviour, I will keep my Bible and read it, and never give up Jesus." Of another inmate Miss Carr writes:—

Three hundred inquirers.

Girls' Hostel.

"I will never give up Jesus."

> Another of our girls, who knew nothing of Christianity when she came, except that it was something very objectionable, after being in the house a fortnight and attending our Japanese prayers, came asking for regular Bible-teaching. We spent much time over our Bible together, and the Holy Spirit seemed to suddenly convict her of sin and unpreparedness to meet Christ, as we were one day studying the Second Coming of our Lord. Shortly after this she became a daughter of the King and asked for baptism, which she received just before the summer rest. Her brother begged her to give up her faith, as she was witnessing to him. "Never," she said. She told us how she thanked God that she injured her knee when she was about to be married to a Heathen, which injury prevented the wedding, saying, "I always used to be troubled about my knee, but now I thank God for making me lame: if it had not been for my knee I might have married and never have known Jesus as my Saviour."

"I thank God for making me lame."

And of others:—

"Intellect" seems to be the hindrance with two of our cleverest girls; but God is working in their hearts. One came weeping the other night, saying, "Oh, pray with me. I would give anything to have the faith of a little child." One of our girls who was married this spring is so earnest. She was believing, but not allowed to receive baptism under her maiden name; but this October she obtained her great desire and entered outwardly into Christ's fold. She has had much suffering and persecution, but just through this has grown in grace. She comes for a Bible lesson once a week, and as she studies her Bible for three hours a day she brings with her all the points not understood during her study, so in our hour's lesson we can scarcely ever get through all. This girl has a good deal of influence. Lately she has brought with her a relation, who knows nothing, to be taught. This little lady is always accompanied by her maid, and my Bible-woman has the maid for a Bible lesson while I have the lady; the tracts lent to the maid are read by the mistress too, and they both rejoice together over the glad tidings.

"Oh, for the faith of a little child"!

"Mistress and maid rejoice together."

In the temporary quarters which were engaged in the summer there was a small lodge at the gate into which five girls of a lower class socially than those received into the Hostel were admitted. One of them was from Kagoshima, in the southern island of Kiu-shiu, and had a letter of introduction to Miss Carr from Miss Hunter Brown, of that station.

Miss Carr was visited for lessons in English, followed by a Bible lesson in Japanese, by some lady teachers in a large Normal School, and some of these continued to attend after the removal of the Hostel to a somewhat distant neighbourhood, and two of them joined the Scripture Union. On the invitation of the manager of a small Nurses' Club, who said that he knew nothing about Christianity except that it was necessary for nurses, Miss Carr went there and had a class whose attendance averaged eight. When the Club started a Nurses' Magazine two articles by Miss Carr and Miss Worthington about Miss Nightingale's life and work were inserted. A man of some social standing and his wife were baptized as fruits of Miss Carr's visiting; and an old woman on quite the other side of the social scale was also baptized. The peace and joy of this woman so struck her daughter who came up from the country to see her, and who had not before heard of Christianity, that she said she must hear about what could give "such wonderful peace." Miss Peacocke also was encouraged in visiting the houses of the people, and ten women whom she had met with in so doing were under instruction for baptism when she left to come home. One of them, though she had some Christian relatives, had never heard the Gospel story till she heard it from her lips. She had often longed to know, and seemed to "drink in" the message. She began at once to attend church, from which her house is only a walk of a few minutes distant, and so anxious was she lest visitors should call and prevent her from doing so that she left her house nearly an hour beforehand and walked about the streets till church time.

The four out-stations occupied by C.M.S. catechists are situated in the Ken or Prefecture of Chiba. Ichikawa has been given up as an out-station, but it is easily visited by rail (ten miles) from Tokio. At Yokaichiba fifteen adults were baptized. The evangelist, Mr. Katada, exercised his skill as an organizer by dividing the Christians into groups according to the day of the month on which they were baptized, and each group met every month on the baptism day at the house of one of the members for mutual exhortation and prayer. The congregation, which has fifty-seven names on its list, has been formally enrolled as a pastorate of the Nippon Sei-ko-kwai, taking the name of Holy Trinity Church. Choshi is a town of 40,000 souls. Eighteen adults were added to the roll of baptized members.

A station-master

A station-master living two and a half miles from the town, and his wife and daughter, were among the converts. The daughter attended a children's class held in the town, and usually Miss Peacocke managed to spend two hours at their house between trains on her return journey to Tokio. She and her helper always found the three waiting with their Bibles, and the time was spent in searching the Scriptures. The wife and daughter were baptized in the spring of 1900 and the husband in the autumn. A woman of good position allowed Miss Peacocke to hold a monthly class of ladies in her house, attended by between twenty and thirty. The catechist, Mr. Sukuma, made acquaintance with the men who occupy the lighthouse which stands about two miles from Choshi, three of whom were baptized. One of these converts was, subsequently to his baptism, transferred to a lighthouse near Tokio, and on his off-days, one day out of three, he frequently attended the meetings at the "Ginza" Mission Hall. Boshu is not marked on the map on the previous page. It is, indeed, the name of a division, not of a town. The catechist is located at Onuki. Three women were baptized. The catechist who was removed, as stated above, from Ichikawa was placed at Tateyama, in the immediate neighbourhood of Boshu, and the place where the steamers from Tokio land their passengers.

and three lighthouse men baptized.

Gifu.

The foreign missionary staff at GIFU consisted, during the first half of the year, of the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hamilton and Miss E. C. Payne. When Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton left on furlough in the summer, the Rev. and Mrs. A. Lea were transferred temporarily to Gifu from Nagoya. All the above except Miss Payne are missionaries of the Canada Association. Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand Association, rejoined the staff in September, on her return from furlough. The Blind School had seventeen pupils, nine of whom were baptized Christians. Its existence in the town, Mr. Lea says, is a valuable witness to the philanthropic nature of Christianity. During the past year a house was rented in the north of the city for holding meetings of ex-convicts while still under police supervision. Christians are not allowed to visit convicts while in prison, and after leaving prison until their period of surveillance has elapsed these men are forbidden to attend public meetings. Permission was, however, obtained for them, from the police, to meet together in the above-named house, and three of them became catechumens. One who on entering had stipulated that he was not to be forced to become a Christian, voluntarily gave up his idols and amulets within a month, Meetings of ex-convicts.

He, with six other persons, was baptized on Christmas Day, 1900. Gifu was visited in October by the Bishop of Nova Scotia, Dr. Courtney, and Archdeacon Kaulbach, accompanied by Bishop Awdry. A meeting was held in a large hall at which they addressed some 200 professional men and students, who attended notwithstanding a heavy downpour of rain. Miss Payne and her Bible-woman mustered a large Sunday-school by visiting from house to house and inviting the children to attend, and their brightness and eagerness to be taught were very encouraging. Five members of a class for non-Christian women became catechumens. Visit of the Bishop of Nova Scotia.

NAGOYA.

As in the case of Gifu, NAGOYA, with one exception, is entirely manned, so far as regards the foreign staff, by missionaries of the Canada Association, the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Robinson, Miss E. M. Trent, and Miss M. M. Young. The one exception is Miss A. L. Archer, who in 1899 joined the Mission in local connexion. The congregation contains sixty-six baptized Christians, of whom forty-two are communicants. Sixteen adults were baptized during the year. One was a retired civil officer whose wife was baptized ten years before by the Rev. W. P. Buncombe at Tokushima. Another was the wife of a man who had been a believer for eight years. Twelve of the converts were young men. Two were sons of a colonel in the army, who was very pleased that they should be baptized. Three were led to Christ through learning English. One of them in the first instance asked to be taught, but could not attend Mr. Robinson's English classes. Mr. Robinson's eldest daughter, nine years of age, offered to teach him. He subsequently brought two friends, and all three were invited to church and received Bible instruction, with the result, as already stated, that they were baptized. Miss Young reports a busy and happy year of work among the women and children. The Kinder-garten classes were a means not only of obtaining an influence over the children, who attended them after attending the public school, but also of reaching their parents. Miss Young tells the following amusing story of a Sunday-school lesson being somewhat imperfectly apprehended by one of the children. The teacher was a young Japanese lady, and her subject was the Mission of John the Baptist. Miss Young states:— Nagoya. Converts.

She said, "When the Emperor comes to Nagoya great preparations are made for his coming, you know, children, so tell me something about it." They replied that arches were made, the streets made clean, &c., &c. "Yes," she said, "and the streets through which the Emperor is likely to pass are made particularly clean and beautiful, are they not? Well, John the Baptist came to prepare the way for Christ in a similar manner. He did not wear a very fine coat, and his food was very plain, but he had a clean heart, and he taught A Sunday-school lesson and its application.

the people that they must have clean hearts if they wanted to make ready for Christ, and be glad to meet Him when He came." We heard afterwards that one little girl got the story a little mixed in her mind, for when she went home she told her mother that they must get things cleaned up, the street in front of the gate and every place must be made clean, because "John the Baptist is coming." Her mother asked, "Who is John the Baptist?" "Oh, he is a nice man who doesn't wear a very nice coat, and his food is very poor, but he has a clean heart. The teacher says God does not mind what kind of dresses we have on, but He likes us to have clean hearts."

"He likes us to have clean hearts."

At Ichinomiya, one of the out-stations, an ex-mayor remarked to the catechist that he "had no doubt that Christianity was the best of all religions," but that the people of Ichinomiya wanted for the present to enrich themselves; at a later date they might be glad to listen to the teaching.

III. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

THE Diocese of Kiu-shiu, which is co-terminous with the island of that name, has a population of seven millions; the staff, as the General Report of the Conference points out, is barely as numerous as that of one large English parish. Miss D. I. Hunter Brown, of the New Zealand Association, returned to the Mission in September, having suffered shipwreck, as already mentioned (see supra, page 473), on the journey from New Zealand, and the Misses B. J. Allen, H. S. Cockram, and E. A. P. Sells sailed in August, 1900, to return to the Mission. Miss F. M. Freeth and Miss G. S. Stevenson came home in December, 1900, Miss E. M. Keen in January, 1901, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hutchinson in April.

Ordination.

Bishop Evington admitted the Rev. K. Nakumura to Priests' Orders at Kumamoto on March 11th, 1900.

The Rev. A. R. Fuller is Secretary for the work in this diocese.

A "Summer School" was held for the Japanese agents of the diocese at Fukuoka from September 12th to 14th, at which the Bishops of Kiu-shiu and Osaka were present. The Rev. H. McC. E. Price, of Osaka, gave three addresses on "Christ in the Psalms"; Bishop Foss gave addresses on "The Sight of God arousing a Sense of Sin," "The Nature of Sin," and "Acceptable Service;" and the Rev. S. Koba, of Osaka, gave two on "Preaching Christ," and one on "I Magnify mine Office."

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki.

The report of the work at NAGASAKI is not very cheering. The Rev. J. T. Kó, pastor of the congregation, says the Christians are mostly lukewarm, and, that being so, it is not surprising to learn that the non-Christians are indifferent. The Sunday-school numbers thirty children. The Rev. A. R. Fuller made great efforts to find out scattered Christians and those who had lapsed. He found one, an elderly woman, who after her baptism had removed to a place at least one day's journey distant from Nagasaki, but she was earnestly seeking to pass on to others the knowledge of Christ. Another, on the contrary, a young doctor, who before and after his baptism had appeared to be bright and earnest, had relinquished his Christian profession lest it should hinder success in the practice he was seeking to establish. A master in one of the Nagasaki Government schools who was a backslider was rebuked and humbled by the courage of one of the schoolboys; this lad was noticed to bend his head before partaking of his mid-day meal at school, and on being challenged he explained that he was a Christian, as also were his parents, and that Christians always thanked God for the food He provided for them. There were five adult baptisms in connexion with the Shindaiku Machi preaching-place, but they did not show much zeal for the souls of others. The attendance at the meetings in this place, which is just opposite a theatre, averaged about twenty. Miss B. Nottidge, who removed from Oita to Nagasaki at the close of 1899, worked among the women and girls in the neighbourhood of the preaching-place.

A courageous schoolboy.

Mr. Fuller made a tour, with Mr. Soejima the catechist, of the principal towns in the peninsula of Shimabara. This district was formerly the battlefield between the Government troops and the early Roman Catholic Christians, and the cross was for many years periodically trampled on as a mark of contempt for Christianity. Mr. Fuller exhibited lantern slides of the sufferings and death of Christ, and the attention was most marked, an almost breathless interest being shown in the pictures and the explanations.

Preaching Christ crucified where the Cross used to be trampled on.

KAGOSHIMA.

The return of Miss D. I. Hunter Brown, of the New Zealand Association, and Miss H. S. Cockram in the autumn of 1900 was heartily welcomed by the little band of Christians at KAGOSHIMA. Miss E. M. Keen left soon afterwards to come home. The Rev. F. W. Rowlands was mainly engaged in visiting and in individual conversations. Two adults were baptized and four catechumens admitted. The acquisition of a new Japanese worker in the person of Mr. Watanabe, of the Osaka Divinity School, admitted of the country work being done more systematically. At Kanoya there were large audiences at some lantern meetings, and one or two were more or less hopeful inquirers. At Ijuin, ten miles from Kagoshima, Mr. Rowlands and the catechist were told that it would be hopeless to obtain a room for a meeting. The landlord of their inn, however, although he was the agent for the local Buddhist temple, allowed them to use his room, and Mr. Rowlands' announcements in the street, assisted by his concertina, obtained an audience of at least fifty men, besides women and children, the Buddhist priest being among them.

Kagoshima.

Loo-choo Islands.

Mr. Rowlands paid two visits to the Loo-choo Islands, spending Christmas of 1899 and Easter of 1900 there, on the latter occasion in the company of Bishop Evington. The Bishop had a narrow escape on his return journey on Good Friday. The steamer in which he was a passenger came into collision with the ram of a man-of-war. Providentially the vessel was near the landing-stage, and the passengers were all rescued. Mr. Rowlands expresses much thankfulness for the work of the Rev. S. Ushijima, whom he describes as an earnest visitor, and, though not eloquent, as a simple, Scriptural, and definite preacher of the Gospel. Six adults were baptized, chiefly from among the post and telegraph officials. These officials have a weekly meeting for Bible study in their own quarters, and one of them seems very earnest in trying to save others. Mr. Ushijima's limited Loo-chooan vocabulary is a difficulty, and it was therefore a matter for special thankfulness that Miss Cockram was able to take over in December a Loo-chooan Christian woman who had been working as a Bible-woman at Kagoshima. On the same steamer another Loo-chooan Christian (a male) sailed, one whom the Rev. A. R. Fuller brought from the islands a few years ago in order that he might be trained to become an evangelist to his people. His immediate object in this journey was to examine and report to a committee at Tokio regarding the prospects of founding a high school for Loo-chooan girls on Christian lines.

Providential escape of Bishop Evington.

FUKUOKA AND KOKURA.

The Rev. A. B. Hutchinson (now at home) accounts for the 850 who have been enrolled in the districts of Fukuoka and Kokura since work was commenced there in 1885. Just one half, namely, 426, are now on the books of the two districts; 140 who have removed to other districts are still members of the "Church of Japan;" and sixty-two have died; ninety cannot be traced; and the remainder have given up their Christian profession and some of them have returned to idolatry, of whom the majority belonged to Oyamada. In Fukuoka and the district there are still 229 Christians, of whom 125 are communicants. Mr. Hutchinson had great anxiety on account of Mrs. Hutchinson's state of health in the autumn of 1900, but through God's sparing mercy she was raised up and restored. Miss E. A. P. Sells was welcomed back in September, invigorated and refreshed by her furlough, and Miss F. M. Freeth left to take hers in November. The Congregation received a new pastor, the Rev. Toda Minosi, who had formerly been engaged in work near Kioto in connexion with the Protestant Episcopal Church of America.

Fukuoka.

The congregation is now self-supporting, and it sent, together with other Christians of the two districts, a generous contribution to the famine sufferers in India. Work among the Women, Christian and non-Christian, was done by Miss Freeth and Miss C. L. Burnside, who visited and held meetings for them and for the children, and conducted English classes with Bible lesson for teachers (female) in the Government schools, for school-girls between the ages of nine and fourteen, and for hospital nurses. A "week-day Sunday-school" held at the house of a poor woman near the fish market is also referred to. One of the converts (twelve adults were baptized in the district under Mr. Hutchinson) was a girl aged nineteen, who, though the daughter of Christian parents, had been resolutely opposed to Christianity. The reading of a Japanese version of Christie's Old Organ, under God, helped to lead her to inquire after the way of peace. Work was commenced in Hakata at the beginning of 1900. It is a strong Buddhist town and the people are much opposed to Christianity. There is nevertheless a little congregation, and a Sunday-school which began with fifty children rose to one hundred. During the holidays the attendance fell off, as the children forgot when Sunday came round. An English Bible-class was attended by several students of the Higher School, and they became so much interested in the explanation in Japanese that eventually more time was spent over it than over the English reading. Oyamada has begun to send support towards the Pastorate Fund.

The Rev. J. Hind, of KOKURA, prepared for the press Trench on the Parables, and was also engaged on a Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel. He contrasts the year under review with its predecessor as one of greatly increased opportunities. He and Mrs. Hind and their Japanese fellow-labourers were actively engaged in holding Bible-classes, prayer-meetings, English classes, &c., for men and women, for Christian and Heathen. Mrs. Hind even conducted some open-air meetings in a settlement of the despised Eta community, who were formerly outcasts, but were enfranchised in 1871. The personal appearance and dwellings of these people are almost loathsome and they are altogether very degraded. The military class in Kokura are most difficult of approach with the Gospel message, but Miss B. J. Allen, who, on her return to Japan in September was assigned to Kokura, had an encouraging visit from an officer who, having seen her conduct a children's meeting on the seashore in a neighbouring village, brought his two children to her and said he had heard a good deal about Christianity from friends, and he was most anxious that his children should be brought up as Christians, "for if not they will never become really noble men." Miss Allen comments on the incident as follows:—

I think it is great matter for thankfulness, and at the same time one that calls for very humble, earnest prayer, that the lives of the Christians in Japan are everywhere appealed to with confidence as a witness to the power of the Gospel. Parents, the heads of the police, the Customs, bankers' clerks, and many others come and ask to have those under them taught Christianity, because, they say, "we see that the Christians' lives are an example, and we want to have those under us taught to be like them." We know, alas! that this cannot be said of all, but that it is true in the vast majority of cases is, I believe, the unanimous testimony of believers and unbelievers alike, and so long as by God's grace this continues to be the fact, however slow the progress of Christianity may appear when looked at from some standpoints, one can thankfully believe that it is indeed here, as elsewhere, a living tree that will take root downward and bear fruit upward to the praise and glory of God.

"Member of the Church of Japan" on his visiting card.

Mr. Hutchinson was called upon in Fukuoka by a Kokura Christian on whose visiting card was printed in Japanese, "Member of the Church of Japan," thus showing that he was not ashamed of the Gospel. Moji, seven miles from Kokura, is a rapidly growing port, with over 30,000 inhabitants. Mr. Hind was requested by the head of the Customs and a chief inspector to teach the officials "English and Religion," and he was assured that the latter was wanted not merely because they knew Mr. Hind would make it a condition, but they desired it for its own sake on account of its superior morality. He had nearly thirty gentlemanly officials present at his first lesson, when he began to read St. John's Gospel with them. Quite a number of these Customs officials possessed New Testaments. At Nogata the catechist, Mr. Nakamura, gained considerable influence over the mining officials, who welcomed him gladly. Four adults were baptized there. There are Christians also at Aita, Kotaki, and Ogama, to whom Mr. Nakamura gives instruction. Another catechist, Mr. Iimure, is stationed at Wakamatsu, a few years ago a small fishing village, now having a population of 20,000. Close to it, on the other side of the bay, at Edamitsu, a huge Government foundry has been erected. The Christians have grown in number from ten, three and a half years ago, to sixty. The sum of $1,700 has been promised towards a church, which, it is proposed, will cost $4,000; but $1,500 of the $1,700 was given by one man, a banker, who devotes a tithe of his income to God's service. The widow of a schoolmaster, an earnest Christian woman, has been appointed a probationary Bible-woman, and she introduces Miss Allen to her many friends in the place.

KUMAMOTO.

The late Rev. J. B. Brandram, in his Annual Letter written a few weeks before his lamented death, expressed his joy at the admission of the Rev. K. Nakamura to Priests' Orders, and at his entering upon the full charge of the pastorate of the little band of Christians at KUMAMOTO. The young men of the congregation organized and carried out a week's special preaching. Mr. Brandram took great interest in the Students' Y.M.C.A., and pointed out with satisfaction that it now possesses an institute at Kumamoto which proves a bond of union. Seven Christian students, of whom two belonged to Mr. Nakamura's congregation, graduated from the Government College and entered Tokio University, and in place of them thirteen Christians were among the freshmen admitted to the college, a sign that the number of Christians among the class from whom these students come is increasing. The senior master has a class for the study of Pilgrim's Progress, reading the book in English and explaining it in Japanese. Seventy copies of this Christian classic were bought by students. Mr. S. Painter has succeeded to the charge of this station.

OITA.

The Rev. H. L. Bleby, on his return from furlough at the close of 1899, relieved the late Rev. J. B. Brandram of the charge of OITA and its out-stations. He states that he could not observe signs of progress since he left in the summer of 1898. There are ten baptized Christians, of whom four are communicants. Two adults were baptized during the year. At Nobeoka there are seventeen baptized Christians, but the number who attend the Sunday services is even smaller than was reported last year, for the deaf old man died on Easter-eve, and the old lady unable to read has become paralyzed. The catechist and his wife are sometimes the only two present at the services. Two baptized Christians at Miyazaki, who for some time had been negligent of the public means of grace, began to attend the services again. Mr. Bleby asks for much prayer in behalf of the Christians of his district.

IV. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

MRS. FYSON, wife of Bishop Fyson, came home in June, 1900; Miss E. Bryant arrived in Australia in October; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. Batchelor came home in February, 1901. Miss L. Payne sailed in January, 1901, to return to the Mission.

Bishop Fyson was much encouraged by the advance made by the Christians in his diocese during the year in the direction of self-support. In July the Rev. B. F. Buxton, of Matsuye, visited Hakodate, and conducted devotional meetings. The importance he attaches to the subject of self-support has already appeared (see supra, page 471), and it is not, therefore, surprising that one result of his visit to the Hokkaido was a definite forward move towards this goal. There are in the diocese some thirty-four congregations, only two of which previously paid anything towards the salary of those who ministered to them, though they contributed towards the expenses of public worship. Some stringent rules were therefore adopted, the result of which was that eighteen of the congregations agreed to send help to the funds of the Diocesan Pastoral Aid Society, and the aggregate sum contributed became ¥50 instead of ¥18. The Bishop visited the Sapporo and Otaru districts during the year, and the confirmees numbered 118, including 47 at Hakodate. Regarding the Ainu the Bishop writes:—

> These people are not only dwindling in numbers, being reduced now to about sixteen thousand all told, but those that remain are fast becoming Japanized, i.e., they now themselves wish to be considered Japanese, they adopt the Japanese dress, and the young men no more grow long beards and bushy locks like their fathers, but appear well cropped and clean-shaven like any Japanese, although the women for the most part still keep to the disfiguring custom of tattooing their faces. But what is most significant of all, the Ainu language is dying out; the rising generation of Ainu prefer to speak in Japanese, even amongst themselves, and even Mr. Batchelor is of opinion that it is no longer necessary to teach in Ainu, and of course it follows that there will soon be no need to maintain separate schools or a separate class of evangelists for this race.

The Rev. W. Andrews is the Secretary for the work in this diocese.

HAKODATE.

Hakodate.

Two new Congregations were formed in the city of HAKODATE during the year, making three altogether, with an aggregate of 462 baptized Christians and 322 communicants. The contributions showed an increase of ¥100, omitting from the comparison special donations of ¥400 in the previous year towards the rebuilding of the church. The mother congregation has undertaken to bear the whole burden of the support of its pastor from January, 1902. The Rev. W. Andrews mentions, however, several painful cases of moral failure on the part of individual members of the congregation. The Theological Class was conducted by the Bishop, who took all the lectures himself. It was only open during the winter months, the students, eight in number, being engaged during the summer in evangelistic work. Mr. C. Nettleship's return from furlough in December, 1899, was welcomed by the pupils of the Ainu Boys' School. Two of the lads left the school to test the availability of their gifts on a little country school, and two others passed their examination as Bible-readers. The Hospital, under Dr. W. W. Colborne, had about fifty in-patients during the greater part of the year. Ten of these were baptized, and five of the relatives who accompanied them were also admitted into the visible Church. Mrs. Colborne gives touching particulars of some of these:—

Converts.

> As I look back over the year that is nearly at an end, some red-letter days stand out vividly in my memory. The day when we first went to call on a man very ill, and said to be possessed by the fox-devil, in whose house many a Buddhist priest had been employed to cast it out, but unsuccessfully, and much money spent. Apparently in a dangerous state, the only chance of his recovery resting on his comparative youth, we had him brought here, where he lay in a sort of dazed condition for weeks and months, only broken by an occasional fit of devil-possession, so-called. Then the night when he was at his worst, even behaving something like an actual fox, all we could do was to pray beside his bed, and play hymns, which brought quiet sleep until morning, from which time he began to improve. Only a very little of the Gospel story stayed in his memory then, but God blessed His Word, and intense sorrow for sin seemed to fill the man's mind—sin too deep to be forgiven, he thought, though he prayed earnestly for pardon. This changed at last into glad assurance, and a wish to confess his faith in Christ by baptism, which was granted him, and now, when we go about to different homes of suffering led by this man, and listen to him talking to the sick ones, hear his prayers for them, witnessing to each and all "what great things the Lord hath done for him," we can only say, "What hath God wrought!" Another picture is of a young lad, brought to us from a long distance, in the last stage of consumption, holding up in his thin wasted hands, all trembling with both weakness and eagerness, a card with St. John iii. 16, "God so loved the world." He had heard the story from the first few hours of his arrival in the hospital, but he must satisfy himself every now and then by reading the words over and over. When one hand shook too much he would change it to the other, then hold it tightly with both, close up to his eyes, even now getting dim in death. He died eventually, very peacefully, just a few days after his baptism, with his precious books and text-card by his side. Another scene, and this also a death-scene. A patient very ill with consumption and berri-berri was sitting propped up on his futons one afternoon, with a pile of post-cards by his side, dictating to our Christian dispenser—himself once a patient—some messages to friends and relatives at a distance. "Tell them," he said, "that I have found true peace here, that I am very happy, and going to God very soon. I wish them all good-bye." His last request was that in the room in which he had found peace we would have a little meeting of his relatives and friends, and tell them the story of God's love and salvation, when he should be gone, which, of course, we did.

A last request.

Twenty-one of the out-patients also were baptized. Several of the conversions are traced to the meetings held by Mr. Buxton and two Japanese evangelists in the summer, to which reference has been made above (page 485). Miss A. M. Tapson continued in charge of the Girls' Home, except that for three months ill-health obliged her to be absent, and part of this time she was an inmate of a Japanese hospital. The visit of Mr. Buxton was a means of special blessing to the four students of the Home. Miss Tapson writes:—

God was very present among us day by day, and our household had a very special blessing. Sometimes on into the night one could hear, from one little cubicle or another, a broken voice pleading in prayer, and when the week was over faces overflowing with joy proved that prayers had been answered, that hearts had been cleansed, and the gift of the Holy Spirit realized. The meetings were held nearly five months ago, but the transformed lives of these girls testify to the reality of the work begun. If it were anything but the work of the Holy Spirit I should be afraid to speak of it, lest it should mean a falling off again, but as it is only and altogether His work it seems more like withholding glory due to His Name to be silent about it. They were earnest-hearted girls before, but had a good share of the ambitions common to most girls of their age. Now, I believe, through union with Himself, Christ is leading them to know as their chief ambition to live wholly for God and to bring souls to Him.

The students visited two hospitals—an eye hospital, where they were received cordially, and one of the dispensers asked for a Bible and commenced attending church; and a private hospital for women. In the latter their visits were not welcomed, and Miss Tapson says:—

Patient continuance in well-doing.

Last week it was harder than ever before. In one ward after another they were refused, by some with a faint show of politeness, by a few as if they had been beggars! At last one patient was found willing to listen. They said they felt very low when they came out, but as they were walking home they reminded one another of a story they had read about Mr. Moody, who, when some discouraged worker said to him he had better give up Mission work, no-one would listen to him, they looked down on him, &c., answered him with, "Do they spit on you? Do they mock you? Do they put a crown of thorns on your head?" Then they felt that, after all, it was not much they had to bear for Christ's sake. I do not know many who would go on week after week for months facing this, and if they suggested giving it up I could not say, "Go on," but they do not.

"One continued song of praise."

Miss M. R. Jex-Blake, who is Miss Tapson's colleague, bears the same testimony regarding the visit of Mr. Buxton. She says: "Since last June it has been one continued song of praise in our little home." Miss Tapson visits the women, and is sometimes visited by their husbands, as the following extract shows:—

Husbands believe in Christianity for their wives.

There is, I think, an increasing confidence in Christianity—husbands believe in it for their wives! One came for a talk the other day, to ask about his wife. He felt the one thing for her was to become a Christian, but if there seemed no likelihood of that he felt he must send her away! Another wants his wife to become a Christian because he thinks it would take the conceit out of her! She is a very clever little lady, and inclined to look down upon others, so is not popular.

SAPPORO.

Sapporo.

The Rev. J. Batchelor had a somewhat embarrassing leave-taking before he left his district to take furlough. The people pressed their gifts upon his acceptance, such as money, fowls, bags of beans, and invited him to feasts at their houses. He could look back with thankfulness over the eight years since he first went to occupy SAPPORO in 1892. Then there were only seventeen Anglican Christians in the place, of whom five were children. Before he left, in order to make him a parting present, seventy Christians presented themselves to be photographed, and some thirty uninvited non-Christian friends persisted in being included. In the district there are 1,157 baptized Christians, sixty-one having been added during the past year. Mr. Batchelor refers to one Sunday-school girl who was the means of bringing her mother and her brother under instruction for baptism, and leading her father to forsake strong drink and idol-worship. The Ainu Girls' Training Home, under Miss A. M. Hughes, had eight pupils during the greater part of the year, who made fair progress in their studies, and were much improved in other respects. Two of them were baptized during the year. Miss Hughes took part in other branches of the Work among Women. She mentions a lady to whom she gave English lessons, and who became a candidate for baptism; but her husband, while willing that she should be baptized, objected to her going out on Sunday, when she was needed at home to entertain visitors, so her baptism was deferred. Miss M. J. Oxlad was busily engaged holding classes and meetings and visiting the women, but the severe cold of the winter of 1899–1900 affected her health, and she was ordered by the doctors to go to Osaka for the winter of 1900–1901. Miss E. Bryant also, of Piratori, was obliged, on account of her health, to pay a visit to Australia, as already mentioned. She conducted an English class, and three young men whom she taught applied for baptism; she also held a night-school, which was crowded to overflowing; and she had several girls living with her through the winter of 1899–1900 for instruction. She visited neighbouring villages, and held meetings for the women.

OTARU.

The Rev. G. C. Niven refers to the visit to OTARU in the summer of 1900 of two Japanese evangelists, one of whom had been led to Christ through the instrumentality of David, the Tamil evangelist (see Annual Report for 1895–96, page 176), doubtless through reading a little book written by him. Mr. Niven says the result of their visit was a very happy one, "for nobody could see the zeal and faith of these two young prophets without becoming himself warmed-up and more enthusiastic." Mrs. Niven, who has passed the language examination, holds meetings for the women. A preaching-place was rented at Temiya, which Mr. Niven calls "the Seven Dials of Otaru," but it was burnt down a few days afterwards through a fire which broke out in the next house. The Christians at Bibai contributed in money and timber the value of £18. At a settlement of farming-militia near Fukagawa eleven were baptized. Land has been secured for a church at Asahigawa, in the centre of the island, which promises to rival Hokkaido in importance. At Wakkanai, in the extreme north of the island, the Christians show some zeal. The adult baptisms in the district numbered twenty-eight, and the contributions of the Christians amounted to $411.

The Rev. D. Marshall Lang returned to KUSHIRO after his furlough just before Easter, 1900, and on Easter Day he had the joy of baptizing three men. Twenty-three adults altogether were baptized in the district during the year, and of these fifteen were in the farming and military colonies which have been in recent years planted on the Hokkaido. The three Ainu schools have forty-seven boys and forty girls. Mr. Lang visited the Kurile Islands. On the island of Etorop, on which is the capital of the group of islands, he found a Christian lighthouse-keeper, who had previously been stationed on the lighthouse at Kushiro, and through his influence the other man at work there and his wife became inquirers and were admitted to the catechumenate.

NEW ZEALAND MISSION.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers, in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. For eleven years no results were seen. The first conversion took place in 1825, and no other Natives were baptized for five years. Then began the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led Bishop Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of Pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony, and emigration on a large scale ensued. The vices as well as the benefits of civilization were introduced, and the inevitable conflict of races began. The continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundations. In 1864 arose the "Pai Marire" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread rapidly among the Natives. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner on March 2nd, 1865.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminish annually, and will cease (subject to personal claims) in a few years.

Maori population.

The Maori population of New Zealand, according to the census of 1896, is, in round numbers, 39,800. Of these 37,300 are in the North Island, and are distributed as follows:—The Diocese of Auckland has 18,200, that of Waiapu 13,600, and that of Wellington 5,500. In the South Island the Diocese of Nelson has 600, that of Christchurch 900, and that of Dunedin 1,000.

C.M.S. grant to cease 1902.

Since the year 1883 the funds derived from lands in the North Island, vested in the Society for the support of the work among the Maoris, have been administered, together with an annual grant from the Society, by the New Zealand Mission Trust Board. This Board consists of the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington (ex officio), one clergyman and one layman from each of the same three dioceses, and a Secretary, the Rev. A. F. Williams. The income derived from endowments amounts to about £900 per annum. The Society's grant which supplements this sum has been gradually diminishing for some years, and is to cease entirely after 1902. In view of this, active efforts have been made during the past few years to stir up an interest in the Maori work among the Church people in the colony, and with some measure of success, which is largely attributable to the New Zealand C.M. Association, and to the circulation of information regarding the Mission by means of reports and a monthly supplement to the New Zealand localized C.M. Gleaner. the recovery of the lapsed Maoris, which had an income of £169 in 1898, received £437 in 1899. The Maori Christians themselves contributed in 1899 the sum of £1,936, and £1,441 in 1900. It is noticeable, however, that, while they show much energy and generosity in collecting and giving for church building, they are less ready to respond to claims for the support of their pastors. This is what constitutes the chief difficulty in the financial outlook. It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 452) that Archdeacon S. Williams had made an offer of £1,000 to the Diocese of Auckland, on condition that a further sum of £2,000 was raised in the diocese, to form a diocesan fund to be applied to the purpose of augmenting the stipends of the Maori clergy. A like generous offer was made at the same time to the Dioceses of Waiapu and Wellington. The Committee have received no recent news as to how far these offers have met with a response.

Deaths of Archdeacon E. B. Clarke,

After a missionary service which commenced more than half a century ago, the Venerable Archdeacon Edward Blomfield Clarke died, full of days and of honour, on October 21st, 1900. He was a son of Mr. George Clarke, who sailed from home in 1822, and, after a detention of some months by Samuel Marsden at Sydney, was stationed in 1824 at Keri Keri, on the Bay of Islands. The son was first engaged as a lay agent in 1849, the Society's first jubilee year. In 1853 he came to England, and entered Islington College. He was admitted to Deacons' and Priests' Orders at Melbourne, by Bishop Perry, in 1856 and 1859 respectively. In 1860 he proceeded to New Zealand; in 1871 he was appointed Archdeacon of Waimate by Bishop Cowie; and in 1882 the Lambeth degree of B.D. was conferred upon him in recognition of his services. Archdeacon Clarke's only visit to England after his leaving it in 1856 was in 1889, when he and Mrs. Clarke came, at the invitation of the Committee, for a much-needed rest and change. Mrs. Clarke died a few months after their return.

and of Mrs. S. Williams.

Another death of a veteran labourer took place a few weeks after that of Archdeacon Clarke. On the occasion of the latter's visit to England in 1889, referred to above, he and Mrs. Clarke had as travelling companions Archdeacon and Mrs. Samuel Williams, whose period of missionary service began in 1846. Archdeacon Williams had not previously visited England, neither, probably, had Mrs. Williams, who was a daughter of the first Bishop of Waiapu and a sister of the present Bishop. Mrs. Williams died on November 25th, 1900.

I. DIOCESE OF AUCKLAND.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. Maunsell and the Rev. H. A. Hawkins have been transferred from the Diocese of Waiapu to the Diocese of Auckland. The latter was admitted to Priests' Orders by the Bishop of Auckland on Trinity Sunday, June 10th, 1900. Ordination.

The Rev. Hemi Kingi Taitimu, pastor of Parengarenga, the extreme northern point of New Zealand, was taken to his rest on October 18th, 1900. He was originally a chief of the Aopour division of the Rarawa tribe. After teaching his people for some time as a lay reader, he was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1884. His death occurred three days before that of Archdeacon Clarke, by whom he was instructed before he was admitted to the sacred ministry. Death of Rev. H. K. Taitimu.

The NORTHERN DISTRICT, including the stations to the north of parallel 36° south latitude, possesses ten Maori clergy and sixty-six settled congregations. It is manifest that only a small fraction of the Sunday services can be taken by these few ordained men; the congregations depend to a large extent on the ministrations of 139 voluntary lay readers. The Rev. H. A. Hawkins, who was previously tutor in the Gisborne Training Institution, was appointed to assist the late Archdeacon Clarke in supervising the Maori work of the district, and he took up his residence at Waimate North in April, 1900. After visiting such of the clergy and congregations as could be reached from Waimate during the New Zealand winter, which corresponded with the English summer, Mr. Hawkins wrote:— Northern District.

What has struck me more forcibly than anything else is the need there is for teaching the Maori clergy. After leaving college and being ordained, they have nothing with which to keep up their studies, the Bible and Prayer-book being practically the only books translated into Maori. Thus one finds, among the older clergy especially, a lack of knowledge which in some cases is pitiable. It is with the object of lessening this ignorance that I have had some of the clergy staying here for some weeks, and have given them instruction on the Life of Christ, hints for Bible-readings and sermons, and other things which are likely to help them, and it is my intention to spend as much time as possible with each of the ten clergy of the archdeaconry, and to give them the instruction which they so greatly need. Disadvantages of Maori clergy.

The Rev. G. Maunsell removed in September, 1900, from Opotiki, in the Diocese of Waiapu, to Hamilton, in the WAIKATO DISTRICT, the very district where his father, the late Archdeacon Maunsell, and his godfathers, the late Revs. B. Y. Ashwell and J. Morgan, laboured in the thirties and onward. He made the journey of 150 miles by road viâ Rotorua Lake and passed the boundary of the diocese near Tapapa on September 1st. Memories of the past crowded upon his mind, and he wrote:— Waikato District.

Below us was the extensive plain where once Brown, Hamlin, Stack, and Ashwell painfully wrought and succeeded; across it is another high range, shutting out a view of the sea and Bay of Plenty; and there, winding through the length of it down to Auckland is the railway, the newer and rapid method of travelling, and roads, crossing and recrossing each other in all directions, and the European in evidence everywhere, by his neat farms and cattle and sheep stations, and the once proud owners of it all driven into corners partly by their own act, partly by the punishment meted out by the foreign race, as the weak ever go to the wall, but not without many a complaint. The past and the present.

A warm welcome awaited him at his destination, and throughout the district wherever he went to conduct services he met with those who had known him as a boy. But he was saddened to see the signs on every hand of the religious decline of the Maoris since the days of his childhood. He says:—

Signs of religious decline.

But how sad to find all outward evidence of religion wanting. No bell rings morning and evening for prayer and praise, no churches, few schools, and these only secular, no teachers except in the south and west on the border lands. The very Mission stations are only to be known by the trees once planted there, or by crumbling chimneys and house-blocks. Flourishing boarding-schools are known only by the estate once given by the fathers of this down-trodden race. I could not help contrasting their present remissness and sloth in good things with the energy of their fathers, for the sons or nephews of these men it was who now sat before me and listened attentively whilst I reminded them of better and more enduring riches. Their fathers' names are preserved in song and lament as teaching the law of peace and goodwill, of giving them the Book that points the way to the throne of God, at Opotiki and the Urewera.

"Their fathers' names preserved in song."

But Mr. Maunsell corroborates the testimony of the late Archdeacon Clarke as to the present accessibility of the lapsed Maoris, of whom there are some 6,000 in the Waikato and Taranaki districts. He and the two Maori missionaries, the Revs. T. Hapimana and N. Tautau, received numerous invitations from many directions to visit them. In December Mr. Maunsell went to one of their camp meetings when their "King" was present, and their Member of Parliament (a former pupil of Mr. Maunsell's) presided. On observing Mr. Maunsell, the chairman suspended the debate to give an opportunity for holding a service, which was done, and about 200 attended. The work of the Revs. H. Te Matete and R. Mokena at Hauraki, and of the Rev. H. M. Ruarangi at Kaipara in this district, is of a more settled pastoral character.

Taranaki District.

The Rev. F. A. Bennett commenced work in the TARANAKI DISTRICT in October, 1899. His station is at Bell Block, halfway between New Plymouth and Waitara. He had previously been in charge of the Maori work in the Diocese of Nelson, and being partly of Maori extraction, and his wife wholly so, they soon won the confidence and esteem of the people. This district extends over some 150 miles from north to south with a Maori population of 2,000. Before the wars all the Maoris here professed Christianity, but since 1860 they have been exceedingly hostile against the missionaries. This attitude Mr. Bennett explains as follows:—

Explanation of hostility to Christianity of some of the Maoris.

The tribes on this coast were very ferocious and warlike at one time, being often engaged in inter-tribal wars. At the preaching of the early missionaries they were led to lay down their weapons of war, they liberated their slaves, they gave up their heathen customs, they placed full confidence in the missionary. But they imagined that every pakēha was like the missionary. When they realized that there were many pakehas who had not come to seek the means that would supply the Maori with all that would tend towards elevating him, then they became suspicious. They lost their faith in the pakeha; they even suspected their missionaries. They imagined that there was a great plot to get hold of their lands. As an old Native said a short time ago, "We owe our downfall to the preaching of the whakapono (Christianity). At one time we were strong and powerful, and well versed in the art of warfare. The missionary came and taught us and told us to look up to heaven. We dropped our weapons and we looked up. While our attention was fixed on things above the Government were scratching away the land from under our feet."

The influence of Te Whiti, the Maori "prophet" of Parihaka, has for the past forty years been exceedingly strong in the district. The Maoris look upon him as "the Messiah for the lost tribes of Israel," with whom they identify themselves; and for all this long period of forty years they have assembled on the 18th of each month at Parihaka to hear his orations. These gatherings have been very large until the past few years, latterly the number thus meeting has been but small. The present generation of Maoris in this district are quite Heathen, Mr. Bennett says, in respect of ignorance of the Gospel; they are utterly illiterate, their standard of morality is very low, and they are terribly degraded through indulgences in alcoholic liquors. Mr. Bennett adds:—

Quite heathen and illiterate.

For forty years past it has been the custom to have several barrels of beer at almost every tangi or feast. These barrels of beer are placed in the marae; then several waiters are appointed to go round with buckets of beer, dipping pannikins into the beer, and giving it to every one—men, women, and even children. I have seen children of tender years drinking on these occasions.

Drinking customs.

On his first going among them Mr. Bennett met with opposition, but after a few months their attitude entirely changed.

II. DIOCESE OF WAIAPU.

On March 10th, 1901, the Bishop of Waiapu admitted Turuturu Maihi Ngaki to Deacons' Orders; and the Revs. Rameka Haumia, Tapeta Timutimu, Aperahama Tamihere, and Hemi Pititi Huata to Priests' Orders.

Ordinations.

At Gisborne the Training Institution had seven students, four of whom, it was expected, would be ordained in March, 1901. The Rev. H. A. Hawkins's place, on his transfer to Waimate, was taken by Mr. Reweti Kohere.

Gisborne Training Institution.

Te Aute is thirty-two miles south of Napier on the railway-line to Wellington. Archdeacon S. Williams, although eighty years of age, still superintends the work of the Maori College (founded by himself), which has between seventy and eighty students drawn from the advanced scholars in the Government schools all over the colony. A chapel was erected during the past year which the donors to the fund, privately raised for the purpose by the college staff without the Archdeacon's cognizance, desired should be regarded as a memorial of his work. The Rev. A. F. Williams, who is Secretary of the Mission Trust Board, as well as a member of the school staff, says that the senior Christian boys in the school conduct services on Sundays in the Maori villages within a radius of five miles of Te Aute.

Hawke's Bay District.

Archdeacon S. Williams is also the superintending missionary, assisted by the Rev. A. F. Williams, of the HAWKE'S BAY DISTRICT, which contains twenty settled Maori congregations, which are ministered to by the Revs. N. Runga and M. K. Pukerua, and seventeen lay helpers. A meeting of the Native Church Board for the Hawke's Bay Archdeaconry was held in February, 1900, at Porangahau, over which the Bishop of Waiapu presided. As was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 453), this village had neither church nor Sunday-school two years ago; it was known as a Ringatu village, that is, the people were followers of Te Kooti. Mr. Williams bears witness to the orderliness of all the proceedings at the Board meetings. Two Maori weddings took place, but there was no dancing, and no intoxicating beverage was allowed within the village; the recreations provided and enjoyed were cricket, tennis, and rounders. The church at Waipawa, mentioned in last year's Report as in course of erection, was opened in May, 1900. The cost, as originally estimated, was to be £200, but from various causes the actual cost was £405. Before the opening £220 had been raised, and this on the day of opening was made up to £500.

Taupo District.

TAUPO AND INLAND PATEA DISTRICTS, on the western side of the diocese, are also superintended by the Rev. A. F. Williams. As he could not, in consequence of Mrs. Williams' state of health, make a second visit to Taupo at the close of 1899, he sent the Rev. M. K. Pukerua, who was well received, and reported that he had splendid meetings at several villages. When Mr. Williams went in April, 1900, nearly 300 Maoris, most of them Ringatu (Te Kootiites), were assembled for the funeral of a leading chief who had the reputation of having been Te Kooti's most willing instrument in deeds of blood. He had, however, accepted from Mr. Williams a Maori Bible in February of the previous year, and promised to read it carefully. Most of the people who gathered together for his funeral listened daily to Mr. Williams' preaching. Another chief, called Te Puka, died about the same time in this district. He was one of the few in Taupo who continued faithful to their baptismal vows throughout the wars. He was "a good, earnest, and guileless old man," Mr. Williams says, and his influence will be much missed.

An earnest and guileless old man."

East Coast District.

The Rev. H. W. Williams superintends the pastorates of the EAST COAST District, which extends from Hick's Bay to Mohaka. The pastorates are eleven in number, but three of them are without resident pastors. In February, 1900, Mr. Williams was present at the opening of a new church at Taupaki, in the Nukutaurua Pastorate. The fact of special interest in the event was that the Rev. Ahipeni Rangi had built the church with his own hands, a little help being given by some of the people. Standing room was found by some 250, less than half the number present, for the short service of dedication; then the congregation adjourned to a temporary erection near at hand, put up for the accommodation of the numerous visitors, and had a service. Fifty-four subsequently received the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the new church. A choir was present from the neighbouring pastorate of Mohaka, which the Rev. Hemi P. Huata had trained, and which he led himself.

A native pastor builds a church with his own hands.

The Rev. W. Goodyear superintended the work in the BAY OF PLENTY AND ROTARUA DISTRICT. Three Maori clergy are in the district, but widely separated. One is at Maketu on the coast, just to the east of Tauranga, where Mr. Goodyear himself resides; another is at Rotarua, near the celebrated lake of that name; and the third is at Te Kaha, to the extreme east, near Cape Runaway. Mr. Goodyear finds some difficulty in filling up vacancies as they occur in the staff of voluntary lay readers. In former days, when the Maoris lived in pas, the duties of the office were easy to discharge, but now that each family aims at having a separate holding the duties are more onerous and the demands on their own time are greater. A meeting of the Native Church Board for the Archdeaconry of Tauranga was held at Maketu in April, 1900, at which the Bishop presided. The Rev. G. Maunsell was commissioned by the Bishop to open a new church at Te Kaha at the beginning of 1900. Although the church had been paid for, the Maoris could not let the occasion pass without a collection, and £150 was contributed, sufficient to complete the furnishing of the church and to erect a hall. Some who were present had travelled 150 miles.

The UREWERA DISTRICT is worked by two ordained evangelists, the Revs. A. Tamihere and T. Timutimu, who are mainly supported by the New Zealand Branch of the Gleaners' Union. Their headquarters are at Poroporo, near Whakatane. They commenced work at the close of 1898 among people who since the wars had kept themselves in seclusion, refraining from intercourse with loyal tribes around them as well as with colonists. These people have to some extent already emerged from their isolation, and have attended meetings of the Native Church. In February, 1900, the Rev. G. Maunsell visited them, at a time when they were attending a commission to investigate their land claims. They came to a service in large numbers, and a band which they had lately formed played the hymn tunes at his suggestion, and did so very creditably.

III. DIOCESE OF WELLINGTON.

Twenty years' uninterrupted work.

The Rev. A. O. Williams came on a visit to England in February, 1901, on account of his health. He was able to inform the Committee, in the course of an interview they had with him in March, that he had worked for twenty years with not more than four Sundays interruption, except from occasional illnesses.

No written report has been received of the Whanganui District.

The Rev. J. McWilliam superintends the Otaki District. He reports the death of a Maori Christian chief of high rank:—

A Christian chief's last Sunday on earth.

As an illustration of what Kereopa was all his life I may recount what happened a few days before his death. A native clergyman, Arona Te Hana, from the Whanganui district, but a relation of Kereopa's, had been with him for some time during his last illness, and had conducted services on Sundays and prayers morning and evening. On the last Sunday morning before Kereopa's death Arona was called away to the funeral of another relative, and went unknown to Kereopa, who was then lying in a state of great weakness, having been unable to take anything but a little liquid nourishment for about three days, his voice being reduced almost to a whisper. When the usual time for service arrived, however, he asked why Arona had not come, and when told of his absence he at once, after a great effort, sat up, told them to ring the bell, and when all were assembled he went through the whole service for the day, and preached a sermon from the fourth verse of the twenty-third Psalm. When it was ended he fainted away from sheer exhaustion, and was with great difficulty brought back to consciousness again.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

The Society's Missions in North-West Canada are to the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. Now the Red River district is the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese, which has been highly privileged in its two first Bishops, Dr. Anderson (1849) and Dr. Machray (1865), was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. To the two former Sees missionaries of the Society were appointed, the Rev. John Horden and the Rev. W. C. Bompas, and to the third an active co-worker in the country, Dr. McLean. Bishop McLean died in 1886, and was succeeded by Bishop Pinkham; and Bishop Horden died early in 1893, and was succeeded by Bishop Newnham, a missionary of the Society. In 1884, in pursuance of a scheme formed by the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land, the Diocese of Athabasca was divided, Dr. Bompas taking the Northern half as Bishop of Mackenzie River, and the Rev. R. Young, C.M.S. missionary, being appointed to the Southern Division as Bishop of Athabasca. The Provincial Synod of 1890 sanctioned a division of the Mackenzie River Diocese, the territories to the west of the Rocky Mountains becoming the Diocese of Selkirk, and the region to the east retaining the name of Mackenzie River. Archdeacon Reeve, a missionary of the C.M.S., was consecrated Bishop of the latter diocese in 1891, Bishop Bompas again taking the remoter diocese, that of Selkirk. In 1884 the Diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan, and has been presided over successively by Bishops Anson (1884), Burn (1893), and Grisdale (1896). In 1887 the Diocese of Calgary was carved out of that of Saskatchewan, but has not yet received its own separate Diocesan.

The Society labours in all the above-named eight dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857. In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; Fort Alexander was occupied in 1864; and Rainy Lake district in 1874. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; York, 1854; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Churchill, 1886; Blacklead Island, 1894. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermillion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875; Herschel Island, 1897. SELKIRK DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892; Moosehide (Klondyke), 1897; Caribou Crossing, 1900.

Indian population in the Dominion.

ACCORDING to the Annual Blue Book issued in 1900 by the Canadian Department for Indian Affairs, the total number of Indians in the Dominion is 100,093, which shows an increase of 729 on the returns of 1899. These are divided into more than 600 "bands," concerning each of which a careful report is furnished to the Department by an agent, with full details as to size of reserve, buildings, crops, live-stock (if any), health, occupation, morals, religion, sobriety, and schools. About one-fourth of the Indians are found in British Columbia, and nearly one-half are in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, and Ontario.

Roughly, of the 100,000 persons, 42,000 are returned as Roman Catholics, 16,000 as Anglican, 1,000 as Presbyterians, 9,000 Methodists, 1,500 various other sects, 15,000 Heathen, and 15,500 as "unknown." There are altogether 273 day-schools for Indian children.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

ARCHDEACON R. PHAIR, who with Mrs. Phair returned to Winnipeg after furlough in July, 1900, and the Rev. A. E. Cowley are joint Secretaries for the Society's work among the Indians of the Diocese of Rupert's Land and those in one small district of the Diocese of Qu'Appelle. The Archdeacon has sent home, as he usually does, an account of the work at the several stations, which has proved helpful in compiling this Annual Report.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

The Rev. J. G. Anderson has the anxious responsibility of shepherding some twelve or fourteen hundred Indians scattered over the twelve miles square of ST. PETER'S INDIAN SETTLEMENT. The proximity of Selkirk, a town where the Indians come in contact with some of the lowest and least desirable of white men, adds greatly to the labours and cares of his charge, and there are not wanting in the Settlement itself those who sow discord. Neither of these, however, are new conditions, and they afford no reason for doubting that with God's blessing St. Peter's may supply in the future as it has in the past men who will prove aggressive and efficient agents to man the distant and more isolated stations. Going northward from St. Peter's to the shores of Winnipeg Lake, and proceeding a short distance along its eastern bank, and then up the Broken Head River, the Scanterbury.

Reservation of SCANTERBURY is reached. The work makes steady progress under the Rev. R. E. Coates. A few white settlers are found near the lake shore, to whom he ministers, as well as to the half-breeds and Indians. Archdeacon Phair observes an increasing interest taken in their church by the latter. The chief, however, is still a Heathen. After crossing a portage, a day's travelling suffices to reach another Reserve of Indians at Fort Alexander.

FORT ALEXANDER, near the mouth of Winnipeg River. The Rev. E. Thomas, the Indian clergyman, has been encouraged by seeing a marked improvement during the past few years among his people. A few of them are settling down to agriculture and to raising cattle, but for the most part they still live by the chase and by fishing. This takes them frequently beyond the reach of regular instruction. There being no resident teacher speaking the Indian vernacular at Black River, Mr. Thomas visited the place—one day's journey north of Fort Alexander—once a month. All the seventeen families of Indians are Christians. At Hole River there is an Indian schoolmaster, Mr. J. Sinclair, who conducts the Sunday services. Mr. Thomas has baptized thirty-four (how many adults is not stated) on this Reserve since 1898, and has received six Roman Catholics into the Anglican Church, results which he attributes to Mr. Sinclair's life and work amongst them.

Islington.

ISLINGTON is reached by ascending the Winnipeg River about one hundred miles. It is one of the older stations, having been opened in 1853. During the past year the Christian chief Landon, whose name has often been mentioned in previous Annual Reports, and also his brother the Councillor, died. Both were helpers of the work, their example and influence being always a strong factor to be depended upon on the side of good order, temperance, and whatever made for righteousness. The Rev. J. S. Newton, a white man with a limited knowledge of the language, is in charge. He regards the proximity of the Reserve to Rat Portage, where there is a station on the Canadian Pacific Line, as largely responsible for the inconsistent lives of many of his people. The day school has an average of sixteen pupils, many being children of pagan Indians, of whom there are a goodly number in the neighbourhood. Les Dalles, an out-station of Islington, is still nearer to Rat Portage, being only nine miles distant. Their association with the white men there as employés leads the Indians into many snares of the flesh and of the devil. Les Dalles is in the Civil Province of Ontario, but within the Diocese of Rupert's Land.

Deaths of two Christian chiefs.

Temptations through white men.

Proceeding from Les Dalles the whole length of the beautiful Lake of the Woods, and up the Rainy River, which falls into it at its south-east corner, LONG SAULT is reached. The Rev. J. Johnston refers to Sunday gambling which he finds going on in houses which he visits, but the Indians give him an attentive hearing as he expounds and applies God's Word. The chief, Muh-kah-da-he-nais, or "Blackbird," an intelligent man, shows a disposition to profess the Christian faith, but lacks the moral courage to do so. Miss Johnson, a deaconess, trained at the Deaconess' Training Homes, Toronto, and sent out by the Canada C.M. Association, conducts the day-school, which is supported by the Government. There are schools also at Manito Rapids Reserve and at Little Forks Reserve. At Hungry Hall Reserve, where the Rainy River falls into the Lake of the Woods, there has been no agent for several years, and there is no Government school there, but Mr. Johnston visits it about once a month, and has been encouraged by several Indians who had lapsed through neglect returning to the fold. Some of these manifested the grace of Christ by showing pity on a blind and helpless Indian, who was also afflicted with an incurable disease; they took him to their home and instructed him, and Mr. Johnston on one of his visits baptized him.

Returning to Les Dalles, WABIGOON is most easily reached by train along the Canadian Pacific line, travelling eastward. The railway station is at Dinorwie, where the Rev. E. C. R. Pritchard resides, which is four and a half miles from the Indians' reserve. Mr. Pritchard during the past two years has met with much opposition from the chief and councillors, but latterly the Indians have begun to attend services in the school-house, and the younger men show a desire to possess books and to learn hymns, &c. At Eagle Lake, to the south of the railway, the catechist finds his work much impeded by the sale of intoxicants to the Indians; but the Government are taking more active steps to stop the traffic. The Indians at Frenchman's Head, another out-station, are all Christians, and they show a laudable ambition to have comfortable and sanitary dwellings. On the return journey to Lake Winnipeg, LAC SEUL, or "Lonely Lake," may easily be visited from Islington (which stands at the point of meeting of three provinces, those of Manitoba, Ontario, and Keewatin) by ascending the English River, which forms the northern boundary of the Province of Ontario. The Rev. T. H. Pritchard has been in charge for several years, and the Indians value his ministry. There are two good schools in his district.

About halfway up the western shore of Winnipeg Lake is Jack Head, where an earnest Indian evangelist finds much to encourage him. Proceeding up the river which unites that lake with Cedar Lake and with Lake Manitoba, at the point where the stream passes from the latter lake, FAIRFORD is reached, still, as for many years past, under the charge of the Rev. G. Bruce. There are very few heathen Indians at this station, and Mr. Bruce finds no difficulty in arranging for the carrying on of the services when he visits the out-stations, as the voluntary helpers are never reluctant to render assistance in this way. Nevertheless, he remarks that the Indian Christians generally show a want of stability and of capacity to discern between good and evil, and are easily tempted to wrong-doing. They are very poor, being dependent for subsistence on the fish and the fur-bearing animals, which are rapidly disappearing. The weekly offertories amounted to $30 in the course of the year, besides a thanksgiving offertory of $10. Staggville, fifty miles from Fairford, has a resident catechist. At Dog Creek Reserve, eighty miles distant, the work is sustained by voluntary helpers, especially by one young man, on whose work a blessing seems to rest. Mr. Bruce baptized three adults at this place in February, 1901. The other out-stations are Crane River, Lower Fairford, and St. Martin's Lake.

Touchwood Hills.

The only station occupied in the Diocese of Qu'Appelle is that of Touchwood Hills. The Rev. E. H. Bassing says the Indians are for the most part very willing hearers of the Gospel, but show little desire to embrace it. Mr. Bassing travelled 5,000 miles during the year visiting the Reserves.

II. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

Bishop Newnham's journeyings.

The Bishop of Moosonee, the Right Rev. J. A. Newnham, after attending the Provincial Synod in Winnipeg in the summer of 1899, left that city on August 17th for Churchill, viâ Lake Winnipeg, Norway House, Oxford House, Hayes River, and Fort York, a journey of 900 miles, in an open canoe. After three months spent at Churchill the Bishop walked back to Fort York, a distance of 200 miles, on snow-shoes. He left Fort York in May, and arrived at Winnipeg once more on July 25th, and at Montreal, where Mrs. Newnham and his family were, on August 3rd. He started soon afterwards for Moose, which he reached in September. He was accompanied by the Rev. T. Bird Holland, an English clergyman, who is supported by the Diocesan Fund. In January, 1901, the Bishop left Moose for Toronto, en route for England, to take furlough after ten years of physically arduous work, broken only by one visit of a few weeks' duration to attend the Lambeth Conference in 1897. How arduous the travelling is along the interminable lakes and rivers, and over the boundless tracks of snow, only a careful perusal of the Bishop's journals, which appear from time to time in the Moosonee Mailbag, could fully reveal. A few words from a letter written from York Factory in April, 1900, and referring to his journey from Winnipeg to Churchill in August and September, 1899, and from Churchill to Fort York in January, 1900, and making some comments thereon, may be quoted:—

> In our journey in open boat in September along the bleak and barren shores to Churchill (I had a lady, Mrs. Chapman, and two children with me, who bore the trial bravely and cheerfully) we had quite wintry weather—hard frosts, snowstorms, and gales of wind—quite suited to the Polar bears we saw on different days, but not suited to us, for we could have no fire on the boat to warm us, only a few sticks now and then to boil our kettle. Nor could we have even a cotton tent every night. I was very glad indeed to land my charges at Churchill in good health and spirits after such a rough experience for their first outset in missionary life. Of course, in my seven days' walk in January we had no tent, but slept in the open air, the thermometer registering sixty degrees of frost. I had rather pictured to myself a blazing fire all night and my feet and back roasting while the rest of me froze. That was the state of things while we supped and sat over the fire, but when we rolled ourselves in our blankets, and covered up head and all so as not to lose nose or ears, the fire for the sake of safety was allowed to go out, and bitter must have been the man's work in turning out and starting it in the morning, for I found it bitter even when the fire had begun to burn up. No, I do not admire such a life; it is romantic at first, and there is a certain sort of pleasure in the novelty of the thing. We had tremendous appetites, and managed to keep up an air of jollity, and I am glad to have had the experience. But it is more or less physical misery most of the time. Twenty-five to thirty-five miles a day on snow-shoes, at a brisk walk (when you are not running), tends to snow-shoe cramp, sorely blistered feet, and general fatigue when you reach camp. Meals, when knives and forks at 40 deg. below zero freeze your fingers and almost skin your lips, and getting your frozen food out of your bag is painful to the fingers, and your cooked and scorched meat freezes on your plate before you have finished—such meals are not luxurious. Scorching your face and eyes over a fire, and blinding yourself with smoke while your back is freezing, is not comfort. And alternate spells of shivering and shaking and of short naps are not sleep. However, barring the loss of a good deal of the epidermis of my soles from blisters, and of my face from frost-bites, I was in no way the worse, but perhaps the better, for the jaunt.

"It is more or less physical misery most of the time."

Archdeacon Lofthouse's visit to the Barren Lands.

At the Bishop's request Archdeacon J. Lofthouse, who came home in December, 1900, sailed again in May, 1901, to occupy Moose Factory during the Bishop's absence. The Archdeacon's coming home in December was a consequence and the conclusion of a year of very remarkable experiences in the way of travelling. It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (page 462) that he had joined an expedition sent out by the Canadian Government to survey the country between Great Slave Lake and Baker Lake, his object being to ascertain the whereabouts of the Eskimo and Indians in that almost unknown tract of country. Mr. J. W. Tyrrell, D.L.S., was the leader of the expedition, and its only other member, besides Archdeacon Lofthouse, was Mr. C. E. Fairchild; two half-breeds from St. Peter's Settlement forming the complement of the party. They left Winnipeg by train on February 6th, 1900, and reached Edmonton on the 8th. There a week was spent, and they started for Lac la Biche with two teams of horses, a distance of 170 miles, on the 16th. They spent Sunday, the 18th, at Wastok, with a settlement of Gallicians, most of them members of the Greek Church, who were building a church and parsonage in preparation for the arrival of a priest of that Church. From La Biche they started, on February 26th, to walk 700 miles in snow-shoes to Fort Resolution. This walk took five weeks, and the goal was reached on April 1st, the Archdeacon being lighter by eight pounds from the exertion. From that place they proceeded over the ice of the river with dogs. The Archdeacon spent Easter Day on White Island, in the Great Slave Lake, some fifty miles in advance of the party, and greatly enjoyed the Easter Day service with his sole companion, one of the two half-breeds. Fort Reliance—built by Captain Back in the winter of 1833-34, when in search of Sir John Ross, but now only the chimneys remain—was reached on May 7th. On May 24th the Queen's Birthday was kept close to the western entrance to Artillery Lake. They indulged in three cheers for Her Majesty, and wondered if peace was made in South Africa; then they enjoyed a plum-pudding, which had been carried 1,100 miles for the occasion! On June 1st they had a heavy fall of snow. On the 9th they reached the edge of the Barren Lands, where no wood of any kind is to be found, and they had to cook their meals with moss. On Midsummer Day they were on Clinton Colden Lake; the sun rose at 1 a.m. and set at 10.30 p.m., and photographs were taken at midnight. About this time they crossed the portages which form the watershed of the rivers east and west, and then began to descend towards Aberdeen Lake and Chesterfield Inlet. On July 12th they met on Thelon River a party of Eskimo, and it transpired that nearly all of them had been to Churchill. The Archdeacon wrote in his Journal:—

Queen's Birthday observed.

Meeting with Eskimo.

A "little Church in the wilderness."

12th.—A most eventful day for me. About 4 p.m. we suddenly came upon a large camp of Eskimo. On the south bank of the river hundreds of deer were lying dead, and the stench from them was awful. At first we thought they were killed by the Eskimo, but found out afterwards they had been washed down a rapid in spring and drowned. Some of the Eskimo came off to us in their kayaks, and I at once recognized two of them. For a minute or two they looked at us in surprise, then one shouted out, "Iksearеak" ("Minister"), and at once there was a race back to camp to carry the joyful news. By the time we reached the camp all were down at the water's edge, and when we got within a few yards the women rushed into the water and dragged our canoes ashore. To my great surprise I found Pingawaluk, or "Cheese-cloth," and his family, whom I baptized five years ago at Churchill. Altogether there were about thirty-five souls, and nearly all of them had been to our Mission station. The welcome they gave me was a rich reward for all the weary journeying to reach them. Our party went on, but I stayed about three hours, having a most delightful service with them, after which three of the men took me to our camp. Lashing three of their kayaks together, we floated quickly down the swift stream. I was very pleased to find here, some 800 miles from Churchill, a "little Church in the wilderness," far removed from any teacher. They were trying to live up to the teaching they had received, keeping Sunday and having evening prayers, and learning to read the Word of God in their own tongue; but one could not help feeling how hard it was to leave them thus alone year after year, and how little chance they had of growing in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Truly ours is a work of faith and dependence on the Holy Spirit's power.

On the 21st they came upon another camp of Eskimo, none of whom had Archdeacon Lofthouse met before, yet he found that one of them possessed a book which had been derived, probably at second or third hand, from the Rev. E. J. Peck. On July 31st the Archdeacon reached the mouth of Chesterfield Inlet, from which he had planned to make his way to Marble Island, fifty miles distant, and thence to proceed to Churchill. He found, however, that it was impossible to obtain a boat, or kayak, wherein to reach Marble Island, and he had sorrowfully to turn back and overtake his former companions, which he did at Artillery Lake on September 5th. At Fort Reliance they remained till September 15th for a steamer which it had been arranged should meet them there. The Archdeacon wrote of this little log shanty, the first house they had seen for nearly four months, that "it seemed a veritable palace, though there are lots of people in England who would have made no end of complaints if they had been asked to put their pigs into it, not to mention horses or cows." They were detained five weeks at Fort Chipewyan, until the ice covered the lakes and rivers, when they resumed their snow-shoes, and started on their tramp of 500 miles to Lac la Biche. They reached Winnipeg on December 10th, having travelled 7,000 miles in the ten months since they left it, of which 5,000 miles were by canoe or on snow-shoes. Archdeacon Lofthouse was persuaded by the Archbishop of Rupert's Land to come home from Winnipeg and take a much-needed rest, rather than proceed north again to his station, as he thought of doing. Although his plans had in some respects been thwarted, the Archdeacon felt that the knowledge he had obtained of the Eskimo had amply rewarded him for the labours and privations and dangers of his lengthened travels.

Archdeacon T. Vincent, after more than forty years spent in the missionary work of Moosonee Diocese, has felt obliged, through the increasing infirmities of age, to retire. He was for some years a lay worker at Moose, and then the Rev. (afterwards Bishop) J. Horden trained him for the Ministry. Bishop Anderson, of Rupert's Land, admitted him to Deacons' Orders in 1860, and to Priests' Orders in 1863. In 1883 Bishop Horden appointed him Archdeacon of Moose. The Committee have highly valued his zealous and persevering labours to shepherd the Christian Indians on the western side of St. James's Bay, and they pray that in his well-earned retirement the Master Whose Gospel he has so long sought to disseminate may bring ever-fresh joy to his own soul.

Retirement of Archdeacon Vincent.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Walton sailed in June, 1900, and the Rev. E. J. Peck in July, to return to the Mission. Mr. C. G. Sampson, who came home in October, has retired from the work.

The Bishop of Moosonee admitted Mr. Frederick Swindlehurst to Deacons' Orders on September 16th, 1900, and Mr. William Renison, also to Deacons' Orders, on the 23rd, at Moose Fort. Both had worked in the Mission as lay readers, Mr. Renison being acquainted both with the Cree and Ojibeway languages. After his ordination Mr. Swindlehurst went to Montreal for a period of further training in theology.

Ordinations.

During the greater part of the year, as already stated, the Bishop was absent from Moose Fort, engaged in visiting the northern stations of the diocese. The Rev. R. Renison was in charge of the station until September, 1900, when the Bishop arrived from Montreal, accompanied by the Rev. T. B. Holland, whom he placed in charge, and Mr. Renison succeeded Archdeacon Vincent in the charge of ALBANY. The Rev. W. Renison was sent after his ordination to occupy RUPERT'S HOUSE. From none of these stations have Annual Letters been received.

Biscotasing.

BISCOTASING is on the Canadian Pacific Railway, a fact which attracts to it Indians, some of whom come to get employment under the white settlers and to sell any furs they may have taken, and some merely to gratify their curiosity by seeing the trains pass and observing the doings of the white people. Their coming is not always for their good by any means, but some of them are led to attend the services, and from this cause mainly the Rev. J. Sanders finds the church accommodation becoming inadequate. The railway authorities are good enough to allow Mr. Sanders to travel without charge to visit the out-stations.

Fort George.

At FORT GEORGE, on the east side of St. James's Bay, a blacksmith employed by the Hudson's Bay Company conducted the Sunday and week-day services during the Rev. W. G. Walton's absence in England on furlough, and when he returned in September he was gratified to learn that the attendance had been as regular as before he left the station. Mr. Walton observed a great improvement in the responding and singing of the congregation after he had distributed some Prayer-books with hymns which he had printed. It was remarked that there was "some thunder in the church now." A good number of Eskimo visited Great Whale River in the winter of 1899–1900, and were instructed daily by a Christian Eskimo named Moses. Two of the visitors travelled 500 miles to enjoy the privilege of instruction. Mr. Walton says he has even known them travel 800 miles for the same purpose, and take two years to do it! A sign of the Gospel's power over these Eskimo was shown in the spring of 1900, when a young man who had put away his wife was summoned to a meeting, and expostulated and argued with, and persuaded to take her back, which he did. Remembering the acts of gross immorality which were formerly practised without shame by these people, even after they had heard the Gospel, Mr. Walton was much encouraged by this incident. Moses, the teacher referred to above, unhappily, while suffering from hunger, ate some putrid meat, the effects of which proved fatal, and his wife and four children died from the same cause.

Travelling five hundred miles for the privilege of instruction.

A teacher's death due indirectly to privation.

The Bishop's visit to YORK FACTORY, extending from January to May, 1900, was a great event in the annals of the station. He made the acquaintance of the Indians by calling at their houses, and held a Bible-class for adults each Sunday evening. There were no Cree candidates for confirmation, but four of the English employés of the Hudson's Bay Company were confirmed. The Rev. R. Faries says the Indian Christians (there are no Heathen at the station) are quiet and undemonstrative, and on the part of some of them there is a strong tendency to superstition. The Bible and Prayer-book are regarded by them as charms rather than as means of edification or helps to devotion. A case is mentioned of a lad who was suffering from epileptic fits: a Bible was placed under his head, a Prayer-book on his breast, and a New Testament between his shoulders, and the cure was attributed to these means after prayer had proved unavailing and remedies useless! At Christmas and Easter every communicant makes a point of coming to the station to partake of the Sacrament, some walking 200 miles for the purpose. During the summer, while navigation is open, all the Indians are at the Fort, and at that time daily services and classes are held for their instruction. In the late autumn, when the colder temperature drives the fish up the river, they are busy for two or three weeks reaping their fish harvest, on which they depend for subsistence during the winter. A few rabbits or partridges are occasionally, but rarely, met with to vary the diet. In July Mr. Faries visited Fort Severn, distant about 300 miles south of York Factory on the coast of the Bay. The journey took fourteen days in an open sailing boat. From 200 to 300 Indians make that place their centre, about half of whom are Roman Catholics. Mr. Faries found much ignorance and superstition prevalent among the Church of England members, and he had to refuse the Holy Communion to some who were living in sin. Sixteen, whose consistent lives and knowledge of the truth entitled them to be regarded as fit recipients, were admitted to the Holy Table. The return journey to York Mr. Faries did on foot in ten days, finding hospitality now and then in Indian wigwams and friendly help on the journey from the inmates. Mr. Faries also paid a visit to the South Lakes, a group of lakes about 120 miles south of York Factory. He found the Indians in a state approaching starvation, but was struck with their cheerfulness. He wrote:—

Superstitious practices of Christian Indians.

Cheerful and trustful while suffering severely from lack of food.

> It was wonderful to see how happy these people were in spite of the hardships and privations they had gone through. They lived from "hand to mouth" in its truest sense, and yet they told me that they believed that God would provide for them. "Does He not care for the little birds and plants? How much more will He care for His children!" Many a time had they gone to bed without knowing where to-morrow's food would come from, but they believed that their prayers would be answered, and that the Heavenly Father would provide for them. And according to their faith so it happened, the morrow always brought with it sufficient to live on.

At CHURCHILL Mr. C. N. Chapman held 101 services in English, 28 in Chipewyan, and 22 in Eskimo during the year ending August, 1900, the numbers indicating plainly the fact that the Indians and Eskimo are at the station for only a few months of the year, while the employés of the H.B. Company are there, of course, all the year through. For the children of the latter Mr. Chapman held a day school. Summer is the busy time, both Indians and Eskimo are then camped at Churchill, and four services are held and Sunday-school, besides visits to their tents and iglows. The Huskies (Eskimo) are more intelligent than the Chipewyans, but are harder to convince or persuade. Mr. Chapman had an Eskimo boy living with him for a year, but then the lad's parents, to his own and Mr. Chapman's great sorrow, took him away. Bishop Newnham arrived at Churchill on the last day of September, 1900, and remained until the following January. During his visit a large party of Chipewyans, having heard that "the praying great chief" was there, came in, and the Bishop improved the opportunity of teaching them. He wrote:—

The Bishop with a class of Chipewyans.

I wish you could have seen us [Mr. Chapman and the Bishop] of an evening in the bitterly cold room surrounded by twenty-seven faces belonging to men or lads clad in hairy (undressed) deer-skin coats, all as near the stove as we could get, yet many almost freezing, and yet listening attentively by the hour. One meeting I tried to turn into a sort of "revival" or "mission," and to get some of the young men to decide and openly to accept Christ as their Saviour. I gathered that a few of them believed in Him in a way, as far as they understood how, yet I could not get them to make open confession. One evening I asked them what particular subject they wanted information about. Fancy my surprise on their saying, "The Second Coming of Christ!" Not indeed that they knew of, or wanted to be enlightened as to, the controverted and difficult order or details of the Advent; but they knew that we believe and teach His Return and the final blessedness of His saints, and they wanted to know something about this. One said, "We always hear of what God has done. We want to know what He is going to do." Well, they were most attentive while I told them what we believe about the Second Coming. As the daily meetings went on I was much encouraged at finding that Lofthouse's teaching had sunk much deeper into their minds and hearts than I had expected.

Indians desire instruction about the Second Advent.

Three of their number were confirmed on December 21st, and the next day the Holy Communion was administered to seven, four of them having been confirmed on a previous occasion. The Bishop believes these were the first of the Chipewyan nation to receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the Moosonee Diocese.

First Chipewyans to receive the Holy Communion.

Archdeacon Lofthouse's arrival was eagerly looked for at Churchill in August according to the plans he had announced, and his non-appearance caused considerable anxiety. Food had been sent out, and a boat with an Eskimo crew despatched to meet him at a point far north of Churchill. Unhappily he had no knowledge of these thoughtful arrangements, or he would have been spared the necessity for repeating a journey of some thousands of miles.

Blacklead Island.

BLACKLEAD ISLAND, in Cumberland Sound, was occupied by two lay missionaries, Mr. C. G. Sampson and Mr. J. W. Bilby, after October, 1899, when the Rev. E. J. Peck left to come home, until August, 1900, when he arrived back again. A few weeks after Mr. Peck's return Mr. Sampson sailed for home. School was carried on during the winter months with between sixty and seventy pupils, who learned the syllabic and Roman characters and numerals, wrote accounts of our Lord's miracles and parables, &c., from memory, and read and transcribed the Gospels and the Acts. As in the previous year, a soup-kitchen was opened in November, and 1,647 meals were given before the end of the year. The "Sedna" feast described in the Annual Report of 1898–99 (page 421), which was discontinued in 1899, was again celebrated in the early autumn of 1900, though many of the Natives who had been under Christian instruction absented themselves. Mr. Bilby spent four weeks at Kikkerton in February and March, 1900. A church was built for use during his stay, and also an iglow for his own occupation, "like two large beehives," he wrote, "side by side." They were both constructed of blocks of snow, but box lids were fitted to serve as doors, and a pair of handcuffs borrowed from a trader made a lock to protect from the depredations of dogs, to whom the lamp oil was too great an attraction.

III. DIOCESES OF SASKATCHEWAN AND CALGARY.

The Society's expenditure in two Canadian dioceses.

THE Society's endeavours to diminish its pecuniary liabilities in some of the Canadian dioceses or to transfer them to the colonial settlers have not hitherto had much practical effect. It is true, as the Bishop of Saskatchewan and Calgary pointed out in a letter to the Record newspaper in the spring of 1901, that in the past twelve years grants have been withdrawn from his dioceses amounting in the aggregate to £783, but the sum withdrawn was an extremely small fraction of that expended, which amounted in that period in the two dioceses to £42,800. The grants to Calgary Diocese have as yet suffered no deduction.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview with Bishop Pinkham in May, 1900.

Ordination.

The Bishop admitted the Rev. S. J. Stocken to Priests' Orders at Calgary on December 21st (St. Thomas' Day), 1900.

At PRINCE ALBERT the charge of Emmanuel College devolved during the year under review on the Rev. J. Taylor, transferred from Sandy Lake, and Archdeacon J. A. Mackay devoted his time to visiting the stations. An Indian schoolmaster, a former student at Emmanuel College, was at Nepowewin, where the two great branches of the Saskatchewan, the North and South, unite their waters, and he also conducted services and engaged in evangelistic work as he had time and opportunity. There are still a few Heathen at the station. At St. James's, on the other hand, every vestige of Heathenism has disappeared, though strong drink has its victims. The Rev. J. Badger, the pastor, though the vigour of younger days has departed, does occasional itinerating, and the chief assists in his absence in conducting the services. The Rev. D. D. Macdonald took charge of Sandy Lake in succession to the Rev. J. Taylor at the close of 1899. The services were well attended throughout the year. In the summer the Indians encamp on Sundays near the church, bringing their food, so as to be able to attend both morning and evening services and to allow of their children attending the Sunday-school. At Big River, Heathenism is still strong and the heathen dances are continued. There are a few Christians who persevere in their profession notwithstanding many temptations.

A Sunday encampment near the church.

The Rev. R. McLennan continues to labour at STANLEY, a station on the Churchill river. The Bishop paid a visit to it in August, but it was unfortunately timed, as the people were all at Lac La Ronge, to which place both Archdeacon Mackay and Mr. McLennan think the headquarters should be removed, as the movement of the population is in that direction. There is a small band of converts amidst a much larger population of Roman Catholics, with two resident priests, at Pelican Narrows. Archdeacon Mackay mentions a striking incident that came under his notice:—

> In August last I happened to be at Pelican Narrows when the Indian Department inspector was there to organize the band, only lately admitted to treaty, and appoint a chief and head-men. These Indians, like most of the wood Indians, had no chiefs originally, and they were allowed to elect a chief and two councillors. The Romish priests, as usual, did their best to influence the election and to get nominees of their own appointed; but, very singularly, the chief and councillors were elected from among our people, although a considerable majority of the voters were Romanists.

Protestant head-men appointed by Roman Catholic Indians.

The work in the lower valley of the river, after the North and South Saskatchewan have united at Nepowewin, is under the Rev. J. Hines, who resides at DEVON. Outwardly there is much to encourage—well-attended services and a goodly number of communicants—but Mr. Hines sees much also to bemoan. He says:—

Devon.

> Truthfulness and honesty are virtues almost foreign to their nature, and I have no doubt this is the case with the majority of Indians in this district. These virtues are killed by their system of barter. One thing above all others troubles me much; it is this: I have only known one instance, during my eleven years' residence here among them, of an up-grown person expressing any concern about his sins when approaching death. No matter how profligate their lives may have been, they are all going to heaven when they die. They express no doubt about it, and there is no fear of death before their eyes. I fear for many of them, lest, like Ignorance in Pilgrim's Progress, they may find a way to hell, from what they imagine to be the gate of heaven. There have been many, however, whose lives and humble dependence on Christ's finished work justified such confidence for their future happiness. Another thing causes me much concern; it is this: the line of demarcation between the communicants and the ungodly professors of religion is so ill-defined. I frequently tell my communicants that, if they would not associate with the vile and vicious in their convivialities, the vile and vicious would soon find themselves becoming conspicuous for their evil-doings, and would eventually become ashamed of themselves; but as it is, the fact of their associating with them encourages them in their evil ways.

At Grand Rapids, some 120 miles below Devon, the Saskatchewan falls into Lake Winnipeg. The lay catechist and schoolmaster there, Mr. Isbister, has an uphill work. A number of fishing companies are stationed near, and steamboats ply in the summer between Grand Rapids and Manitoba. The demoralizing influence of the whites is a serious drawback, and Mr. Hines says that in judging of the work it should be remembered to what a depth of degradation the people would be likely to fall if the Mission agent were withdrawn—"to hold his own against such a torrent of vice is something for which we must be thankful." Cedar Lake, under the Rev. C. J. Pritchard, is some seventy miles up the river from its mouth. It has a school under an English schoolmaster, Mr. Hooker, who is a great help to Mr. Pritchard. Only one Heathen is left at this place, and only two at Moose Lake, where a schoolmaster and catechist is stationed. The Indians at Cumberland are very migratory in their habits, and in consequence there is at present no school at the station. The Rev. J. R. Settee finds the Roman Catholics very aggressive, but their efforts to draw away his people meet with no success, except now and then when intermarriages occur. Mr. Hines and Mr. Settee visit in turn Shoal Lake and Red Earth, at the foot of the Pas Mountain; at each place there is a school, and the teachers conduct services. Mr. Hines refers to a project of constructing a railway from the Saskatchewan to Hudson's Bay, and he looks forward to its realization with fear and trembling for his Indians.

Demoralizing influence of white men.

Battleford is at the junction of the Battle River with the North Saskatchewan River. It has an important Industrial School with one hundred and thirty Indian pupils. The Government entirely supports it on the per capita system, but the Principal, the Rev. E. Matheson, a brother of the Rev. J. R. Matheson, of Fort Pitt, has made it a strong missionary centre. The Indians on the Red Pheasant's Reserve are in advance of those at many other stations in civilization. The Rev. R. Inkster sees much also to encourage him in the consistent Christian walk of many of them. A school-teacher and catechist is at Thunderchild's Reserve, from which the Rev. D. D. Macdonald was removed in 1899. There is a strong Romish Mission close by.

Battleford.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Matheson have gathered round them at FORT PITT a band of earnest fellow-workers, three of whom are ladies, two from Ontario and one from England; and the result is, Archdeacon Mackay testifies, that the station has become an oasis in the desert. The boarding school has over fifty-five pupils. On one evening a week there are simultaneous prayer-meetings at three places on the Reserve, and on another evening the Sunday-school teachers have their meeting. Mrs. Matheson's medical and surgical knowledge is constantly in request. The Heathen, who, when Mr. Matheson first went to the station, were quite opposed and refused to listen to the white man's religion, "as they saw enough of it whenever they went where the white man was," now give the missionary most cordial invitations to visit them, and when they are at Fort Pitt attend the services.

BLACKFOOT CROSSING is on the Bow River, an affluent of the South Saskatchewan River, and in the Diocese of Calgary. No Annual Letter has been received from Canon H. W. G. Stocken. His brother, the Rev. S. J. Stocken, who has assisted in the work among the Blackfeet and the Sarcee Indians since 1887, was appointed in June, 1900, to the charge of St. John's Boys' Home, in succession to the Rev. C. H. P. Owen, who retired. He has twenty-two boys under his care in the Home, whose ages vary from six to fifteen years. On Sunday morning there is an English service, and in the evening it is in Blackfoot. Mr. Stocken also takes an English service once a fortnight for settlers at Gleichen, ten miles distant from the Crossing.

Archdeacon J. W. Tims, at the SARCEE RESERVE, reports well of the converts received into the Church from among the Sarcees during the past few years. They continue regular in their attendance on the means of grace, and are recognized as the best workers on the Reserve. The St. Barnabas Boys' Home had only thirteen inmates after five of the boys had been drafted into the Calgary Indian Industrial School. In this last-named institution forty Indian boys, from fourteen to eighteen years of age, all drafted from Mission schools, are being trained at Government expense. Thirteen adult Indians were baptized at the Peigan Reserve on November 26th, 1900, and on the same day the Bishop confirmed nine candidates. Archdeacon Tims wrote a few days later:—

Sarcee Reserve.

> I have just returned from another visit to the Peigan Indians, amongst whom there seems to be a real seeking after God. The Indian service which was held there last Sunday was the most hearty I have ever been present at. There were ninety-one Indians present. The Indians were very anxious to have a church built there, and they have already cut and hauled logs to the spot where they wish it erected. I hope that in the spring the work of erection will go forward. A Blackfoot Christian, Daniel Axe, was present at our meeting, and promised that when the church was erected he and his wife would present an American organ to lead the singing. He is now a well-to-do Indian, and recently disposed of some steers which brought him five hundred dollars. He is the owner of over one hundred head of cattle, and does not hesitate to give God the praise for all his success. He gave a most interesting address to the other Indians, quoting our Lord's words, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

The Archdeacon has translated the Litany into the Peigan vernacular, and revised "Readings from Holy Scripture," which the S.P.C.K. is printing.

At FORT MCLEOD the Rev. A. de B. Owen has fifty children under his care in the Kissock Home. One of them interprets for Mr. Owen at an Indian service which he conducts.

IV. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

BISHOP YOUNG sailed from England in April, 1900, to visit the stations of his diocese, possibly for the last time. On June 18th he held his fourth Diocesan Synod at Lesser Slave Lake, and on July 22nd he admitted the Rev. A. S. White to Priests' Orders. Mr. White, who possesses a good knowledge of Cree, succeeds the Rev. M. Scott at Fort Vermillion. Mr. Scott, in consequence of his own and Mrs. Scott's ill health, has been obliged to retire from the work, much to the Bishop's and the Committee's regret.

Lesser Slave Lake.

The forebodings which distressed the Rev. G. Holmes, of LESSER SLAVE LAKE, at the close of 1899, as to the effects on his Boys' Home of the Indians there accepting the "treaty" privileges offered by Government were not realized. The grant from the Indian Department was lost, it is true, for the per capita grant of seventy-two dollars could only be claimed in respect of "treaty" children, whereas of the thirty-eight children in the home thirty-seven were children of Indians or half-breeds who had elected to accept "scrip" in lieu of "treaty." But by the generous help of private friends, instead of retrenching as he had feared would be necessary, he added a wing to the building, making it capable of accommodating fifty boys. He is helped by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. White and Miss Durtnall. Another grave cause for anxiety in 1899 was the wholesale importation of liquor, but this was arrested by the conviction of four parties of illicit whisky vendors. The services were better attended than in any previous year, and the number of communicants rose from fourteen to thirty-five. Thirty-four former members of the Church of Rome were publicly received into the Church during the winter of 1899–1900. Bishop Young confirmed twenty-nine candidates in June, 1900. Mr. Holmes has written (see C.M. Gleaner for December, 1900) a very painful account of the sufferings and terrible fate of some of those who visited the district between 1898 and 1900 in search of gold. About eight miles from his station a small town called "Willow Point" grew up during this period, and he held services there from time to time which were greatly appreciated.

At WHITE FISH LAKE the Rev. W. G. White baptized fifteen adults and received nine persons who had been baptized by the priests, but were practically Heathen, as they had had no instruction either before or after their baptism. In January Mr. White went with dog trains to visit the Fish Lake, a distance of 120 miles of "lake, muskeg, and bush." He found four families of Indians, who told him that his was the first visit from a white man they had received. He spent one night under the roof of the Indian who, in the winter of 1895–96, killed his son at Trout Lake from a sense of superstitious fear (see Annual Report of 1897–98, page 421). White Fish Lake is described by Mr. Holmes of Lesser Slave Lake as a "most encouraging field, almost entirely Christian and Protestant, and about the only place in the diocese where the Roman Catholic priests have left us to ourselves."

First visit from a white man.

WAPUSKAW, on the contrary, is one of the strongest Roman Catholic centres in this part of the diocese, and the Rev. C. Weaver meets with much opposition. It is an encouraging fact, under these circumstances, that a majority of the unbaptized Indians show a decided preference for the Protestant Mission, and Mr. Weaver is able to report that, "on the whole, progress has been made." The Roman Catholic father of one of the two girls who were committed to Mr. Weaver for training in his home in 1897 (see Annual Report for 1897–98, page 421) sought admission for himself and his son and daughter into the Church of England at the beginning of 1900. Mr. Weaver says of him, "He is a very fine man, and did not make the move rashly, but after serious consideration." Mr. Holmes states that nearly all the "Treaty" Indians of Shaftesbury, on the Peace River, have joined the communion of the Church of England. The Rev. D. Currie has retired from the work, and the Rev. H. Robinson has succeeded him in the charge of this station on Smoky River.

At FORT CHIPEWYAN the adherents of the Mission are either Europeans or half-breeds, the Indians being all Roman Catholics. The Rev. A. J. Warwick reports that the congregation appreciate their privileges, coming in from their fishing or hunting from Saturday till Monday in order to enjoy the services. The prayer-meetings and Bible-classes are also well attended. A missionary collection, to be divided between the B. & F.B.S. and the C.M.S. amounted to $71. The attitude of the Romanist Indians is friendly, due doubtless in large measure to Mrs. Warwick being a qualified nurse. Archdeacon Loft-house's stay of five weeks at the Fort in October and November, 1900, on his return journey from the far north, was a great source of refreshment to the spirits of the isolated workers, and his sermons were much enjoyed by the people.

V. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

BISHOP REEVE purchased from some miners a small undecked steamer to facilitate communication with the missionaries at the different stations of his diocese. To this acquisition it was largely due that the Bishop was able to hold a Conference of his clergy in June, 1900, for in this little boat, the Ella Ya, the Bishop travelled from Fort Simpson to Fort McPherson, a distance of nearly 800 miles, picking up the Rev. and Mrs. W. Spendlove, of Fort Norman, on the way. Except the Rev. T. J. Marsh, all the clergy assembled at the Conference for a few days' hallowed intercourse and united prayer. The Rev. I. O. Stringer had journeyed 200 miles from his still more northern station on Herschel Island. The Conference was opened on St. Peter's Day, June 29th, with Morning Prayer and Holy Communion. The service was in English, but, notwithstanding that, the church was crowded with Indians, and for them the Bishop's sermon from Phil. iv. 1–8 was interpreted. In the night, while the midnight sun was shining, a prayer-meeting was held in the Tukudh language. On the following day the Bishop gave his address, which was followed by speeches from the Revs. W. Spendlove, I. O. Stringer, and C. E. Whittaker. Then Archdeacon R. McDonald raised a note of praise for success granted which he had lived to see. He gratefully recalled and testified how the Gospel had spread down the mighty Yukon as far as Behring's Strait, up towards its head-waters amongst the famous gold-fields, along the banks of the Porcupine and the Peel rivers, so that there were many who, themselves or their fathers once Heathen, could now say, "I know Whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him." He also spoke of the danger of relapse on account of the influence of ungodly miners.

The Committee, in deference to the united requests of Bishops Young and Reeve, transferred the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Lucas from the Diocese of Athabasca to that of Mackenzie River, and they sailed from home after furlough in June, 1900, to occupy FORT SIMPSON.

Hay River

The Rev. T. J. Marsh, after seven years spent at HAY RIVER, can render praise for much blessing on his work. He writes:—

> Seven years ago last June I was landed here in the midst of a small Indian settlement, nearly one thousand miles removed from our nearest post office and railway station, alone, and without a roof to cover my head. To-day we have house-room enough for forty Indian children and our staff—a boarding school of thirty pupils and eight day scholars. Then my congregation of worshippers ran from fifteen to twenty-five, while now our services are seldom attended by less than seventy, regardless of the fact that we now have a Roman Catholic Mission in our midst, whilst some of our Natives have really shown manifestations of a hearty desire to walk in the ways of our Saviour Jesus Christ. These are only some of the more tangible manifestations of the Almighty's blessing. Time and again, without number, have we felt that God's Fatherly love was overshadowing our daily path, feeding us with things convenient, and daily supplying our every need.

One thousand miles from nearest post-office.

Mr. Marsh was prevented from attending the Conference in June because of the arrival of a Roman Catholic priest to start a Mission at Hay River. Mrs. Marsh's fellow-helpers in the Diocesan Home, with thirty boarders, are Miss Sims, Miss Veitch, and Miss Wilgress, the last-named from the Deaconess' Home at Toronto.

Diocesan Home.

The Rev. W. Spendlove, whose Annual Letter was written in March, 1900, was transferred to Fort Norman from Fort Wrigley in the summer of 1899. He conducts the little school and the services (at which he also presides at the organ) in the new church, which, he says, has no empty seats on Sundays.

"No empty seats."

At Fort Wrigley Mr. Spendlove, before his transfer, prepared eleven adults for confirmation, and administered the Holy Communion to nine of them, the first occasion on which this Sacrament was administered at the station. One of those confirmed was named Chontsi, who had been well known as one of the wildest mountain Indians on the Mackenzie River. He had been a medicine man and conjuror, and was credited with other dark deeds, including murder. In the spring of 1899 he visited Mr. Spendlove, who was struck with his reverent manner as he knelt with him in prayer. After his confirmation he related the following experience :—

"I was with those Indians last fall when God suddenly took many by death. I made medicine till I got sick, and nearly died, too. They thought I was dead. Oh, yati (minister), you don't know what a bad man I have been. In that sickness my medicine failed; it is gone." Here his lips quivered and voice trembled. He continued: "God sent His good Spirit, and I heard a voice saying, 'Go to the white man's minister at Wrigley.' I resisted, tried the conjuring, it failed; tried to put the priest's crucifix on my body, but felt more sore; then put his book on my forehead, the words seemed crooked. At last I yielded, came to you; you took me in your house to God in prayer, and to the Bishop. He, knowing I had been bad, let me in to the Christian Church."

"You don't know what a bad man I have been."

This Indian gave up one of his sons to be trained by the Mission, and he, with eleven other children, mostly of mountain Indians, was sent to the Diocesan Home at Hay River.

Archdeacon R. McDonald returned from England to Fort McPherson, on Peel River, in July, 1899, after an absence of three years. Most of the Indians were then encamped at the station, and they gave him a glad welcome. Within an hour of his arrival all gathered together in the church to thank God for bringing His servant safely back again, and to pray that his coming might be in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ. On the day after his return the Bishop confirmed thirty-three young persons. The Indians were, however, suffering much from the scarcity of food, and within a week they dispersed until the next summer. Some went to Upper Peel River, a distance of 200 miles, accompanied by two Christian "leaders," who were authorized and qualified to act as chaplains and schoolmasters. Others crossed the mountains towards La Pierre's House. With these the Rev. J. Ttssiettla and two leaders went, and the privations they endured were such that Mr. Ttssiettla could not walk without the help of a staff. During the winter they were more than once for four days without a particle of food. The cause of the distress was the intensity of the cold and a deficiency of snow, so that a successful hunting of the reindeer was almost impossible. Others went to the fisheries within a radius of thirty miles of Fort McPherson, and these returned to the Mission in October, and remained there till January, when destitution obliged them to leave again to seek subsistence by fishing and rabbit-snaring. The Archdeacon's family were on short commons, but of this he says little. The work of the station was carried on without interruption, Sunday and daily services being held regularly, and attended by between forty and fifty while the Indians from the fisheries were there, at other times by about a dozen. Miss McDonald conducted school, with an average attendance of eighteen for three months and of ten for the rest of the year. The teaching is in Indian and English. The Archdeacon has two Indian students whom he is preparing for ordination, neither of them very bright, but their minds showed signs of expanding under the teaching they received. He expresses much thankfulness for the complete Tukudh Bible, which he saw through the press while at home, and which the Indians prize very highly. His Annual Letter was written in February, 1900, some months before the Diocesan Conference took place at Fort McPherson.

VI. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

THE Rev. and Mrs. B. Totty sailed in June, 1900, to return to the Mission.

The discovery of gold in the Yukon Valley has completely changed the conditions under which missionary work is carried on in the Selkirk Diocese. It has led to a vast improvement in the facility of approach and communication. Formerly it was reached from the east, viâ the Mackenzie, Peel, and Porcupine Rivers, and Bishop Bompas' and Archdeacon McDonald's travels by this route supplied at one time some of the most interesting journals which appeared in missionary publications. Then the way of access, after missionaries were permanently stationed in the district, was changed to the west, by the Yukon River. Now, however, it has changed again, and the railway has found an entrance from the south. Improved means of approach to the Yukon Valley.

The above circumstance has induced the Bishop to open a new station in the south of his diocese at CARIBOU CROSSING, through which the railway passes, and where a steamboat calls almost daily in the summer. The Bishop conducted Divine service in a large tent. Of the Indians generally in the diocese he writes :—

> The Indians are increasingly sickly and dwindling in number. I fear we can only hope for the privilege of holding open the gate of heaven for some of them before these tribes vanish from the world.

Indians dwindling.

Passing northward, down the Lewis River to the point where it unites with the Pelly River, Archdeacon T. H. Canham's station, known as SELKIRK, from which the diocese derives its name, is reached. A large number of Indians, representing at one time six different tribes, each speaking a different dialect, were encamped near the station during the past year, and all attended the services, and some of them were instructed in the school. The uphill work of teaching was shared by the Archdeacon and Mrs. Canham and a lad, David Walker, brought up at the Mission. The high rate of wages in vogue—from $6 to $10 a day—and the high price obtainable for wood for the steamers running on the river drew away many from the school who would otherwise have been there. The improvement of communication which has been referred to was illustrated by the fact that the news of the Queen's death reached Archdeacon Canham at his remote station on the Yukon only five days after it occurred, and a Memorial Service was held on February 3rd. A week or two before the news of the Queen's death was received the temperature at Selkirk reached 78 degrees below zero!

News of Queen's death received five days after it occurred.

Continuing down the river to Dawson City the Indian village of MOOSEHIDE is found in its immediate vicinity. The Rev. and Mrs. B. Totty arrived there in July, 1900, a month after setting sail from home. The Bishop had occupied the station during Mr. Totty's absence. The Tukudh Bible is a great acquisition here, as well as at Fort McPherson in the Mackenzie River Diocese. A visit was paid to Moosehide by a party of Indians from Peel River, some of whom received the Holy Communion and had their children baptized. Mr. Totty remarks that the food problem regarding the Indians becomes increasingly grave, as the multitude of whites in the country is destroying the game on which they depend for subsistence.

The food problem.

Buxton.

BUXTON is near the point where the Yukon passes into Alaska, which is United States territory. It received its name from the fact that the first missionary to occupy it was supported by Mr. T. Fowell Buxton, of Easneye, Ware, who died before he saw his desire carried out. It is now, however, a mining town, and fifty-two miles lower down the river, on the American side of the line, is Eagle City, with a large mining population. The Rev. J. Hawksley held services for the Indians on Sunday and every evening of the week throughout the year, except during the fishing season, when they were dispersed in little groups along the river obtaining their winter supply of salmon. The summary dismissal from the town of several whites who were suspected of supplying the Indians with liquor had doubtless something to do with the good record for quiet and good conduct which was remarked. Five adult Tanana Indians from about a hundred miles up the Forty Mile River were baptized. Mr. Hawksley conducted English services and a day-school for the white population. A diocesan boarding and day-school for the Indians was opened during the year at Buxton, for which the Bishop engaged the services of the Rev. G. L. L. Gordon, M.A. (Oxon.).

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours; and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division. The C.M.S. Mission Stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in his diocese.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; Kitkatla, 1887; and Tahl Tan, 1898.

Bishop Ridley at New York Conference and on the Stickine River.

Bishop Ridley, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, sailed from home in April, 1900, to attend the New York Missionary Conference. He reached Metlakahtla on May 10th, and presided at the Annual Conference of the British Columbia missionaries. Then on May 26th he sailed North to visit the Stickine River. He wrote home while on this journey:—

> Much more to my mind is this active service than was the intensity of the missionary hot-house at New York last April. To be graciously welcomed by an ex-President of the United States, by the President, and a coming President was a great honour finely conferred on the delegates from many lands to the great Missionary Conference, but the still small voice of the Spirit is more in evidence here in the wilderness, and scenes in a log-cabin in mid-forest stir my soul to greater depths than those burning with enthusiasm in Carnegie Hall, the Conference pivot. Generous to a degree was the hospitality of New York, and I am thankful in the remembrance of it, but I am more in my element here as a wanderer like Jacob, my rest little better than a stone, though I ought not to complain of the hardness of the lap of Mother Earth as a pillow. She is a dear old friend and persuades the sun to make but a faint pretence of going down.

Death of Mrs. McCullagh.

Mrs. McCullagh, wife of the Rev. J. B. McCullagh, of this Mission, died from typhoid fever on December 18th, and Mr. McCullagh himself was seriously ill from the same disease at the time of her death. Archdeacon Collison, hearing at Kincolith, his station lower down the Naas River, of Mrs. McCullagh's illness set out to Aiyansh, but heard of her death before reaching that station. He superintended arrangements for her burial. Her death elicited manifestations of the deepest affection from the Indians, whose delicacy of feeling and tenderness of sympathy greatly cheered Mr. McCullagh in his sorrow. The latter collapsed immediately after the funeral. Archdeacon Collison could not leave him, and yet to remain only a few days incurred the risk of being kept at Aiyansh for some months, as the time was due for the river to become icebound. The Indian crew who had brought the Archdeacon up the river became alarmed and left on the day following the funeral. It was therefore decided to remove Mr. McCullagh and his daughter to Kincolith. The Indians prepared a scow-shaped craft, on which a small tent was erected and a stove placed inside. It was a race with winter, and it snowed so heavily during the first day that it was scarcely possible to see their way. On the second day the ice overtook them, and for five hours they struggled through with great difficulty. Then they reached tidal waters, and the race was won. Under Mrs. Collison's judicious care Mr. McCullagh made rapid progress towards recovery.

A race with winter.

Miss A. J. Tyte came home in June, 1900, and has since resigned her connexion with the Society, having become engaged to be married; Miss C. Carleton came home in December. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Price sailed to return to the Mission in May, 1900, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall in August. Dr. F. E. Webb, of the Victoria Association, has retired on grounds of health.

The Rev. A. J. Hall is the Secretary of the Mission.

The Rev. J. H. Keen had the pastoral charge of METLAKAHTLA during the past year. The church is the largest in British Columbia. It was built before the Secession of 1881, and its accommodation exceeds the requirements of the present population of the village, though they attend well. The number of baptized Christians is 240, and that of communicants 56. About three-fourths of the people understand and speak English well, and one of the Sunday services—the evening one—is in English, the others being in Tsimshean. Mr. Keen says of the churchwarden and of some other voluntary church-workers:—

Metlakahtla.

> My present churchwarden is sufficiently exemplary to deserve special mention. Sunday by Sunday he is at his post, not only superintending the general arrangement, but with his own hands lighting the four stoves and some twenty lamps and ringing the bell. Periodically he and his wife, and other friends whom he enlists, may be seen busily cleaning the building—he, broom in hand, sweeping, and his wife and her female friends on their knees scrubbing. This help is all rendered voluntarily; indeed, the only two paid native officials at the station are the Indian day-school teacher and a small boy who lights the school fire.

Churchwardens' duties.

Miss H. Jackson held a Bible class for young women on Sunday afternoons. Its members seemed to her listless and indifferent, and only one of them was a communicant. A sewing party which Miss Jackson also conducted held a sale of work, and the proceeds, about $15, were sent towards famine relief in India. The Sunday school is attended by 114 children, and, as there is no other building large enough, it is held in the church.

Help sent to sufferers in India.

It was superintended by Miss M. West, whose special charge was the White Home, namely, a boarding-school for white children, in which she was assisted by Miss R. M. Davies. Miss Jackson, after Miss Tyte left, had charge of the Indian Girls' Home, and was helped by Miss A. J. Edwards. There were thirty-five children during most of the year. Mr. Keen held a weekly Bible-class in both the White Home and the Indian Girls' Home; as he did also in the Indian Boys' Industrial School, which, while the Government supports it, is under the Bishop's supervision, and is therefore, in effect, a missionary agency.

Kitkatla.

KITKATLA, a little island just off the coast of British Columbia, will always have a place in missionary annals because of the wonderful history of the conversion of its inhabitants, and especially of its chief—Sheuksh. The story has been told once more by Bishop Ridley, but this time in the form of a poetic drama, and published under the title of Not Myth but Miracle. The Rev. R. W. Gurd, however, in his Annual Letter, expresses his fears lest a too optimistic view of the work should be taken. The Kingdom of Christ is, indeed, established in the island, "the light of the Gospel is shining with increasing lustre and brightness," he says. The issue of the struggle is not in doubt. Nevertheless, there is much ignorance still, and there are old customs which have their serious dangers and need peculiar wisdom in their treatment. The sanctity of the marriage contract is not easily instilled, and many of the older Indians, whose heathen marriage is recognized as legally valid, have not been willing to be married in church, and, alas, the tie is often violated. Youthful marriages, at the ages of fourteen and sixteen, before any provision can be made for maintenance, are very prevalent. Weddings, too, are elaborate and costly beyond the means of the parties, who are often crippled pecuniarily for years in consequence. The Church Committee have recognized some of these evils by passing a rule that marriages should not be encouraged until the male is at least eighteen and the female seventeen, and urging a total cessation of all foolish ostentation and display. Other customs relating to funerals have their dangers, and need to be corrected by the diffusion of the light of God's Holy Word.

Influence of old heathen customs.

Hazelton a telegraph station.

HAZELTON, some 200 miles up the Skeena River, whose waters are swift and treacherous, is at certain seasons most difficult of access, but during the past year it was brought into immediate touch with the world of thought and action by electricity. A telegraph wire now passes through the country, and Hazelton possesses a telegraph office. The church, whose completion was mentioned in last year's Annual Report, was formally opened on October 14th, though the Bishop was not able to be present. There were thirty Europeans in Hazelton at the time, and all attended the morning service, which in some measure accounts for the amount of the collection—$212, about £43—which freed the building of debt. The old church, a log building, is used as a school. Of the adult Christian Indians most are unlettered, but they commit many texts and passages to memory, and many of them are fluent preachers, though they are prone to wander from their subject, and their explanations are sometimes highly original and fanciful; they are glad, however, to be corrected. Twelve adults were baptized, one was a chief of some rank. GIATWANGAK, to which the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Price returned in the autumn of 1900, is about fifty miles below Hazelton on the Skeena. The services were well attended, but during Mr. Price's absence some of the Christians were beguiled into taking part in potlatching. Dr. and Mrs. V. Ardagh were transferred from Metlakahtla to GISHGAGAS, on the Babine River, in the autumn of 1900. The journey up the Skeena by steamboat took six days, so strong was the current; and the rough land journey from thence to Gishgagas, about fifty miles, took another five days. They arrived in the middle of September. Dr. Ardagh conducted the services, held a day school and night school and catechumens' classes, &c. Six adults were prepared for baptism.

Fluent preachers.

The Naas River falls into the sea somewhat to the north of Metlakahtla (as the Skeena does to the south), and KINCOLITH is near its mouth. A new church, built in lieu of the one that was burnt down in 1893, was dedicated on September 30th, 1900. The church has been described as follows:—

Kincolith.

> The church is a fine building, eighty feet in length by forty in breadth, the tower and spire rising to about one hundred feet in height. It is flanked by a vestry in the north-west of the chancel, and the entire building has been erected by the Indians themselves under the direction and according to the plans prepared by Archdeacon Collison. The pulpit forms a special feature of the furnishing of the interior. The body is formed by open panel work with double Gothic arches in each, and would not discredit a London manufactory.

A new church built entirely by Indians.

The houses that were burnt down at the same time as the church have also been rebuilt; indeed, the past year saw marked improvement in many respects in the external appearance of the station. Archdeacon Collison comments on this as follows:—

> The industry and enterprise of our Christian Indians is a surprise to all who have visited the Mission. This is generally true of all the Christian Indians, and is a very marked contrast to the old heathen mode of life. Then the chief object and ambition was to accumulate property by any means in order to distribute it with much pomp and pride to their friends, and the winter and often part of the summer months were spent in loitering and idleness, gambling and medicine work in the vicinity of the "potlatch." This is yet the state of these tribes where Heathenism reigns. With scarcely any clothing save a blanket thrown around them they waste their lives in gambling and "potlatching." But the Christian life is a resurrection from such deadly evils. The new life demands new surroundings, consequently the soiled blanket is exchanged for a decent suit of working clothes, and a better outfit is provided for Sundays and special occasions. And the great open lodge, where several families dwell together without any privacy, lighted generally only from the smoke-hole in the roof, this also is abandoned, and cheerful cottages and dwellings erected in modern style and with many conveniences take their place. This new mode of life demands also increased industry, and in order to effect it our Indians are no longer on the war-path, but rather in the path of peace, cutting and sawing logs and lumber for their improved dwellings, and trapping and fishing to obtain clothes and food for their families. Occasionally all unite in public works for the benefit and improvement of their villages and settlements. This has often been done here during the past year, and the result has been the completion of the new church, the erection of a Church Army Hall, and the construction of a planked walk nearly half a mile in length and ten feet in width. Just now, notwithstanding the intense cold, they are engaged in enlarging their firemen's hall and in lining and ceiling their guest-house.

The new life demands new surroundings.

Indian constables suppressing liquor traffic.

The importation of liquor caused much trouble, but the Indian constables had the courage to seize a schooner laden with strong drink, and the two white men who were in charge were duly tried and sentenced to ten months' imprisonment, while the schooner and its cargo were confiscated. The Sunday and day-schools were well sustained. The children are not quick of apprehension, but they show a strong desire to learn, and succeed in committing a large number of selected texts to memory. One of the teachers received a lay reader's licence from the Bishop. At the Naas Fishery a sub-chief and his wife were baptized on Easter Day, 1900, in presence of a large congregation in the open air. The Rev. J. B. McCullagh's great loss, and the loss sustained also by the Mission station of AIYANSH in the death of Mrs. McCullagh, has been mentioned above. No Annual Letter has been received. In one of the numbers of the Caledonian Interchange, a magazine which Mr. McCullagh conducts, a list is given of forty murders or attempted murders, all arising out of the Indian custom known as the "Potlatch" in the space of about thirty-five years, and among a population of about 2,000.

Murders arising from the Potlatch.

Tahl Tan.

The Bishop, as has already been mentioned, set off to visit TAHL TAN, the station on the Stickine River, immediately after the Conference was concluded at Metlakahtla in May, 1900. The steamer conveyed him to Glenora, where he met the Rev. F. M. T. Palgrave, and proceeded on horseback to compass the last stage of the journey. He was too fatigued, however, after thirteen miles of rough riding, and frequent dismounting and walking at the steep places, to go further, and he rested in an empty log cabin. In this place the catechumens came to him, walking sixteen miles, and were examined by him. The Bishop wrote of one of them:—

The Bishop examines catechumens.

> To me the most interesting was a younger woman whom I doctored some years ago when she was very ill. Her first husband, a heathen Indian, died while she was but a mere girl. Her second she got in this way. A canoe was capsized in the rapids and its living freight swept past and drowned, excepting a young half-breed. She, seeing his peril, waded as far out as she dared where she thought he would drift past, and rescued him. "What could I do after that but take her to wife?" he asked, when telling me the story. She had two sons by him, and when they died he deserted her in her grief. Instead of falling into evil courses among the vicious whites, she put herself under religious instruction, and has developed a character of unusual strength. Yesterday she acted as my interpreter, and did so with uncommon grace, and, Mr. Palgrave says, ability. The log cabin was the scene of interesting events. Like an Oriental she sat cross-legged opposite the person examined, and the lifting up of her eyes to heaven—such lustrous eyes—when interpreting a prayer was a sight that reminded me of the Magdalene at the cross, one of Scheffer's lovely pictures in the Dresden Gallery. When Christ revealed to her His love it filled her with devotion, lighting up her countenance with the beautiful glow that made one praise the grace that works such wonders.

After the baptism the Bishop confirmed them.

No Annual Letter has been received from MASSETT, the isolated station on Queen Charlotte's Islands, where the Rev. W. E. Collison labours among the Hydah Indians.

The Rev. A. J. Hall, on his return to ALERT BAY, the Mission station on the eastern coast of Vancouver's Island, was very lovingly welcomed by the Christian Indians. He sees a decided improvement in the moral tone of the people, the population is increasing, new houses are being built, and the Sunday services and Sunday school are well attended. Miss C. Carleton (now at home) was in charge of the Girls' Home, in which there were eight girls; and Miss R. L. Edwards assisted in the Boys' Industrial School, which is under Mr. A. W. Corker, from whom no Annual Letter has been received. Alert Bay.

Reports of Special Funds.

REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

THE interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources; and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1899 to the following District Church Councils for the support of seventy-three evangelists:—

APPENDIX.

MEMORANDUM ON THE CONSTITUTION OF CHURCHES IN THE MISSION-FIELD.

NOTE.—In this Memorandum the word "Native" is used for convenience in its popular sense. The words "foreign" and "foreigner" are used here and there instead of "English," so as to include members of Colonial Churches and of the American Church. The word "Church" is used of an external community of baptized Christians, not of the spiritual or mystical Body of Christ.

Purpose of the Memorandum.

1. It has long been a principle of the Church Missionary Society that "the object of its Missions, viewed in their ecclesiastical aspect, is the development of Native Churches with a view to their ultimate settlement upon a self-supporting, self-governing, and self-extending system." With a view to the dissemination of clearer ideas upon this great subject it is desirable to state more fully than has hitherto been done the questions to be considered, to illustrate what is meant by the term "Native Churches," and to indicate the steps by which the establishment of such Churches may be attained.

Past use of the term "Native Church."

2. The term "Native Church" is commonly used in a loose way to indicate any community of Native Christians in a town or district, large or small. The phrase "Native Church Organization" in C.M.S. documents has generally meant the organization of Native congregations, or groups of congregations, with a view to their administering their own local Church affairs, and supporting their own Clergy, places of worship, &c. But the purpose of the "Native Church Organization" set on foot by the Society has been, not only to relieve the Society's funds, nor only by the provision of Native Pastors to free the missionaries for more direct evangelistic work, but also to train the Native Christians for future ecclesiastical independence.

Present and Future of the Native Christian communities.

3. At present the Native Christian communities or "Churches" connected with the C.M.S. belong, like the missionaries, to the Mother Church, in the sense that the public worship and the administration of the Sacraments, and the Ordination of the Clergy, are in accordance with the order of the Church of England (Japan being a partial exception); and the Bishops who ordain, confirm, and exercise Episcopal supervision over the congregations are Bishops of the Church of England or its Branches. It is commonly agreed, however, that the goal of Church Missionary effort in its ecclesiastical aspect is the formation not only of local "Native Church Organization" for groups of congregations, but of independent Churches, or, at least, of autonomous branches of existing Churches, with Constitutions, Synods, and Bishops of their own, though in any case in communion with the Mother Church.

Function of the C.M.S.

4. While a Missionary Society of the Church of England has of itself no authority to constitute a Church, or an organized branch of a Church, it is important for a Society of such wide experience, and such close touch with large bodies of converts, as the C.M.S., to be prepared to assist the ecclesiastical authorities, by whom any effective steps must be taken, with suggestions, counsel, and co-operation, and also to advise the Society's missionaries and the Christians who are the fruit of its work regarding their attitude upon questions of the kind.

Present position of Churches and Dioceses abroad.

5. There are at present great varieties in the status and surroundings both of the daughter Churches of the Church of England in the Colonies and of the Missionary Dioceses of the Church of England itself within and without the British Empire, though all are regarded as integral portions of the great ecclesiastical federation now known by the convenient name of the Anglican Communion. (a) Several of the Colonial Churches are practically independent of the Mother Church, having their own Constitutions, Canons, and Synods, and appointing their own Bishops, although linked to the Mother Church by fundamental provisions in their Constitutions voluntarily adopted by themselves. These Churches include among their members Christians of aboriginal races who are the fruits of missionary effort. (b) In India the Church has a certain connexion with the State; for instance, some of the Bishops are appointed by the Crown and supported (partly or wholly) by State funds, and a considerable number of the clergy are Government chaplains. The Church in India has no separate formal Constitution; but its several Dioceses, together with the Diocese of the Disestablished Church in Ceylon, which has a regular Constitution of its own, form an ecclesiastical Province. In that Province the Native members of the Church largely outnumber the foreign (i.e. for the most part British) members. (c) There are isolated Dioceses, not yet grouped in Provinces, within the Empire or its Protectorates, which depend upon the Metropolitan See of Canterbury, as in West and East Africa, in Mauritius, and in Victoria (Hong Kong), in which Dioceses nearly all the members of the Church are Natives. (d) In the independent States like China and Japan, where the members of the Church are likewise nearly all Natives, there are Missionary Bishoprics which are also dependent on the See of Canterbury, though in Japan the Church already has its own Constitution and Synods.

Independence of fully constituted Churches.

6. In such diverse circumstances it is natural that the development of the several Churches or Branches of the Church should proceed on somewhat diverse lines. All such Churches, however, as become fully organized with formal Constitutions will be either expressly or virtually independent of the Mother Church, though the extent to which that independence will be used may greatly vary. Certainly in the case of Churches in which Natives predominate it would be undesirable to impose on them the forms and arrangements of a national Church of a distant country like England. On the contrary, it should be fully recognized that they have, in the words of the 34th Article of the Church of England, "authority to ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites of the Church ordained only by man's authority," and to adopt formularies and modes of worship and discipline suitable to their particular circumstances, "so that all things be done to edifying." Independence, of course, has its dangers as well as its advantages; but it may be hoped that the guidance given during what may be called the missionary period will foster sound principles in the Native Christian communities.

7. There is a general desire that the divisions of Western Christendom should not be perpetuated in the future independent Churches in Asia and Africa, but that, as far as possible, the Christians of one nation, although, it may be, belonging now to different denominations, should eventually be united in one Church. This desire will probably be especially strong in the Native Christians themselves. It is earnestly to be hoped that no such movement would interrupt communion with the Church of England; but it must be remembered that real independence might conceivably involve even such a result as that. With a view to the Native Christians of our Communion being in a position to exercise their due influence whenever such a movement may be in contemplation, it is important in the meanwhile not only to establish them in the true faith of the Church of Christ, but to train them in the principles and practice of Church organization. Without here touching the question what is, or is not, essential to a Church as a true part of the Visible Church of Christ, or casting any reflection upon Churches which are not in communion with the Church of England, it is obvious that inevitable limitations upon the action of the Church Missionary Society are involved in the fact of its being a Church of England Society. It is, accordingly, in the meantime, a necessary condition of the Church Missionary Society's action in promoting the constitution of independent Churches that all plans be made with a view to their remaining in communion with the Church of England and with Churches in communion with it, holding fast Holy Scripture, the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, the two Sacraments, and the Historic Episcopate.*
